WORLD TRENDS AND TENSIONS IN 1991

IF THE innumerable combinations of planets listed in ancient astrological texts are examined carefully, there would be found to exist an amazing series of parallels between the regular motions of planets and the ebb and flow of physical, mental and emotional phenomena peculiar to human life and activities.

The so-called discoveries of new stars and galaxies may have extended the boundaries of our physical universe. But of what use are such 'discoveries' if no attempts are made to understand the significance of these phenomena as applied to living beings and their problems of existence and evolution? Thanks to the 'progressive thinking' of some of our men of science, no serious or systematic attempts have been made in India to assess the practical importance of the ancient astrological doctrines in the field of political Astrology; though, during our long studies and research extending over five decades, it has been possible for us to demonstrate, how planetary patterns affect world affairs. The science of political Astrology is built on the demonstrable basis of facts. That human beings and political events are sensitive to the rhythms of planetary movements will be found to be no more a matter of conjecture, if only doubting Thomases could go through the catalogue of forecasts made by us in these columns since the last five decades.

Astrological precepts based on the revelations of sages and fortified by experience and experiment can no longer be treated lightly or brushed aside as of no consequence. We wish to emphasise that forecasts based on astrological factors have nothing to do with 'prophecies' indulged in by some self-styled 'prophets'. Astrological predictions are based on mathematical calculations plus an intuitional perception of the events likely to happen which prophecies have no such basis.

As the year 1991 is about to dawn, the world situation is becoming increasingly complex. Thanks to the movements of Saturn, Jupiter and Rahu during the past two years, there have been significant changes in world power structures. Soviet Russia is facing political turmoil. The communist regimes in Europe have collapsed. South Africa has been witnessing a historical turning point. A Unified Germany has come into existence leading to the fear of re-emergence of Nazism. Crucial happenings are taking place in Pakistan. The West Asian crises is threatening world peace. The situation in Punjab and Kashmir is worsening. Indian politics is in utter disarray and the civil war in Sri Lanka has been taking an ugly shape.

It would be interesting to know astrologically the trend of world events to happen in 1991, most of which will be covered by the lunar year Prajotpatti which begins on Saturday, the 16th March 1991 at 13h.42m. IST or 8h.12m. GMT. The most significant factor in this year's planetary government is that Saturn, the planet of democracy and the masses, becomes the King. The dominant position of Saturn combined with the fact that the year starts with his association with Rahu could be of much concern to the world making the year one of unusual stress.

Saturn as the King denotes "unequal distribution of rainfall, increase of robberies and dacoities, anger of kings, destruction of crops and grains, outbreak of epidemics and general misery". Saturn represents the so-called lower classes and castes, labour and the democratic ideal. As he becomes the head of the administration the cause of democracy will be benefited. Labour questions will come to the fore and people's representatives will have a say in matters affecting the common people.

Against this background of Saturn being the King and the year being Prajotpatti denoting "prosperity to the cattle, clouds delivering timely rains and strange things happening in the world" have to be filled in details of happenings as revealed by the movements of planets and their dispositions at the commencement of the year. While these astronomical factors may indicate, to a fairly large extent, the events to happen during the year, the directional influences operating in the horoscopes of rulers and nations have to be given due consideration.

Throughout the year the movements of Saturn are confined to Capricorn. This denotes "affliction to the sensually minded people and great famines" in different parts of the world. Generally Saturn transiting Capricorn forebodes "fear, disturbed rains, death and destruction of Yavanas and affliction to the priestly class, Brahmins, medical men and rulers".

At the beginning of the English year, Saturn will be at 3° 27' Capricorn in the constellation of Uttarashadha. He becomes retrograde on 17th May in 14° 32' in Sravana and direct on 6th October 1991 in 7° 54'. The total duration of retrogression will thus be for 138 days involving an arc of 6° 38'. He will again become retrograde on 30th May 1992. Sravana is the constellation of the Moon. It rules the Brahmins, cities, aerial regions, quadrupeds and north-west direction. The period of Saturn's retrogression coincides with the martian transit of Cancer, Leo and Virgo. It will be during the period of May to October 1991 especially when Mars and Saturn are in opposition that the war fever will be at its highest pitch so far as West Asia is concerned. Developments in the Moslem world will continue to dominate the political canvas of the globe. The conflict between contending powers may reach the peak point. A significant political development may also take place in India, adversely affecting the head of the Government. The Indo-Pakistan relationship will also face a great crisis.

Jupiter retrograde at the beginning of the English year in Cancer becomes direct on 2-4-1991, enters Leo on 8th August, becomes retrograde again on 2nd January 1992 and direct on 2nd May 1992. Throughout most of the lunar year his movements are confined to Leo. The Jovian transit of Cancer according to Garga implies "scarcity, famine and quarrels amongst rulers". It is strange that only unfavourable results are attributed to Jupiter's presence in Cancer. But the dicta of the sages are to be taken for what they are worth.

Rahu who, at the beginning of the year, is in Capricorn 5° 45' (Uttarashadha) enters Sagittarius on 11th May 1991 and continues there till the end of the year. His transit covers the constellations of Uttarashadha, Poorvashadha and Moola. Rahu is indeed a planet of major changes, prominent in social, cultural and political lives of nations. It is only after a painful process of adjustment that the beneficial repercussions, if any, of Rahu's blessings can manifest.

The movements of Rahu in the year ahead will adversely affect the political situation both in and around the Gulf countries. One need not be surprised if one of the rulers is assassinated or thrown out. On the whole, Rahu's transit, especially of Sagittarius, will contribute to the increase of tension all over the world, the gravest repercussions being produced in the Islamic countries. Another major factor of Rahu's transit is an intensification of the struggle between the conservative and progressive communists in Russia resulting in a swing towards total capitalism.

Both Jupiter and Saturn in solstitial signs indicate that the first hurricanes of the summer can be expected in mid-July and the weather especially around the period of the solstices will be violent and the worst storms of the decade may be reported from different parts of the world.

During the year 1991, there will be six eclipses. An annular eclipse of the Sun takes place on 16-1-1991 involving Capricorn and the constellation of Uttarashadha, a penumbral eclipse of the Moon on 30-1-1991 (Cancer and Pushya), another penumbral eclipse of the Moon on 27-6-1991 (Sagittarius and Moola), a total solar eclipse (Gemini and Punarvasu) on 11th July 1991, a penumbral lunar eclipse on 26-7-1991 (Capricorn and Uttarashadha) and a partial lunar eclipse on 21-12-1991 (Gemini and Mrigasira).

Of these six eclipses, only the last two are visible in India. Two eclipses have reference to Capricorn, two to Gemini and one each to Cancer and Sagittarius. Eclipses have their good or bad effects on national and international developments. We shall elaborate the significance of these eclipses on a subsequent occasion. Suffice it to say that the eclipses will heighten the tension between India and Pakistan, cause earthquakes and upset climatic conditions. On the political level Kremlin may face significant developments resulting in the overthrow of an important leader.

Among notable aspects may be listed: Saturn-Rahu conjunction on 21st January 1991 (Capricorn 5° 44'); Jupiter (R) opposition Saturn on 16th March 1991; Saturn (R)-opposition Mars on 6th June 1991; Jupiter-Mars conjunction on 14th June 1991; Mars-Saturn opposition on 7th March 1992 and Mars-Jupiter (R) opposition on 5th April 1992.

These combined influences of major planets and the Nodes are not propitious. They will have an adverse effect on employment, grains and cereals. There is danger of breach of agreements and violation of treaties generating much tension in international affairs. Many murders and outrages occur. Troubles are sudden in railways and cases of libel and slander will crop up. Some of the aspects have reference to solstitial signs affecting weather adversely. Occurrence of earthquakes in California, Japan and Iran is likely. A major earthquake is also likely in May-June 1991 bringing in its wake much destruction of life and property.

A sudden spurt in violence, military movements and weather vagaries are foreseen in June-July 1991 which will be high voltage months for the entire globe.

INDIA

At the commencement of the new year, the 2nd degree of Cancer rises at New Delhi, the meridian falling in Aries. The focus of the planetary pattern falls mainly on the Ascendant (general stability), the 7th house (foreign relations), the 9th house (general fortune), the 2nd house (finance and economy) and the 10th house (government, the ruling party etc.). The lord of Lagna, Moon, is in the 9th with the Sun, lord of the 2nd, and Mercury, lord of the 12th (and the 3rd) aspected powerfully by a strong and afflicted Saturn. This affliction does not render the Ascendant as strong as is desirable. In fact, this situation means general discontent of the people and mounting inflation and economic woes. However, the silver lining is the presence of Jupiter in Lagna Rasi aspecting the planets placed in the 9th and in parivartana with Lagna lord. Jupiter is no doubt exalted but his occupation of Aslesha deprives him of that vitality which is necessary to neutralise fully the negative factors mentioned above. The combined aspect of Rahu and Saturn is a warning that the caste-based reservations, if implemented, would spell disaster to the country. As the year progresses the struggle against reservations in general may gain in intensity. The clamour for removing even the existing reservations — not to speak of the fresh reservations announced by the former Prime Minister — will increase and the caste-war assume ugly proportions. The aftermath of the Rahu-Saturn conjunction in a saturnine sign and solar constellation will be the unleashing of forces threatening the integrity of India.

The lord of the 2nd Sun in the 9th with the Ascendant lord Moon aspected by an afflicted Saturn and the lord of the 3rd and 12th warns that a gloomy economy is around the corner. The thesis that a national economy can continue to expand by borrowing more and more money may receive a rude shock. The impending recession will hit all areas of business. Debt will continue to permeate our economy that it can never be paid back in an orderly manner. Some of the nationalised banks will be made to write off crores of rupees as loans of farmers.

Mercury, the planet of trade and commerce, is in the 9th debilitated in the constellation of Saturn and aspected by Saturn (and Jupiter lord of the 9th). Many investors, businessmen and estate agents, automobile manufacturers and dealers will be caught off guard, though political theorists, economic advisers and planning experts will continue to keep the illusion of prosperity alive as long as possible. The steel market will be adversely hit. Prize controls and prize freezes will not bring down the prices. Unemployment will increase. The Government's economic policies will only reflect confusion. The socialist policies will misfire and India in due course may dump the socialistic pattern into the deep seas just as Russia did. The Government's populist schemes such as waiving farm loans and subsidising the educated unemployed etc., will boomerang. The Planning Commission will not be able to sustain the pace of economic development. It will be a dumb observer from its ivory towers.

While the prices of all food-stuffs will soar higher and monetary problems will cause considerable anxiety with extravagant spending by Government making further inroads into the private purses of burdened tax payers, the outlook for the country's trade is somewhat encouraging, thanks to the disposition of the lord of the 2nd in the 9th and the lord of the 11th occupying the 10th.

Every household will feel the severe pinch of prices. There will be no shortage of food grains. The motive being wholly political, edible oil, potatoes, onion, sugar, pulses etc. will all become scarce due to manipulative middle men. The Government will be powerless in controlling the price-line. The public distribution system will fail and these are all the blessings of the socialist philosophy of the rulers.

The 3rd or house of communications is free from affliction, but the 3rd lord is debilitated and aspected by Saturn. In the Navamsa however the 3rd is occupied by Mars. While accidents — aeroplane, bus and train etc. — will not be as frequent and heavy as in 1990, many accidents and destruction will continue due to war-like activities. Further benefits to postal and railway employees will be given. Saturn's aspect on the 3rd lord is not conducive to the freedom of the press. Indirect methods of controlling newspapers may be resorted to. Postal and telephone rates will go up.

The lord of the 4th Venus placed in the 10th aspects the 4th. Saturn, lord of the 7th and 8th, also aspects the 4th. The Government's land policy will be more realistic. Agrarian trouble will be brewing. Because of Saturn's aspect farmers' leaders may indulge in frequent agitations to press their rights. The Government may set up housing corporations without a clear conception of the financial implications. The housing schemes will be a failure.

Lord of the 5th in the 11th in parivartana with the lord of the 11th augurs well for the interests of children.

Education will however be in a mess, specialists wracking their brains to find solutions to juvenile delinquency forgetting the fact that the crux of the problem is materialism and indifference to values enshrined in our cultural heritage.

The martian influence indicates death of a large number of children due to accidents, food poisoning and peculiar children's disease, not amenable to known medical theories.

Yogakaraka Mars aspecting the 5th shows some outstanding performances in sports and athletics. A new athlete or star-player may emerge on the Indian horizon.

Lord of the 6th Jupiter exalted in the Ascendant and afflicted by the combined aspect of Saturn and Rahu is not a factor conducive to the health of the nation. The public health will not improve. Dubious habits caused by cigarettes, alcohol and narcotics will cause much damage to both the individual and the community. The nodal axis afflicting the 6th lord and Saturn also influencing him show increase in the incidence of disease from pollution and environmental factors. But the mental health index registers an upward trend as the Lagna lord Moon in the 9th aspected by Jupiter will prompt more and more people to bring in regulation, religion and spirituality into their lives.

Companies manufacturing detrimental products will find new outlets and make enormous profits.

The political pendulum will swing somewhat towards the right. The working class may have a set-back. Subtle moves to dismantle the state ownership of some public sector industries will come to light.

Lord of the 7th Saturn is well placed in the 7th but afflicted by his association with Rahu. Jupiter's aspect no doubt relieves the affliction to some extent, but Saturn-Jupiter in mutual aspect always gives rise to surprising developments. Saturn-Rahu in the 7th signals loss of goodwill abroad and our outlook towards eventualities arising out of U.S.A.-Soviet Russia co-operation may dramatically change. Our defence makes forward moves and becomes more streamlined. A spy ring engaged in transmitting vital information about our defence to our enemies may surface and cause consternation in high political circles. The Government will come down heavily on espionage activity and a few heads may roll in high circles.

Politics will undermine statesmanship. There is danger of war with our neighbour. Because of Rahu-Saturn influences on the 7th, Pakistan's moves will be deliberately subtle but intended to take India unawares so that the initial advantage lies with it.

We submit to our rulers irrespective of whichever party-Government they may head, not to be complacent in their thinking but spare no efforts to thwart the unholy designs of Pakistan. It will continue to be active in Kashmir. The so-far never conceded debate on doing away with Article 370 as to bring Kashmir within the framework of the Indian Constitution may make some headway.

In addition to the forms of insurgencies rocking Kashmir and Punjab new problems will be created by the ULFA rebels. Unless our Government pays serious attention to this part of India and tries to solve the issues involved, the integrity of the country may be in jeopardy. In Assam, the activities of the secessionists may lead to widespread violence. The chances of peace in Punjab are still remote. The political scene will continue to be uncertain. The reservation policy will create a vested interest in backwardness and concessions will be demanded on ethnic and religious grounds adversely affecting national integration. While denouncing Manu for the evils of Varnasrama Dharma, a new caste-system setting Hindus against Hindus will be in the offing. However, as Jupiter is in the Ascendant, the Government of the day will be obliged to find some legal loophole to extricate itself from this thoughtless commitment.

Jupiter in exaltation as the 9th lord aspecting the 9th and the now moving apart Saturn-Rahu will bring about a year of significant developments vis-a-vis the majority community.

Jupiter being in association with Ketu, Brahmins may become the target of damaging criticism. Some sections of Harijans misled by their leaders and other vested interests may resort to conversion, as political parties give them nothing in return for their votes. This can affect the unity of the majority community unless thwarted by nationalist forces.

The politics of Karnataka and Andhra Pradesh is likely to witness strange developments about the respective governments. At least two southern and two northern states may have new chief ministers. Maharashtra is also in for much political instability.

The 8th house has a strong Papakartari Yoga. The 8th lord occupies the 7th with Rahu. The Government will be in serious trouble off and on, its survival being threatened. Death of a national figure may plunge the nation in mourning.

CC-0. In Public Domain. Gurukul Kangri Collection, Haridwar

The alignment of planets with reference to the 10th house is full of portents. Lord of the 10th Mars happening to be a Yogakaraka though in the 11th is actually in the 12th house in his own constellation but in an inimical sign. As in the years 1911-'12 and 1943-'44, when Mars stayed in Taurus for nearly six months, this year also the movement of Mars is confined to this sign from August 1990 to March 1991. During this same period Jupiter-Saturn will be in exact opposition and a Saturn-Rahu conjunction will have taken place. Moreover as long as Jupiter continues to stay in Cancer, both the major planets will be in opposition. These celestial phenomena will adversely affect political affairs in India. We wish to repeat what we had mentioned in the 1989 Annual Number, viz., the country is again in for a significant and even unexpected transformation in the political scene at Delhi. A spate of violence may be let loose all over the country on some grievance or other, real or imaginary. The Government should be prepared to face any such threats to peace and nip in the bud the activities of mischievous elements. Shifting of loyalties and horse-trading to get power may become the order of the day.

The 10th lord Mars is in the 12th Bhava. Squabbles and confusion in the Government may necessitate mid-term polls. A major change in the power echelons at the Centre is in the offing.

The Government may be obliged to assume certain special powers to deal with some national emergencies and developments. In India, the communists will receive further set-backs and their influence wanes.

The space-programme, so aptly described by Indian newspapers as jinxed, will live upto its reputation. Spin-offs from space for the Indian public and industry will be a case of the Emperor's clothes.

The Congress (I) will continue to make a lot of noise but without any tangible results. The B.J.P. will continue to grow roots that will widen out as the year unwinds.

Ayodhya and Sri Rama Janmabhoomi will continue to hog the limelight. Jupiter's passage out of Cancer will mark a lowering of the tensions around this issue. Judicial or legislative backing may make the matter slightly more smooth-sailing for the Mandir protagonists.

The Ascendants rising at Delhi and Washington are in mutual shashtashtaka and relations between the countries may go somewhat awry. The Ascendants at Delhi and the Soviet capital being in dwirdwadasa subtle rift may develop between the two countries. China's aggressive tactics on our borders will not be relished.

OUR NEIGHBOURS

The end of Gemini rising at Islamabad with Mars in the 12th aspecting the 7th and the two worst malefics posited in the 8th from the Ascendant hardly denote any silver lining in the otherwise gloomy picture of Pakistan in the year ahead. These astrological factors do not favour orderly functioning of the government. It looks as though, both India and Pakistan born the same day have to face the wrath of the heavens, thanks to the role of self-seekers and unprincipled leaders. India may of course fare better because its Lagna is Taurus; but Pakistan with Saturn-Rahu conjunction occurring in the 10th will have to pass through a testing time, if it has to survive as an independent nation. The country's politics will be characterised by confusion and uncertainty. Instability in Pakistan will relegate all other matters including "an Indo-Pakistan settlement" to the dreamland. In fact in her relations with India, ominous developments may be witnessed, and Pakistan will be tough and uncompromising. While the Ascendant rising at Delhi is also subject to the malefic influences of Rahu-Saturn, in the case of Pakistan the malefics are in the 8th, and the 7th receives the aspect of Mars. Hence the instability will be more marked and the Government of the day may go tottering. Her links with the Islamic countries will become closer. A sudden upsurge of political passions, violent deaths and a chaotic state of affairs are portended.

In Kathmandu while the Ascendant is Cancer, the Navamsa happens to be Virgo, Mars dominantly placed and aspecting the 4th, the 7th and the 8th houses. The transition from monarchy to multi-party democracy seeking to accommodate almost all shades of political opinion will be beset with many difficulties. Much acrimony will prevail in matters of land reforms and transferring the command of the army from the King to civilian control. The army's natural closeness to the King will continue. Fortunately and despite the cries of the pseudo-secularists of the Indian variety, Nepal will continue to be a Hindu kingdom. Tradition will still pull strings, despite the introduction of democracy. A violent attack on the life of the King is likely.

Ethnic struggle in Bhutan will take a serious turn. The movement for democracy will gain momentum and violence will break out on a large scale.

The Tibetans will face more Chinese belligerency.

As regards Sri Lanka, the general trend of events will be more or less as indicated in the last year's Annual Number. The 26th degree of Gemini rising with Mars in the 12th house aspecting the 6th and the 7th is no positive factor for the return of even a modicum of normalcy. Premadasa's government will be on the verge of collapse and his political future may become somewhat obscured, may be temporarily. There is no indication of the ethnic conflict between the Tamils and Sinhalese being put an end to. India's diplomacy in Sri Lanka will lack clarity. D.M.K. politics in Tamil Nadu will indirectly help the militants.

Jupiter close to the Ascendant point which is also aspected by Saturn at Dhaka make Bangla Desh vulnerable to fierce winds and cyclones. Disease and hunger will continue to stalk the land. Surprising political developments are indicated.

At Rangoon, the 14th degree of Cancer rises in Scorpio Navamsa. Venus and Mercury influencing the Navamsa point are favourable indices for the military junta coming to some kind of power-sharing agreement with the National League Democracy. The N.L.D. leaders may be released following dissent in the army. The weak-kneed Burmese economy will show some improvement.

UNITED STATES

The 27th degree of Sagittarius rises at Washington, Lagna being Vargottama. The lord of Lagna is no doubt exalted in the 8th but afflicted because of the combined aspect of Saturn and Rahu. Nationally and internationally a rough year is indicated for U.S.A. While a world war is ruled out, the probability that the United States will be dragged into a major war in 1991 cannot be ruled out. Astrological interpretations should always be indicative and not deterministic. U.S.A. will be involved in arbitrating in the dissensions of West Asian countries. Lord of the 7th Mercury is in Pisces, a watery sign. The 12th house is aspected by Mars. Lord of the 8th is afflicted—all favouring American involvement.

Drug addiction, alcoholism and crime will increase enormously. The health of the average American will not be satisfactory. Emphasis will shift in public health matters to preventive care and society will increasingly shy away from the benefits of modern medicine as imprecise.

The 2nd house ruling finance is much afflicted. But the aspect of Jupiter is a silver lining. American economy will be disturbing, but weapon manufacturing industries will become prosperous. The country has to pass through a major depression. Oil and farm prices will increase. The 3rd lord Saturn in the 2nd is far from happy for newspaper-health. A giant of the fourth estate may make headlines in the wake of a big financial scandal.

The trinal relationship between Jupiter and the 9th lord Sun will make many Americans go back to religion. The judiciary may not acquit itself creditably, especially in issues involving financial institutions and public funds.

Venus subject to Papakartari Yoga in the 5th denotes some sensational crimes against women. The West Asian crisis may force emergency measures. Some of America's allies may resort to obstructionist tactics. India will be extended sizeable economic assistance. There will be an intensification of the production of war missiles. Mars aspects the 12th and the planet of labour Saturn is afflicted in the 2nd. Labour unrest will rear its head and much violence is to be feared. In winter the weather will be generally freakish. With Pakistan, misunderstandings will arise but aid may continue. The price of gasoline, alcohol and tobacco will go up. The U.S. will not be able to cut down its defence budget and direct it to social programmes. The hotel trade will be severely hit. America faces recession. American interest in South Asia may decline and dramatic changes in U.S. policies may be witnessed. In view of the martian aspect on the Ascendant, the star-wars programme may go ahead overcoming the problems that bedevilled the programme in the past. The transit of Mars through Gemini and his opposition to Saturn-Rahu not only indicates one or two aerial disasters but also an earthquake shock in Western U.S.A. Washington will discourage any secessionist movements affecting the integrity of India. President Bush's popularity may wane and he may face a difficult health problem about the time of Mars-Saturn conjunction. Even in U.S.A. in regard to certain important matters politics may undermine statesmanship. About the end of the lunar year the President is likely to be exposed to some personal danger.

U.S.S.R.

Because of the confused planetary dispositions a clear picture of things likely to happen is somewhat difficult. On the one hand Saturn and Rahu will be transiting the 12th from the ruling sign of Russia while on the other, Mars occupying the 12th aspects the 7th in the New Year's chart. The affliction of both the 7th and 8th houses, despite the moderate relief due to the exaltation of the 7th lord Jupiter indicates developments which may move beyond the control of Gorbachev. The crisis of economy in Russia may become grimmer, the production itself becoming dislocated. Russia may embark on an aggressive restructuring of its economic policies but attendant inflation will hit the country. Prices soar and workers demand higher wages. Despite Gorbachev's revolutionary step in reversing Lenin's policy, it may take years for Leninism to break up. Russia may witness some sort of democratising chaos. Its clamouring for an identity under Yeltsin will keep creating headaches for Gorbachev.

Gorbachev's predicament will reveal itself in its full complexity as Mars and Saturn come closer to opposition. One can only hope that the great Gorbachev will survive. In international matters Russia's role will be constructive. While the changes that are taking place in Russia will be generally welcomed by the Russians, a section of hard-core Communists may resort to agitational tactics to stem such changes. On the surface Gorbachev's authority will be growing. But there will also be attempts to overthrow the government by repressionist radicals.

WEST ASIA & AFRICA

At Baghdad 5° 36' Gemini rises and Mars is actually in the 1st house, 7° behind the Ascendant point aspecting the 7th house. The 8th is equally ill-disposed. The horoscope of Iraq is now under severe afflictions. At Jerusalem and Teheran Taurus 26° and Gemini 14° respectively rise, the Ascendants being afflicted. Therefore the whole region would continue to be in a flux. President Saddam will be as ruthless as ever with his internal opponents. His wily moves will land him in trouble. He will continue to dramatise his defiance and the Security Council's decisions.

Tensions in the Gulf will continue to escalate rapidly. The Saturn-Rahu conjunction and aspects between Mars and Saturn will have ominous implications not only for Iraq but also for some other West Asian countries. The period around the date of the conjunction will be ominous. The conflict, as already indicated in these columns, is a possibility. At the time of conjunction both Saturn and Rahu will be on the fringe of Vishanadi area in the constellation of Uttarashadha. About the same time, Mars will be in Krittika ruled by Agni. The conjunction takes place in mrityu yoga. Mars will be in Mrigasira for the duration of the stay of both Saturn and Rahu in Poorvashadha causing what is called Mahasoola Yoga. This Yoga will last till more or less April 1991. During this period, the war mania may spread and the risk of using chemical weapons capable of affecting the lungs (Mars in Gemini) and the nervous system cannot be ruled out. The facade of Arab unity will be further shattered. However a new axis of some Arab powers may be formed and this new alignment may not be quite welcome to the U.S. The big loser will of course be Yasser Aralat. Faced with the threat of domestic, social and political upheavals, many of the Gulf states may accept the prescriptions concocted by western capitalist creditors. The Gulf war will have many surprises.

Gulf Arabs may decide to spend their money manipulating alliances and mercenaries to keep themselves safe from the poorer but stronger Arabs in the north.

The economic and financial interests of Indians in other Gulf countries will not be satisfactorily tackled by the Indian Government.

Iran will play a dubious and double game between Iraq and anti-Saddam forces.

The waters of Israel's dramatic politics will continue to be muddy. Israel's position will be in a state of flux. Her relations with U.S.A. may change and Israel will no longer be treated as America's main strategic asset. The Government may fall. No immediate solution will be forthcoming in regard to Arab-Israel relations.

A destructive earthquake may hit Iran. There are likely to be political changes and moderate groups within Islam will try to liberalise theological contentions. Egypt may not escape involvement in the expected Gulf war. This will be a bad year for President Mubarak not only healthwise but in general. Religious unrest and agitations by fundamentalists are not ruled out. Syria's role in the Gulf crisis will be an enigma. A political crisis may lead to the fall of the present ruler. Before the end of the year at least the heads of two rulers in West Asia may roll down.

The horrors of war will continue to afflict this unfortunate region. Turkey is faced with internal troubles. Political unrest and emergency will dethrone the ruler in Morocco.

King Hussain of Jordan may find himself caught in an unexpected development that could wrench him from power.

NEWS AND VIEWS

EKALAVYA

Enter Chandra Shekhar

FOR long, considered a maverick, Chandra Shekhar has now turned out to be a man of destiny so far as India is concerned.

The drama of November 7, 1990 at New Delhi manifested the worst features of junglism in politics that Vishnu Sharma has protrayed in his immortal Pancha Tantra; and Mahatma Gandhi must have squirmed in his grave at Raj Ghat, at how his countrymen to whom he gave away independent India on a platter, but at enormous cost to himself and his devoted colleagues, behaved, none putting the nation before his own self.

While hastily opting for Mandalism proved to be V. P. Singh's Waterloo, Rajiv Gandhi's unprincipled offer of full support to Chandra Shekhar while he himself was unsure of running the government, edged by other disgruntled elements, triggered the bravado of Chandra Shekhar who fought for his chance like a tiger.

In order to avoid a mid-term poll, the President invited Chandra Shekhar to form the government, and prima facie Chandra Shekhar will get his confidence vote in the Parliament.

But the alignments of the parties in the House thereafter, especially with the appointment of Ministers, will make all the difference whether the new Government will be a good starter.

I have here the horoscope of Chandra Shekhar without full bio-data which I give below:

MERC.	ASCDT. SUN	VENUS	RAHU MARS
JUPIT.	Chart I
KETU	SAT.	MOON

Chandra Shekhar was born in 1927 in Ibrahim Patti in Ballia district, U.P., in a farming family. It is said that he had to walk 12 km. daily to his school in Ballia. A post-graduate and highly informed, he came under the influence of Acharya Narendra Dev. Since 1962, he has been active in Central politics. His perambulations in different parties including that of the Janata are well-known.

He is born in Aries Lagna with the Sun exalted in it. On the face of it the chart has no doubt Subhakartari, Ubhayachari and Raja Yogas. Lagna lord Mars who occupies Vikramasthana in the company of Rahu makes him a fire-brand. He has no doubt excellent ideas; he is a great humanist. But as the proverb goes "fine words butter no parsnips", politics is a lecherous pond infested by sharks and crocodiles where good ideas do not avail.

His Sarvashtakavarga (Chart II) gives a better picture of his possibilities. In the first instance his 7th house carries minimum number of benefic bindus viz., 19. While this is much less than the average, it is level with the statutory provision. Saturn's aspect to Venus also affirms the above, which covers his domestic area. It shows that the family is tradition-bound. Jupiter's aspect to the 5th house, of course, has blessed him with excellent progeny.

His 10th house carries the maximum number of 35 benefic bindus showing his high destiny. However, the 5th lord Sun occupying Lagna in exaltation donates a paltry 3 benefic bindus to his credit. The disposition of the 10th lord in the 8th, although aspecting the 10th, but aspected by Maraka Venus, and Bhagya lord occupying Badhakasthana provide a commentary on his ability to hold on to his job effectively or for a long time. In Mundane Astrology, the 7th house relates to public support. And one wonders whether the low number of benefic bindus there warrant it.

Chart III is the one raised for the moment of his taking the oath of office (10th November 1990, New Delhi, 11.00 a.m.). Sagittarius rises and it is loaded with the evil planets Saturn, Uranus and Neptune — all retrograde; and its lord Jupiter occupying the 8th from it although exalted, yet in the company of

		MARS
	Chart III		JUPIT. KETU
RAHU			MOON
ASCDT. SAT.	MERC.	SUN VENUS

Ketu who happens to be the opening Mahadasa lord Saturn also aspects 10th i.e., office. The Sun is debilitated. These are clear indications that he has formed his government against heavy odds.

I am yet to hear of a planet occupying 8th bringing prosperity. And Venus, whose subperiod in Ketu which is running now is the Maraka for his 10th house. Jupiter's transit over karmic Ketu inducted him into office.

While I don't wish to be a Cassandra, the signals are clear for all to see.

Sabari Pilgrims - Insurance Cover

I had a strange dream the other night. The portrait of Lord Ayyappa hanging before my bed became animated at which I spontaneously called out "Swamiye Saranam Ayyappa" in prayer.

Hearing which Lord Ayyappa asked me, "What made you think of me now?"

Said I, "I read a news item on a scheme of financial relief to stricken pilgrims to your shrine, jointly sponsored by the Sangham, General Insurance Corporation and a bank. This just made me wonder whether the scheme will serve Your devotees better or otherwise spiritually."

"What makes you doubt it?"

"Generations of pilgrims have rushed to your shrine against great odds, taking the vow of celibacy. They did this as a penance. Faith in you, so far, had been the insurance cover. But now I find money and man replacing it. I felt sad that the all-consuming faith in You will now become attenuated and the object of the pilgrimage viz., penance will be vitiated."

"You mean to say that it is wrong to commercialise it?"

"Yes, if I may say so, as I feel very sad that the one penance that turned the Nelson's eye to pelf for spiritual risks will now vanish!"

"Perhaps you are right. Heard of the figure of speech by name Oxymoron? It is the juxtaposition of words of contradicting meanings. Here it is the sacred and profane. The two always figure together particularly in religion. Have you seen the environs of sacred temples? They are invariably strewn with garbage!"

"Swami! I feel the present one is the first step directed towards debasing the Nishkama Bhakthi reposed in You by the pilgrims over the years. You must be knowing what will follow".

"Don't worry. This is the way things move in Kali Yuga."

"I only wish that the Guru Swamis do not become GIC's agents when pilgrimage to Your shrine will become a first-rate commercial proposition."

At which the Lord laughed and vanished.

Ego under X-ray!

We have heard people say that egoism or ahankara is always evil and that it should be shunned.

A close examination of this statement reveals that it is not that bad, that there are three types of ego of which two are good and only one bad.

Darsanas say that Ahankara is the second product of Prakriti arising directly out of Mahat which is the first manifestation of the former and the function of ahankara is the feeling I and Mine or Abhimana.

It is on account of Abhimana that the self considers itself, wrongly of course, to be an agent or cause of action, desirer and a striver for ends and the owner of properties.

There is an interesting episode in Yoga Vasishta, Sthithiprakarna, chapter 33, in which sage Vasishta makes it all clear to Sri Rama.

To a question from Sri Rama, what all forms egoism takes and how best to tackle it, Vasishta says,

"Rama! Egoism is of three kinds. The first two are good, the third should be got rid of.

"I am the whole world, the Paramatman; there is no world other than myself. This egoism

Astrological Miscellany

MRS. GAYATRI DEVI VASUDEV, B.Sc., LL.B.

Shining Pates

READER Dr. K. G. S. Prasad Rao of Nellore is intrigued by bald heads, rather by factors which could cause baldness. He sends two horoscopes of young men, both medical post graduates. Both are completely bald, he says.

Case 1: Born 8-8-1961 at 0.05 hrs.

Rasi: Taurus - Ascendant; Gemini - Venus and Moon; Cancer - Mercury and Sun; Leo - Rahu; Virgo - Mars; Capricorn - Jupiter and Saturn; and Aquarius - Ketu. Navamsa: Capricorn - Ascendant, Venus, Saturn, Sun and Mars; Pisces - Jupiter; Taurus - Rahu and Moon; and Scorpio - Ketu and Mercury.

Case 2: 1-11-1962 at 7.40 p.m.

Rasi: Taurus - Ascendant; Cancer - Mars and Rahu; Libra Sun and Mercury; Scorpio - Venus; Sagittarius - Moon; Capricorn - Saturn and Ketu; and Aquarius - Jupiter.

Let us look at the common factors in the two horoscopes. First, the Ascendants are the same. In Case 1, the Ascendant lord Venus is in the 2nd with the Sun. In Case 2, the Ascendant lord Venus is in the 2nd with the Moon and the 2nd lord Mercury is in the 3rd with the Sun. In Case 2, the Ascendant lord Venus is in Scorpio whose lord Mars is in Cancer. The 2nd lord Mercury is in Libra with the Sun. So the common features that now emerge are the signs on the Ascendant, the position of sign-dispositor of the Ascendant lord in Cancer, and the 2nd lord Mercury in both joining the Sun.

The Ascendant has to do with physical appearance and Taurus, by itself, is a sign of great beauty. The 2nd house rules the face and its ruler joins the Sun, a dry and fiery planet. The Sun associated with Lagna or the 2nd does not conduce to good looks and can give thinning, sparse hair on the head. That is why in charts where the Lagna lord or the 2nd lord is in Leo, the natives tend to be bald or have very thin hair or receding foreheads.

Some signs have a predisposition to baldness. Usually, Taurus, Sagittarius and Aquarius tend to suffer from very little hair on the head and if there are other afflictions too, they usually develop baldness quite early in life.

According to Jataka Tattwa (C-219, 220, 221) if Sagittarius or Taurus is the Ascendant aspected by malefics; if the Lagna is a malefic sign (Aries, Gemini, Leo, Libra, Sagittarius or Aquarius) and occupied by a malefic; if the

(In this feature, unusual and interesting events that occur in day-to-day life will be discussed astrologically. They may be about anything - birth, marriage, accident, sport, career, art, farming, weather, animals and the list is endless - so long as it is different from the monotony of life. Readers are invited to send in details of such instances plus relevant astrological charts and dates to Astrological Miscellany, THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, Bangalore 560 020.)

Moon be in Cancer aspected by Mars and if Leo, Sagittarius, Scorpio, Virgo be rising, then the native will be bald-headed (Khalwata). These combinations just about cover all the signs except Cancer and Pisces. But many born under these two signs too have had bald-heads! This would mean, broadly speaking, malefic signs on the Ascendant influenced by malefics can lead to baldness, especially if hereditary factors are also strong. Conversely, benefics aspecting the Ascendant conduce to a headful of hair.

Whither the Apothecary?

Reader A. N. Iyer of New Delhi writes "There is a sloka in Jataka Parijata which says if the Ascendant, Sun, Mars, Moon and the 10th house have Scorpio Navamsa or at least two among these have this Navamsa, the native will be a doctor. The lad, whose chart is given below, has Mars and the Sun in Scorpio Navamsa, yet he has shown no inclination for medicine".

Born 8-1-1972.

Rasi: Aquarius - Ascendant; Pisces - Mars; Taurus - Saturn; Cancer - Ketu; Virgo - Moon; Sagittarius - Jupiter, Mercury and Sun; and Capricorn - Rahu and Venus. Navamsa: Aries - Ascendant, Jupiter, Mercury and Rahu; Virgo - Venus; Libra - Ketu; Scorpio - Mars and Sun; Aquarius - Saturn and Moon, with a balance of 3 years and 2 months of Moon Dasa.

The Dasa now on is of Rahu who is in the 12th from Lagna with Venus. With reference to the Moon (Chandra Lagna), he is in the 5th and cannot be a very favourable factor for good academic performance. The 5th house from Lagna has a Papakartari Yoga aspected by Mars. Therefore, the boy may find it beyond him to cope with medical studies. He can complete his graduation.

Combinations from classical works cannot always be applied literally. In this case since two of the factors defined in the sloka are present and also because the 10th lord Mars is in Pisces aspected by the Moon, the boy's work may be related to medicine. Since Mars is in a common sign aspected by the Moon, he may succeed as a medical representative or in allied areas, though he may not be a full-fledged medical man which would be the case if he were a doctor.

Windfall in the Wings

"Some years ago you discussed my horoscope and predicted that I will definitely have literary success and much income through writings. It is true I am a writer but I have not so far earned through writings. But, recently I had a chance of knowing a foreign literary agent who takes interest in pushing my writings — a novel, short stories and poems—in the market. He is looking for a prospective publisher but, so far nothing definite is known. I am working very hard as a writer in the hope that my ambition may be fulfilled one day. Do you think, my books will be published abroad and I will earn well?" asks reader R. Sundaresan of Madras.

Born 18-8-1934 at 11-30 a.m. (IST) at Madurai.

Rasi: Libra - Ascendant; Scorpio - Moon, Cancer - Rahu; Aquarius - Saturn; Gemini - Mars; Cancer - Venus, Ketu and Mercury; Leo - Sun; and Virgo - Jupiter. Navamsa: Aries - Ascendant and Sun; Taurus - Rahu; Gemini - Mars; Cancer - Moon; Leo - Jupiter; Virgo - Venus; Libra - Saturn; Scorpio - Ketu; and Capricorn - Saturn with a balance of 1 year, 1 month and 6 days of Jupiter Dasa at birth.

The Ascendant lord Venus is in the 10th with 9h lord Mercury and this gives creative skills. The Dasa now running is of Venus who joins 9th lord Mercury and both are well placed. Ketu joins the two but the affliction is not very serious. The Moon is on the verge of being released by Saturn. As for the Bhuktis, Saturn's will start in July 1991.

Venus and Saturn are both quite well-placed by themselves. But with reference to each other they are in mutually adverse positions. What does this show? Simply that reader Sundaresan is at a critical junction in his life when fortune may suddenly start beaming on him!

Slow Rehabilitation

"My son met with a serious car accident on 19-7-1989 near Bombay. His left leg was fractured. His right hip and the pelvis cup got broken and the left leg pierced through it. Even after surgery, he cannot squat. Nor can he walk without great pain. When will he become normal?" asks reader T. S. Nataraj Iyer of Bombay.

Born 7-8-1954 at 12-22 p.m. (IST) at 18° N 31', 73° E 53.

Rasi: Libra - Ascendant, Saturn and Moon; Sagittarius - Mars and Rahu; Gemini - Ketu and Jupiter; Cancer - Mercury and Sun; and Virgo - Venus. Navamsa: Aquarius - Ascendant and Venus; Pisces - Ketu; Aries - Mars; Taurus - Moon and Jupiter; Leo - Mercury; Virgo - Rahu; and Capricorn - Sun and Saturn with a balance of 8 years, 2 months and 19 days of Jupiter Dasa.

Mars-Rahu are together in the 3rd. Mars aspects the 6th and also the 6th lord Jupiter. The Dasa lord now is Mercury. The Bhukti now running is of Mars, next of Rahu which will finish in November 1993. Both these planets are in the 6th from Dasa lord Mercury. So during these Bhuktis, the boy may have to slowly work at recovering and by about Jupiter Bhukti, there may be significant improvement. However, only Saturn Bhukti may see the complete rehabilitation of the youngster.

Weird Delivery (A.M., July 1990)

"In studying the astrological how's and why's of this case the principal points that need attention are: (1) delivery involving surgery; (2) Dead at birth; (3) Abnormally large and cracked skull and (4) Immature foetus within the skull.

"The Navamsa chart is also necessary to support the Rasi chart.

"Rasi: Taurus - Ascendant; Gemini - Jupiter; Cancer - Ketu and Gulika; Leo - Moon; Virgo - Mars and Mercury; Libra - Sun; Scorpio - Venus; Sagittarius - Saturn; and Capricorn - Rahu. Navamsa: Cancer - Ascendant; Leo - Saturn and Mercury; Virgo - Mars and Rahu; Scorpio - Sun; Capricorn - Venus; Pisces - Jupiter and Ketu; and Aries - Moon.

Operation

"(a) The 12th house indicates hospitalization.

"(b) Aries in the 12th Bhava is an indicator of head/skull/brain/forehead etc.

"(c) Mars, lord of Aries, is an indicator (Karaka) of surgery. Malefic Mars is in Virgo (inimical sign) in the 5th Bhava (6th from the 12th house). Mars is in conjunction with Mercury (inimical) who as such becomes malefic. Mars is aspected by Saturn (10th aspect) and also by Rahu. Mars is in conjunction with Rahu in Virgo Navamsa (i.e. in enemy Navamsa sign). This sort of malefic planetary positions gives clear indications of the head/skull surgery.

"In the absence of the mother's horoscope, going by the baby's chart, Matrukaraka sign Cancer, Matrukaraka planet Moon and the Matru Bhava 4th Bhava need to be looked into. Ketu is at 3^s 28^0 25' and the Moon at 4s 0" 7' which shows there is a conjunction between the Moon and Ketu and as such this can be treated as lunar eclipse (Grahana Yoga). The Moon and Ketu conjunction is on the Bhava Sandhi of the 3rd and 4th houses (obviously the 3rd house is a Vyayasthana of the 4th house). The Moon is in Ketu's Makha Nakshatra and Ketu is in Cancer. At the time of the birth, Ketu Dasa, Ketu sub-period was ruling.

"All these reasons confirm that the scissoring operation (due to abnormal shape of skull) and surgery of the skull were inevitable.

Balarishta Yoga

"(a) Jataka Parijata (V.110) clearly states that when a malefic planet occupies the 8th Bhava (Saturn) and the lord there of (Jupiter) is in the 2nd house (Maraka house) and Jupiter is in an inimical sign (Gemini) and the lord of rising sign is deficient in strength (Venus in inimical Scorpio in the 7th, a Maraka house) death is said to result from the evil effects. Here in this case, Mars aspects Saturn and Saturn aspects Mara and Mercury. Saturn-Mars influence on the 8th Bhava gives a tragic death.

"(b) Phaladeepika speaks of Aritshta to the infant if maleficies are in the 5th and 8th or 7th and the Moon and the lord of rising sign are weak.

"In this case the Moon is weak due to eclipse Yoga, also the Moon is in Gandanta Yoga. The lord of the rising sign Venus is also in the 7th (Maraka) Bhava in inimical Scorpio. Venus is in Jyeshta 2nd pada and this is also a Gandanta Yoga.

"The maleficis Sun, Mars Mercury and Rahu are all in the constellations of Mars which are Pratyak taras.

"All these factors clearly indicate that the native had Balarishta Yoga and death occurred in Ketu Dasa Ketu Bhukti.

"It is evident that Mars is very afflicted. Mars is Bhratrukaraka and as such, the foetus (brother of the native) was also deformed."

The analysis is from reader D. D. Date, Bombay.

Exception

Such charts are more the exception than the rule.

The mother's chart may have serious afflictions to the 5th.

Here Venus, the Lagna lord, is subject to a Papakartari Yoga. The Moon too suffers from the same defect and this involves the 4th house also. Afflictions to the 4th house or the Moon by Mars usually invite surgical intervention at delivery. In this case it was a caesarean section. The mother's chart would explain better the still-birth but that is not available. Regarding the foetus in the skull, Aries is considerably afflicted by debilitated Sun and the 8th house aspect of Mars. We cannot say if this foetus can claim a sibling status but as reader Date points out, the 3rd has Ketu and the 3rd lord Moon is in a cuspal degree explaining the abnormal foetus.

Upgrade the Predictive Tools

V. A. K. AYER

THE success or the secret behind the Indian civilization, among the ancients in staying alive and working while others have vanished, is said to be its genius for absorbing the good points of all other civilizations. So is the case with the Hindu religion which is rightly called Sanatana Dharma and which is really the chosen way of life rather than a denominational one. So too is the case with Indian culture. Today it shines like a multi-faceted diamond.

The key to such self-regeneration has been provided in the Vedas themselves in the logos (आनो भद्राः क्रतवो यन्तु विश्वतः ।)(R.V. 1-89-1)

"Let noble thoughts come to us from all sides" and which has been our guiding principle ever since. It has been re-affirmed in different ways at different times. Says Kalidasa in Malavikagnimitram:

पुराणमित्येव न साधु सर्वं
न चापि काव्यं नवमित्यवद्यम् ।
सन्तः परिक्ष्यान्तरतत्भजन्ते
मूढः परप्रत्ययनेयबुद्धिः ॥

"Not all things old need be good because they are old; not all new works be bad because they are new. Learned ones examine each personally on its merit and accept them, while fools depend on the opinion of others."

The same principle was further clarified thus:

युक्तियुक्तं उपादेयं वचनं बालकादपि ।
अन्यं तृणमिव त्याज्यं युक्तं पञ्चमजन्मना ॥

"Any statement that is clever and useful should be accepted even if it emanates from a child or even from an outcaste; others (not confirming to the above specifications) should be rejected even if they come from an exalted source."

I am prefacing this paper with these quotes to underline a well-understood principle and practice in the Indian ethos to enter a plea for assimilation of new concepts emanating from other countries or ourselves that are found to be necessary for upgrading our knowledge that is needed for this space age in the predictive sciences. I may as well state here that insofar as Indian Astrology is concerned, it has liberally given and taken chunks of knowledge to and from different climes and times and benefited by them. In other words, Indian genius had never been of the exclusive type.

II

In the view of the present writers, the Bhava Chalit is a product of an unsuccessful barter of knowledge between the East and West. While Indian horoscopy has been for very good reasons Sidereal in character from the very beginning, the West has tried it from the moving Vernal Equinox and called it Tropical Zodiac. Discerning astrologers of the West are now on the way back to accepting the Sidereal system. Even so, we in India find that the Bhava Chalit enjoys Trishanku status and somehow we are unable to swallow that concept especially as dozens of divisional charts have been devised in the Parasarian Uprgradation of knowledge in the predictive as in other sciences is a sine qua non for its very survival.

That can be achieved through (a) extension of the frontiers of extant indigenous knowledge in the accredited manner in areas relevant and needed for the times and (b) assimilation of useful material that fill in the lacunae from other systems wherever available.

While the first is being carried out albeit in the humpty-dumpty way, the second is shied at either as suspect or through false pride. This is against the Indian genius, especially as knowledge has no frontiers. And a laissez-faire attitude in this, of all disciplines, spells the doom on its growth.

Let not posterity blame us Indians of this generation, that we missed the bus; let us start playing the game even if it be at the empirical level; time is running out.

system, and in that context, the Bhava Chalit looks like the odd man out. As it is, the Bhava consideration is marginal and looks more like wishful thinking than of any substance. At this rate, even the canonised Bhava Sandhi will become irrelevant, as we know that among others the strength of a planet is gauged by the Navamsa it has traversed.

Let me now address myself to the theory of disposition which has been enjoying good status in Indian horoscopy. Venkatesa for instance gives expression to this fact:

लग्नेश्वराधिष्ठित राशिनाथो दुःस्थानगो
दुर्बलदेह भाक् स्यात् ।
लग्नादिभावेश्वर राशिनाथैर्दुःस्थैः विलग्नादि
विनाशमाहुः ॥

Should the dispositors of lords of Lagna and other Bhavas be in dusthana the effects of the Bhavas get destroyed.

Devakeralam affirms it thus:

भावेशाक्रान्तराशीशो अरिरध्रगतो यदि
तदा भावनाशः ।

Technically, the dispositor is known as Bhavantara Karaka or activator, as the same text points out:

यस्य भावस्याधिपतिः यत्र राशौ च वर्तते ।
तस्याधिपतिः तस्य भावान्तरस्य कारकः ॥

Now, this concept is exploited to full use in the West, even though the same could be evolved from the Indian thought too as will be explained later.

The dispositor is treated in the following manner in the West:

(a) A dispositing planet will have the same effect upon the affairs governed by the sign in which the dispositor planet is placed. It is to be noted here that a planet occupying its own sign has no disposition i.e., it is its own dispositor.

(b) When two planets disposit each other i.e., they occupy each other's sign, they are in mutual reception which endows strength, dignity and special ability to the planets i.e., their significations.

Sri Aurobindo had Pisces Ascendant and its lord occupies Cancer and the Moon occupies Sagittarius. Thus Jupiter and the Moon are in mutual reception. This accounted for his high philosophy and intellectual eminence. It also indicates the role played by a woman, the Mother, in his spiritual evolution.

In this context I would like to add a rider to this western practice -- it is really Indian in origin - to the well-known five-fold sambandha articulated by Mantreswara thus:

त्रिकोणेवा स्थितिः पञ्चप्रकारो बन्ध ईरितः ॥

They are: (1) occupying mutual houses, (2) conjunct in the same sign, (3) aspect mutually, (4) occupy mutual kendras, (5) occupy mutual trines.

The above may not be acceptable to the West at the present moment because, Kendras could become squares and 7th house aspects opposition which are adverse in result for them. But not for us.

(c) Continuing the western practice: There is a chain command of indirect disposition such as Mars being disposited by Mercury; Mercury by Jupiter; Jupiter by Sun; and Sun by Saturn occupying his own house, when Saturn becomes the final dispositor, who disposits all other dispositions and hence wields tremendous power on the native's actions.

Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel was born in Aries Lagna and its lord Mars occupies Capricorn and his dispositor Saturn occupies Capricorn itself. Thus Saturn becomes his final dispositor which made him the iron man. Incidentally characteristics of final dispositors are given later in this article.

(d) When no planet occupies his own house, there will be no final dispositor at all and in consequence the native does not have a good time at all. Is it not the rule that in order to be a powerful chart, some planets at least should occupy own house, exaltation etc.?

(e) There is another variety of dispositorship when the chain becomes circular as when the Sun is in Virgo, Mercury in Libra, Venus in Sagittarius and Jupiter occupies Leo. Such a person is said to go around in a circle unable to arrive at definite conclusions or decisions.

(f) Suppose there is more than one planet occupying own house and disposit as many planets. These dispositors are held to share autonomous ruling powers in the chart. It follows that in case of sambandha between them, it will lead to co-operation in the areas ruled by them.

(g) When two planets in mutual reception pair as final dispositors, then the two in partnership influence the native.

Of course, in the above consideration the relative strength or weakness of the dispositors will have a say. For instance, should Saturn in the pair be exalted and Mars be debilitated, the former will have the upper hand for good in shaping the life of the man.

Again, if the pair be in mutual reception occupy compatible signs (sans 6, 8, 12) co-operation between them can be looked forward to.

The effects of final dispositors are spelt out thus:

Sun: Basic desire is for power. He could be self-centred; has powers of leadership and organisation. Will become famous. Occasionally he will be child-like in his behaviour.

Moon: Home and family will be the chief consideration. Action will be based on emotion rather than deliberation. Women could play dominant role. Has dealings with public.

Mars: Vitality, will-power and courage. Result-oriented in action. Leadership in any sphere. Likes and dislikes will be strong.

Mercury: Action based on reason and intelligence. Approach to life will be scientific. Love of truth prevails over personal bias, can make a good writer, teacher, researcher.

Jupiter: Course of action based on moral, social, philosophical considerations. Connected with humanitarian activities. Thinks positively. Success by dint of confidence, optimism and good-will.

Venus: Love, beauty and harmony decide course of action. Social considerations uppermost. Make excellent artists, skilled PRO, diplomat. Success in partnership.

Saturn: Success through discipline, efficiency and ability to organise. Eye on security and stability, and long-range goals. Patience and methodical work leads to success.

Uranus: Brilliance and originality. Leadership in scientific and spiritual fields. Action decided by sudden flashes of insight. Telepathic ability. Will do the seemingly unexpected and inexplicable. Occultism.

Neptune: Intuitive, intangible, difficult to understand reasons for action. Motivated by subtle spiritual motivations. Warning against negative psychological forces.

Pluto: Actions decided by tremendous will-power dominated by inner spiritual compulsion. Thinks big and does big. Regenerative in principle.

III

Secondly I want to indigenise the extra-saturnine planets Uranus, Neptune and Pluto of whom a lot of working knowledge is made available in the West and whose help in the investigation of charts has become mandatory, as many grey areas of modern life are illuminated by them. These areas had been unthought of or untouched by Indian classics and hence their help has to be commandeered on their own terms for the present to unveil them.

In this writer's experience, treating them with known characters in the Sidereal charts except for the aspects such as the square and opposition, on our terms yields excellent results.

In a female chart where Pluto occupied the 7th house in strength, her husband was terribly afraid of her. But for this, -- Pluto in 7th -- this feature would have gone unnoticed.

Again, when Uranus occupies the 7th, marriage takes place suddenly or in unusual circumstances.

Other modern phenomena like computer programming, nuclear physics, divorce and multiple marriages, unwed motherhood, drug addiction, HDS etc. are all discernible through them in the Sidereal chart itself. In the present state of working knwoledge in them sidereally, the attempt may be deemed empirical, if need be.

The concept of the 7th house, for instance, has undergone a sea change over the years. While classic texts look for a dutiful coy bride, today's need is to look for an entrepreneur, an air pilot, IPS, Judge, MBA, M.S., legislator, Prime Minister or even President and fear the jail-breaker and the narcotic don--all in sari. And in her drawing room Ravi Varma has given place to Leonardo da Vinci in regal frame and the Krishna idol with his bansi to the immaculate marble statue of Venus with the fig-leaf. These need better and modern tools to assess, the old ones being inadequate which can serve only apologetically.

Another area in Indian Astrology that needs a new focus is the much maligned Trika -- 6th, 8th and 12th houses. Almost all texts declare that planets that occupy these houses and those that rule them are evil -- may be with honourable exceptions which too are suspect. So are the aspects 6/8 and 2/12 treated. It has been found in the experience of this writer that these impugned houses and aspects are veritable assets in the cases of para-medical personnel and those engaged in welfare, reserach and similar activities. It has become necessary to ensure therefore that natives with this "affliction" do not belong to the above category to admit of ancient results.

One more area in which great advance has been made in the West is the application of the eclipse point in natal charts. It has been found that signficant personal effect is experienced in the area of life represented by the house in the natal chart where an eclipse point falls. The effect is, as one writer puts it, "emphasis" and "crisis" i.e., where you have to devote more time and energy. In doing so however, the area should be explored in depth. If the eclipse falls in the 7th, it may not necessarily affect marital life; it could be 2nd child (3rd from 5th); it could be profession (10th from 10th). Similarly, crisis in the life of a pet (6th house) could be denoted by the ecliptial point in the 5th because of the love bestowed on it.

Then major aspects such as conjunction and opposition to the ecliptial point in the chart reveal much. Any planet, conjunct, becomes sort of the planetary ruler of the eclipse vis-a-vis the particular nativity and which will have a say in the delineation crisis management in that area.

A matter of great interest in the context of eclipses is the immediate pre-natal ecliptial point in a birth chart. It is claimed that this point has a life-long influence on the native. In a case where the pre-natal ecliptial point fell, in the 5th house, the individual played a prominent role in rearing and teaching of children; but for this, there was no other configuration in the chart warranting this activity.

Apart from the pre-natal ecliptial point, periodical eclipses too exercise influence on the nativity. A solar eclipse conjuncting natal Sun (orb 3°) signals a crisis of major importance needing a hard decision in terms of the house of occurrence. An opposition to natal Sun will provide a challenge to the ego and so on. These delineations are yet in the formative process.

My object in this paper is to provoke new thinking on similar lines so that our present knowledge on prediction can be irrigated by the fertile waters, not only of the Ganga and the Cauvery, but also the Missouri and even the Nile. May God bless this mission!--183.90.

Gochara or Transits

H. R. SHANKAR, B.A.

THERE is a beautiful saying: "You cannot touch a flower without disturbing stars". Under the cosmic scheme, things are so perfectly synchronised that even a tiny atom in a remote nook sends ripples across the vast expanse of the universe at the slightest disturbance. Men of science are puzzled at the fascinating cosmic links working in such perfect harmony. Flowers blossom and open in step with the Sun. The tides ebb and surge keeping time with the phases of the Moon. Reproduction of life is synchronised to a lunar schedule. Apart from such many visibly perceptible cosmic links, the new sciences have vastly broadened man's concept of a wholly integrated oneness of the universe. In Astrology, we have an in-built scheme to trace cosmic links between varied happenings in the life of man and movement of certain planets in the heaven vis-a-vis the positions they held at the time of birth. "Gochara" of Hindu Astrology is all about transit of planets.

There is an ingrained belief that it is the physical movement of planets and some kind of "radiation" from the cosmic bodies that forms the basis of Astrology. This is a gross misconception. Astrology is founded on the "Doctrine of Karma". In its final analysis, "Destiny" emerges as a force generated by one's own actions in the past. Logically the result of destiny would necessarily be commensurate with the past actions (Karma). This makes destiny a pre-determined factor and is clearly irrevocable, as past action cannot be retraced or erased. Happenings in life being the result of one's own past actions, obviously planets do not cause events in life. Yet in Astrology we are very much concerned with movement of planets in unfolding the nature and sequence of events in store. The secret of Astrology is in this paradox. Once we get to the basic truth, the contradictions disappear.

The force released by one's action (destiny) remains dormant in the womb of Time till such period it is able to manifest as result and thus expend itself. The interval between the action and its result, that is the incubation period, could extend over several life-spans. Consequently, one needs to have access to the knowledge of destiny forces gestating within the womb of Time, in order to understand the nature of results. Such an access into the womb of Time is clearly beyond the means of the human senses. One will have to transcend the boundaries of physical knowledge to get a vision of the truth about the working of the forces of destiny.

The source of knowledge of the Doctrine of Karma is the Wisdom of the Rishis. This supra knowledge is conveyed by the enlightened Rishis in their own inimitable way to their "Sishyas" -- disciples. In the astrological context, the abstract notion about destiny as the time interval between action and its result is symbolically equated with the cosmic phenomenon of the movement of planets that keep to the physical time-schedule. "Big Time" in terms of passage of thousands of years and "Little Time" as fractional subdivision of seconds can be read at a glance on the dial of the Cosmic Clock of the solar system. Reckoning of time through the Cosmic Clock happens to be well within the range of human knowledge. Through the unique concept of Karakatwa, results of destiny in terms of "experiences" covering all aspects of life are linked with the working parts of the Cosmic Clock, namely, the movement of planets and the zodiacal divisions through which they move. Planets, accordingly, are merely a symbolic depiction of destiny forces. It is important to bear in mind that the planets and the zodiac format have different connotations under symbolic discipline of Astrology and the scientific study of Modern Astronomy. As the newly discovered planets of the solar system are not part of the scheme of Karakatwa evolved by the enlightened Rishis, these newly found planets have no relevance in Astrology. The knowledge on which basic tenets of Astrology are founded flows from the Vision of the Rishis and is as ancient as the river Ganges. It is eternal truth and it always imparts freshness. Wisdom of this knowledge cannot be considered old, because it does not become obsolete. It is not new because nothing new is added to it. It needs no amendment.

Happenings in life are not only brought about by a combination of forces of past Karma, but also by dictates of present environmental facilities. Desa, Kaala and Paatra are factors that provide for physical emergence of abstract destiny forces as events or happenings in life. Or otherwise the destiny results would necessarily expend as "experiences" in their abstract form itself. For instance, let us assume that the nature of the result of destiny happens to be "warmth of a cosy dwelling". It can be seen that this result could be actually experienced in different forms as made possible by Desa, Kaala etc. for persons living in different regions (Desa) living at different periods of Time (Kaala) and living in a cocoon of different heritage (Paatra). It is likely to manifest as a well-furnished bungalow in the case of a person living in a developed country, while it would necessarily be in the shape of an igloo for an Eskimo living in the Arctic region. We can only envisage a kind of spacious cave as dwelling in the context of a person living in the pre-historic period. Commensurate with Desa, Kaala and Paatra, each of them would be at par in "experiencing" the actual result of similar destiny.

The task of analysing the nature of destiny and evaluating the environmental facilities has been made easy by the earlier masters who have worked out ready answers by way of predictive dicta. They have meaningfully blended the results indicated by Karakatwa combinations with the kind of environmental facilities they could envisage while arriving at the final results. Made easy for direct application, these dicta serve the predictive purpose so well that even a tyro could come out with astrounding predictions. However it has one catch. Mostly the predictive dicta are period-oriented and consequently their validity gets confined to that period; because the composers of these dicta have taken into consideration the kind of environmental facilities with which they were familiar and knowledgeable about. With the passage of time and changes setting in the way of Life, these dicta turned erratic. Amendments were introduced to set right the earlier distortions by the masters of later periods. Consequently, we find variations between texts belonging to one period from the other by way of additions, deletions and riders. Understandably there are also contradictions, perhaps consequent to change in perspective of what the environment facility meant to each of them. Presently, we find that certain dicta apply aptly in certain instances but go at a tangent when applied to other similar cases. This is because the present environmental condition is in a state of flux. Whenever there is similarity with the values of the earlier period, the dicta also yield correct results. In such instances, wherein the values and way of life vary considerably with the past, the dicta turn red herrings. Once we sift the fundamental tenets which are valid for all time from the period-oriented predictive dicta, they turn obsolete with the changes in the social pattern of living and values of life, we will find the contradictions and paradoxes in the practice of Astrology disappear.

Having ascertained the nature of destiny from the Karakatwa scheme and the specific manner in which the event manifests from a knowledge of environmental conditions extant, the next and perhaps really exciting task is timing the happenings in the sequence of their occurrence. The emphasis here being on the time factor, the study is directed towards movement of the planets as they keep to a time schedule. Under the Gochara method presently in usage, the transits of planets are monitered with reference to the focal point of the Moon in the birth chart. The position of the Sun serves as focal point in the context of the Western system. For instance according to the Gochara system, the transit of Jupiter over the Moon-sign is said to induct a sense of fear and anxiety; in the 2nd from the Moon, reward and appreciation; in the 3rd the transit causes indisposition; in the 4th it is said to result in loss; in the 5th the transit gives a sense of happiness; in the 6th from the natal Moon it brings grief; in the 7th it brings fortune; in the 8th frustration and a sense of dissatisfaction; in the 9th it results in inflow of wealth; in the 10th loss of position or change of place; in the 11th it gives stability and in the 12th, it is said to be generally adverse. This, of course, is basic and in practice it has been developed into a system of forecast for the masses, popularised by journals and periodicals with their weekly, monthly and yearly forecasts. The total inadequacy of this system for purposes of delineating individual horoscopes is conspicuous by its broad-based approach and general treatment.

In the context of in-depth study of transits we find interesting clues in some Nadi works. The approach therein is simple and logical; but being symbolic calls for imaginative treatment. It paves the way for in-depth study and realistic and meaningful inferences. Karakatwas are results of destiny but expressed as "Root-ideas". These root-ideas cover all aspects of life. But reading the root-ideas would be no more meaningful than reading the words from a dictionary. These root-ideas when composed in grammatical sequence would convey meaning. The grammar for composition of root-ideas into symbolic sentences is adopted from the scheme of interaction between planets -- their placement in the zodiacal divisions, the sequence in which they are placed in the birth horoscope, their mutual aspects, conjunctions etc. Imaginative usage of planetary interaction as grammar and Karakatwa as words, is all that is needed to read the message with transits marking the time schedules.

Jupiter is Jeeva; the life-force. Rahu is the mouth of the Dragon. To swallow anything that comes in its way is its character. In a birth horoscope, if Rahu is placed next to Jupiter with no other planet in between, then Jupiter in its transit would first approach Rahu (natal). Symbolically, the "life-force" enters into the dark cavity of the "Dragon's mouth". The inference is that the transit of Jupiter over natal Rahu marks a period of ill-health, low vitality, exposure to unclean environment or infections etc. Here we are considering a situation wherein Rahu is placed next to Jupiter. Thus during its first cycle of Jupiter's transit from birth to 12 years of age, the root-ideas of Rahu would be enveloping the life. During the childhood, health problems would surface as Jupiter, the life-force, enters the zone of Rahu i.e., the sign occupied by Rahu in the birth chart. The health condition would get acute as Jupiter is in close conjunction over natal Rahu, marking a danger point. As Jupiter moves away from Rahu, the period of recovery would progress. But the child would be totally "released" from the health problem only after Jupiter transits over the natal Ketu. Here Ketu denotes "Release" from the hold of Rahu. If Rahu is the mouth, Ketu is the exit. In other words, the health of the child in such a planetary set-up would be at low ebb during the first cycle of transit of Jupiter with things brightening up only after Jupiter passes Ketu point. The child would be, during this period, lacking in buoyancy, zest and living in generally unclean environment. Symbolically, the life- force comes under eclipse and loses its glow.

The root-idea of Ketu among other things is "release"--release from ignorance, release from worldly bonds i.e., Moksha, release from sentiments and attachments and conversely severance from partnership, separations from family and the like. When Ketu is placed next to Jupiter in the birth chart, the first cycle of transit of twelve years of Jupiter comes under the sway of root-ideas of Ketu. During childhood, this marks a period of active intellect; an inquisitive mind, eager to learn and quick to grasp. Such children, during this period, would be under the spell of lofty ideals and take to orderly and disciplined life. They make good boy-scouts.

We get an entirely different pattern when Rahu is placed ahead of Saturn with no planets between the two. The root-idea of Saturn is sustenance, ability to keep alive, endurance, means of livelihood and the like. The first cycle of Saturn covers a period of around 30 years. The transit of Saturn over natal Rahu marks the beginning of a period of groping in the dark, without finding firm footing in any field of pursuit and generally with a confused mind. Although professional prosperity (Karakatwa of Saturn) would start prospering only from the 2nd cycle of Saturn's transit (the first cycle coming under the sway of Rahu), the situation would progressively improve once Saturn transits over the Ketu sign, a release point even in its first round. On the other hand, should Jupiter be placed next to Saturn the outcome would be totally different. The root-ideas of Saturn when they interact with the root-ideas of Jupiter, it marks elevation in life during the first round of 30 years without much struggle and the person would be cruising along the royal road to success.

Another example of how the symbol of Rahu is to be read as a factor causing eclipse to the Karatakwa of another planet is the kind of interaction between Rahu and Mars. The root-idea of Mars is masculinity while that of Venus is womanhood. When Rahu is next to Mars in the birth chart, it is seen as impediment for Mars to meet Venus. Symbolically it denotes obstructions in the way of boy and girl coming together, thus resulting in delayed marriage. In transit, Jupiter, the life-force, will have to come out of Ketu before interacting with Mars or Venus by aspect or conjunction to bring about marriage.

In this chart of a female, we find Rahu is placed ahead of Mars in the 3rd sign from Mars. There are no planets between the two. Mars in its transit will enter the mouth of Dragon and misses meeting Venus. Consequently, this is a case of late marriage astrologically. To go by case history, the girl belongs to a well-to-do family commanding respect. She is well educated and beautiful. Right from the age of 18/20 there were proposals for marriage alliance. The girl who was keen on a career kept turning down the proposals. In a few instances, the parents were upset as in their opinion the proposal that had come could not have been better. The situation had reached a stage of friction and tempers. At the age of 26 she suddenly decided on a boy with whom she was acquainted only for a short period, though related to the family. Within months, the marriage was celebrated as the parents were also happy with the choice. Subsequently she has given up the idea of pursuing a career and settled down to the happy role of housewife and mother. In the horoscope, Saturn and Venus are placed just ahead of Jupiter in the same sign. The first twelve years marking the first round of Jupiter comes under the sway of Saturn and Venus conjointly. Born in a rich family, as a child there were all comforts for the asking (root-idea of Venus = comforts, luxury etc.). However, the child grew up in a spartan way with constraints. Though provided with all needs, she was not a pampered child that the kind of environment promised. All through the first twelve years the life witnessed pronounced influence of Saturn.

In sequence of placement, the next planet after Saturn-Venus is Ketu. Accordingly the next period from the age of 12 to 24 covering the second round of Jupiter in its transit comes under the sway of root-ideas of Ketu in interaction with that of Jupiter. It calls for no further elucidation that the period is extremely favourable for educational pursuit as Jupiter depicts knowledge and Ketu keen intellect and a methodical approach. She had a successful educational career with distinction that also gave her a sense of achievement. The third round of Jupiter is associated with the Moon, as that is placed next to Ketu in the birth chart. This covers the age between 24 and 36 years. The Moon is in the sign of Jupiter with no other planet interacting with it. The Karakatwa of the Moon such as mind, foreign lands, light or brightness interact with root-ideas of Jupiter in giving shape to the life during this period. In its 33rd round, even as Jupiter transited over natal Saturn, the Karaka for profession, she landed a coveted job (Jupiter) without much effort. This put her in a buoyant frame of mind that set the tone for the period to follow. Even as Jupiter was transiting over natal Venus, there was a compelling proposal for marriage as her parents were almost on the point of finalisation. Her obstinacy to pursue a career (Venus-Saturn root-ideas) soured her relations with the elders and the porposal was dropped. Astrologically, the impediment to marriage attributed to Rahu and Mars interaction could get cleared only after Jupiter came out of Ketu in transit and then interacted with Mars or Venus by aspect or conjunction. In 1986 even as Jupiter was transiting Ketu in Aquarius, she surprised everyone by her sudden decision to marry a boy of recent acquaintance, though related to the family. To the parents, this turned out the best alliance they could think of and the marriage was celebrated with grandeur within months, while Jupiter was in Aquarius aspecting Mars within degrees. With the entry of Jupiter into Pisces the 4th from natal Jupiter and the sign occupied by the Moon she set up her own home. She conceived while Jupiter was transiting Aries, the 5th from natal Jupiter. But Mars in the grip of Rahu was the owner of this sign and Jupiter also was interacting with natal Rahu by its 5th house aspect on Rahu; this factor prevailed in influencing the nature of events and resulted in miscarriage. Jupiter is with Venus in the birth chart. When Jupiter is ahead of Venus it marks a kind of interaction indicating that the first issue would be a male.. Whereas, when Jupiter is behind Venus, it results in the first issue being female. Transit of Jupiter through the house of Venus (Taurus) coinciding with transit of Saturn over natal Jupiter gave her a female issue. The third round of Jupiter is associated with the root ideas of the Moon. While Jupiter was transiting over Moon

How to Read Hands

MIR BASHIR, B.A.

Chapter I

THIS series, as its name implies, is designed to help an average reader to read hands in a simple and practical manner. The pattern of presentation, in the main, is instructive and aims to keep the requirements of an absolute novice in view. This in no case implies that the needs of the advanced student are ignored. In point of fact the scheme of presentation comprises a fairly exhaustive survey of all the important aspects of the human hand. The fundamental principles of the art of hand analysis are set down in a manner to assist the aspiring seeker to understand and apply the information step by step. The theoretical and the practical aspects of Palmistry are carefully blended together and a comprehensive understanding of the study is thus facilitated.

In order to make a practical use of this series, it would be essential to make a collection of handprints. To begin with, you should endeavour to take at least six pairs of handprints of people whom you happen to know fairly well. These should be carefully filed for reference, study and comparison. As you proceed with your studies you will realise the value of this collection as each handprint will prove useful for the application of the information that you will be able to assimilate. It is useful to write down the date on which you take the handprints. Do not forget to add the date of birth of the person whose handprints they happen to be.

How to take handprints: There are several methods of obtaining handprints. By far the best is the system used by fingerprint department. The paraphernalia required is simple. Obtain a roller generally used by photographers for glossing prints. A plate of glass about nine inches long and six inches wide and a tube of finger-print ink is all that you need. Press out a quantity of ink from the ink-tube and spread it evenly on the glass plate with the aid of the roller by moving it to and fro. When the roller seems fairly evenly inked pass it over the hand and the fingers. See that an inch space of the wrist is also inked. Press the inked hand on a plain sheet of paper. To be sure about a good print place a rubber pad or a thick magazine, like the Annual of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE below the sheet of paper. You may not succeed in obtaining clear handprints at the first attempt but if you were to try it a few times you will get the knack of making the right type of handprints. Take handprints of both hands. Make sure that you write down the name, and date of birth of the person whose handprints you take.

In order to get a clear and complete picture of the make-up of any individual, both the hands MUST be studied. The left hand indicates inherited tendencies whereas the right hand shows acquired traits of character. An indication in the left hand only would point to an inborn tendency or an inherent urge. When it is absent from the right hand such an urge or desire is not likely to be achieved. When the indication is missing from the left hand but is present in the right hand only, it reveals that force of circumstances has made the achievement associated with the said marking possible. It also suggests that characteristics essential for such an achievement have also been developed.

When an indication is not only marked in the left hand but is identically repeated in the right hand as well then the natural urge or the inherent desire automatically and almost inevitably develops into an achievement. The idea tends to become a reality. The dream or ambition shapes into a living realisation.

When an accident or an ailment causes a deformity in one hand whereas the other bears natural indications, the lack of similarity in such a case is not to be treated as basically important. Very likely the unaffected hand will assume unusual importance and may replace the indications of the deformed hand. In such a case allowance should be made for the deformed hand and judgement in the main should be based on the good hand. The significance of markings will only differ when the indications of one hand naturally vary from those of the other and NOT due to an accident or outside agency.

Large Hand: Small Hands

The first thing to notice about hands is their size. Compare the hands of a few people. You will realise that some have large hands whereas others own small ones. Keep in view the stature and build of each person. When a particularly large person owns relatively small hands, make a note of it. Small hands belong to those people who tend to do things on a large scale. They love to plan big things in life. They are not meant for details. They have a certain quickness of mind which helps them to judge situations and people rapidly and generally correctly. They tend to act briskly and without loss of time. They have however a leaning towards haste and impulsiveness.

When a person who in keeping with his build ought to have small hands evidently owns a large pair of hands, the tendency is to go into details. These people cannot be satisfied with a general idea of things. They must study it at close quarters. They are inclined to disfavour outlining things. If you happen to deal with such a person your best course of action would be to dwell upon essential details. Your success with such a person would be determined by your ability to carefully and analytically detailing and spotlighting each aspect of the matter in question. When dealing with a person with small hands, your line of approach, however, would be to present your case precisely and briefly. You are bound to irritate him if you were to enter into lengthy description of minor details. If you can manage to give him a pictorial glimpse of the outline of the whole thing in a few graphic words you would have done your job satisfactorily.

Broad Palm: Narrow Palm

The next thing to observe is whether the palm in its general contour and formation is broad or narrow. When the palm is long and fails to give the impression of width, it would be considered narrow. The outline of the whole hand in such an instance would suggest length and narrowness. Such palms show a tendency to be restricted in outlook on life. There is a tendency to be selfish which implies and suggests lack of warmth and fellow feeling. Such people are apt to be introspective and seem to be incapable of taking an impersonal view of anything. They give one the impression of being self-centred. Their outlook on life, in the main, is narrow. They are, however, inclined to show capacity for concentration which when well directed can prove to be useful in any type of work that requires focus and attention. As these people seem to lack social adaptability, they generally can succeed in occupations that necessitate working in isolation or in conditions where mixing with other people is not imperative (Fig. II).

When the palm is broad the whole hand gives the impression of being large and wide. Such a palm seems to be spread out rather than elongated, and narrow (Fig.I).

On Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga

DR. R. S. L. SRIVASTAVA

SAGE PARASARA has given great importance to Rajayogas formed by relationships between the rulers of angles (Konas) and trines (Trikonas), viz., the houses 4, 7, 10 and 1, 5, 9 respectively in a Rasi chart. Among the angles, 7th is stronger than the 4th and the 10th is stronger than the 7th. Similarly, in trines the 5th is stronger than the 1st and the 9th is stronger than the 5th. The relationship between the lords of the 9th and the 10th houses is considered most favourable among all the Rajayogas formed by the above combinations. Since the 9th is the house of Dharma and the 10th, that of Karma, the relationship between the 9th and the 10th lords is described as Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga.

The relationship between the rulers of angles and trines can be formed by (1) Conjunction, (2) Exchange of houses, (3) Mutual aspect on each other, (4) Aspect on each other's sign and (5) Mutual exchange of signs. The Yoga gets reduced in strength in the above order. It gets weakened if any of the related planets own a 'Trika' (3, 6, 11) house or becomes Randhresha viz., lord of the 8th house. Also, the Yoga is not fully effective if the planets involved get in some way connected with the lords of the above houses. On the other hand, it gains in strength if any of the related planets occupies his own sign or the sign of his exaltation. For example, in the chart of Dr. S. Radhakrishnan, the 9th lord Venus conjoined with the 10th lord Mercury in the Ascendant in Virgo forming a powerful Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga. No wonder he not only got international recognition as a great philosopher and orator but also rose to become the President of India.

A native, having one or more of the above Rajayogas present in his natal chart, becomes a king, leader of men, eminently successful in his profession, leading scientist, philosopher, poet, man of letters enjoying an aristocratic life and worldly pleasures. The effects of Rajayogas are manifested during the periods and sub-periods of the Rajayoga-forming planets or a planet which acquires maximum strength in the Shadvargas. The nodes Rahu and Ketu are also capable of giving effect to Rajayoga in their period or sub-period provided they are related to one or the other of the Yoga-forming planets. Rahu and Ketu yield results in the following order: (1) If associated with a planet, they give results of that planet, (2) if not associated with any planet but aspected by some planet, the effects are those of the aspecting planet, (3) if neither associated nor aspected by any planet, then the effects are those of the planet whose sign they occupy. In case the Nodes are associated with or aspected by more than one planet, the strongest among such planets lends its characteristics to the concerned node.

In the judgement of Rajayoga, the natural relationship between the Yoga-forming planets should also be considered. If the planets are mutual friends occupying own or exalted or friendly signs, the Rajayoga gains in strength. On the other hand if they are in debilitation or occupy an inimical sign, their strength gets reduced. Astrological texts do not assign much value to Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga formed by Saturn and Jupiter in Aries Ascendant even though both are friends. The reason for this is that Saturn also owns the strongest among the Trika houses viz., the 11th house. Besides, he is also a Badhakadhipati. Similarly, the Yoga is destroyed in case of Leo Ascendant for which it is formed by Mars and Venus because Venus not only suffers from the Kendradhipati Dosha but also rules the 3rd house which is a Trika house. For Aries Ascendant, Jupiter still gives good results because of his rulership of the 9th house. His other sign Pisces is not effective as it falls in the 12th house. For Leo Ascendant Mars yields favourable results as he rules a Kendra and a Trikona house even though as lord of the 9th house he becomes a Badhakadhipati. It turns out that most favourable results of the Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga are realized for the Virgo, Libra, Scorpio and Sagitta-rius Ascendants for which the Yoga is formed by Mercury + Venus, Mercury + Moon, Sun + Moon and Sun + Mercury respecitvely. For other Ascendants, barring Taurus for which this Yoga is non-existent because Saturn rules both the 9th and 10th houses, the Yoga gets weakened (but not ineffective) since one of the signs of the Yoga - forming planets falls in a Trika house or the 8th house.

Another Rajayoga held in high praise is the relationship between the lords of the 5th and the 9th houses. Parasara says:

तयः स्थानाधियो मन्त्रे मन्त्रनाथोऽ थवा गुरौ ।
उभावन्योन्यदृष्टौ वा चेज्जातः स्याद् बहुराज्यभाक्।

If the lord of the 9th is in the 5th and that of the 5th is in the 9th or both mutually aspect each other, the native will be an emperor. This Yoga is without blemish for Aries, Taurus, Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius and Pisces Ascendants. But for other Ascendants it gets diluted because of the ownership of a Trika or 8th house by either of the Yoga-forming planets. For full realization of the effects of Rajayoga-forming planets, it is desirable that other planets should not influence them. If they do, then the effects get modified according to the Karakatva and ownership of influencing planet during his Antara or Pratyantara in the Dasa or Bhukti of the Yogakaraka planet.

If the Rajayoga is formed by conjunction of four or more planets in a house, it could cause renunciation, i.e., Pravrajya Yoga. However, I have found that this Yoga is effective only if the conjunction occurs in the 2nd, 8th or 10th house in which case the 12th, 6th or the 8th houses get associated with a large number of benefic points in the Sarvashtakavarga. The house in which the conjunction of Yogakaraka planets occurs also requires attention. Here again it is desirable that the houses 3, 6, 11 and 8 are excepted. There seems to be some misconception about the 12th house. Many scholars do not consider the 12th house a good place for planets to occupy. But the author of Bhavartha Ratnakara says:

तस्य भावस्य सर्वस्य भाग्ययोग उदीरतः ॥

The person will be fortunate in respect of that Bhava whose Karaka is situated in the 12th from the Ascendant. However, in practice I have found that this sloka should be used keeping in mind ownerships of houses as well. For example, for Leo Ascendant Jupiter posited in Cancer in the 12th house gives exceptionally good results pertaining to the 5th house owned by him than for the 2nd, 9th, 10th and 11th houses of which also he is a Karaka. We shall attempt to illustrate some combinations with the help of some Rasi charts listed at the end.

Chart 1: This is the Rasi chart of lord Gautama Buddha. We find conjunction of five planets viz., the Sun, Venus, Saturn, Jupiter and Mars in the 10th house in Aries. There are very many Rajayogas present in this chart. The relationships between the angular and trinal lords are indicated as follows: 9 + 10, 1 + 7, 4 + 5, 4 + 9, 1 + 10, 7 + 9, 5 + 9, and 1 + 9. Figures indicate the Bhavas. He was born a prince but renounced the kingdom in search of truth and founded the Buddhism. Jupiter and Mars form a Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga and also the union of the 5th and 9th house lords. But the Rajayogas 9 + 10, 5 + 9, 4 + 9, 7 + 9 and 1 + 7 are vitiated since Jupiter also rules the 6th house while Saturn rules the 8th. Conjunction of five planets in the 10th house caused the Pravrajya Yoga leading to renunciation of the family and the throne.

Chart 2 is that of Genghiz Khan, who ruled Mangolia during the 13th century A.D. and extended his empire not only in Asia but also in Europe. In this chart, there is a conjunction of six planets in the 3rd house in Virgo. There are a number of Rajayogas in this chart also, including the Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga. These are indicated by 9 + 10, 4 + 5, 4 + 9, 5 + 7 and 5 + 9. As in Chart 1, both Jupiter and Saturn vitiate the Yogas in view of ownership of 6th and 8th houses respectively. The Yogas are related to the 3rd house of adventure and valour. Even though renunciation Yoga is present, Genghiz Khan did not renounce the world but continued as monarch till his death.

Chart 3 is that of Prophet Mohammad. The Rajayogas in this chart are indicated by 9 + 10, 1 + 4 and 1 + 9. The Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga is formed because Mars as ruler of the 10th house aspects the 9th house in Libra whose ruler Venus aspects the 10th house. Though this Yoga is 4th in order of strength, yet it is quite strong since it is not vitiated by the rulers of Trika houses and association with Randhresa. Though not born in a royal family, he commanded great respect from the masses and became the founder of Islam.

Chart 4 is of the Moghal emperor Akbar. Notice that the Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga is formed in this chart by the Moon and Mercury, who, as lords of the 9th and 10th houses, are in mutual aspect. Though third in order of strength, the Yoga is free from any kind of blemish. It becomes fully effective.

Chart 5 is of the great poet Rabindra Nath Tagore. The Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga is formed by Mars and Jupiter who aspect each other's sign in the 10th and 9th houses. The Yoga is faultless. It becomes strong since Jupiter is exalted in the 5th house. The poet received worldwide recognition and fame through his poetic compositions.

Chart 6 is of the great theoretical physicist Albert Einstien. In this chart, the Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga is formed by mutual exchange of the lords of the 9th and 10th houses. Though 2nd in order of strength, the Yoga is partly rendered weak due to Saturn's ownership of the 8th house.

Chart 7 is of late Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru. The Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga is formed by the aspect of Mars on the 9th house ruled by Jupiter, who in turn aspects the 10th house in Aries ruled by Mars. The strength of the Yoga gets reduced due to Jupiter's ownership of the 6th house. Still Jupiter occupies his own sign in Sagittarius. After much struggle for independence, he became the Prime Minister of India and remained in that position till his death.

Chart 8 is of Dr. B. V. Raman, Editor of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. The Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga is formed by the conjunction of Mars and Venus in the 7th house as rulers of the 10th and 9th houses respectively. Though first in order of merit, the Yoga is vitiated by the association of Mercury, who is lord of the 8th house while Mars also rules a Trika house. There is also the conjunction of the 5th and 9th house lords. Besides, the Gajakesari Yoga is also present involving the 4th and 10th houses. Both Jupiter and the Moon are related to Yoga-forming planets, Mars and Venus. Though not a king in the formal sense, Dr. Raman is an internationally recognized scholar and leader in the field of Astrology.

Chart 9 is of Osho Rajneesh, who passed away less than a year ago. In this chart, there is conjunction of five planets in the 10th house. The Rajayogas present are 9 + 10, 1 + 9, 5 + 7, 4 + 5 and 7 + 9. Renunciation Yoga is obviously present. The 9 + 10 relationship is formed by the aspect of Jupiter on the 9th house in Scorpio and the aspect of Mars on Jupiter, lord of the 10th house. Thus the Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga is formed by the aspect of the 9th and 10th lords on each other's sign. The above Yogas are vitiated by the association of lords of Trika houses and the 8th lord. Rajneesh rose to great heights and lived the life of an ascetic prince.

Chart 10 is of Amitabh Bachchan, the cine artiste. In this chart the Rajayogas 9 + 10, 4 + 5 and 5 + 9 are present. The Sun, Mars, Venus and Mercury are conjunct in the 8th house where Mercury is in exaltation. The 9 + 10 Yoga is formed by the conjunction of Mars and Venus. The Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga is of the first category formed in the 8th house. From a meagre start he rose to occupy a leading position in the world of cine artistes. The conjunction of four planets in the 8th house, while exalted Jupiter aspects the 10th house, is indicative of renunciation of worldly life in old age.

Chart 11 is of Rajiv Gandhi, former prime minister of India. Events of his life confirm beyond doubt that his Ascendant is Virgo. There is a conjunction of five planets the Sun, the Moon, Mercury, Venus and Jupiter in the 12th house ruled by the Sun. In accordance wit the sloka of Bhavartha Ratnakara (supra) this combination makes him fortunate in respect of the Karakatva of all the houses except the 3rd, 6th and 8th. Rahu, posited in the 12th from the Moon, loses much of his evil power. The Rajayogas formed are 9 + 10, 1 + 4, 1 + 7, 7 + 9 and 4 + 7. The Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga is formed by the conjunction of Venus and Mercury, though rendered partly weak by the presence of the 11th lord Moon. Jupiter is exalted in Navamsa. He rose to become the Prime Minister of India in Jupiter Bhukti, Rahu Dasa.

In the above analysis, I have chosen some Rasi charts from the past and present to confirm that Dharmakarmadhipati Yoga, as described by the sage Parasara, is indeed a Maha Rajayoga which makes the natives eminent leaders in their respective fields. Even when this Yoga is weakened, the effects are not wholly destroyed since they get manifested in course of time. However, before announcing the results of this Yoga, longevity of the native must be ascertained.--200.90.

Broad palms are symbols of sympathy and fellow feeling. Such people are naturally kind and affectionate. They show capacity for taking impersonal view of things and tend to give due consideration to the feelings and ideas of others. By disposition they are generous. Their outlook on life is definitely broad. They are sociable and likeable. They are good mixers. They have a natural aptitude to get on well and smoothly with all sorts and manner of people. As a rule they tend to disfavour desk work. When compelled to work or live in isolation their style gets cramped. In point of fact they do not feel in their element. When they are able to work in surroundings that offer opportunities of mixing with other people they tend to enjoy it and if it happens to require outdoor activity as well they are bound to be at their very best.

Padded Palm: Flat Palm

At the base of the thumb and each finger, are to be found padded formations of flesh. These fleshy elevations form a row of miniature mounts from the root of the index to the base of the little finger. There they join with the padded bulges raised along side the percussion of the hand. Then running across the ridges of the wrist they link up with the big ball at the root of the thumb. These mounts when developed make the palm look padded and full. When you try to press such a full palm it will give a kind of springly and flexible feeling. When the palm is thus padded it represents energy and vitality. People with this type of palms have abundance of latent powers which readily form the basis of their dynamic and vibrant attitude. This also suggests strength of constitution. Such people tend to be active and resourceful. They show inborn drive and force of personality. They love life and enjoy living it.

When these fleshy mounts are absent the entire palmer area looks flat and when pressed gives a kind of bony static feeling. There is something inflexible about such palms. People with these palms seem to lack staying power. They are apt to lack vitality and strength of constitution. They are inclined to be cold and very often anaemic and envious. There is nothing robust about them. They are apparently quite unsuited to the rough and tumble of life. They are apt to be easily tired out and when called upon to do a spot of hand work they are prone to feel listless and soon give up. They can however take up work that requires passive type of duties especially indoors.

ACHARYA RAJNEESH

ASTROLOGY is perhaps the most ancient subject and also in a way the most tabooed. It is the most ancient because as far back as we have been able to investigate the history of mankind, Astrology has been in existence. Astrological inscriptions have been found on bone remnants from the Sumerian civilization which existed twenty-five thousand years before Christ. Bone remnants have been discovered with astrological inscriptions and with an outline of the Moon's orbit in the sky.

But in India, this science is even older. In the Rigveda, reference is made to a certain positioning of the stars which could only have occurred ninety-five thousand years ago. On this basis, Lokamanya Tilak concluded that the Vedas must certainly be even more ancient. Because the positioning of the stars as described in the Vedas is such that it could only have occurred at a certain moment ninety-five thousand years ago, that particular Vedic reference must be at least ninety-five thousand years old.

That particular Vedic reference could not have been added at a later period. Succeeding generations would not have been able to ascertain a stellar situation that existed many years before. But now we have scientific apparatus by which we can discover how the stars were positioned at a particular moment in the distant past.

The deepest laws of Astrology were first discovered in India. The truth is that it was only because of Astrology that mathematics was born. For astrological calculation, it was first necessary to give birth to mathematics.

The digits used in arithmetic were invented in India. The numbers one to ten which exist in all the world's languages are basically Indian in origin. The decimal system was born in India, and it slowly spread throughout the entire world. When you say "nine" in English, it is only a modification of the Sanskrit word nav. When you say "eight" in English, it is only a modification of the Sanskrit word acht. The numerals one to nine, prevalent in all the world's languages, came into existence only because of the influence of Indian Astrology.

The first inkling of Astrology reached the Sumerian civlization from India. Six thousand years before Christ, the Sumerians were the first to open the doors of Astrology to the Western world. It was the view in Sumer that whenever illness occurs, whenever epidemics are born, the stars are somehow connected with such phenomena. This subtle viewpoint was universal.

In 1920 a Russian scientist by the name of Chijevsky investigated this matter deeply and discovered that every eleven years, enormous explosions take place on the Sun. He discovered that whenever such nuclear explosions occur on the Sun, at that time wars and revolutions commence on earth. According to him, during the past seven hundred years, whenever such phenomena have occurred on the Sun, at such times disasters have overtaken the earth. Chijevsky's analysis was so scientific that in 1920 Stalin had him arrested and thrown into prison. Only after Stalin's death could Chijevsky be released. According to Marxist and communist thinking, whatever revolutions occur on the earth are fundamentally caused by economic differences among men. But Chijevsky declared that the cause of revolutions is the explosions happening on the Sun.

How can the occurrence of explosions on the Sun possibly be related to the existence of poverty and wealth in the lives of men? If Chijevsky's thesis is correct, then Marx's entire system disintegrates into dust; then revolutions can no longer be explained by references to economics and class struggle; then only Astrology can explain revolution.

Chijevsky could not be proved wrong. His seven-hundred-year calculation was so scientific, the connection he established between explosions on the Sun and phenomena on the earth was so close, that to prove him wrong was difficult. But to send him to Siberia was a simple matter.

After Stalin's death Khruschev was able to release Chijevsky from Siberia. Fifty valuable years of this man's life were lost in Siberia. After his release, he could not stay alive longer than four to six months, but in those few months he gathered together even more evidence for his thesis. He also linked the spread of epidemics on the earth to solar influence.

The Sun is not a static ball of fire as we ordinarily think, but rather an infinitely alive and dynamic fiery organism. Every moment the Sun changes its mood. And when the Sun changes its mood just a little, life on earth trembles. Nothing happens on the earth without something happening on the Sun. When there is a solar eclipse, the birds in the jungle stop singing twenty-four hours beforehand. During the entire time of the eclipse the whole earth becomes silent.

Last year in France it was calculated that forty-five percent of the people believe that Astrology is a science. In America, five thousand leading astrologers are currently at work night and day. They have so many clients that they can never finish their work properly. Americans pay millions of dollars yearly to astrologers. It is estimated that throughout the world, seventy-eight percent of people believe in Astrology and this includes a very sizeable proportion of scientists, thinkers and other intelligent people.

C. J. Jung said that the doors of the universities have been closed to Astrology for three hundred years, but that in the coming thirty years Astrology will open those doors and again enter the university. It will be able to do so because claims advanced by Astrology which have previously been unproven can now be proven.

Paracelsus gave birth to one discovery that man becomes ill only when the harmonious relationship between him and the constellation of his birth somehow breaks down. For this, a little explanation is necessary. Many years before Paracelsus, a Greek named Pythagoras gave birth to the invaluable principle of planetary harmony. When Pythagoras proclaimed this principle in Greece, he had just returned from a journey to Egypt and India. And at the time when Phythagoras came to India, India was intensely absorbed in the ideas of Buddha and Mahavira. After his return to Greece, he included in his reports a specific reference to Buddhist and Jaina Sadhus. He gave the Jaina seers the name Jainosophists, and also reported that they walk about naked.

Phythagoras believed that every star, every planet and every satellite, as it travels in space, emanates a unique vibration through its movement. When a man takes birth, the melody that is created by the tuning of the stars at the moment of his birth, is inscribed upon his mind in its freshest, most unsophisticated, and most sensitive state -- that of birth. Throughout his life this will cause good health or ill-health. When he lives in tune with the original musical harmony existing at the time of his birth, then he is healthy. And whenever his tuning with this fundamental musical harmony breaks down, he becomes ill.

In this connection, Paracelsus has done very important work. He would not prescribe medicine to any patient until he had seen his kundali -- his astrological birth chart. And it is a surprising thing that after having examined a patient's birth chart, Paracelsus would cure patients who had thrown other physicians into confusion -- patients who could not be cured by any other physician. He used to say, "Until I know the situation of the stars at the time of this man's birth, it is not possible to grasp the notes of his inner tuning. Unless I know the arrangement of his inner tuning, how can this man be brought to health?"

But what is meant by health? This we must try to understand. Ordinarily, if we ask a physician what the definition of health is, he will only say that health is the absence of sickness. But this definition is negative. Health is our nature; illness is an incursion upon nature.

Paracelsus used to say, "Until we know the state of your inner harmony, we can at the most release you from your illness -- because your inner harmony is the source of your health. But when we release you from one illness, you will immediately catch another, because nothing has been done with regard to your inner harmony. The fact of the matter is that it is your inner harmony which must be supported."

Five hundred years have elapsed since Paracelsus, and his discoveries have gone into oblivion. But now, during the past twenty years, Astrology has re-emerged. I will describe this new science a bit, and then you will be able to understand the ancient science of Astrology more easily.

In 1950 a new science was born called cosmic chemistry. The originator of this science is Georgi Giardi, one of the most valuable men of the century. This man, after endless experiments in the laboratory, proved in a scientific way that the whole universe is an organic unity -- that the whole universe is one body.

Cosmic chemistry says that the entire cosmos is a body. Nothing in it stands apart; all things are joined together. Therefore, no matter how distant a star may be from us, when it changes, our heartbeats also change. And no matter how far away the Sun may be, when it becomes very disturbed our blood circulation is also disturbed. Every eleven years an atomic storm occurs on the Sun. The last time such a great atomic storm and fiery explosions were going on, a Japanese doctor named Tomato made an amazing discovery. This doctor had been doing work on the blood of women for twenty years.

There is one property unique to female blood which is absent in the blood of males. At the time of menstruation the blood of women becomes thin, but men's blood always remains the same. At the time of pregnancy also their blood grows thin. But when atomic energy storms were occurring on the Sun with great intensity, the blood of men also grew thin. This was a very novel phenomenon. Before this it had never been recorded that men's blood was affected by disturbances on the Sun. And if blood can be so affected, then anything can be affected.

For two thousand years after Aristotle, it was thought in the West that space is empty, that nothing is there -- that two hundred miles away from earth the atmosphere ceases and there is empty space. But the investigations of space travellers have proved this notion to be erroneous. Space is not empty, it is heavily populated. It is neither empty nor dead. It is extremely alive.

The truth is that the two-hundred-mile-wide layer of the earth's atmosphere prevents all these influences from reaching us. In space there is constant traffic. Will man be able to stand it or not? Frank Brown, an American thinker, sent a potato into space. It was Brown's contention that there is very little essential difference between a man and a potato. If the potato rots, then man cannot survive; if the potato survives, then man may also survive. From this, Brown proved one more thing -- that a potato seed lying in the ground, or any seed lying in the ground, grows only in relation to the Sun. The Sun alone arouses it and encourages it to emerge. The Sun alone summons the embryo plant and induces its growth.

Brown also did research in another field. This other subject has even now not been given a suitable name, but at present it is called planet-kin relationship.

When a child is born, at that moment many stars are emerging all around the earth's horizon. Some stars are Ascendant, some stars are on the decline, other stars are rising. This child is being born into a certain arrangement of stars in space.

But from the investigations of Brown, Picardi, Tomato and others a great conclusion can be drawn. All these scientists say that while we cannot as yet assert that a child is influenced by the stars as an individual, still, we can now say for certain that life as a whole is affected. Whether a child is influenced as an individual we cannot now say or know, but life as a whole is influenced. And if life as a whole is influenced, then as we investigate the facts of the matter more deeply, we will discover that the individual, too, is affected by the stars.

Today, science is approaching the point where it will accept the thesis that life as a whole is affected by stellar movements. At the time of birth, the condition of a child's mind is precisely that of a very sensitive photo-plate. Two or three things must be considered if we are to understand how life as a whole is affected. And only if life is affected as a whole can there be the possibility of Astrology -- not otherwise.

We should try to understand the phenomenon of twins. Two types of twins exist. One type of twins are identical twins -- those who are born out of one egg. Another type are those who, although they are twins, are born out of separate eggs -- in the mother's womb there are two eggs, and two children are born. Rarely do two children take existence in one egg. Those two children who are born out of one egg are very significant subjects to study, because the moment of their birth is exactly the same. Out of necessity we call the children born out of separate eggs, "twins", but the moment of their birth is not exactly the same.

It must be understood that birth is an ambiguous phenomenon. The actual birth takes place on the day when the foetus is conceived in the mother's womb. What you call birth is actually birth number two -- when the child comes out of the mother's womb. If we were to carry out a complete astrological investigation -- as the Hindus alone have done, and done very thoroughly -- then our actual concern does not begin when the child is born. Our actual concern begins when the child starts its journey in the mother's womb, when the embryo takes shape -- because that is the actual birth. Therefore, Hindus have also decided that if a particular type of child is to take birth, that type of child will be born if intercourse and pregnancy occur under an arrangement of stars and planets most suitable to that type.

Now I will explain to you a little of the background of this, because in this connection much work has been done and many things have become clear. Ordinarily, when a child is born at six o'clock in the morning, we think that the stellar situation which exists at that time in the morning influences the child. My view is different, fundamentally different. When the child is taking birth, then it chooses the planets and stars and the moment at which it will take birth. And if we go still more deeply, then the child also chooses the time of its conception. Every soul chooses its own time of conception -- when it will accept a womb, and at which moment. The moment of conception is not insignificant. It is significant in that it is a question of how the entire universe exists at that moment and to what sort of possibilities the universe opens the door at that moment.

When two children are conceived together in one egg, then the moment of their conception is the same and the moment of their birth is the same. Now it is an interesting phenomenon that the lives of the two children who have taken birth out of one egg are so alike that it is difficult to say that the moment of birth casts no influence. The I.Q. of twins born out of one egg is just about equal. As for that fractional difference which arises, those who know say that this is due to our faulty measuring devices.

Generally, twins born of one egg die in the same year. At the most, three years elapse between their deaths, and at least, three days -- but never more than three years. And it appears that the two live in almost exactly the same way. Each acts like a copy of the other. Their similarity is attested by many other things also.

Is the moment of birth so influential that their lifetimes are just about of equal duration, that their I.Q.'s are just about equal, that their bodily behaviour is uniform, that when the two fall ill it is from the same illness, and that when the two become well again it is from the same medicine? Can the moment of birth be so influential?

Astrology has been saying that the moment of birth is even more important than this. Up until now, science has not agreed with Astrology, but now it is beginning to do so. In this increasing agreement, some new experiments have been helpful. Here is one such experiment.

At the time when we launched an artificial satellite into space, we learned that a network of infinite types of radiation emanate continuously from the universe, from the stars and constellations, and are diffused throughout the earth. On the earth, nothing is unaffected by this phenomenon. We know that the ocean is influenced by the Moon, but we have not taken into consideration the fact that the same relative proportion of water and salt that occurs in the ocean occurs also in the human body -- the same proportion. Forty-five percent of the human body consists of water, and the proportion of salt contained in that water is the same as is contained in thousands of bays. If the water in the ocean is affected by the Moon, then how could the water inside the human body remain unaffected?

Some three thousand years ago, the thought came to men that the Moon does something to the insane. But if it does something to the insane, then how can it avoid affecting the sane?

Professor Brown made an interesting study. He was a man completely without faith in Astrology. He was a disbeliever and in his earlier writings he had very much ridiculed Astrology. But despite his skepticism he began some investigation. He gathered together the kundali, the birth charts of many famous generals, doctors, and other professions. Having done this he found himself in great difficulty because he discovered that members of a certain profession were born under a special planet, in the same stellar situation. For instance, among all famous generals, the influence of Mars upon their lives is very strong. In the lives of professors, the influence of Mars is completely absent.

The study, which Brown carried out of some fifty thousand men who are generals,

Planets and Pregnancy

K. CHANDRA HARI, M.E., M.TECH.

IN SPITE of the great strides by modern medical sciences, it is still incapable of arriving at the exact date of labour. Medical men armed with multi-alphabetical degrees and ultra-modern instruments very often fail miserably in their calculation of the expected date of delivery. Their knowledge of the duration of pregnancy is totally derived from statistical data and all they can say is that about in two out of three cases 280± 8 days is correct if the first day of the last menstrual period is taken as the zero point. Statistical studies have done no more than to confirm the belief held throughout the ages that in the average woman labour may be expected about 280 days or ten lunar months following the first day of the last menstruation.

In statistical studies which took date of single fruitful coitus as the zero point, the duration of pregnancy showed a spread from 260 to 293 days and gave an average value of 275 days and this is the best estimate available. Reckoned by any of the existing methods the date at which labour may be expected cannot be predicted with certainty. The duration of pregnancy is found to vary widely in different women and also vary within considerable limits in the same woman in different pregnancies.

According to medical science the uncertainty arises from the fact that the real duration of pregnancy is the "fertilization-labour interval" and this cannot be calculated because there exists no means of knowing exactly the time of fertilization. But theoretically this interval can be determined within an error of ± 6 days, as the "ovulation-menstruation interval" is a constant, viz., 14 days. In actual practice this is not a reliable method owing to variations in the length of the menstrual cycles of many women. In domestic animals also in spite of the fact that pregnancy results from a known single coitus and that fertilization and coitus nearly coincide, the duration of pregnancy is found to be subject to wide variation.

Therefore the existing final conclusion of medical science in this regard is that the normal duration of pregnancy varies and depends on individual peculiarities and on factors which cannot yet be determined.

The frankness shown in admitting the ignorance must certainly be appreciated but such a situation in medical science is quite pitiable as pregnancy is probably the most common physiological phenomenon that has been under the constant surveilance of medical science since the days of its inception.

My attempt here is to refer to the 'probable causes' for this unsolved phenomenon in modern medical science viz., planetary influences on pregnancy. The best starting point for a study of the various astrological factors that have a say on pregnancy and the associated phenomenon is the fourth chapter, namely Nishekadhyayah of Varaha Mihira's Brihat Jataka. Before going into the classical text, let us have a look at the important characteristics of the phenomenon under study and the associated planetary significators.

In the case of healthy women, during the years intervening between puberty and menopause a sex cycle composed of two closely correlated parts viz., ovulation and menstruation, comes into operation. This sex cycle consists of a phase of regeneration and a phase of disintegration and on the average occupies a period of 28 days. An important question that comes up now is that whether this sexual periodicity is related to the periodicity of planets? If the answer is 'Yes' what is the nature of the relationship/correlation existing between the two?

According to classical authors, a correlation exists between the two periodicities and the sex cycle is the result of a Mars-Moon (Kujendu) interaction. As menstruation (the terminal phase of disintegration and bleeding) is the only clinically evident phase that occurs in the uterine as well as ovarian cycle, the first day of this phase is generally taken as the zero point, even though it is really the terminal phase of the earlier cycle. Hence if we look from this point the phase of disintegration caused by Mars is followed by the phase of regeneration caused by the Moon. According to authors like Dr. Jagannath Rao, the unterine cycle of a healthy woman closely follows the lunar cycle consisting of 28 days. This average value is more close to the sidereal period than the synodic period of the Moon. The uterine cycle does not strictly follow either of the periodic revolutions of the Moon. In some cases, one or two consecutive cycles take place on the same Nakshatra, while for the next few the zero point shifts to some other Nakshatra. This variation in the duration of the sex-cycle can be due to the influence of the transit positions of planets. Classical texts offer a clue that the natal as well as radical positions of the Moon and Mars play a crucial role in determining the length of the sex cycle. To understand the exact nature of the dependence of menstrual cycle on the lunar cycle, further research is necessary.

According to the existing literature on the subject, the Moon and Mars together control the entire reproductive system of the feminine sex. The Moon is supposed to have jurisdiction over uterus, ovaries and its ligaments, fallopian tubes etc. Mars governs blood, breakage of tissues and other processes of disintegration. The pre-menstrual growth processes taking place in uterine endometrium can be considered as under the control of the Moon, while its disintegration is under the control of Mars. As hormonal imbalance associated with menstruation and pregnancy very often leads to emotional disturbance, the Moon can be considered the significator of female sex-harmones, which control the cyclical changes that take place in the ovaries and uterus. For example, oestrogen controls the pre-ovulatory phase and induces growth in the tissues of secondary sex-organs like uterus, tubes etc., while the progesterone controls the post-ovulatory phase and prepares the uterus for pregnancy. Increase of oestrogen or decrease of progesterone is harmful to pregnancy and therefore these harmones must be related to the 5th house and its lord also. It is very difficult to define sharply the respective areas of jurisdiction of Mars and the Moon. Both of them together are responsible for the smooth working of the entire process.

If we consider the relative importance of the various houses in this regard, the 5th house assumes the greatest significance as the uterine cycle is the preparatory phase of conception and pregnancy. The 5th house can be considered as representing the ovaries along with Putrakaraka Jupiter while the 4th house from the 5th viz., the 8th house can be considered as representing the uterus and fallopian tubes. Obviously the Lagna is also important as it represents the 'CPU' of the human computer.

Let us now take a look at the various stages of pregnancy and the features of planetary control on them.

The physiological pheonmenon commonly referred to as pregnancy contains in itself three crucial events, namely:

(i) the last menses, (ii) conception and (iii) labour.

These three events in turn give rise to three important points of time viz., the first day of the Last Menstrual Period (LMP), the time of conception and the time of birth of the child. According to classical texts these three events are interrelated as the first one determines the second while the second determines the third. These three points of time serve another important purpose. As there exists a transmission of characteristics from parent to offspring, there must be a corresponding transmission of horoscopic features from one generation to the other (Refer THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, page 51, January 1990). In other words, the birth times or the respective planetary positions of the parents play a decisive role in determining the birth times of their children, i.e., a new generation comes out of the old one under the strict superivision of the supreme phenomenon "Time". As the last two points referred above are related to the first, the first one must certainly be related to the birth times of parents. Thus the first point, namely the LMP, must have upon it the "Astro-genetical" influences from the parental charts and therefore act as a comsic link between two generations. The planetary positions of this event must therefore be related to the parental charts as well as to the chart of the child. (The moment of conception can also be taken as the link-point.) Actually the classical texts give more importance to Adhana Muhurta. But practically the uncertainty associated with determining the exact time makes its study very difficult and hence the first point viz., LMP is chosen as the reference point in this discussion. Almost all the classical authors describe the planetary influences on menstruation in the same way. According to them, menstruation which facilitates conception occurs when the Moon transits the

Anupachaya Rasis under the aspect of Mars. Also they state that if the Moon is in an Upachaya Rasi at the time of onset of the menses, such menses will not lead to conception. But there is some confusion regarding the reference point from which the Upachaya or Anupachaya status of the Rasis are to be reckoned. According to some of the interpreters, Chandra Lagna is the point of reference while according to others the Ascendant is to be considered as the reference point. Also there is confusion regarding the aspect of Mars which can either be from the natal or transiting Mars. Taken in either way, the above interpretations and their respective slokas are not strictly valid in many cases and are therefore not useful in identifying the menstrual cycle which facilitates conception. Apart from these, classical texts do not refer to any other zodiacal features that may characterize the menstruation that will lead to pregnancy.

Let us, therefore, try to find out some of the planetary features that may be responsible for the Last Menstrual Period. Also as mentioned in the beginning, the problem of duration of pregnancy will be examined astrologically using certain examples and we will try to evolve a method by which the date and time of delivery can be arrived at. All the examples in this discussion belong to physiologically normal cases.

Charts 1, 2 and 3 belong respectively to a father, mother and their child. The planetary positions of the first day of the respective Last Menstrual Period is given in Chart 4. If Chart 4 is considered with respect to Chart 2 it can be seen that the Lagna lord Moon and the 5th lord Mars are in mutual aspect and also they aspect their natal positions. Transiting Mars was in conjunction with natal Moon and natal Mars conjoined the transiting Moon. Putrakaraka Jupiter aspects the 5th house as well as 5th lord. These features of the transit positions of LMP can be taken as indicative of the fact that the respective menses may lead to pregnancy provided the 5th houses of the parental charts are well disposed and the ruling planetary periods are favourable.

If Chart 4 is considered with respect to Chart 1, the "6/8 position" of fast moving Lagna lord and the 5th lord viz., Venus and Saturn, indicate that shortly before the event they were in mutual aspect. Actually Venus was in Gemini upto September 1st, 1988 i.e., just 12 days before the LMP. Putrakaraka Jupiter aspected the natal position of 5th lord.

It is to be noted here that on the first day of LMP, the Moon was in an Upachaya Rasi from Lagna and in an Anupachaya Rasi from the natal Moon. Prima facie, it appears that if the Upachaya status is to be reckoned from Chandra Lagna, the example is in perfect agreement with the first sloka of the Fourth Chapter of Brihat Jataka. In my opinion, the position of the Moon is not due to the influence of the Anupachaya status of Virgo, but it is a direct consequence of the Moon-Mars placement in the maternal chart. Also here the Moon-Mars interaction is prominent only because of the maternal Lagna viz., Cancer for which 5th lord is Mars.

In this case the marriage took place on 7th May 1988 and the maternal chart was under Venus Dasa, Sun Bhukti upto 13th September 1988. The sub-sub-periods which prevailed between the above dates belonged to Mercury, Ketu and Venus which were not favourable for pregnancy. But on the day of LMP the Bhukti of Moon began, who is the Lagna lord as well as Navamsa lord of the 5th lord Mars. Also Moon is in parivartana with Putrakaraka Jupiter. In the case of the paternal chart the favourable sub-sub-period of Saturn prevailed between 22nd July 1988 and 28th September 1988.

In Chart 2, if the menstrual cycle is regular and strictly follows the sidereal lunar cycle, Moon might have been in Virgo for the previous menstruation also. If we examine the planetary aspects during May-September 1988, it can be seen that the 'Saturn-Venus' as well as 'Moon-Mars' interactions prevailed during the time of previous menses also. The question that arises now is -- what is the factor which prevented pregnancy in that cycle?

One possible answer is the influence of the ruling planetary periods which we described earlier. Another possible answer is that the previous menses might not have taken place while Moon was in Virgo. It can also be due to the influences of some of the divisional charts, natal as well as radical. Here we are unable to reach a conclusion due to non-availability of date of previous menstrual cycles.

I strongly feel that a particular menses will lead to pregnancy only if the respective Moon is under the "astro-genetical influence" of the parental charts, i.e., the respective Moons must be in conjunction or mutual aspect with either the Lagna, the Moon, the 5th house or the 5th lord of the parental charts. Also the parental charts must be under favourable planetary periods as well as transits. In a large number of cases pregnancy appears invariably during the first year of marriage itself and so the ruling Dasas/ Bhuktis may be neglected and with a certain amount of risk pregnancy can be predicted on the basis of the transits of the 1st and 5th lords as well as the Moon of the respective menstrual period.

Let us now have a look at the probable date of conception in this case. The date of ovulation must belong to the middle of the following menstrual cycle and therefore the probable dates are 25th to 27th of September 1988. On 25th and 26th, the Moon was in Pisces in conjunction with the 5th lord, Mars. The Moon and Mars also influenced their natal positions. These planetary features suggest that one of these is most likely the day of conception. But on both the above dates the transiting Moon was in an Anupachaya Rasi from the Chandra Lagna (Moon-sign) of father. On 27th the Moon transited into an Upachaya Rasi (from Chandra Lagna of father) and was under the aspect of Mercury but there was no aspect of Lagna lord on the natal 5th lord. The Moon on that day aspected the paternal Lagna and on 28th i.e., just the day after, Venus the paternal Lagna lord moved into Leo and aspected the 5th house.

According to the 21st sloka of the Nishekadhyaya of Brihat Jataka the Chandra Dwadasamsa Rasi at the time of conception becomes the Janma Rasi of the child. In this case, on 27th the Moon cannot have its Dwadasamsa in the Janma Rasi of the child viz., Capricorn. Thus the 1st and 21st slokas lead us to different conclusions and so a lot of research is necessary to ascertain the truth.

Duration of Pregnancy

Let us have a look at some questions which have a bearing upon our discussion.

According to medical science, the "ovulation-menstruation interval" is a constant, namely 14 days. What is the reason behind this constancy? In other words, why are these two physiological phenomena separated by a fixed interval of time? (It is to be noted here that, the length of the menstrual cycle varies widely in different women and also varies within appreciable limits in the same woman.)

The above constancy suggests two possibilities: viz.,

(i) The female reproductive system has an in-built timing mechanism.

OR

(ii) the female reproductive system responds to an external mechanism of time which contributes the above referred "fixed time interval".

If the female reproductive system has an in-built clock, then why should the menstrual cycles be irregular? Astrology can explain this irregularity as due to the influence of the natal as well as transiting planets on the transiting Moon. The 5th and 8th houses also may play some role in this regard.

The only external mechanism of "time" which can contribute a fixed time interval of approximately 14 days is the revolution of the Moon across the zodiac. Half the sidereal period of the Moon precisely forms the "ovulation-menstruation interval" and so the Moon of ovulation invariably aspects the Moon of menstruation giving rise to the constancy of interval. (Astrologically, the exact value of "ovulation-menstruation interval" must be 13.66 days.)

According to 'medical statistics' the duration of pregnancy is 280± 8 in two out of three cases. Why is this so? What is the reason for the fluctuation of ±8? The two out of three cases in which the duration of pregnancy is within the limit 280±8 can be termed as normal cases. From the above observation of medical statistics, it follows that, in general, the minimum period of pregnancy is 272 days while the maximum period is 288 days. (These values 272 and 288 are only approximate ones, as statistics cannot give sharp values.) The minimum period is hence the same as that of ten lunar months, namely 273.2 days.

The Doctrine of the Host Planet

P. N. OAK

ASTROLOGERS have often to decide whether in a given horoscope a planet in its own house is better than one in a sign or house not its own; whether a retrograde planet is better than a direct one? And whether a planet is better, placed in elevation or exaltation than being in its own sign?

Here one may recall that the question of retrogression does not apply to the Sun, Moon and the Nodes, that is, Rahu and Ketu.

But the Sun and the Nodes move clockwise while others revolve in the opposite direction.

There are also other distinctions namely that the Nodes (Rahu and Ketu) are mere dots or single entities with no sign of their own.

The Sun and the Moon are lords of only one sign each. Therefore when they are not in their own signs, they are made up of a head and tail, let us say. In other words the Sun itself is the head and Leo (when situated elsewhere) may be likened to its tail. Likewise the Moon (wherever situated) may be considered the head while Cancer will be its tail.

The other five planets have a distinct triangular personality each, specially when they are not in their own signs. The place where they are located may be regarded as their head or headquarters while their two signs may be regarded as their props, feet or stilts.

Three other planets have one more complication, namely, that besides aspecting the 7th house (i.e., the house opposite) they also aspect two other houses. Thus Mars aspects the 4th and 8th houses, Saturn aspects the 3rd and 10th houses and Jupiter aspects the 5th and 9th houses from where it is located.

Saturn has one more peculiarity namely that its influence streams into the anterior and posterior houses too.

That makes Saturn the most powerful planet (astrologically) because its influence extends to a maximum number of houses in the horoscope namely (1) the house where it is located; (2) the anterior house; (3) the posterior house; (4) the house opposite; (5) the 3rd house from where Saturn is located; (6) the 10th house from where Saturn is located; (7) the house occupied by Capricorn; and (8) the house occupied by Aquarius.

These characteristics may overlap in some horoscopes. Therefore in those horoscopes Saturn may not influence as many as eight houses but a lesser number. Thus, for instance, when Saturn is in Sagittarius, its posterior house will be Aquarius which already carries Saturn's influence anyway being Saturn's own sign. But in that case Saturn's influence on houses occupied by Capricorn and Aquarius will be double (for good or bad results). Because when Saturn is posited in Sagittarius the posterior (Capricorn) house is influenced by Saturn's proximity. Besides, that house is occupied by Saturn's own sign Capricorn. In that case the house occupied by Capricorn is under double saturnine influence.

Similarly the house occupied by Aquarius will also be under double saturnine influence: one, because Saturn aspects it and the other, because Aquarius is Saturn's own sign.

When Saturn is in Libra, its influence is felt in that house plus the anterior (Virgo) and posterior (Scorpio) houses, in the 3rd house (Sagittarius), the 7th house (Aries) and the 10th house (Cancer). Besides the 4th and 5th houses being occupied by Capricorn and Aquarius also carry the saturnine influence. There is no overlapping.

Similarly when Saturn is in Virgo it affects 8 houses without any overlapping. Likewise when Saturn is in Gemini, it also affects 8th house without any overlapping. But if Saturn is in any other sign it affects less than eight houses since there is some overlapping.

Saturn becomes a beneficent force if the Moon is located in the anterior house. Thus if Saturn is exalted, when it is in Libra and has Moon in Virgo it connotes a dashing future. Chhatrapati Shivaji had Virgo Moon in the 2nd house, Libra, Saturn in the 3rd house, Sun and Mercury in Aquarius and Venus in the 9th house in Aries. That was like a train with engines at both ends. Here the Moon is at the rear

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

Venus is opposite (in the 9th house) and Saturn itself is in exaltation. This is a triple benefic situation or rather quadruple benefic. Because Saturn is in a benefic sign. Not only that it is in a sign of exaltation. That makes two plus points. Being aspected by Venus (a benefic) from the 9th house (the house of good luck) again is two plus points. Saturn and Venus being natural friends their mutual aspect from the house of valour and house of fortune resulted in a forceful personality.

In such cases students of Astrology may ascertain whether such double saturnine influence is more pronounced (for better or worse) than the mere presence of Saturn in some other (especially benefic) sign.

My personal tentative conclusion is that the malefic double effect makes matters worse. Thus for instance when Capricorn or Aquarius is the Ascendant it portends a vulnerable constitution. The vulnerability may cause internal bodily ailments or an outside assailant's attack. That is to say a malefic Ascendant sign forbodes a much more vulnerable constitution than a benefic sign as Ascendant.

But when the malefic planet is occupying its own (malefic) Ascendant sign that constitutes a malefic double effect, namely, the Ascendant occupying both, a malefic sign and also a malefic planet though it may be the lord of the sign.

The same rule should apply to all other houses of the horoscope too. Thus Saturn in Capricorn or Aquarius in any house of the horoscope spells the malefic double effect for that house.

Thus even Mars in Aries or Scorpio in any house should give a double malefic effect for that house.

When a malefic planet occupies a malefic sign of desparate or incompatible nature the malefic double effect should be worse than a malefic being in its own sign. Thus for instance Saturn being posited in Aries or Scorpio Ascendant or Mars being placed in Capricorn or Aquarius Ascendant augurs a triple malefic effect, so to say. The three malefic points will be (1) malefic sign; (2) malefic planet, (3) discord between the sign and the planet.

What is true of the triple malefic effect in the Ascendant should also be true for other houses.

This brings us to the doctrine of the host planet. When a planet is not in its own sign but is in some other sign it may be stated to be a guest in the sign of some other planet which is the host.

Thus when Saturn is in Aries or Scorpio the host planet (of guest Saturn) is Mars. When Saturn is in Sagittarius or Pisces, the host planet (of Saturn, the guest) is Jupiter.

So a general rule could be that if the host planet of a malefic is a benefic (as in the case of Saturn being in one of Jupiter's two signs) that situation is happier than the host planet of a malefic being itself a malefic. Mathematically we may say that a malefic planet is one point minus (--1) but that malefic being posited in a benefic sign is +1.

But a malefic planet in own (malefic) sign is --2.

But a malefic planet in a malefic sign of desparate element may be represented as --3 for the Ascendant or for any other house.

We now come to the main consideration of the host planet, namely, that when the lord of the Ascendant (say Mars) is in Saturn's sign (Capricorn or Aquarius) or vice versa when lord of the Ascendant, Saturn, is in a martian sign (namely in Aries or Scorpio), it indicates a troublesome childhood (due to, say, poverty or other kinds of domestic unhappiness) and also bad health. But if the host planet is happily situated (in a quadrant or trine house) and in a good sign, or in company of benefics or is aspected by benefics the native has a care-free childhood and a prosperous future.

So, where the lord of the Ascendant connotes misfortune in natal conditions or during childhood the student of Astrology studying any horoscope should ascertain the condition of the host planet. This rule should also apply to houses other than the Ascendant. Namely if the lord of that house is in a malefic sign then initially or basically it connotes bad luck. But if the host planet is well placed it augurs better luck after initial impediments.

For instance, an abandoned disowned child brought up in an orphanage is chosen and adopted by a rich total stranger. Here initially the child's luck was bad but later it was much better than even those born in a normal householder's family. Or, a child born to poor parents being adopted by an affluent uncle or grandfather either in the normal course or because the child was left an orphan.

In such cases though a native's natal conditions are not very favourable his or her condition improves in later life because of a reciprocal planetary configuration where the host planet is much better placed than the Ascendant itself.

A planet by itself or its host planet is well placed when it is accompanied or aspected by a benefic. The Moon's association with any planet either by being in the same house or in the opposite house is the best. If it is a Cancer Moon that is still better. A planet placed in a benefic sign is preferable to a malefic place in its own sign.

Saturn and Mars being natural enemies, and of incompatible characteristics and both being malefics their association is calamitous. Their being together or in opposite houses or in contiguous houses also spells danger.

In such cases, however, if the Moon is in the house anterior to Saturn then the Saturn-Mars nexus, far from being calamitous, leads to a life of special vigour and achievement.

Likewise if Saturn and Mars are in benefic signs and their host planets too are well placed, they connote a forceful personality and a life of special achievement.

Two or more malefics (including Rahu and Ketu) being together in a malefic sign should be a cause for concern. Of the four malefic signs (Aries, Scorpio, Capricorn and Aquarius), Capricorn is the worst since it causes failures, defeats, reversals and public shame.

Saturn and Mars being together or separately in malefic signs, aspecting one another augurs ill for the native. The ill-effects will be regarding the houses of which Saturn and Mars are lords.

When both signs of a malefic are occupied by malefics the native may be a terror to others. Thus Aries and Scorpio being occupied by Saturn, Rahu or Ketu; or Capricorn and Aquarius being occupied by Mars and Rahu or Ketu; or Mars being in one of its own malefic signs; or Saturn being in one of its own malefic signs plus another malefic occupying its other malefic sign, is likely to signify a person indulging in cruel deeds.

One may thus work out the plus and minus points in a horoscope to judge the native's role in life and the happiness and misery that is going to befall him or befall others because of him or her.

In the near future Saturn is to move into Capricorn (since these lines are being written on August 23, 1990) where Rahu is already posited. These two malefics in a malefic sign (Capricorn) may cause calamities to individuals and nations (such as mishaps, earthquakes, wars). Those individuals and nations which have some malefic posited in Aquarius (Scorpio or Aries too) may have to undergo greater suffering.

But those who have their Moon in Sagittarius are likely to have good times ahead since Saturn will be in the posterior house. Because of the drawing power of Saturn, the association of Rahu may bring about dramatic turns for the better in their fortunes. This holds good for nations too.--217.90.

in this round, she left her parental home to a different place to set up her own home. With the transit of Jupiter in Gemini, the 7th from its natal position it brought another shift of residence; and this time to a foreign land in tune with the planetary interaction of Jupiter's aspect on Ketu, under the overall influence of the Moon covering the period of the 3rd round. In fact, this 3rd round covering the period upto her age of 36 is slated to be one of happiness and joy with all good things coming her way, while Jupiter keeps interacting in its transit with one planet after the other in its path.

The purpose of this discussion is to give an exposure to the novel approach adopted by the Nadi writers to read the transit results with telling effect. There are certain nuances to bear in mind while considering interaction between planets under this scheme. When a planet is retrograde, it is to be placed in the previous sign of its occupation while considering its aspects etc. in addition to its sign of occupation. Likewise, when planets are involved in exchange of sign (Parivartana) each of them is to be placed in its own house in order to ascertain the outcome of its interaction with other planets. Yoga results are to be judged separately and not incorporated into this scheme directly.

In order to obtain better insight, transits of both Jupiter and Saturn are to be co-related. Jupiter is Jeeva, the life-force and Saturn is the force sustaining life, the one that keeps life going. Work done and efforts put in are the result of Saturn; Enjoyment of the result of that effort is that of Jupiter. Without involvement of both Jupiter and Saturn no event can occur in life. Emphasis would be on transit of Jupiter concerning auspicious results such as marriage event, birth of children, gifts and honours, religious and social functions etc. Transit of Saturn is underlined concerning events bringing sorrow and suffering such as death, illness, loss etc. Activities involving one's labour and efforts such as profession etc. can better be monitored through transit of Saturn, while promotions and rewards from it would be reflected in the transit of Jupiter with better clarity.

While each round of transit of Jupiter covers twelve years, the rounds of Saturn would be around thirty years. Depending upon the sequence in which other planets are placed with reference to the placement of Jupiter and Saturn the operative periods of each round would differ corresponding to the nature of root-ideas of the planet that marks the sequence of the cycle. This factor assumes significance for purposes of identifying the specific round of transit during which the event is likely to occur. Marriage, for instance, is timed by monitoring the transit of Jupiter. When transit Jupiter aspects the natal position of Venus, Mars, Ketu or its own natal position, it rings the wedding bells. The task is to identify the specific round of Jupiter's transit and then co-relate its interaction with the concerned planet equated with marriage.

Cancer Ascendant -- A Research into Marital Happiness

DR. A. N. RAJAMANI, M.A., M.LITT., PH.D.

Introduction

WHEN the world was young and evolution of animals into human beings was taking place and a portion of humanity had not yet lost its inheritance of tail, there lived a fully developed and sublime man, Sri Rama, who was the ruler of Ayodhya. The Epic goes to say, he was great in all respects, but he lacked marital happiness. He was first deprived of His consort by force and at a later time by popular opinion leading to eternal separation for the rest of his life. Every Indian must have known His story, and fortunately the great man's horoscope is preserved to posterity and He is a Cancer man.

Coming to our modern times, we find Jawaharlal Nehru, while attaining greatness in all respects, lost his partner in the prime of life and was denied domestic happiness. He was also born under the influence of Cancer.

Even a few of my relations, natives of Cancer, were denied of marital happiness, even though they were all placed in happy circumstances otherwise.

These facts have given rise to an idea in my mind that while Cancer is capable of producing great men, it has consistently ruined their wedded wife, and therefore, I propose to make a general survey of Cancer Ascendant with particular reference to marital happiness.

Character

The persons having Cancer as their Ascendant are weak if the Moon is near Amavasya. There are chances of the Moon becoming isolated (Kemadruma Yoga) and eclipsed by Rahu (Grahana Yoga). These situations bring weakness and disaster to the natives. Mercury is lord of the 12th and 3rd which shows expenditure on brothers and sisters, but lack of happiness and satisfaction from them. Generally they die or do not maintain good relations. The Sun being lord of the 2nd, combination of Mercury and Sun does not pay much as it means combination for deposits and expenses. The natives are honest, sincere and truthful as Jupiter is lord of the 9th house. They control their feelings and value spiritual elevation and company. Venus being lord of the 4th and 11th houses, there are good chances of earning wealth and building houses, making properties and buying vehicles. Generally if Venus is eclipsed by the Sun these chances are not fully available. Their mothers too (in case of eclipsed Venus) suffer a lot in their life. The 6th house lord being Jupiter, they create enemies by their leniance and want to adjust with them. Jupiter being a half benefic for them, their religious pursuits and fortunes are generally imperfect and enemies and obstacles come in the way. If Jupiter, Venus and Mars are well placed, they are very lucky and happy. Mars is a complete benefic for them. They get generally long life especially when Mars or Sun aspects the 8th house but their death is sudden. The 10th lord being Mars they are very successful in their profession and combination of Mars and Jupiter creates good results. They are temperamentally honest and religious due to predominance of the Moon as Ascendant lord and Jupiter as lord of the 9th house. Due to lordship of Saturn of 7th and 8th houses, they might have unhappy domestic life and marry more than once or may have a plurality of wives. They are industrious and frugal but often miserable. Being extremely sensitive, in distress they feel easily nervous especially when the Ascendant is aspected by malefic or Moon has weak conjunctions. They are self-reliant and like fairplay. They have good reputation as traders and industrialists. Sun does not inflict death. Venus, Mercury and Saturn are evil and unfriendly to the Cancer Ascendant and give death.

Some important Yogas arise for Cancer natives. Of course they depend on planetary positions Some are the following: (1) If Moon is situated in the Ascendant along with Jupiter and Mars, the native is intensely religious; (2) if Sun as also lords of 7th and 10th houses are strong, the native acquires ruling powers; (3) if Moon and Mars are in debilitation, the native is a villain, even if he be the foremost among the learned; (4) if the son of Moon, i.e, Mercury, is in 5th house and is afflicted by malefic association or aspect, it gives wealth in its Dasa or ruling period; (5) if a strong Moon is posited in 11th house, the native undoubtedly attains his cherished goal in life; and (6) if Saturn and Mars are together in 11th house, the native marries a girl in love with him.

CC-0. In Public Domain. Gurukul Kangri Collection, Haridwar

If Venus is in Aries and Mars in Taurus, this exchange between lords of 10th and 11th constitutes a Mahayoga for which very good effects are attributed. Again Venus is ruler of the 4th and 11th. Rulership of 4th makes him a Yogakaraka but that of 11th is evil for all planets.[1] However, if Mars is in Aquarius and Saturn in Aries, the exchange is between rulers of 8th and 10th houses. It is an evil one known as Dainya Yoga. If Jupiter is in 8th and Saturn is in 9th, it is also the same Yoga causing ups and downs in life. On the other hand, Saturn in Sagittarius, Jupiter in Capricorn and Venus in Libra, the resultant Yoga is the exchange between rulers of 7th and 9th houses forming a Mahayoga considered equal to a Rajayoga. Yet another important Yoga arises with Mercury in 6th, Jupiter in 7th and Venus in 8th houses. It can also arise when Sun and Mercury are in 6th, Mars and Venus in 7th and Jupiter in 8th. But Mercury should not be combust. However this latter Yoga is considered not as good as the former. There is another Rajayoga if lords of 5th and 7th exchange places.

Seventh House

For Cancer, Capricorn is the 7th house. In this case the marriage partner will be practical-minded, tactful and reserved. Progress in career and parental influence appear to weigh in concluding an alliance. Separation is unavoidable due to some hindrance. Reserved mentality and mutual suspicion break harmony. If Saturn however receives good aspect then the marriage partner may be adjustable. If he receives only bad aspect then the partner is thrown into sickness and melancholy. If Saturn is posited in Cancer, the marriage partner is said to affect the health and personal matters of the native in the absence of beneficial aspects to the house.

Mars is the Yogakaraka for Cancer because he owns the 5th (triangle), and 10th (square) houses. But the question arises whether for the Cancer born, if Mars is posited in Capricorn there is Kuja Dosha. But there is no such Dosha since Mars is a Yogakaraka occupying the house of exaltation. On the other hand Ruchaka Yoga, one of Mahapurushayogas, is formed with Mars in the 7th for Cancer Ascendants. The rule is that Mars is very powerful if he is in Kendra which happens to be his own house or house of exaltation. Its effects are that the native will possess strength, fame and fine qualities. He will be versed in the sacred hymns, praying, the art of producing malefic spells and in science. He will become a king or king's compeer, have an attractive personality, be liberal, victorious and wealthy, and will live for 70 years in comfort. The Yoga endures for life and the effect will be felt more during Kuja Dasa and his Bhukti.

Regarding marriage alliances for Cancer, some people opine that Leo and Aquarius, and Cancer and Capricorn are exceptions to the rule of Samasaptama which is considered to be par excellence. According to Verse 310 of Kalavidhanam, they are exceptions to the rule. This only means that there is no Rasi Adhipati Porutham or the factor of sign-ownership. If there are other items of agreements present which override this single item of agreement, an alliance can be made.

Saturn and Mars

When Venus is in Cancer, Varahamihira gives the following effects for it: The person concerned will have 2 wives, will solicit monetary help from others, will be timid, but very arrogant and will suffer great misery.

We shall also briefly review the likely results of Saturn and Mars in the 10th house for Cancer Ascendant. According to Mihira, both the planets are malefics and their conjunction is always fraught with serious results. The mind and senses are in constant causing discord, selfishness, quick temper, violence. Rash and hasty impulsive acts, deception, resentment, cruel, hard or revengeful feelings when opposed. There will be danger from ailments, accidents and enemies, obstacles in occupation and loss of honour. Also an unfortunate position for the parents. It also gives a liability for imprisonment.

As regards their combination in Aries, Mars will be a Yogakaraka but Saturn is ruler of 7th and 8th houses. Prominence is to be given to the 8th house and he will be in the sign of debility. Here also there is a Rajayoga but its implementation will be nominal; and for Cancer Ascendant, this is considered to be the worst combination.

Again if Saturn occupies the 8th house, there can be 2 interpretations, as owner of 7th in 8th and as owner of 8th in 8th. 8th in 8th constitutes Vipareeta Rajayoga. As he owns the 7th house, the troubles in life will be mostly of matrimonial partnerships and their aspects; and for Saturn the 7th is better because in Verse 29 of Chapter XV of Phaladeepika we read: If the lord of a dusthana should occupy another house of its own, he will produce the effects of only that house occupied by him as Swakshetra or own house and not the effects due to dusthana.

We may however note that if Saturn happens to be in Aquarius the evil effects for the native arising therefrom may be mitigated since that house is the Moolatrikona sign of Saturn.

The last point for consideration is the 4th house aspect of Mars on his exaltation Rasi, Capricorn, in relation to the affairs of that house. In the opinion of Mihira, no significance attaches to the fact that Capricorn is the exaltation Rasi of Mars; nor is the fact that he is Yogakaraka for Cancer relevant here. The aspect of Mars is that of a malefic and hence adverse to matters signified by the 7th house.

Marriage, A Landmark in Life

Concluding the general remarks on the various aspects and positions and combinations of the planets in respect of Cancer Ascendants, let me enter into a regular research of Cancer Ascendants to bring to light their matrimonial happiness. But before entering into the research proper, we had better be alive to the fact that marriage is a landmark in life and that it is a necessity by all tenets of society, religion and politics.

Adam was created and placed in Eden amidst lovely surroundings. Still Adam feels lonely and needs a companion. And God made Eve. Was he happy afterwards? No, his life was affected by his companion and brought about his downfall. Even his progenies were denied of Eden.

Thus marriage is a necessity but how many men are happy after the event? There may be a handful but even there it is doubtful whether they are perfectly happy. So it affects him either for good or bad.

We can discover various reasons for this. But our concern is whether Cancer has any bearing on this. To my mind it has a lot to do with marital happiness and this research will prove the same.

Details of Research Analysis

In all, 27 horoscopes are examined. They include those of Sri Rama (Chart No. 1), The Buddha (No. 2), Sri Ramanujacharya (No. 3), Sri Thyagaraja (No. 4), Mysore Maharaja Krishnaraja Wadiyar IV (No. 5), Sri M. N. Tantri (No. 6), Swami Sivananda (No. 7), Sri Jawaharlal Nehru (No. 8), Smt. Indira Gandhi (No. 9) and Ravana (No. 10). Apart from these 10 notable horoscope, there are a dozen anonymous horoscopes taken from the pages of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, 3 of relatives and 2 of friends. The sources of the horoscopes are thus evident.

Table 1 gives the details of the planetary positions for all the 27 charts (2 of which are incomplete in particulars) with Cancer Ascendant. It may be noted that all charts are those of persons who were married and about whose marital lives definite particulars were available and recorded in the respective source documents.

Out of 27 cases, 7 are females and 20 are males. Table 2 gives figures of marital happiness or otherwise.

Sex of Natives	Number of cases covered by

Female	2	5

It may be noted that in 3 cases (Charts No. 19, 24 and 26) the natives married at least 2 wives, the earlier ones having been dead. Apart from the sages and the statesmen who are well known, in the charts examined, there are businessmen, princes, industrialists, high placed government officers and professors. The original descriptions given for their marital life are want of happiness, detached, no happiness, all evil, dead life, most

Kidney Ailments and Samvada Principle

PROF. P. S. SASTRI, M.A., PH.D., D.LITT.

THE kidneys play an important part in the physiological system of the human being. The kidneys are glandular organs in the abdominal cavity. They serve to excrete urine, thereby removing the effte nitrogenous matter from the blood. The Greek word for kidney is nephros. Thus nephritis refers to the inflammation of the kidneys. Thus we have the word nephrology.

What are the astrological factors indicating the affliction to the kidneys? In two cases we have discerned the kidney ailments and recommended to the surgeons the way to handle them. Since we did not publish them, as there was no need, we cannot build up our self-esteem as correct prognosticators. The parents of the patients and the nephrologists know it. Our satisfaction lies in the fact that the parents trusted us and as per our directions for the time of surgical treatment the two patients are now hale and hearty. We will illustrate one or two cases only.

Our findings will be pointed out first and then the illustrations follow.

1. The Lagna and the 6th house from it have to be examined for any possible malefic afflictions.

2. The 8th house, its occupants, its lord and the aspects on these from malefics have to be noted. Particularly the afflictions to the 22nd decanate deserve attention -- aspects of or conjunction with Mars, Rahu or Uranus.

3. The 6th house hemmed in between malefics.

4. Venus (Sukra) and Libra (Thula) govern the kidneys.

5. Gemini (Mithuna) rules the bladder and the excretory system. Virgo (Kanya) governs the bowels, while Scorpio (Vrischika) refers to the bladder.

6. Uranus in Libra (Thula) indicates inflammation of the kidneys.

7. The areas sensitive to kidney ailments are - (a) Sidereal Taurus and Scorpio 10°; (b) Leo and Aquarius 1°; and (c) second degrees of fixed signs.

8. (a) The opposition of Saturn to the Sun and Mars particularly in the 6th or 8th; (b) heavily afflicted Virgo; (c) Venus afflicted by Uranus; (d) Moon in the second degree of Scorpio afflicted, while Libra rises.

Mr. Carter gives some cases which do not appear to be quite convincing. The examples he gives are:

(a) Venus in Libra Lagna 25° (Tropical) and Jupiter in 23° Aquarius; (b) the Sun and Mercury in Libra, Venus 25° Leo and Moon 28° Taurus; (c) the Sun in Libra, Moon on 25° 30' of Leo; (d) Jupiter in Libra 1° and Venus on 27° Aquarius; (e) Sun 24° 17' and Mars 24° 46' in Virgo, with Saturn 29° 52' in Aquarius for Sagittarius rising.

Leaving aside this welter of confusion, we emphasise a few basic approaches. The signs and planets referred to have to be afflicted by malefics.

(i) Venus and Uranus govern the kidneys.

(ii) Libra and Virgo, 6th and 8th houses have to be considered.

(iii) Leo and Aquarius have to be examined.

(iv) The twenty-second Drekkana needs attention.

Now let us consider two cases. One is that of Dr. M. Chenna Reddi, the present Chief Minister of Andhra Pradesh. We did not predict his kidney transplant publicly. The positions given are as per the Ayanamsa of Lahiri. Lagna is Virgo (Kanya), unaspected by any. The 22nd Drekkana is owned by Mars and is aspected by Mars, the lord of 3 and 8. This Mars is with Venus. This by itself is not enough. Libra, the 2nd house, is aspected by Saturn from the 12th house. This Saturn has the opposition of Uranus from the 6th house. This is a clear indication. Moreover, the 8th lord Mars aspects Saturn. The kidney transplant took place in the sub-period of Jupiter in the major period of Mercury. Jupiter's aspect on Libra, Uranus and Mercury saved him from collapse. The exchange of signs between Jupiter and Mercury is another positive factor. The indicator of Cancer Venus is in the 5th house; and other indicator Uranus is aspected by the significator of children Jupiter. So the donor was his own son. Had the transplant been in Saturn's sub-period, he could not have survived. If we take the Moon-sign, the lord is Venus, and the sign is aspected by Saturn opposed to Uranus. If we take Arudha Lagna, Saturn is in the 6th and Uranus in the 12th. There is no escape from the ailment. Venus has also Papakartari. Gemini is also involved in nephritis and so is its opposite sign. Mercury is in Sagittarius and Jupiter is in Gemini. This explains why Mercury-Jupiter.

The second chart is that of a boy whose ailment was not properly understood by the doctors. They mishandled the case.

They ought to have learnt from Carl Jung that a study of the chart would indicate the nature of the ailment. By the time we indicated the area, the boy was brought to a bad shape. We had hopes and fixed the time for the kidney transplant. He has survived; and he is now improving fast.

Let me examine the chart. The 6th house is Gemini ruling the bladder and the excretory system. There is Ketu aspected by Jupiter and Rahu (close conjunction). Venus is in Libra with Mars. Incidentally Mars owns the 22nd Drekkana. The lord of the 8th house is with the owner of the 6th house, and is in opposition to Saturn. Virgo, governing the bowels, has Uranus. Libra has Papakartari.

Same of Carter's findings apply here. Venus is in Libra Sidereal 3° 40' (Tropical 26°).

Uranus gets into the 10th Bhava and is with Venus at a distance of six degrees only. Mars, Sun and Mercury afflict Saturn, while Saturn afflicts the 7th and 7th houses and the 8th lord. Saturn is the lord of Lagna. Uranus is in the Arudha Lagna Virgo. From the Moon-sign, the 6th is Libra occupied by Venus and Mars, and it is hemmed in between malefics.

In addition to the principles we enunciated earlier, we may note a modified 8th principle. The Sun opposes Saturn and Mars aspects Saturn. The Sun as the 8th lord is in Mars' house.

Who can be the donor of the kidney? Was it a total stranger? Was it a relative? Consider the Venus in both charts is in his own houses. Virgo is afflicted in both. Her Uranus is opposed to his Jupiter and Rahu. Evidently her 9th house (house of children) is afflicted by the Sun, Uranus and Mars. The relationship is clear. The mother donated her kidney.

There is a principle in Astrology called Samvada. One has to study the charts of all the family members to arrive at a correct interpretation. The charts have to be correlated. The chart of the mother shows the Moon in the 8th sign, and the 8th lord in the 6th. The boy's 4th lord is Mars (her lord of the Moon-sign) in Libra with Venus. The mother's 9th house is afflicted by Uranus who is in the boy's 9th house.

We are not able to trace from our records his father's chart. There is his sister's chart. This is the 4th chart. Her Ascendant is Cancer occupied by the debilitated Mars and Saturn. The 4th house is afflicted by Uranus and Rahu, and it is aspected by Venus, Ketu, Jupiter and Mars.

Physics in the Bhagavad Gita

DR. D. N. PATHAK, M.Sc., PH.D., FIC., FICS

WE INDIANS are given to understand by modern historians that long long ago, there lived a king named Bharata, son of Shakuntala and that he ruled our motherland in such a wonderful way that everyone, whether high or low, educated or illiterate, liked him very much. He became so popular that after his death people renamed our motherland Aryavarta as Bharata. But this story appears to be a wrong one because our motherland Aryavarta was known as Bharata much before the birth of King Bharata.

Actually Bharata is a Sanskrit word consisting of two parts -- Bha + Rat. The first part Bha means prakasa (light) and the other part Rat means mai (continued). Thus Bharata means prakasamai or continued with light. Therefore Bharata is a land of enlightened people.

What is that enlightenment which ever prevails on the people of our motherland? It is the sense of humanism which teaches us 'live and let live'! The Bhagavad Gita is a part of the Maharabharata or a story of great enlightened people of our motherland. The Bhagavad Gita enlightens us with the different facets of human knowledge including various branches of science and technology.

Physics is that branch of science in which conversion of matter into energy and vice versa is studied in detail. Manifestation and not creation is the latest conclusion of physics. Thus physics starts with the law of conservation of energy--'Energy can neither be created nor destroyed'. This is described in the Bhagavad Gita.

उभयोरपि दृष्टोऽन्तस्त्वनयोस्तत्त्वदर्शिभिः ॥

–Bhagavad Gita, Chapter II, 16th verse meaning 'The unreal has no existence and the real has no non-existence; the conclusion about both these has been seen by the knowers of Truth.'

Modern physics is that branch of chemistry which is very difficult for a physicist to understand properly. This branch is concerned in the investigation of the ultimate nature of matter. Latest findings reveal the wave-nature of matter. E. Schrodinger in order to explain the wave nature of the electron, a sub-particle of the smallest particle of matter, atom, developed the wave equation -

$$\frac{\Delta^2\Psi}{\Delta x^2} + \frac{\Delta^2\Psi}{\Delta y^2} + \frac{\Delta^2\Psi}{\Delta z^2} + \frac{8\pi^2 m}{h^2}(E - V) = 0$$

Where = Δ a small change, Ψ = wave function, π = a constant, h = Planck's constant, m = mass of an electron, V = potential energy of electron, E = total energy of electron, x, y & z = Special coordinates of the system.

This is a second order differential equation. A mathematical solution of this equation gives quantum numbers. The quantum numbers actually give the address of the electron in an atom. But experience reveals that the exact location of an electron in an atom at a particular time is an uncertainty. Schrodinger was so perplexed in understanding this part of physics that one fine morning while working in the Department of Physics at the University of Allahabad in 1941, he is reported to have exclaimed--

तदा गन्तासि निर्वेदं श्रोतव्यस्य श्रुतस्य च ॥

–Bhagavad Gita, Chapter II, 52nd verse

meaning: 'When your understanding will get beyond the maze of delusion, then you will have attained indifference, to what is to be heard and what is heard.'

A group of physicists including Enrico Fermi, Albert Einstein and Arthur Holly Compton worked out the details of the nuclear fission reaction discovered in Germany by Otto Hahn, Strassmann, Meitner and Frisch, to develop an atom bomb under the direction of the group leader Robert Openheimer. The bomb was made and tested before use in the II World War.

The first test of the atom bomb explosion was made on 16th July 1945 at 5.30 a.m. at Los Alamos in the Gulf of New Mexico. After 1/5 second of detonation a sinister gigantic mushroom of cloud with intense light and heat came out from the spot where the bomb was dropped. In the control room Openheimer was busy in finding out a way to describe the observation in the shortest possible words giving maximum information. Never before had he seen such intense light and heat, nor was there any device to measure these. Suddenly two verses from the Bhagavad Gita flashed in the mind of Openheimer and he described the observation by comparing it with these two verses -- meaning, 'If there be the effulgence of a thousand suns bursting forth all at once in the heavens even that would, hardly approach the splendour of the mighty Lord.'

दिवि सूर्य सहस्त्रस्य भवेद्यगापदुत्थिता ।
यदि भाः सदृशी सा स्यभ्दास महात्मनः ॥

--Bhagavad Gita, Chapter XI, 12

कलोऽस्मि लोकक्षयकृत प्रवृद्धो लोकान्
समाहर्तु मिह प्रवृत्तः ।
तेऽपि त्वां न भविष्यन्ति सर्वे येऽवस्थिताः
प्रत्यनीकेषु योधाः ॥

–Bhagavad Gita, Chapter XI, 32nd verse.

meaning 'I am the terrible Time, the destroyer of people, and am here proceeding to destroy them; even without you, all these warriors in every division shall cease to be.'

Here temperature is expressed in terms of time. One can resist the effect of low temperature for a long time, but very high temperature destroys living beings within a fraction of a second.

The origin of the universe has not yet been explained by the known laws of physics. During recent years the 'Big Bang' theory of the origin of the universe is gaining popularity. This theory is mentioned in the Bhagavad Gita in these verses-meaning: 'Know that all beings have these two (perishable and non perishable) for their origin; I am the origin of the entire universe as also its destroyer.'

एतद्योनीनि भूतानि सर्वाणी त्युपधारय ।
अहं कृत्स्नस्य जगतः प्रभवः प्रलय स्तथा ॥

--Bhagavad Gita, Chapter VII, 6

रसोऽह मप्सु कौन्तेय प्रभास्मि शशि-सूर्ययोः ।
प्रणवः सर्ववेदेषु शब्दः खे पौरुष नृषु ॥

--Bhagavad Gita, Chapter VII, 8th verse.

meaning: 'I am the sapidity in water and the light of the Moon and the Sun; I am the syllable Om in all the Vedas, sound in ether and manliness in man.'

The above few examples from the Bhagavad Gita clearly indicate that Physics in the most advanced form was known to Indians long long ago when the people of other parts of the world were raw and primitive.--211.90.

The Ninth House -- The House of the Father

BUELL D. HUGGINS

I

FROM time to time there has been some debate in the pages of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE as to which house represents the father.

Pandit Gopesh Kumar Ojha states in Predictive Astrology of the Hindu (1972) that in North India the father is judged from the 10th house, while in South India the judgement is from the 9th (Jatakalankara, 2nd ed., 1966) translated by Pandit V. S. Sastri. Adh. I, Sl. 8 also says that the 10th house denotes the father. Although Parasara is generally considered as the originator and fountain-head of Indian Astrology and apparently regarded the 10th house as that of the father, in southern India where Varahamihira is held in somewhat greater esteem, it is the 9th house which is invariably regarded as representing the father.

The English astrologer Sepharial (Walter Gorn -- Old), in his Manual of Astrology (1962, page 183), says in his section on "Hindu Astrology -- After Parasara" that the Hindus attribute the 10th house to the father.

Claudius Ptolemy has said in the Tetrabiblos, Book III, Chapter 4, that the Sun and Saturn are associated with the father and the Moon and Venus with the mother. Cancer, ruled by the Moon, is the 4th sign and house in the natural horoscope beginning with Aries and its opposite and complement, Capricorn, ruled by Saturn, is the 10th. While he does not specifically say so and refers to the 10th only as the Midheaven and the 4th as the Lower Midheaven, the implication is that he considered the 10th to represent the father and the 4th, the mother.

Comte C. de Saint-Germain, French astrologer and mystic who was born about 1710 and died about 1780 (though some say he was still alive in 1821) and whose Astrology was a mixture of Chaldean, Egyptian, Arabian and Greek, said on pages 102, 105 of his Practical Astrology (1942) that the 4th house "refers to parents and ancestors in the direct line" as well as to "inheritance, legacies, family secrets, mysteries", but "as a side issue, we often consult House X for information on the mother, while in House IV, the father's fate is found predicted or related". He used solar horoscopes, always placing the Sun in the 1st house regardless of the time of birth.

Sepharial, on pages 28-29 of his Manual of Astrology states that in Western tropical Astrology the 4th house represents the mother in a man's horoscope, but the father in a woman's, while the 10th house represents the mother in a woman's horoscope, but the father in a man's.

In How to Judge a Nativity (1948), by Alan Leo, he states that the 4th house usually relates to the father, but in a general sense denotes both parents although one may often use the 10th as the Ascendant of the mother (pages 164-171).

Western tropical Astrology as taught by Charles E. Luntz at the St. Louis, Missouri Theosophical Society, used the 4th house for the mother in a man's chart, the father in a woman's chart, though usually it is the parent who exercises the most influence in the native's life. With the 10th house, it was the reverse of the 4th, with the proviso that it is usually the parent who exercises the least influence.

Mare Edmund Jones, in How to Learn Astrology (1955, page 26), says "The 4th house, as ruler of the home; the 10th, as ruler of the public life and business relations, are together the indicators of the parents. There is considerable dispute among modern astrologers over which house rules the parents, and the beginner will have to make his own ultimate choice. In general, however, it is safe to say that whichever parent touches the native most importantly in terms of his place in life is indicated at the 10th house, and whichever one influences him more through the deeper and inner stirring of the soul is indicated at the 4th."

Robert De Luce, in his Horary Astrology (1958, pages 34-35), states that the 4th house represents the father, the 10th the mother. While this book is on Horary Astrology, the houses have the same meanings, he says, as in genethliac Astrology.

Elbert Benjamine ("C.C. Zain"), in his Brotherhood of Light , Course X-S, published by the Church of Light in Los Angeles, California in 1934, declared on pages 221-222 that an analysis of 100 fathers and 100 mothers proved to him that progressed aspects at the time of death revealed that the 4th was the house of the father and 10th, the mother.

The Western notion that the 4th house relates to the father seems to stem from the idea that the 4th also relates to house and home and land, traditionally purchased and tended primarily by the father. But Capricorn on the 10th house of the natural zodiacal chart beginning with Aries is ruled by Saturn, "Father Time", and so perhaps Parasara and Ptolemy regarded the stern Saturn as the father. However, Cyril Fagan maintained that some of the ancient astrologers considered Libra and Aries, as the first sign of the natural chart. This would put Capricorn (father) as the 4th sign and house and Cancer (mother) as the 10th.

In southern India the view was that the 9th house was the house of God, the father. The father in the Hindu home was the spiritual Guru, the preceptor or guide of the children. Dhanus (Sagittarius) was the 9th sign, ruled by the male Jupiter in the natural chart, while Cancer at the 4th was feminine and related to the mother.

And consequently most of the Hindu Astrology texts declare the 9th to be the house of the father:- Phaladeepika by Mantreswara; Jataka Satyacharya, Jataka Parijata, Bhavartha Ratnakara by Sri Ramanuja; Compendium of Astrology, by Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao; Hindu Predictive Astrology by DR. B. V. RAMAN; Constellation Astrology by Robert De Luce; and others.

Nearly all Hindu texts give the Sun alone as Pitrukaraka (indicator of the father) and the Moon as Matrukaraka (indicator of mother). However, Jataka Parijata (Adh. III, Sl. 47) says Saturn is karaka for the father at a night birth and the Sun at a day birth. And Sloka 15 of Adh. III gives the Moon as karaka for the mother if born at night and Venus if born during the day. This is similar to Ptolemy's view that we must consider the Sun and Venus by day and Saturn and the Moon by night.

II

Elbert Benjamine with his tropical, secondary (day-for-a-year) system of directing may have convinced himself, using a hundred horoscopes of fathers and a hundred horoscopes of mothers at the time of their deaths, that the 4th is the father's house and the 10th the mother's; but in the sidereal Vimshottari system of directing the 9th house is the father's and the 4th, the mother's.

Incidentally, in the Course X-S cited above, Benjamine gives the horoscope of Jean Harlow, a famous Hollywood actress in 1934, when he published the booklet. He gives 1.34 p.m., March 3, 1911 as her time and date of birth. However, the recorded time was 7.40 p.m. EST, at Kansas City, Missouri.

In another of his booklets, Benjamine gives 2.10 a.m. "rectified" as the birth time of Abraham Lincoln, when the best research reveals that it was "about sun-up", according to Carl Sandburg, an authority on Lincoln.

The nine example horoscopes given herewith will suffice though more could be produced. With the 9th as the house of the father, the 2nd and 7th therefrom or the 2nd and 7th from the Sun (karaka for father) are marakas or death-inflicting houses for the father.

In Horoscope No. 1, that of a friend and schoolmate, the Lagna is Gemini. The lord of the 9th house, Aquarius, is Saturn and his father died on April 13, 1980 in Saturn Dasa, Saturn Bhukti. Saturn, posited in the 3rd, or 7th from the 9th, becomes a maraka for his father.

The native himself had a most horrible and unusual death about 18 months later. Always extremely fond of ball games since a boy in school when he devoted his lunch hour to listening to the world series baseball games on a battery radio, he had gone to a basketball game, one evening at a high school and while standing in the gallery above, cheering and clapping his hands, he became so excited he fell over the railing to the concrete floor below, suffering a severe head injury and dying a few hours later in a hospital, on October 3, 1981.

His mother had died before his father, on August 7, 1979, so he and both parents died within a two-year period. However, he was survived by his wife, to whom he was married on January 28, 1946, a daughter and two sisters.

Horoscope No.2, that of the late President Kennedy's wife, has a Scorpio Lagna with Cancer on the 9th house, so that the marakas for her father would be the Sun, ruling the 10th (2nd from the 9th) or Saturn, ruling the 3rd (7th from the 9th) or a planet in either the 10th or 3rd, or a planet ruling the 2nd or 7th or in the 2nd or 7th from her Sun. Her father John Bouvier, died on August 3, 1957 in her Sun Dasa, Saturn Bhukti. The Sun rules the 2nd from her 9th and is in her 9th, and Saturn rules the 3rd, or 7th house from her 9th.

The third example is that of the actor Peter Fonda, son of the late Hollywood actor, Henry Fonda. Peter's Lagna is Taurus with Capricorn on the 9th house. Therefore, the Moon or Saturn will be marakas for his father, or the 2nd or 7th from his Sun in Aquarius in the 10th house. His father died on August 12, 1981. This was in Peter's Rahu Dasa, Jupiter Bhukti. Rahu in the 6th in Libra gives the results of Venus and Venus is in the 2nd house from his Sun. Jupiter is also in the 11th. So in this case, we consider the Pitrukaraka Sun and the 2nd and 7th houses therefrom (instead of the 2nd and 7th houses from the 9th) for marakas for the father.

Horoscope No.4 is of the Late Ohio U.S. Senator, Robert A. Taft. With a Capricorn Lagna, Mercury rules the 9th house (father) and Venus and Jupiter rule the 2nd and 7th from the 9th. His father, the former President and Chief Justice, William H. Taft, died on March 8, 1930 in Robert's Mercury Dasa, Mercury Bhukti. And Mercury is in the 2nd house from the Sun, karaka (significator or indicator) of the father.

Horoscope No.5, Alfred E. Smith, Democrat and Roman Catholic, Governor of New York four times (1918-20, 1922-24, 1924-26, 1926-28; defeated in 1920); nominated for President in 1924, but not chosen; nominated for President in 1928 and chosen on June 29, 1928 and ran against the Quaker and Republicans, Herbert Hoover in November 1928, but soundly defeated. An expert politician among his own Irish Catholic constituents, he had great executive and leadership ability though he had grown up poor and had only a few years of primary education in a parochial school and rarely read a book.

Smith's Lagna was Sagittarius with Leo on the 9th house of his father, who died in November 1986. This sad event in his 13th year occurred in his Mars Dasa, Rahu Bhukti. Mars is in the 3rd in Aquarius, or 7th from the 9th, and Rahu in Aries in the 5th also gives the results of Mars.

Horoscope No. 6: Franklin D. Roosevelt, first elected President in November 1932 and the only President elected four times, had Taurus on the 9th and his father died December 8, 1900. This was in Jupiter Dasa, Mars Bhukti, and Mars is in the 10th, or 2nd from Taurus and also rules the 3rd or 7th from the father.

Horoscope No.7 belongs to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., whose Lagna was Pisces with Scorpio on the 9th. Both from his Lagna and Chandra Lagna his horoscope shows a man of enormous wealth, inherited from his father, the oil magnate and billionaire. John, Jr., was a religious man and a philanthropist. After his father had given away 531 million dollars, he then gave away 475 million and still had an estate at death valued at 150 million. His father died on May 23, 1937 in Ketu Dasa, Saturn Bhukti. Ketu in Libra must give the results of Venus and Venus rules the 3rd, or 7th from his 9th (father).

Horoscope No. 8 is that of Elizabeth Taylor, Hollywood actress, whose father died on November 20, 1968. As pointed out in the October 1989 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, the 7.56 p.m. time of birth -- not the 2.00 a.m. time -- is undoubtedly the correct time of her birth, as shown by the transits of Mars, Ketu and Uranus over her Virgo Lagna and Neptune over her Scorpio Moon on November 20, 1968.

With her Virgo Lagna, Taurus is on the 9th (father) and her father's death took place in her Ketu Dasa, the Moon Bhukti. Ketu in Virgo gives the results of Mercury, which rules her 10th (2nd from her 9th -- father), and the Moon is posited in Scorpio in her 3rd house or 7th (maraka) from her 9th.

But with the 2.00 a.m. horoscope, also given in the October 1989 issue at page 771, her father's death would have been in her Mercury Dasa, the Sun Bhukti. The 2.00 a.m. chart has a Scorpio Lagna with Cancer on the 9th and the Moon in Libra. While Leo is 2nd from her 9th (career) and his death did occur in her Sun Bhukti, Capricorn is the 7th maraka sign and her Dasa at his death was Mercury which, like the Sun, is in the 4th house, not the 10th or 3rd, the father's marakas. So the 7.56 p.m. time is no doubt correct; judging from the Dasa and Bhukti running at her father's death, plus the transits.

The 9th and last horoscope belongs to Richard A. Gephardt, Missouri, U.S. Congressman from St. Louis, who was one of the unsuccessful Presidential hopefuls of 1988. However, he was re-elected to Congress in November 1988; but getting elected or re-elected to Congress is not like getting elected President.

His father died on November 26, 1984 as Mars transited over his Sun and opposite his Cancer Lagna to the exact degree. His Venus Dasa, Saturn Bhukti was running and his Saturn is in his 10th in Aries, the 2nd from Pisces on the 9th (father).

Because of the close biological or karmic connection between the child and parents, the death of the parents provides one of the best ways to rectify a horoscope. Simply notice the Dasa and Bhukti running at the parent's death and if it is a maraka for the parent. Also note the transits on the day of death. This is an excellent check on the accuracy of the birth time.--208.90.

Major Transits and Historic Events -- I

CHANDRAKANT S. KOTHARE, M.A.

THIS last decade of the present century is also the last decade of the present millennium. We are thus on the threshold of the third millennium. Scientists, historians and philosophers are looking towards the next 1000 years with a mixture of hope and foreboding. Dr. Honas Salk, founding Director for Biological Studies, sees mankind at historic cross-roads, facing for the first time a choice between self-preservation and self-destruction. Less optimistic than Salk is Dr. L. S. Stavrians, world historian and adjunct professor at the University of California, San Diego, who says "The basic problem is that we are in the midst of a tremendous technological revolution that is in need of a corresponding social revolution." He elaborates that the history of the world has been marked by a lag in the society's adjustments to technological changes. This gap is especially dangerous today because of the pace and power of technology. Dr. William H. McNeil, author and History professor at the University of Chicago, predicts that the traditional ways of governing will certainly change. "The most successful society of the future will be that which uses the greatest degree of mass participation .... the age-old idea that to keep peace we must prepare for war no longer makes sense. Scientists have assured us that even limited use of our weapons will mean curtains for the victors as well as the vanquished."

Today we are really at the cross-roads. This last decade may contain in an embrionic form what is to unfold in the first century of the coming millennium.

The sweeping changes in East European countries and in Russia are indications of the changes that are in the offing. A force opposite Communism has gained strength. Could the craving for a democratic set-up be the beginning of the New Era of "greatest degree of mass participation"?

The European Community 1992 is another development which may create a monopolistic block shaping the future world economy. Unification of East and West Germany is another phenomenon which may not only influence E.E.C. 1992, but may exert its influence tremendously on the world economy.

The high tension drama that is being enacted in the Middle East due to invasion of Iraq by Kuwait and its consequential annexation is on the verge of sparking a bloody war, which could spread and develop into an all-consuming affair bringing curtains down for the victors as well as the vanquished.

The turmoil in Africa and South America is another strand of the catalysmic developments that are taking place in the current decade.

In a volatile situation like this, it is but natural for students of Astrology to test their know-ledge in gauging the patterns that destiny is weaving for the third millennium.

This paper attempts to generally assess the patterns planetary movements are weaving for the world in the coming years. For this purpose I am going to use Sepharial's simple but effective method of forecasting.

Under this method the first degree of Aries is taken at 12 noon on M.C. for 0° East Longitude. The powerful argument for the arrangement is that by this method the Gaza Pyramid in Egypt comes exactly on the first degree of Taurus at 12 noon local time. The pyramid, being the oldest man-made monument, most fittingly represents the beginning of Taurus. Sepharial used Sayana degrees for studying world events. However, I think since longitudes are fixed and are going to remain so in times to come, it is but natural to ignore the shifting the Vernal Equinox and apply degrees of the Fixed zodiac. The difference in Ayanamsas could create problems, but I think let each astrologer try his own Fixed zodiac using his favourite Ayanamsa. I have used Lahiri Ayanamsa. I am giving below the east and west longitudes and the corresponding zodiacal degrees for convenience.

Since Iraq is the centre of tension today let us see what will be the degree rising on M.C. of Baghdad, the capital of Iraq. Baghdad is at 44 E 25 at Longitude. The sign rising on M.C. at 12 noon local time would be Taurus 15° 25'. In the table of houses you have now to see what is the Sidereal Time given against the degree of M.C. With the help of that Sidereal Time you can now easily work out the Lagna for the Latitude of Baghdad, namely, 33 N 20. Sidereal Time for the above M.C. comes to 4 hrs. 26 mts. and 43 secs. For this time if you work out Lagna, it comes to Leo 17° 16'. Once you have worked out Lagna and M.C. you can work out the borders and mid-points of the houses if you like. However, under this scheme it would suffice if you examine the major aspects to M.C. and the remaining three corners and check up where the major transits and aspects are operating. Let us make a test check of this system.

As you know the most gruesome war since World War II was the war between Iraq and Iran. It started on 22-9-1980. In this year Mars was stationary in Leo from November 1979 to June 1980, simmering the Lagna of Baghdad. Along with Mars, Jupiter and Saturn were also stationed there during April-July 1980. Mars in Lagna made Saddam Husein nurture plans of war. Jupiter's proximity usually brings about religious emotions to the forefront. As we all know one of the main reasons for the war was the fear Saddam had about Khomeini. Khomeini was an undisputed leader of Shia Muslims and both Iran and Iraq have Shia Muslim majority, while Saddam himself is Sunni. He was, therefore, afraid that Khomeini would incite Iraqi Shias. So long as Jupiter was in Leo, Saddam could control himself. Jupiter moved out of Leo in September. Mars immediately after his stationary period moved out of Leo at the end of June. Saturn moved out of Leo in July and when Mars aspected M.C. in mid-September 1980 war broke out. I have always observed and discussed also in my earlier article, that major events take place in the life of a country immediately before or after the stationary period, if he is becoming stationary near about the sensitive position in the country's horoscope. This happened in the case of Baghdad. The war ended only after Jupiter started transiting the 10th house of Baghdad, that is in Taurus, during June 1988 and July 1989. Another important factor was that Mars had become stationary in Pisces (8th house of Baghdad) from July 1988 to January 1989, wrecking Iraq, both in terms of manpower and money. It was then probably Saddam might have planned to attack Kuwait, because his debits from Kuwait, taken for financing the Gulf War, had become so much he could not repay them. We do not know whether Saddam was contemplating invasion of Kuwait in post-stationary period of Mars. But this seems to be a very probable reason for his unilateral declaration of cease-fire with Iran. His present stance of becoming friendly with Iran now is in line with the above. Astrology supports the above chain of events. Only future historians will be able to find out the truth. On 13th July 1990 the Jupiter-Saturn opposition took place involving Gemini and Sagittarius. Saturn in the 5th house is straining both the houses of finance of Iraq. Jupiter in the 11th house sent his aspirations soaring. The Sun representing the personality of the country came in opposition to Saturn on 14th July, conjunct Jupiter on 15th July, came in opposition to Uranus on 29th July. By this time Iraq's plan of abrupt attack on Kuwait was complete in all its details. Rahu came in opposition to the Sun on 30th July predetermining the failure of negotiations on 31st July. The Moon, the lord of the 12th house, came in opposition to M.C. in the afternoon of 1st August and Lagna late in the night and Iraq moved its army into tiny Kuwait, for its own undoing. It is interesting to note that this happened just before Mars became stationary in Taurus. Stationary Mars here decides the psychology of Saddam. It is thus plain that he would not budge in the face of international pressure. Mars would conjunct M.C. on 19th September, November 20th and in second half of February 1991. This entire period is bad for the ruler, that is Saddam. This indicates an attempt to assassinate Saddam by a foreign power using his own people for the work, because Mars represents the 4th house (people of the country) and the 9th house, a foreign power. Venus is coming in opposition to Mars on 23rd November and the Sun on 27th November 1990. This could be a dangerous period. Saturn representing open enemy is aspecting the 11th and the 2nd houses denoting correctly the present stance of economic squeeze of Iraq. Saturn would precisely afflict the Sun on 12th October, Mercury, representing finance and Venus, representing the ruler, on 16th Octoper 1990. It would mean that the squeeze could be complete and painfully effective by then. Full scale war is not indicated by the present planetary positions. This much, I think, is enough to convince the readers of the effectiveness of this method of forecasting. Let us, therefore, see future major planetary movements and aspects and what they indicate for the world.

Jupiter-Saturn opposition took place on 13th July in Gemini and Sagittarius. This opposition would be repeated in Cancer-Capricorn on 16th March 1991. Since the earlier opposition took place before the opposition of the Sun and Saturn (14th July) and conjunction with Jupiter (15th July), the entire period from Full Moon of 8th July to Full Moon of 6th August became important for major international events. Besides the sensational drama of Iraq, a major political crisis that was simmering in India reached the climax point on the night of 1st August when Devilal, Deputy Prime Minister, was sacked. The longitude of New Delhi is 77 E 13, that is M.C. Gemini 18° 13' Full Moon of 8th July tock place very close to the M.C. and the Moon conjoined Saturn immediately thereafter. Close on the heels of this sensational news, people were further stunned to learn that on 6th August 1990 Mrs. Bhutto, Prime Minister of Pakistan, was sacked. Islamabad, capital of Pakistan, is on the longitude 73 E 10, that is 74° 10' (Gemini 14° 10'). If you work out the Lagna for latitude 33 N 42, it comes to Virgo 13° 40'. The proximities of the M.C.'s of both the countries brought about similar results by the opposition of 13th July 1990. The next opposition is taking place in Cancer 10° 8' on New Moon day. In other words the period from the day of conjunction till the Full Moon day following the above New Moon is important. This is going to affect adversely particularly those countries whose capital cities fall within the longitudinal band of West 90° to West 61°. The impact could be quite severe in the countries whose capitals are close to the degree of opposition, that is, Longitude 81° and close thereto. This is because Saturn would almost be in conjunction of M.C. of the capitals of these countries. The changes that would take place then could prove to be very painful affecting the domestic life of the countries. On the other hand, the changes in the countries falling within the band East 90° to East 119° could be peaceful but sensational. This is so because Jupiter would be close to the M.C.s of these countries. If we take a look at the atlas we find that Bangladesh, China, some States of Russia, Burma, North/South Vietnam, Kampuchia, Hongkong, Malaysia, Indonesia, Singapore etc. are the countries that fall with the band, falling in East Longitudes. We can, therefore, expect some sensational changes in the set-up of the governments of these countries. On the other hand countries in South America, like Argentina, Brazil, Peru, Bolivia, Columbia, Venuzuela, Nicargua, Gautemala, Honduras, Jamaica, Cuba and the United States of America etc. are going to have tough times in the near future. The governments of the countries could come under severe strain. Generally Jupiter in the 4th house of the country's horoscope is good, because he brings about benefits to the land and the landlords. Afflicted he could bring about disasters like earthquakes and other natural calamities, particularly if he is close to the mid-point. On the other hand, Saturn in the 10th brings about disgrace, disaster, misfortune and troubles to the Government. This opposition could prove very unfortunate for the exchequer and the monetary affairs, troubles may come in many ways. Business and commerce may become bad, revenue may show decline, taxation may increase, some unpopular tax be proposed, some critical and difficult changes affecting financial affairs of the country may be brought about, the value of stocks and shares may start declining alarmingly. The whole situation may affect the Government seriously. The United States is a major financial power and this opposition is bound to affect that country very much. The adverse effects on the economy of that country are going to exert very adverse effect on the world economy. Since this opposition is taking place in the natural 4th and 10th houses the impact thereof would be experienced by the world at large.

Between these two oppositions, Mars would remain stationary in Taurus as stated earlier. He hovers over 3° to 5° of Taurus during mid-December 1990 and mid-January 1991 affecting East Longitudes 32° to 34° and West Longitudes 148° to 146°. Turkey's captial Ankara, Cyprus' capital Nicosia, Israel's capital Tel Aviv, Egypt's capital Cairo, Sudan's capital Khartoum, Lebanon's capital Beirut, Jordan's capital Amman, Mozambique's capital Maputa etc. come within this band and therefore we can expect tension in these countries during the above-mentioned period. This period could result in rumours of war, lot of military movements and so on. Luckily the luminaries do not get severely afflicted during the period and as such large-scale bloodshed may not be there. On the other hand in the western longitudes people in Alaska may suffer due to discontent and natural calamities. Possibility of an earthquake in this region is not ruled out.--202.90.

Similarly about the ailments or death of the parents, it is necessary to study the charts of all the children as well.--196.90.

--M. P. Pandit in VEDANTA KESARI

The publication "Astrology and the Hoax of Scientific Temper" by Gayatri Devi Vasudev is a scholarly attempt to illustrate with facts and figures and authoritative opinions expressed on the subject by many thinkers and scientists how scientific is Astrology and how it can stand comparison with any other brnch of knowledge.... The book also contains 110 world predictions made by India's foremost astrologer Dr. B. V. Raman from 1947 to 1979 months ahead of the actual events and which have later become facts of history. These documented predictions answer to the most rigid tests of historical scrutiny ..... She has done a great service to one of our precious Vedangas.

--BHAVAN'S JOURNAL

The book has sufficient material to prove two things: One that Astrology is scientific, and secondly, that Hindu Astrology is more scientific than the Western Astrology....

Dr. B. V. Raman is a resurrector of Hindu Astrology in the modern age. And this book is a fitting tribute to him from none else than his own daughter and co-worker engaged in making planets in outer space an integral part of life on the earth.

Reflections on Ramayana -- VIII*

DR. BANGALORE SURESHWARA

THE format and the topics in our discussion of the Ramayana has been fairly flexible. The impetus to pick one or more characters or to concentrate on a specific item or event is largely an instantaneous decision based on feelings at that particular moment coupled with input or ideas provided by many friends, including the readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. As I wrote in one of the previous parts, the study and the understanding of the Ramayana is somewhat of a continuing passion with me and many others. The real understanding -- story, substance, and the spirit -- of the Ramayana is possible only when the study penetrates the intricate details and the many personalities that surround, influence and share the life of the eternal hero Sri Rama.

Our discussion of Kaikeyi was fairly elaborate because of our attempt to understand the deep issues involved in the role she played in the unwinding of the story in the Ramayana. We have yet to study the other two mothers - Kausalya, the mother of Sri Rama, and Sumitra the mother of Lakshmana and Satrughuna. One thing that one notices in the many commentaries that are available on the Ramayana is that not enough is written or discussed about the other two mothers. Even in lectures and speeches by many eminent scholars on the Ramayana, there always seems to be very little need or interest in the speaker and the audience to dwell, let alone delve, into the role of the two mothers. One may often wonder if there was anything in particular which one may not be aware of in modern times that may have influenced Sage Valmiki one way or the other to highlight some characters more than the others. Was it because they were not considered important characters? Was it because they did not play a decisive or a defined role? On the other hand, was it mere that even ancient society sometimes tended to judge good people as just passive people who were not worthy of attention?

There are many people in life who may not achieve glory or gory levels in life. But they are people of character who do not seek fame or publicity. These persons are the classic examples of those committed to the message that Lord Krishna gives us through Srimad Bhagavad Gita. All great characters, regardless of times, whether well-known or unknown, aptly followed or follow the ageless dictum:

Karmanya evaadhikaraste ma phaleshu kadachana
Ma karma phalahetu bhurmate sangostvakarmani.
(Verse 47; Chapter 2)

(You have a right to action but never to its fruits. Your motive is not the fruits of the action. Neither, should you be attached to inaction).

Lord Krishna's incarnation came many thousands of years later after the Lord arrived as Sri Rama. Even though the dictum referred to here came from the lips of Lord Krishna, the message of the dictum has been around from time immemorial. The dictum sums up the attitudes towards the responsibilities and duties in life of many low-key but strong-willed characters, such as Kausalya and Sumitra, in the Ramayana. The dictum is mentioned here to emphazise its ageless spirit and substance. This is also a fundamental axiom of Sanatana Dharma, also universal and timeless.

A good friend of mine makes objective-observations on the discussion on the Ramayana. The friend pointed out that, by and large, Sumitra's role is not only fully considered, but more importantly her contribution to the story is not amply understood nor recognized by many scholars and others. Thanks to the many friendly reminders, we do now have an opportunity to include Sumitra and others in our continuing discussion. It is going to be a difficult discussion. Therefore, more than ever, your input covering the role of Sumitra in the Ramayana is needed. We all have now a unique opportunity to contribute to the understanding of the character and the role of Sumitra. I look forward to an overwhelming response from the readers of A.M. It is no exaggeration to say that out of the discussion of Sumitra and others, we may even open the minds of people to peek deeply into every character, and not just restrict the discussion only to the major or prime characters in the Ramayana.

Kaikeyi provides glamour and theatrics to the story. Sumitra, the noble soul, shuns the popular theatrics but is a behind-the-scene influence on Lakshmana and others in Ramayana. The over-emphasis of highly visible characters in discussions on the Ramayana and other scriptures raises important but troubling questions. Does one give over-importance to over-bearing personalities such as Kaikeyi, while practically neglecting the quiet but strong personalities such as Sumitra? The modern quote that "squeakly wheels get the grease" sort-of reflects the attitudes of many in the society towards the various personalities in the Ramayana. Today, we tend to observe, listen, and pay attention to the more vocal personality while almost ignoring the quiet one. Is this approach of society a fair one or equitable? Do we need to give equal attention, if not equal importance, to the quiet, calm but the good personality just as we readily do to the domineering and the demanding personality? The key question here is whether the attitudes in regard to this aspect of society was significantly different in the times of the Ramayana as compared to today?

Kausalya was the "prime" queen in Ayodhya, and Kaikeyi was the "popular" queen of Dasaratha. However, Sumitra was a "Junior" queen. Thus, the royal queens, in a way, had their own agenda. The agenda was mainly their responsibilities and duties to Dasaratha and Ayodhya. However, it did not mean that they lacked individual personalities. They had the freedom to act and express their views. The only thing that limited their attitudes and actions was decency, decorum and dignity. Perhaps, no one adhered to the above three behaviour characteristics more carefully than Sumitra during the troubled times in Ayodhya. At the time of the turmoil caused by Kaikeyi's demands on Dasaratha, it is natural to expect that the emotions of the people including the royal personalities, were at an all-time high. Broken spirits had replaced balanced heads. Dharma was getting somewhat of a beating. The turmoil had, at least momentarily, appeared uncontrolled. The subjects of Ayodhya were shocked beyond belief that such an event should happen in a kingdom noted for Dharma. Rumours were wild and gossip among people painted practically everyone as the villain responsible for the tragedy that was about to happen to their beloved Sri Rama. No one was spared of the accusations for the part or the non-part played by the individual. We all know about Kaikeyi's manipulation to cause the turmoil. What was going on in the minds of Sumitra and Kausalya, and what was the immediate effect of the turmoil on them? Did they visualize some means to circumvent the demand of Kaikeyi? Was each one of them only worried about her own son, and not the others? On one hand, these questions come to our mind because of the way the things are viewed in modern times. On the other hand the two queens may have been troubled more on how to uphold the Dharma, rather than how to manipulate it for purely personal benefits. Mother's conscience in modern times would often conveniently (if not comfortably) dictate that she support, or act to protect the interest of her own (biological) son, even when it is clearly in violation of Dharma. Kaikeyi, overwhelmed by the powerful influence of her maid and ill-wisher Manthara, had opted to completely protect the "interest" of her son even at the cost of destroying the lives of everyone else. Kausalya was extremely troubled and to an extent appeared to have mixed feelings in this matter. It was, in her mind, a confusing situation in which she had to make a choice between Sri Rama and Dasaratha. She as a mother held, not only Kaikeyi responsible, but more importantly faulted Dasaratha for the turmoil in Ayodhya. Kausalya's attachment to Sri Rama was so absolute that to an extent the upholding of Dharma seemed to her not a matter of prime importance. The motherly instinct is sometimes such a powerful force that it can cloud one's judgement. Mother Kausalya was no exception to this instinct. However, as Queen Kausalya, her responsibilities also included the interests and welfare of Dasaratha and Ayodhya. Therefore, when the ever energetic but excited Lakshmana gets carried away upon hearing the demands of Kaikeyi, he tells Sri Rama in front of Kausalaya that they should dethrone their father. Kausalya, though troubled at Lakshmana's impertinent and loose talk, was at that moment more concerned by the overall situation at hand. She hints to Lakshmana that his proposed action was improper. However, it takes Sri Rama to fully convince Lakshmana that even such talk, let alone the proposed action against their father was completely Adharma.

We have so far mainly raised many concerns and questions as we bring in Sumitra and Kausalya in our discussion. In the next part, we will continue the attempt to search for answers to these troubling concerns and questions.

May Lord Sri Rama's Blessings be Upon All!--201.90.

Interpreting Bhinnashtakavarga

C. S. PATEL, B.A.

THE Bhinnashtakavarga (B.A.V.) provides certain keys for judging the worth or utility of some signs containing '0' or '8' bindus and also for evaluating the potency of transits through them. '0' or nil bindu sign means a sign without any benefic place (point or bindu). In Bhinnashtakavarga (B.A.V.) of any planet, if any sign is without a bindu, it has some special significance. When the B.A.V. of any planet is prepared, each sign is to be observed carefully. A sign may contain from '0' to '8' bindus.

In B.A.Vs of Mercury (54 bindus), Jupiter (56 bindus) and Venus (52 bindus), one can find a sign having eight bindus, but to have a sign without a bindu i.e., '0' is rare. On the contrary, 8 bindus in any sign in B.A.Vs of Mars and Saturn is a rarity, while '0' bindu sign is found very often in them.

One point is to be made clear in the beginning. Each planet from the Sun to Venus (six planets) gives a bindu to the sign occupied by himself. The result is that each of them can be associated with minimum 1 bindu and miximum with 8 bindus. While, Saturn does not contribute a bindu to its sign occupied by himself, as such Saturn can be associated with minimum '0' bindu and with maximum 7 bindus only and never 8.

Transit of Planets Through '0' Bindu Sign

When each of the seven planets beginning with the Sun to Saturn transits through a sign in their respective B.A.Vs having '0' bindu, the results are as follows:

(1) Death or its equivalent troubles;

(2) Sorrow; anxiety, unexpected death;

(3) Stomach-ache; fainting; eye disease; death;

(4) Loss of everything (through enemy intrigues), consequent death;

(5) Loss of wealth or relations or children; becoming dull;

(6) All kinds of calamities; and

(7) Loss of everything; probability of death.

Death should be a certainty, if on a day, the sum of the bindus associated with the seven planets in the signs transited by them (in their respective B.A.Vs) be very little.

Results of Houses having '0' Bindus

The various houses (signs) in any B.A.V. having '0' bindu give the following results to the native:- In the 1st house - one suffers from serious disease; the 2nd - very poor; the 3rd - weak-bodied; not daring; the 4th - unhappy; the 5th - evil-minded; the 6th - successful (voctorious); the 7th - without marital happiness, loss of wife; the 8th - healthy, long-lived; the 9th - doing sinful deeds; the 10th - without honour, inactive; the 11th - a beggar, without income; and the 12th - wealthy.

The above results are often found to be very accurate. In Chart 1, in Saturn's B.A.V., in the 8th house (from the Ascendant), there is no bindu. The native today is running the 75th year of life and is hale and hearty. In Chart 2 in Jupiter's B.A.V., the 12th house (from the Ascendant) has no bindu. The native, though born in a middle class family, was well-to-do when he died recently. In Chart 3, in Saturn's B.A.V., the 7th house has no bindu. Native's wife is not keeping sound health. She is always complaining about her health.

meaning, "... The destruction of a Bhava from the Ascendant onwards should be predicted by the astrologer to a querist, during Dasa or Bhukti of a planet which occupies a house (sign) where there is no bindu."

Chart 1: In Saturn's B.A.V., there is no bindu in Aquarius sign (the 8th house) which is occupied by Jupiter. So Jupiter's Dasa (or Bhukti).

should destroy the 8th house or be adverse to the native as far as health is concerned.

From research point of view, the converse (opposite) should be considered, i.e., enhancement of a Bhava should be predicted, during the Dasa (or Bhukti) of a planet which occupies a house (sign) where there are 8 bindus in B.A.V. of any planet. In Chart 1, in Venus' B.A.V. there are 8 bindus in Libra sign (the 4th house) which is occupied by the Moon. So, the Moon's Dasa or Bhukti should enhance the good results of the 4th house.

The Sun gives a bindu in the 9th place from him while the Ascendant does not contribute a bindu in the 9th place, hence Navame is interpreted as the 9th from the Ascendant.

This principle can be applied to other karakas such as the Moon for mother and Venus, for wife.

The lord of the Ascendant can be any one of the seven planets. It seems Jupiter's transit in the B.A.Vs of the Sun, in a sign having '0' bindu, transits of the Sun and Saturn, concurrently taken into account cause ill-health, severe sickness and perhaps death.

1. The Sun: When the Sun transits a sign having '0' bindu, in his B.A.V. the solar month, represented by that sign every year, is inauspicious for marraige and other religious functions. Quarrels and other miseries will happen during that month.

2. The Moon: (a) When the Moon transits a sign void of a bindu in her B.A.V., one should not perform any auspicious work, because all functions undertaken then will end in failure. (b) Even contact or association with persons having their Moon in a sign containing '0' bindu (in the Moon's B. A. V.) a first look at them in the morning will result in great disaster.

4. Mercury: If the 2nd house from Mercury in his B.A.V. contains not even one bindu, the person born will be dumb.

Solar Eclipses and Indian Affairs

P. W. MANDVIKAR

ECLIPSES, in general, produce triggering effects for an important event in the life of a nation. They simply supplement or corroborate the results shown by the Dasa-Bhukti which is the basic cause of the event. In other words, we may say that the 'eclipse' works like a transit planet. It enhances the malefic effects of the Dasa-Bhukti and reduces the benefic effects. It also decides the probable time of happening of the event in collaboration with other planets in transit. The solar eclipses affect national affairs more than lunar ones.

For studying the effects of solar eclipses on Indian affairs, ten most important events, after independence, have been selected. These events virtually shook the nation and a new phase in the country's life was started after the happening of each event. It has been shown, how the nearest solar eclipse, falling in a particular sign and the house was responsible for the event and also clearly indicated the particular nature and the cause of the event. The aim of this discussion is to show that the concerned sign and the house in which an eclipse occurs, are the chief factors and the significations of these signs and houses are mainly affected by the eclipses falling therein. The Dasa-Bhukti operating in the horoscope of India at the time of the event has also been discussed.

The nearest solar eclipse was on 18-3-1950

and it occurred in Pisces (3°). The event took place 50 days before the eclipse: With this declaration, India became a new Republic. A new political and administrative system came into existence, breaking all the links with the former British system. A new Constitution also came into being.

Pisces is occupying the 11th house in India's Independence horoscope. It denotes the form of the government, the parliament or equivalent house, reforms etc. So the solar eclipse in Pisces replaced the old system and a new system of democracy came into existence.

The period operating in India's horoscope at that time was Saturn Dasa, Mercury Bhukti. Saturn is the lord of the 10th house, that is 12th from the 11th and Mercury is the lord of the 4th and the 7th from the 11th. So Mercury is not a benefic for the 11th house. Hence this Dasa-Bhukti produced a change in the form of the government.

In transit, at the time of the event, Mars was aspecting the eclipse point. Mars is a planet of revolutionary changes and so its aspect produced similar effects.

Event No.2: China attacks India on 19-9-1962

The solar eclipse nearest to the event was on 31-7-1962, in the sign Cancer (14°). This event occurred 50 days after the eclipse. The Chinese attack was responsible for exposing the shortcomings in our defence preparedness and after this event, our defence establishments were thoroughly overhauled.

The eclipses occurring in the signs Taurus-Scorpio and Cancer-Capricorn are very significant for our country. This is because Taurus is the Ascendant and Cancer is the Moon-sign in India's horoscope. Scorpio and Capricorn are the opposite signs of the Ascendant and the Moon-sign.

In India's horoscope Cancer occupies the 3rd house, which denotes neighbouring and bordering countries, war, partitioning of landed property and the capacity to defend oneself. So an eclipse in the 3rd house brought about a war with the neighbouring country. This war gave a big jolt to the country.

The period operating in India's horoscope at that time was Saturn Dasa, Rahu Bhukti. Saturn is placed in the 3rd house and Rahu is in the Ascendant, so both the planets are significant for India. Rahu gives rise to unexpected situations, political plots, secret manoeuvrings etc. In a national horoscope the 6th house denotes the enemy attacks and territorial disputes etc. The 7th house denotes war and foreign relations. Rahu is placed in the 8th from the 6th and in the 7th from the 7th house and so Rahu has got a malefic effect on both the 6th and the 7th houses. So the ultimate result of the Rahu Bhukti was a war with China.

In transit, Saturn was aspecting the eclipse point from Capricorn, which added to the malefic effects of the eclipse.

Event No. 3: Death of Jawahar Lal Nehru on 27-5-1964

The nearest solar eclipse fell on 10-6-1964 in the sign Taurus (26°). With the death of Pandit Nehru, an era came to an end and new concepts for the development of the country started emerging. The event took place just 13 days before the eclipse.

The sign Taurus is the Ascendant of India. The Ascendant along with the 10th house represents the Prime Minister of the country. Dr. B. V. Raman says that the Ascendant also rules over the general affairs of the country and the condition of the cabinet. The solar eclipse falling in the Ascendant always produces malefic effects for the Government. So the eclipse in Taurus changed the whole gamut of Indian politics and related matters.

The Dasa-Bhukti running at that time was Saturn-Jupiter in India's chart. Considering the 10th house as the Ascendant, Jupiter is a maraka planet for it, being the 2nd lord. For the Ascendant, Jupiter is the 8th lord, denoting the cause of the death. Also, Jupiter is placed in the 6th house. In Navamsa Jupiter occupies the 2nd house in an enemy sign. So Jupiter Bhukti produced the most malefic results.

At the time of the event Saturn was squaring the eclipse point in transit.

Event No. 4: Death of Lal Bahadur Shastri on 11-1-1966

The nearest solar eclipse to this event occurred on 23-11-1965 in the sign Scorpio (7°). The event happened 49 days after the eclipse. With the death of Shastri, the second phase in India's politics ended. The death came as the culmination of the Pakistan war and the Tashkent agreement. After this tragic event, started the phase of Mrs. Indira Gandhi, which continued for a long time. As stated earlier the solar eclipses in Taurus and Scorpio produce some of the worst malefic results. In the present case it produced Pakistan war and Shastri's death. The sign Scorpio is just opposite the Ascendant, and so an eclipse falling in this sign affects the affairs denoted by the Ascendant.

Mercury Dasa and Mercury Bhukti was operating in India's horoscope. Mercury is the lord of the 2nd house and hence maraka for the Ascendant. Also, Mercury is the 8th lord for the 10th house. So the period Mercury-Mercury was fully empowered to cause the death of Shastri.

In transit, Saturn was aspecting the eclipse point from Aquarius.

Event No. 5: Pakistani Attack on India on 3-12-1971

The nearest solar eclipse to the event occurred on 16-1-1972 in the sign Capricorn (2°). The event happened 44 days before the eclipse. Pakistan attacked Indian airbases on 3.12.1971 culminated in the formation of Bangladesh. After this, the world started recognising India as a powerful nation. It also gave immense popularity to the then Prime Minister Mrs. Gandhi.

The solar eclipse took place in Capricorn, which is the 9th house in India's horosocope. It is just opposite the 3rd house denoting neighbouring countries and war. So an eclipse in the 9th house triggered the war with Pakistan.

Mercury Dasa, Sun Bhukti was running. The Bhukti lord Sun is an enemy of the Ascendant lord Venus and it is placed in the 3rd house denoting war. In Navamsa, the Sun occupies the 12th house and it is aspected by war lord Mars. So the Sun Bhukti gave us a war.

In transit Saturn was occupying the Ascendant, trine the eclipse point.

Event No. 6: Declaration of Emergency on 26-6-1975

The nearest solar eclipse was on 11-5-1975 in the sign Aries (26°). The event occurred 45 days after the eclipse. The declaration of Emergency came just after Mrs. Indira Gandhi lost the election petition. The period of Emergency was a new experience for the Indian public and the nation as a whole.

The sign Aries, which is placed in the 12th house in India's horoscope, denotes enforcement of law, large scale changes, police, army etc. According to Uttarakalamrita, the 12th house signifies fear from enemy, enmity from public (jana-vidwesha), quarrels, anger, imprisonment. The solar eclipse in the 12th house produced all these significations in ample measure.

In India's horoscope Mercury Dasa, Rahu Bhukti was running at that time. As stated earlier, Rahu signifies secret things, violence, adventure, sudden developments, exiles, hard hitting words etc. Rahu is placed in the Ascendant and signifies the prevailing conditions at that time. So Rahu Bhukti was most befitting for the declaration of Emergency.

In transit, Mars was moving over the eclipse point at that time. Mars signifies emergency laws, martial law etc. So its aspect to the eclipse point was quite conducive to the happenings.

Event No. 7 Resignation of Mrs. Indira Gandhi as Prime Minister on 22-3-1977

The nearest solar eclipse again occurred in the sign Aries (5°). The event took place 26 days before the eclipse. As stated earlier Aries occupies the 12th house in India's horoscope. As the Ascendant denotes the Prime Minister, the 12th house denotes the loss of post for the Prime Minister. The eclipse in the 12th house creates problems for the post of the Prime Minister, whereas, an eclipse in the Ascendant is detrimental to his health and life. Uttarakalamrita says that the 12th house also signifies termination of appointment or powers (adhikaravyaya). The eclipse in the 12th house produced a defeat in the elections for the Congress party. As a result Mrs. Gandhi resigned.

At that time Mercury-Rahu period was running. Rahu, being in the Ascendant, is always a source of trouble for the Prime Minister. Its Bhukti produces sudden changes.

In transit, Saturn was aspecting the eclipse point from Cancer.

Event No. 8: Morarji Desai Resigns as Prime Minister on 15-7-1979.

The solar eclipse nearest to this event occurred on 22.8.1979 in the sign Leo (5°). The event took place 37 days before the eclipse. The resignation of Morarji Desai brought about the end of the Janata rule and return of Congress to power. This eclipse occurred in the 4th house. The 4th house is just opposite the 10th house and so the eclipse here brought about a change in the Government and the ruler.

It happened in Mercury Dasa, Jupiter Bhukti in India's horoscope. Jupiter is a maraka for the 10th house (2nd lord) and lord of the 8th house for the Ascendant. So Jupiter Bhukti led to the resignation of the Prime Minister.

On the day of the event, Saturn was moving over the eclipse point and Mars was aspecting it.

Event No. 9: Assassination of Indira Gandhi on 31-10-1984

The nearest solar eclipse was on 22-11-1984 in the sign Scorpio (7°). The tragic event happened 21 days before the eclipse. A long phase ended in the country's political life with the death of Indira Gandhi. It has already been pointed out that an eclipse in Scorpio brings many unhappy and tragic events in the country. Scorpio sign signifies arms, explosives, extremist activities etc., and it being the 7th sign from the Ascendant, it has a direct bearing on the Prime Minister. So the assassination of the Prime Minister was linked to the solar eclipse in Scorpio. The death of Mrs. Gandhi accompanied large scale disturbances and violence in the country. These events also concern the Scorpio sign.

In transit the eclipse point was hemmed between Saturn and Mars.

Event No. 10: V. P. Singh becomes Prime Minister on 2-12-1989

The nearest solar eclipse occurred on 26-1-1990 in the sign Capricorn (12°). The event took place 54 days before the eclipse. As said earlier, the eclipses in Cancer and Capricorn produce significant effects like war and change of government etc. In India's horoscope 5 planets are occupying Cancer sign and so the eclipse occurring in Cancer-Capricorn axis affects these planets and consequently the houses which they rule over. Capricorn, being the 9th house in the horoscope, is the 12th from the 10th. As such the eclipse in Capricorn affects the 10th house affairs including the Government and its ruler.

The period ruling at that time was Venus Dasa, Venus Bhukti. Though Venus is the Ascendant lord for India, it is also the lord of the 6th house, that is Libra, which is the Moolatrikona house of Venus. The classical literature says that a planet gives the results of its Moolatrikona house in the first half of its Dasa or Bhukti and the results of the other sign in the second half. So the first half of Venus Bhukti, that is, from August 1989 to March 1991 will give the results of the 6th house and the real benefic results will be felt only after March 1991. Also Venus is placed in the Nakshatra of Mercury, the 2nd lord, a maraka house. The 6th house denotes obstacles, humiliation, danger, rivals etc. So the period produced defeat for the Congress party in the elections and paved the way for the Janata-Dal rule.

In transit Mars was aspecting the eclipse point at the time of the event, which brought about a total change in the Government.

Thus it can be seen that the ten most significant events that have chalked out the destiny of India have got a definite correlation with the solar eclipses occurring around the concerned dates. The houses and the signs in which the solar eclipses occurred decided the nature of the events.

It is noticed that important events have taken place in a time frame of 37 to 54 days before or after the solar eclipse. It means that this duration is very significant from the point of view of the major happenings.

Future Prospects for India

At present Venus Dasa and Venus Bhukti is running in the horoscope of India. As pointed out, presently, Venus gives the results of the 6th house and it will continue to do so upto March 1991. Considering, mainly the solar eclipses occurring in 1991, we may draw some conclusions regarding the course of events in the new year.

It has been observed that whenever the Bhukti lord moves over the eclipse point or aspects it, many unusual and significant events take place. For example in December 1989, the Bhukti lord Venus was moving over the eclipse point in Capricorn, and a complete change of Government took place at the Centre. Similarly in August 1990, the Bhukti lord Venus aspected the eclipse point in Capricorn from Cancer; and during this period Government announced 27% job reservations for backward castes. This announcement has given rise to large-scale agitations and disturbances in the country.

In the year 1991, two solar eclipses will occur. The first on 15-1-1991 in Capricorn sign and the second on 11-7-1991 in Gemini sign. The third solar eclipse, though occurring on 4-1-1992 (in Sagittarius), will affect the last few months of 1991.

The beginning of the new year may be on a troublesome note, as the solar eclipse takes place in January itself and that too in Capricorn, a vital sign for our country. Also the Bhukti lord Venus will move over the eclipse point right from 1st January to 24th January, along with the malefic Saturn. So during this period the country may face a variety of problems. Some drastic changes at the Central Government level may take place, cabinet reshuffle or resignation of some central minister is also possible. Communal tensions may flare up and the judicial set-up may undergo some changes. A prominent religious leader may pass away.

The year may be divided broadly in three parts on the basis of the effects of solar eclipses. The first part will be upto 15th April 1991. In this period, the effects of solar eclipse in Capricorn will be felt. During this period Mars will aspect the eclipse point from 21st March to 15th April and so some significant developments at the Government level may take place. Train and aircraft accidents are also possible. One or two states may come under President's rule. Death of a prominent person is also possible during the first half of March.

The second part of six months will roughly cover the period 15th April to 15th October. In this period, the effects of solar eclipse in Gemini (occurring on 11-7-1991) will be felt. Gemini is the 2nd house in India's horoscope. So some major changes in the financial sphere may take place during this period. The second house denotes the constituent states and so there may be some rift between the Centre and a few state governments. Share markets may show a slump in the share prices and the co-operative sector may suffer. During the period 3rd May to 29th May the Bhukti lord Venus will move over the eclipse point in Gemini and Mars will be moving over the eclipse point from 15th April to 15th May. As such the month of May will be a crucial period for the country. In this month some agitation may start. Some trouble concerning Railways is also foreseen. Other possible happenings during this period are some problem with the space programme, elections to one or two state assemblies and accidents --especially in the second weeks of June and July and the third weeks of August and September.

The last part of the year will be from 15th October to 31st December, in which the effects of the solar eclipse occurring on 4th January 1992

5. Jupiter: Practically all standard texts on Astrology refer to the 5th house from Jupiter to fix the number of children. But Balabhadra refers to the 9th house from Jupiter in the following verse: Hora Ratnam, Part II, P. 354, Verse 1:

गुरोरष्टकवर्गेषु सन्तानमपि कल्पयेत् ।
गुरोः स्थितः शुभस्थाने विद्यते यावता फलम् ॥

In support of this view, refer to Chart 2. In the 9th house from Jupiter, in his B.A.V., there is no bindu. The native had no children at all and he died recently on 2-6-1990 (running 67th year) when Jupiter was transiting the 12th house (Gemini sign) without a bindu. No doubt, as referred earlier, the native, having '0' bindu in the 12th house from the Ascendant, was wealthy. Further research on this count (point) is necessary.

7. Saturn: (a) When Saturn transits a sign without a bindu in the B.A.v. of the Sun etc., he generally causes acute diseases, miseries, uneasiness, fear from enemies and afflictions to the father and other relations according to their Karakatva.

Saturn is the karaka for oneself; the Sun for the father; the Moon for the mother; Mars for the brothers; Mercury for relations and maternal uncle/aunt; Jupiter for the children and Venus, for the wife.

(c) Narada says: "If Saturn is associated with '0' bindu in his B.A.V. in any sign in the natal chart, short life will result or the native will lose all his wealth."

In Chart 3, Saturn, lord of the 6th house, is in the 7th house. In the B.A.V. of Saturn 1 to 7th house has no bindu. So Saturn is associated with '0' bindu. The native, though born in a rich family, is passing through dire circumstances. He has lost greater part of his paternal wealth in the last four or five years.

(d) Find which house (sign) has the minimum number of bindus in the B.A.V. of Saturn. Some kind of trouble will be happening daily at the time when that sign rises in the East (i.e., when that sign becomes the Ascendant).

(e) Find out a sign having '0' bindu in the B.A.V. of Saturn. When Saturn transits that sign, no good results promised by that sign (house) will happen and the native will suffer physical ailments (or bodily sufferings) or incur loss of wealth.

If the Sun and the Moon along with Saturn transit the said sign and if the Dasa or Apahara of a maraka planet is in progress, death may take place.

This subject has been treated in two different ways:- (1) '0' bindu sign having a planet (out of the remaining six planets) in the B.A.V. of a planet; (2) '0' bindu sign not having a planet in it.

Further research can be made in this direction:

(1) '8' bindu sign in any B.A.V;

(2) '8' bindu sign in any B.A.V. having a planet therein out of the remaining six planets;

(3) A planet himself being associated with '8' bindus (Saturn 7 bindus only) in his own B.A.V.

In all the above three possibilities the results will be par excellence. -186.90.

in the sign Sagittarius will be felt. During this period, from 3rd November to 29th November, Bhukti lord Venus will be debilitated in Virgo; so it may create some problems for the Prime Minister. Also, in this period the vehicle industry, the textile units and cinema industly may face some troubles. Death of an important personality and a few major accidents are also probable during the second week of December.

A brief summary of the probable trend of events has been attempted in the preceding lines purely on the basis of solar eclipses occurring in various signs.

To conclude, let us remember the words often quoted by DR. B. V. RAMAN -' Who else except the Creator Brahma can say with certainty what will definitely happen in the future.--203.90

Sthira Dasa -- An Exposition

IRANGANTI RANGACHARYA, B.Sc., B.Ed.

STHIRA DASA has been dealt by Dr. B. V. Raman in his Studies in Jaimini Astrology. It is based on the method of the popular commentator, Neelakanta, who, we understand, evinced more scholarship than practicable exposition throughout his commentary of the 1st and 2nd Adhyayas of the Jaimini Sutras. In this article I would like to attempt a practicable exposition of Sthira Dasa which may differ a little in perceiving Brahma in the nativities. The readers may try both the methods and find good results, since Sthira Dasa is one of the most valid and authentic Ayurdasas though not applicable in all the nativities except where Brahma is present. I am convinced of both the methods to be used if necessary to increase the chances of Brahma's presence in the nativities though Neelakanta's method does not sound logical in the rejection of Saturn's eligibility for Brahmahood despite his eligibility for being Rudra and Maheswara.

Sutra: Brahmadiresha (2-3-4)

Sthira Dasa begins from the sign occupied by Brahma. The Dasa signs run in the direct order from the sign occupied by Brahma, whether it be odd or even.

Dasa Periods:

The cardinal (Chara), fixed (Sthira) and dual (Dwiswabhava) signs respectively carry 7, 8, 9 years. It means as follows:

Mesha, Kataka, Thula and Makara get 7 years each. Vrishabha, Simha, Vrischika and Kumbha get 8 years each. Mithuna, Kanya, Dhanus and Meena get 9 years each. This means that the Dasa periods are constant, unlike those of Chara, Trikona Dasas etc.

Brahma Graha:

The Neelakanta method of finding out Brahma Graha may be fairly understood in Studies in Jaimini Astrology, pages 43 and 44. I give below a more practicable method of finding out Brahma Graha.

Pranee Pitru Labha Pranyanu charo Vishamastho Brahma

Pitru labha prani is the middle part of the entire sutra, with nine letters on both sides and acts as a lamp on a threshold (Dehali deepika nyaya). From the sutra the following steps may be understood:-

Step 1: Find out the lords of the 6th, the 8th and the 12th houses of Janma Lagna or its 7th house whichever is stronger.

Step 2: How to know whether Janma Lagna or its 7th house is stronger.

(a) The one which is occupied by a planet is stronger than that which is vacant. (b) The one which is occupied by more number of planets is stronger than that which is occupied by less. (c) If both are occupied by equal number of planets, judge the strength of the planets according as exaltation etc. (d) If both are unoccupied by the planets, judge the strength of Lagna lord and 7th lord by exaltation etc. (e) If both are equally strong, the planet, which has covered more degrees, is stronger than the one which has less degrees. (f) If the degrees are equal, judge by the praativesika strength which means thus: An odd sign is stronger if its lord is in an even sign than the odd sign whose lord is in an odd sign. An even sign is stronger if its lord is in an odd sign than an even sign whose lord is in an even sign. (g) If praativesika strength is equal, judge by the natural strength of the palnet. The Sun is the strongest and Saturn is the weakest. The increasing order of strength is--Saturn, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus, Moon and Sun.

Step 3: Ascertain the strongest of the 6th, the 8th and the 12th lords of Janma Lagna or its 7th house whichever is stronger. (a) Judge their strengths by exaltation etc. (b) If equally strong, judge by the degrees they possess. The planet getting the highest degrees is the strongest. (c) If by degrees they are equal in strength, ascertain by their natural strength, as mentioned above.

Step 4: Find out the placement of the strongest lord (the 6th or the 8th or the 12th) so ascertained. If he is reckoned from Janma Lagna, and if he occupies Janma Lagna or the 3rd or the 5th, he becomes Brahma. If he is reckoned from the 7th house, and if he occupies the 7th or the 9th or the 11th, he becomes Brahma. According to Neelakanta, Mesha, Mithuna, Simha, Thula, Dhanus, Kumbha are referred to as Vishamastha (odd).

Timing of Fatality by Sthira Dasa

For timing of fatality, death-inflicting Dasa signs in Sthira Dasa should be ascertained. Apropos, it is first necessary to decide the term of life, whether short, middle or long in the chart. If the term of life is short, judge the first four Dasa signs from the sign occupied by Brahma. If the term of life is middle, judge the 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th Dasa signs. If the term of life is long, judge the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th Dasa signs. Make use of the following principles to make out the probable death-inflicting Dasa or Bhukti signs, according to the term of life ascertained in the horoscopic chart:

1. Dasa sign aspected by a malefic.
2. Dasa sign occupied by a malefic.
3. Dasa sign whose 5th and 9th signs are occupied by malefics.
4. Paka and Bhoga Dasa signs occupied by malefics.
5. Dasa sign and its lord connected with one to two malefics whether by aspect or by association.
6. Dasa sign aspected by the waning Moon.
7. Dasa sign and its lord aspected by the waning Moon or by Venus.
8. Dasa sign hemmed in between by Rahu or Ketu on one side and Mars and Saturn on the other side.
9. Dasa sign aspected by Rahu, Ketu and Saturn and occupied or aspected by Mars.
10. Dasa sign whose 8th sign is occupied by the Moon.
11. Brahma, if associated with Saturn, Rahu, Ketu, the strongest of the lords of 6th, 8th and 12th houses of Brahma will be the death-inflicting planet. It means the sign occupied by him will be death-inflicting (Sutra: Brahmani Sanau Patayorvatatah).
12. If Brahma is associated with more than two planets the 12th sign of Atmakaraka becomes death-inflicting [Sutra: Bahunam Yoge Swajateeyah Jateeya ($\frac{168}{12}$ =12).
13. If Brahma is associated with Rahu or Ketu, the 10th Dasa sign closes the life (Sutra: Rahy Yoge Viparteetam - $\frac{6214}{12}$ = 10).
14. Brahma being the 8th lord of Atmakaraka, in the 8th house becomes death-inflicting (Sutra: Brahma Swabhavesa Bhavasthah)

The readers may refer to the sutras 30, 31, 32, 33, 34 in the 1st pada of the 2nd Adhyaya for a proper understanding of these principles.

The Birth Ascendant being Vrischika, the 7th house is stronger than Janma Lagna because Venus, the lord of the 7th house is exalted, while Lagna lord, Mars, is in his Moolatrikona house. The 6th, 8th and 12th lords from the 7th house are respectively Venus, Jupiter and Mars. Jupiter is the strongest, because he is exalted and secures the highest degrees in the three. Jupiter is in the 3rd odd sign reckoned from the 7th house and hence Jupiter becomes Brahma. Sthira Dasa begins from Kataka occupied by Brahma and the Dasa signs are Kataka = 7, Simha = 8, Kanya = 9, Thula = 7, Vrischika = 8, Dhanus = 9, Makara = 7, Kumbha = 8, Meena = 9. The native died at the age of 63 in 1935 in the end of Kumbha sign. Kumbha is aspected by three malefics, Sun, Mars, Mercury. The 8th of Kumbha is occupied by the Moon (Principles 1 & 10).

house is vacant. The lords of the 6th, 8th and 12th houses of Janma Lagna are respectively Mars, Saturn and Venus. Of these three, Venus is the strongest because he is placed in his Moolatrikona. Venus is in the 5th odd sign, Thula, reckoned from Janma Lagna and hence Venus becomes Brahma. According to Neelakanta also Venus becomes Brahma, since he is placed in Thula, an odd sign. Sthira Dasa begins from Thula occupied by Brahma and the Dasa signs are Thula =7, Vrischika=8, Dhanus=9, Makara=7, Kumbha=8, Meena=9, Mesha=7, Vrishabha=8, Mithuna=9, Kataka=7. The native died on 11-4-1985 in Kataka Dasa sign. The 5th and 9th of Kataka are occupied by the malefics viz., Ketu and Mars-Saturn. Kataka is aspected by Ketu and its lord, the Moon, is aspected by Mars and Saturn. Kataka is aspected by Rahu and Ketu (Principles 1, 3, 5)

The native died on 11-4-1985 in the beginning of Makara sub-period of Kataka (5-4-1985 to 5-11-1985). Makara is aspected by Rahu and Ketu and its lord is associated with Mars (Principles 1 and 5).

Chart 3: Born 30-11-1911 (Birth Ghatikas=50-30).

The Janma Lagna is Scorpio. The 7th house is stronger than Janma Lagna, since the 7th is occupied by two planets, Mars and Rahu while Janma Lagna is occupied by one planet Ketu. The 6th, 8th and 12th lords from the 7th house are Venus, Jupiter and Mars respectively. Jupiter is the strongest of the three. He is placed in the 11th house and hence he becomes Brahma. Sthira Dasa begins from Kanya occupied by Brahma. The Dasa signs are Kanya=9, Thula=7, Vrischika=8, Dhanus=9, Makara=7, Kumbha=8, Meena=9, Mesha=7, Vrishabha=8. The native died in 1981 at the age of 70 in Vrishabha Dasa sign. Vrishabha is occupied by Mars and Rahu and aspected by Sun and Mercury. Pakadasa sign is Vrishabha occupied by malefics, Mars and Rahu and Bhoga Dasa sign, Makara, is occupied by malefics, Sun and Mercury. (Principles 1, 2, 4).

Chart 4: Born 20-9-1933 at 9 a.m.

Janma Lagna Thula is stronger than its 7th house, because Thula is occupied by two planets while the 7th house is vacant. The 6th, 8th, 12th lords from Janma Lagna are respectively Jupiter, Venus and Mercury. Venus only is in Janma Lagna, while Jupiter and Mercury being on the otherside, 12th, are not considered. Venus becomes Brahma. According to Neelakanta, Venus also becomes Brahma because of placement in Thula, an odd sign. Sthira Dasa begins from Thula and the Dasa signs are Thula=7, Vrischika=8, Dhanus=9, Makara=7, Kumbha=8, Meena=9, Mesha=7, Vrishabha=8.

The female native of Chart 4 died on 30-11-1989 in Vrishabha Dasa sign. The 5th and 9th of Vrishabha are occupied by malefics. Vrishabha is aspected by the malefics Mars and Saturn. Vrishabha Dasa is aspected by Mars and Saturn, while Venus, the Dasa sign lord, is associated with Mars (Principles-1, 3, 5). Death happened in Vrishabha-Vrishabha.

Chart 5: Indira Gandhi--Born 19-11-1917 at 11.12 p.m.

Janma Lagna is Kataka occupied by Saturn, while its 7th house is occupied by the Moon. Saturn is placed in his inimical house, while the Moon occupies his neutral house. Hence the 7th house is stronger than Janma Lagna. The 6th, 8th and 12th lords from the 7th house are respectively Mercury, the Sun and Jupiter. Jupiter is in the 5th odd sign from the 7th house of Janma Lagna. Hence Jupiter becomes Brahma. According to Neelakanta, Brahma is absent since Jupiter occupies Vrishabha, an even sign. Sthira Dasa begins from Vrishabha occupied by Brahma and Dasa signs are Vrishabha=8, Mithuna=9, Kataka=7, Simha=8, Kanya=9, Thula=7, Vrischika=8, Dhanus=9, Makara=7.

Chart 6: Pandit Nehru: Born 14-11-1889 at 11.03 p.m.

Janma Lagna is Kataka. The 6th, 8th and 12th lords from Janma Lagna are Jupiter, Saturn and Mercury respectively. Jupiter is the strongest of the three and is placed in the 6th sign of Janma Lagna, which is Dhanus, an odd sign. According to Neelakanta, Jupiter becomes Brahma. Sthira Dasa begins from Dhanus occupied by Brahma and the Dasa signs are Dhanus=9, Makara=7, Kumbha=8, Meena=9, Mesha=7, Vrishabha=8, Mithuna=9, Kataka=7, Simha=8, Kanya=9. Nehru died on 27-5-1964 in Kanya-Dhanus. Kanya is occupied by Mars and aspected by Rahu and Ketu (Principles 1, 2) Kanya is the 10th sign from Brahma. (Principle 13). Dhanus is occupied by Brahma (Jupiter) and Ketu and aspected by Mars and Rahu (Principles 1, 2).

Chart 7: Born 12-8-1952, and died 25-6-1988.

Janma Lagna is Mithuna. Both Janma Lagna and its 7th house are vacant Mercury, the lord of Janma Lagna, occupies Kataka, an inimical sign. Jupiter, the 7th lord, occupies Mesha, a friendly sign. Hence the 7th house is stronger than Janma Lagna. The 6th, 8th and 12th lords from the 7th house are respectively Venus, Moon, Mars. Hence the Moon becomes Brahma, since he occupies Mesha, the 11th sign. Sthira Dasa begins from Mesha and the Dasa signs are Mesha=7, Vrishabha=8, Mithuna=9, Kataka=7, Simha=8. Death happened in Simha Dasa according to the Principles 5, 8. The native died on 25-6-1988 in Simha-Meena. Meena is aspected by Saturn.--187.90.

Seven Channels of Human Development

BEPIN BEHARI

IN Mundakopanishad there are two Mantras which very clearly state the importance of seven channels in creation. Firstly, while describing the flames of cosmic fire, it states the seven names such as Kali, Karali, Manojava, Sudhumravarna etc. to describe the seven flames through which the various oblations are consumed. Later, while narrating the splintering of the Akshar-Brahma into innumerable fireballs, it talks of seven Life-Current (Prana), Seven Lustres (Archisa), Seven Sacrificial Woods (Samidha) and so on which are included in the Cosmic Man (Purusha) and from these everything else arise in the universe. Approaching this creative process astrologically, one feels the significance of seven principles pervading everywhere. From the practical standpoint, in order to understand the deeper impulses working within every human individual, if we postulate that there are seven main channels of human development it may not be far from truth. Those who have had clairvoyant sight, those who have attained levels of perfection (Siddhis), and those who are deep students of psychology confirm that there are seven basic human temperaments. The seven rishis (Sapta-Rishis) who constitute the Great Bear who are constantly watching over the evolution of cosmic evolution stand at the helm of these seven channels beckoning us to those sublime heights. These may sound meaningless to a large number of students, but we shall soon arrive at the conclusion that there could be much reality in this assumption of seven channels of human development: The importance of this subject increases greatly because a realisation of this truth solves many of our everyday problems. Even when the physical individual is not aware of his deeper purpose of life, and is ignorant of the final goal towards which his inner self is always guiding him standing at his back so to say watching his failures and encouraging him to take up the right direction at each failure, the specific star is always aware of its responsibility. As each individual has a radically specific path to follow, though the final channels of development would be differentiated into seven before it is further merged together prior to their mingling with the Cosmic Man, the Paramatman having attained Nirvana, his experiences will be distinctly different from each other. In basic principles, the nature of the flame burning inside him would be similar to those who are on the same channel, but in details each event and the conditions of relationships would be different. By understanding what is generally known as the Seven Rays of Human Temperament, the individual can succeed in unravelling many of his intricate problems of life.

This subject of self-discovery revealing the special flame of the cosmic fire irradiating the individual had been, in the ancient religious circles, an esoteric teaching imparted by the Teacher to his specially prepared disciples; even in Egypt the knowledge of Seven Basic Human Channels of development was imparted at very later stages of several Initiations before the Final Mystery was revealed to the student. It is very intimately linked with the different forms of Yogic practices on which the Novice has to unfold his latent qualities. Naturally, therefore, the subject has many dangerous possibilities. As a result of this feature of this subject, it was kept very carefully concealed. But Astrology could not do so, and reveals the relationship between the planets and the different channels through which the individuals attain their final destiny. In many of the general astrological principles, a discerning student can decipher the hidden message, though from them, he cannot work out the details, unless the subject is studied in relationship with Yogic literature, Indian metaphysics and Astrology.

In Astrology, by that I refer to Hindu Astrology, there are only seven planets as Rahu and Ketu are not considered actual planets: They are mere shadowy planets (Chaya Grahas). In this scheme, it is also to be noted that the Sun and Moon are not treated in the same way as other planets. In the various signs of the zodiac, the Sun and Moon are assigned only one sign for their rulership whereas other planets are assigned two signs each. While doing so, the ancient seers did not assign any rulership to Rahu and Ketu in a general way. As a result of these differentiations, one could postulate that the ancient seers who gave us the knowledge of Astrology had reasons to classify the so-called nine planets of Hindu Astrology into three categories, namely, Sun and Moon in one group, Rahu and Ketu in another whilst the rest of the five planets come in the third group.

This assumption can be reinforced by another treatment of the planets. An important planetary combination of immense significance is categorised as Pancha Mahapurusha Yoga. As the very name of this combination suggests, this planetary combination is linked with Maha (Immensely Great) Purusha (Human Individual) which is formed by auspicious and powerful placements of five planets placed in the third group (as indicated in the previous paragraph). If one goes into the minute details of the essentials of the results indicated on the basis of such placements of the five planets one finds that these planets pour profusely the special qualities with which they are empowered on the individual. It does not necessarily make the person internationally or even widely renowned; it does not necessarily make the individuals politically powerful. This should make the student a little skeptical about this planetary combination in order to find out the rationale of the same. There should be some reason for differentiating these planets from others. As Hindu Astrology is not just a collection of rules which do not have valid rationale (as many pseudo scientists are apt to believe) behind them, the mere reason of the ancient seers not making them explicit and available to every desirable or undesirable curious seeker does not make these rules less effective. In the present context of our discussions, one may accept that these seers had some valid reason for not making the various inner relationships explicit for everybody.

The fact of the matter is that each individual, whether he knows it or not, is linked with his special star. During the course of his evolutionary journey from the time of his fragmentation from the Absolute All, the Cosmic Fire whic splits itself in seven flames, h special planet stands behin him permitting him enoug scope for action to gain exper ences which would make hi capable of understanding th Reality for which his splinte ing has taken place but at th same time these planets, i consultation with the lords o Karma, manage to get th karmic conditions so arrange that he gradually become capable of unfolding his later potential. In this process though the Sun and the Moo are also related to certain spe cial egos directly in certain special cases, generally the take over the individuals fro other planets at a very lat stage of their evolutionar growth and development There is no arbitrariness i this decision, but it is so be cause the Sun and the Moo have very specialised func tions in this cosmogenesi which link them with certai principles which cannot func tion on lower planes of con cretisation. Without going int the details of the esoteric sig nificance of the Pancha Ma hapurusha Yoga for the pres ent, it may suffice here to ind cate that this planetary comb nation does throw some ligh on some esoteric relationship which the ancient seers i their wisdom did not feel help ful to reveal to the gener principle.

The diagram on the nex page attempts to indicate som of the essential features of th seven channels of human de velopment. The basic frame work in which all the planet function consists of tripl manifestation of the Origina

Cause or the Unmanifest and the polarisation of the same in Purusha (Male or the Positive Creative Force/Impulse) and Prakriti (Nature or the essential foundation on which the Positive or the Male Impulse could operate). An area of operation in the diagram is shaded which suggests that these forces are operating on object planes of existence, which consist of concrete action. The unshaded portion represents the realm of consciousness where thinking, feeling and subjective experiences and functioning are more important. For example, a scientist works on matter, examines its constituents, uses instruments and scientific gadgets to understand the working of the matter under examination. These are some of the objective, concrete, forms of activities. Similarly, an architect is concerned with building, structural construction. All these are objective aspects of life; they are concerned with the world of things and matter. As against such activities, a poet or a philosopher is concerned with subjective feelings. A great religious reformer is not concerned with temples and rituals but is concerned with mental revolution. A person who meets another person and instantly understands the thoughts and feelings of the other person is working on the plane of consciousness. Some other person working on the plane of matter will under such a circumstance note the clothes the individual wore, the postures he assumed, the tone and the accent he is using and such other external details. In this way, there are two sides to everything; one group of people work on planes of consciousness and the other, on matter. This is a primary consideration.

Another set of considerations is related with Atma, Buddhi and Manas. These are basic elements in creation and they have been dealt in great detail in Indian metaphysical literature. Here we would not like to elaborate on details of these but will only mention that Atma is concerned with will aspect of life, Buddhi with wisdom or understanding while Manas is connected with Thought and is the essence or the foundation of all activity. These three operate on consciousness as well as on the planes of matter. Will is connected with personal initiative, functioning independently without seeking any support or assistance. It reflects the central inherent potential within the individual. Wisdom leads to understanding. It reveals the wisdom contained in the subject under consideration. For an individual, there may not be any great interest in expressing himself or to act the way he wants, but he may desire merely to understand the various relationships and with such understanding his personal actions and behaviour may change. But the important point is not the reaction or his behaviour; his personal understanding of the relationship is important for Buddhic consciousness. Manas is related to the thinking principle of the individual. When a person has rightly comprehended a relationship or some truth, he cannot but act in the light of this comprehension. Action is there at all levels, but the impulse for the action comes in different categories from different impulses. Atma, Buddhi and Manas are those differentiations which indicate the three faces through which the original source supplies the basic motivating impulses to different individuals.

The various planets, excluding Rahu and Ketu, can be classified in these categories. The Sun, Moon and Mercury are classified under subjective planets working on the planes of consciousness whereas Mars, Jupiter and Saturn are concerned with the objective realm of manifestation and are intimately linked with matter. Venus has a unique position: One portion of it is related to consciousness aspect of life and another with matter. We find that the painter, musician, dancer and such other artistes who are governed by Venus have subjective as well as an objective world to work in. A classical Indian dancer endeavours to actualise certain subjective expressions, experiences, feelings in concrete, objective forms by different postures, Mudras and so on. Similarly, a painter attempts to concretise certain subjective ideas in his drawings and paintings through the medium of different lines, shapes and colours. The outstanding quality of Venus is harmonisation of subjective and objective world, a synthesis between the world of matter and consciousness. These ideas are attempted to be represented in the accompanying diagram, which, it is hoped, would simplify and clarify the various ideas mentioned above.

As all the planets reflect the lustre of one of the seven flames of the Cosmic Fire, which is in essence the Life Giving Impulse of the Cosmic Man, we prefer to call these differentiated impulses of different planets as they impinge upon different individuals of the Seven Human Rays on which the different individuals evolve during the course of their various incarnations. The Ray dominated by the Sun could be called the Solar Ray or we may even call it the First Ray. It represents the Positive Spark of the Divine Life, the Basic Impulse of the Cosmic Man. It works from within without. It links all aspects of life to the primary nature of the individual, his innermost purpose of existence which is to energise his latent potential and let it shine in its full glory. On the plane of everyday existence, it will appear that the individual is having the quality of leadership, he is inspired, he is independent, not seeking favour but functioning in his own light. He will appear always full of energy, always engaged in activity and never attracted by anything mean or sectional in life. His mental attitude will be cosmopolitan.

The Moon is Self-illumination but because it understands, its main function is to reflect the central cosmic power electrifying everything. The Moon understands its real nature, its relationship with the Cosmic Man, it apprehends that its primary role is to shed tranquillity and generative potential in every life entity coming under its influence. The Moon imparts nourishment because it has been given that quality from the central source of energy to shed to others. 'I am Brahma' not because of identity which would be cast in the First Ray but because Brahma has implanted in me the same essence of which it is made of. The Moon is the Receptacle of TRADITONALLY, the Moon's association with benefics Jupiter, Venus and Mercury is upheld as giving benefic results. The Moon's association with malefics such as Mars, Saturn and Sun has been viewed as giving bad results. Experience, however, has shown that a benefic like Jupiter protects more from evils and gives higher values in life whereas malefics like Mars, Saturn and Sun may give more material prosperity than the so-called benefics. Barring a few, we all are engrossed in materialism and, therefore, malefics are of much more importance to us than so-called benefics. Tithi is determined by the Sun-Moon relation and it is equally important in all the branches of Astrology. The Moon-Saturn association or Moon-Saturn aspect has much bearing on the human mind and sometimes also causes Raja Yogas. Similarly, a connection between Moon and Mars has also great significance for us.

Mars is said to be the son of the earth. The Moon is believed to be a part of this earth according to the puranas. Modern science accepts that the Moon was once a part of this earth. Modern science has found much similarity between the Earth, the Moon and Mars. Therefore, great impact of Moon and Mars on the beings of the earth is understandable. Chandra-Mangala Yoga of Hindu Astrology is nothing but only an exposition of the above scientific truth.

Chandra-Mangala Yoga is said to occur under the following three circumstances:

(1) When Mars combines with the Moon in the same sign it is the most powerful kind of Chandra-Mangala Yoga. If Mars and the Moon are also the owners of good houses and if at the same time they also combine in some auspicious house and are free from afflictions it is likely to give results par excellence.

(2) When Mars and the Moon mutually aspect each other and are otherwise also favourable, they constitute the second kind of Chandra-Mangala Yoga which is almost on par with the first kind.

(3) When Mars and the Moon are in mutual Kendras other than the 7th house, they cause Chandra-Mangala Yoga of the third kind which is not as powerful as the first two kinds. Mars, however, in 10th from the Moon is a better position as Mars will be aspecting the Moon and also as a planet in 10th from the Moon has much bearing on profession and status of a native. But Mars in 4th from the Moon will not cause so powerful a Yoga.

It follows from the above that Chandra-Mangala Yoga is nothing but only various possible Kendra positions between Mars and the Moon. Mars and the Moon in one Kendra is the best position. Mars and the Moon in 7th from each other is the second best position. Mars in 10th from the Moon is the third best position. Mars in 4th from the Moon is the weakest position. Mars is positive or masculine whereas the Moon is negative or feminine in nature. Their contact creates energy in the same way as positive and negative wires create electrical energy.

Results of the Yoga

This Yoga, if formed properly, gives charming, dynamic and magnetic personality with good muscular power. It gives success in life and good financial status. This Yoga has been held to be a fine wealth-giving Yoga. It is helpful in earning high income. If Mars and the Moon are well-disposed and aspected by benefics, earnings will be high through fair and noble means but if Mars and the Moon are ill-disposed or ill-aspected, earnings may be through unscrupulous means and the person concerned may also have questionable character.

Varaha Mihira and some others have viewed the Moon-Mars combination as a bad one. Persons having this combination are hostile to their mothers and they earn high income only through immoral means such as dealings in wine and women. Manasagari outlines the results of possible combinations of Chandra-Mangala Yoga as follows:

Moon-Mars: Suffers from blood-diseases such as blood-cancer, anaemia, blood-pressure, bleeding etc., deals in skins, pottery metals etc., wealthy and brave in fighting.

Mars in 4th from the Moon: Unhappy, poor, death of wife in his presence.

Mars-Moon Opposition: Rough and harsh-speaking spouse.

Mars in 10th from the Moon: Has vehicles, conveyances, wealth and power.

But such generalisation and oversimplification of Yogas is not correct. Such interpretations can only make Astrology an object of ridicule in an enlightened society. Such interpretations may even land some astrologers in trouble. Astro-logy requires an intelligent application of various rules commensurate with Desa-Kaala-Paatra. I do not intend to say that Chandra-Mangala Yoga will always give good results. Evil results can be anticipated if the Moon and Mars are both ill-disposed and severely afflicted in a birth chart. But it is not necessary that the evil results will acrue only in such forms as anticipated by our sages. Evil results may come in quite different forms some of which might not have been even known to our ancient sages. There was a time when distillery business was not held with reverence though liquor was freely consumed by all in those old days. Today, distillery business is not held as socially prohibited business. A proper and scientific interpretation of Chandra-Mangala Yoga, therefore, would be that it helps in earnings through chemicals. These chemicals may be liquors, drugs, medicines, fertilisers, pesticides, liquids, fire objects such as petrol, gas etc. This is why doctors, pharmacists, chemists, medical representatives, persons dealing in medicines, chemical goods, petroleum products etc. have had generally Chandra-Mangala Yogas in their birth charts. This Yoga is thus not limited to liquor industry only.

Similarly, it will not be proper to infer that Chandra-Mangala Yoga by itself will make a person the hater of mother or a dealer in women in some immoral traffic way. Such persons may be said to believe in mixing freely with the opposite sex which is quite different from a licentious way of life. This is why persons associated with films, dance, drama, social institutions have Chandra-Mangala Yogas in many cases. It, however, cannot be denied that if Chandra-Mangala Yoga is associated with Rahu-Ketu and Saturn-Sun in adverse houses the native in question may have certain perversions in his nature which may include even such prohibited acts as hinted by Varaha Mihira.

Another speciality of Chandra-Mangala Yoga is that persons having this Yoga in cardinal or dual signs are generally on the move but in fixed signs it is not so. The Moon is extremely mobile and its mobility gets further accentuated in movable and dual signs when it gets in contact with Mars, capable of energising any situation. Fixed signs, however, restrict frequent movements.

When Chandra-Mangala Yoga takes place in favourable signs and in favourable houses, its results are extremely favourable. If this Yoga is aspected by or associated with Jupiter, it may give wealth and high morale. But for some, Jupiterian influence on this Yoga may give an insatiable lust for wealth, fickle mind and roving or wandering nature. These defects will be more apparent when malefics, particularly Rahu, join this Yoga. It is said that without the blessings of Jupiter the natives of Chandra-Mangala Yoga will hardly have any peace of mind in spite of affluence and material prosperity. It may give health and wealth but not peace of mind. Saturnine aspect or association may cause difficulties and delays. It may give a somewhat brooding nature. Rahu-Ketu association may incline one towards immoral, illegal or wrong acts paving the way for ruin and downfall in the end.

Ascendant-wise Positions

Some more favourable positions of Chandra-Mangala Yoga are given below for each Ascendant.

Aries

Mars in Lagna and Moon in the 4th will give Ruchaka Yoga in addition. It will give stout body, robust health and good property: The Moon in the 2nd and Mars in the 8th may give good inheritance. The Moon in the 4th and Mars in the 10th will be the best combination for this Lagna from the point of view of professional betterment and acquisition of professional property. In addition, it will give Ruchaka Yoga. The Moon and Mars in 10th will also be an equally in good position. The Moon and Mars in the 4th or Mars in the 4th and Moon in the 10th will cause in addition Neechabhanga Raja Yoga. For Aries-born natives, Chandra-Mangala Yoga has special significance. The famous actor Ashok Kumar has Moon-Mars in the 2nd house in Taurus. From being a doctor he joined the film industry and emerged as a versatile actor. Film actress Nargis with Mars in the 5th in Leo and the Moon in Aquarius in the 11th also had Chandra-Mangala Yoga which was not as powerful as that of Ashok Kumar. Actor Dilip Kumar has Mars-Rahu in the 7th in Libra and the Moon in the 10th in Capricorn. His Chandra-Mangala Yoga is not free of affliction. The late Dr. Sampurnanand had the Moon in the 1st house in Aries and Mars in the 7th in Libra. He got high position as his Moon was aspected by Jupiter from the 9th. But in case of the other three Jupiter does not aspect the Moon or Mars. It is clear that the means of earning is widely different in the two cases.

Taurus

The Moon in the 1st and Mars in the 7th is the best combination for Taurus natives as it will cause Ruchaka Yoga in addition. The Moon in the 7th and Mars in Lagna is also good because it will cause Neechabhanga Raja Yoga in addition. The Moon and Mars in Lagna or the 7th or the 3rd or the 9th will be equally good. The Moon-Mars in the 3rd or Mars in the 3rd and the Moon in the 9th will cause Neecha-bhanga Raja Yoga in addition.

Chief Justice Dixit had exalted Moon in Lagna and Mars in the 7th in Scorpio. He had Ruchaka Yoga in addition. He was well-known for his integrity. Sir Ashutosh Mukherjee had the Moon-Mars-Ketu in 12th in Aries which was fully aspected by Jupiter from the 6th. Occurrence of this Yoga in favourable signs and the Jupiterian aspect considerably wiped out the evil impact of its ill-disposition. Nevertheless, he had to struggle hard for building his career in the Dasas of the Moon and Mars. But as the 12th house stands for punishment and philanthropic deeds this Yoga in the 12th house gave him a distinctive position in the administration of justice and also in social and philanthropic fields.

Gemini

The Moon in the 2nd and Mars in the 8th or the Moon-Mars in the 2nd will be more wealth-giving. The Moon-Mars in the 8th will cause Raja Yoga in addition. The Moon in the 12th and Mars in the 6th or the Moon-Mars in the 6th will be extremely good for persons in medical profession or administration of justice or external affairs of any kind or in spiritual and philanthropic fields.

Nathuram Godse, Mahatma Gandhi's assassin, born in Gemini Lagna had Mars in Lagna and Moon-Jupiter in the 4th. Jupiter was retrograde in his case. He had Chandra-Mangala Yoga but it was vitiated as both Mars and the Moon were in inimical signs. Mars was with Pluto and Neptune and his Saturn in the 11th aspected Mars. The 12th was occupied by Sun-Mercury-Rahu which was aspected by maraka lord Jupiter. He had Chandra-Mangala, Gaja-Kesari and Budhaditya Yogas but they were all vitiated in one way or the other. He was a man of strong principle and sound in character. His Rahu in the 12th aspected by powerful maraka Jupiter acted as agent provocateur for murder. Rahu conjoining the Sun in the 12th baffled his soul. He killed Mahatma Gandhi on ideological grounds and so he was hanged. He became part of Indian history.

Cancer

Chandra-Mangala Yoga has perhaps got the best significance for Cancer-born natives if it is also connected with Jupiter in some way. The Moon, Mars and Jupiter are all Yogakarakas for Cancer-borns. The Moon in Lagna and Mars in the 7th, the Moon in the 11th and Mars in the 5th, the Moon in Lagna and Mars in the 10th are the best possible positions for this Lagna. While Mars in the 7th or the 10th will cause Ruchaka Yoga in addition, Mars and the Moon in Lagna or Mars in Lagna and the Moon in the 7th or the Moon and Mars in the 5th or Moon in the 5th and Mars in the 11th will also cause Neechabhanga Raja Yoga.

Sri Rama had Jupiter-Moon in the 1st house in Cancer and Mars in the 7th. He had a first-class Chandra-Mangala Yoga along with Hamsa, Ruchaka and Gaja-Kesari Yogas. Saturn in the 4th causing Sasa Yoga also caused certain restrictions on free flow of these Yogas as the Lagna and planets therein were aspected by Saturn. Nothing was denied to him but every thing was delayed in his life. Saturn made his life a struggling one all through. Acharya Adi Sankara had Mars in the 9th in Pisces, Jupiter in the 8th in Aquarius and the Moon in the 12th in Gemini. He had Chandra-Mangala Yoga which was ill-placed from the material point of view but superb from the spiritual point of view. Had Aadi Sankara not chosen a life of tapas, he would not have been a great person from the material point of view. Sankara's case is an example of exercise of proper free-will commensurate with planetary vibrations.

Leo

For Leo Lagna, Chandra-Mangala Yoga does not carry as much weight. Mars is a Yogakaraka par excellence but the Moon as 12th lord is neutral. The Moon and Mars in the 4th or the 12th will cause Chandra-Mangala Yoga along with Ruchaka and Neechabhanga Raja Yogas in one case and only Neechabhanga Raja Yoga in the other case. Guru Nanak had the Moon, Mars, Sun and Mercury in the 4th in Scorpio which made him the founder of a new religious sect. Mars as 9th lord stands for religion and Moon as the 12th lord stands for reform and spiritualism. General Manekashaw had the Moon and Mars in the 11th. His debilitated Jupiter in the 6th caused Viparreetá Raja Yoga and Mars in the 11th from Lagna but in a Kendra from the Moon caused Neechabhanga Raja Yoga. He had a successful career as an Army-Chief. President Roosevelt too had Moon-Mars in the 11th in Gemini. Chandra-Mangala Yoga made him a renowned President of the U.S.A. during a critical period. An ex-Chief Secretary born in Leo Lagna noted for his uprightness has the Sun, Mercury and Venus in Lagna, Saturn in the 7th, Mars and Jupiter in the 3rd and the Moon in the 9th. He has also fine Chandra-Mangala and Guru Mangala Yogas. His Moon, Mars and Jupiter Dasas gave him quite favourable results.

Virgo

Chandra-Mangala Yoga does not carry much weight unless connected with the 3rd, the 5th and the 9th houses for Virgo. Dr. S. Radhakrishnan had Jupiter and Mars in the 3rd in Scorpio and the Sun and Moon in the 12th in Leo. He had both Chandra-Mangala and Guru-Mangala Yogas. The relationship between the 3rd, 9th and 12th houses gave him tremendous success in writing, philosophy and foreign missions.

Libra

For Libra Lagna Chandra-Mangala Yoga may give good wealth and high position. Mars and the Moon in the 2nd will cause Chandra Mangala and Neechabhanga Raja Yogas together. Mars and the Moon in the 10th will also cause a good Yoga. Hyder Ali, ruler of Mysore, had the Moon, Mars, Sun, Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn in the 2nd in Scorpio. He rose from the position of a cowherd to a powerful ruler. He was one of the richest rulers of his time who resorted to all means for achieving his ends because the proximity to the Sun weakened all other planets in the 2nd house.

Scorpio

The Chandra-Mangala Yoga has great significance for Scorpio Lagna like Cancer and Aries Lagnas. The Moon and Mars in the 1st or 9th will cause a first-class Chandra-Mangala Yoga in addition to Neechabhanga Raja Yoga. Mussolini had the Moon, Mars and Saturn in the 7th in Taurus. He was a powerful dictator and a very wealthy man. Saturn's association with this Yoga caused his downfall.

Sagittarius

For Sagittarius Lagna Chandra-Mangala Yoga is not so enduring in giving good results because of the evil lordships of the 8th and 12th houses. Mars in the 2nd and the Moon in the 8th or the Moon in the 6th and Mars in the 12th may, however, give better results. Chaudhury Charan Singh had the Moon, Mars and Rahu in the 10th in Virgo which was aspected by Jupiter from the 2nd. His Chandra-Mangala Yoga was severely afflicted by Rahu but this affliction was redeemed to a great extent by the Jupiterian aspect. Charan Singh was one of the richest farmer leaders. He saw several ups and downs in his political

Judging Financial Prospects and Status

S. R. GUPTA

LAKSHMI, the goddess of wealth, works mysteriously, and doles out her benedictions among us impartially. Our own karmic limitations determine which moods of the goddess will favour us. Astrology helps us to unfold them successfully.

In fact, the native's financial prosperity depends on the total potential of his horoscope, the bird's eye of which may be taken to assess it, besides examining the following factors, directly concerned with it:

1. The Ascendant,
2. The 2nd, the 4th, the 9th, the 10th and the 11th,
3. The Moon and Mercury
4. The operating planets.

Before I take up these factors for discussion, I would like to say a few things which serve me as good predictive tools. The savants in Astrology always affirm that the native enjoys the significations ruled by a Bhava, provided the three — the Bhava, its lord and the Karaka are strong. But it hardly happens that way when they all are strong. Truly speaking I treat a Bhava like a mine. I firmly believe that the major responsibility for the growth of its significations lie on its lord. The Karaka is there only to assist him.

Besides following the procedure laid down by them to judge a Bhava, I also consider the following:-

Whether or not the Bhava lord and the Karaka concerned are placed at 3rd/11th, or 5th/9th or 4th/10th positions from each other, preferably in good Bhavas, and whether or not they receive support from the lord of the Ascendant, and the Sun, the Karaka.

If these two things occur, there is a great possibility of the fructification of the Bhava's significations, despite the afflictions bothering the whole team — the Bhava, its lord and the Karaka. If the benefic Moon also associates with any of them, it will be much better.

In timing events conveniently, I take into account

(i) the fundamental nature of a planet — serving as an occupant, an aspector or an associate —, besides his functional duties, and (ii) the natural and temporary relations between the planets governing the major or sub-periods, in addition to the other principles of the Udu Dasa. Suppose Libra is the Ascendant. Saturn becomes a functional Yogakaraka. But his fundamental nature never leaves him. If he aspects the Sun, the Bhava ruled by him or in which he is placed he cannot be expected to do only good there. Not the least. He is fundamentally opposed to the Sun. Of course, his being a Yogakaraka softens his sting. He further relents if they establish temporary friendship by being in the 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 10th, 11th and 12th places from each other.

My Guru in Astrology has advised me to consider invariably at least three out of the six sources of strength, namely, (i) sthanabala, (ii) digbala, and (iii) drugbala. I judge all these balas only in the Rasi chart. I find the advice very useful.

Reverting to the study of the factors for the native's financial prosperity, I believe that the Ascendant, its lord and the Karaka, the Sun, deserve consideration first of all. When strong, they certainly help him to achieve a high standard of living despite the other unfavourable planetary combinations.

I fully agree with DR. B. V. RAMAN'S view expressed at p. 27 of How To Judge A Horoscope, Vol. I that "Lord of Lagna in a decent position is itself a great asset which sustains a person throughout his life". As regards 'the decent position' of the Lagna lord, I feel that the best place for him to occupy is the Lagna itself. Then, he is very strong, and is in a position to withstand the afflictions likely to trouble him. If the strong Sun, the Karaka, is at a benefic place from him, he (the Lagna lord) gets the stated position.

It is frankly opined by the learned in Astrology that the Bhava lord should occupy a Kendra or a Trikona. It is also agreed that exaltation is the highest position for him. I do not think so. Then, he becomes a tenant, and has to bank upon his dispositor, who may be weak or afflicted. Moreover, the dictum that whichever Bhava is aspected by its own lord prospers well is also not fully realised if the Lagna lord occupies a Kendra or Trikona. For example, If Libra is the Lagna and Venus occupies the 9th or 10th, he cannot aspect the Lagna from there. Jupiter, Saturn and Mars can do so in a restricted way. The exaltation also is not the highest position. If Venus for the same Lagna is exalted, he is placed in the 6th, a place of strife, debt and disease. His power to do good is reduced. Such dicta need to be modified to cover their contradictory natures.

There is no exaggeration in the following words of DR. B. V. RAMAN, our esteemed Editor: "Whatever may be the nature of combinations causing poverty or wealth, the strong and powerful disposition of the Ascendant and its lord will exercise a powerful influence in maintaining the status quo of the native in different spheres of his activities."[1] He has not included the Sun, the Karaka, who is surely a big factor for the status quo.

Even for the generation of Lakshmi Yoga, there is a need for the Lagna lord to be powerful. The best definition of this Yoga is given by DR. B. V. RAMAN "If the lord of Lagna is powerful and the lord of the 9th occupies own or exaltation sign identical with a Kendra or Trikona, Lakshmi Yoga is caused."[2] We all know what this Yoga means.

Of all the Lagnas, Libra is the best for financial prosperity. Venus, if beneficially disposed, takes the lead in raising the native's financial status.

I must also point out that if all the three — the Lagna, its lord and the Sun — are weak or afflicted, and are also having the association of an unbridled Rahu or a malefic the very foundation of the horoscope is deeply shaken. The native suffers painful setbacks in his financial matters owing to wrong decisions.

The 2nd Bhava

The 2nd Bhava, its lord and Jupiter, the Karaka, represent (accumulated) wealth which is useful for celebrations or exigencies. If they are strong the accumulated wealth is justly spent. There is no theft, litigation, fines, fraud through enemies, etc. The associations of the 1st, its lord and the Sun with the 2nd and its agents increase the native's wealth steadily through his own efforts. If the 9th, its lord and the Karakas (the Sun and Jupiter) are related to them, much inheritance is shown, which also pushes up his financial status. When the 2nd Bhava and its agents are strong, but are under evil aspects or associations, particularly through the 6th, its lord and Saturn and Rahu - the representatives of scantiness and paucity, he faces shortage of cash. He is pushed into debts if the other factors governing the gamut of financial prosperity are not sound.

The following two slokas culled from Bhavartha Ratnakara concerning 'combinations for poverty' need some clarification or modification, which I have ventured to make:

मारकग्रहसंष्टौ निर्धनश्च भवेन्नरः ॥ 3 ॥

"The native is rendered poor if the 2nd lord occupies the 12th and the 12th lord is placed in the Lagna aspected by a Maraka".. (Translation mine)

What the author Ramanujacharya stresses is that when the Lagna and the 2nd lord are weakened, the native becomes poor. He has not stated anything about the Lagna lord and the 2nd Bhava and the concerned Karaka of these Bhavas. Only the two factors out of the six — the Lagna, its lord, the Sun, the 2nd, its lord and Jupiter — cannot cause poverty. Moreover, he has not made it clear as to which planet is to be treated as a Maraka. The 2nd lord when placed in the 12th behaves as a strong Maraka. The Lagna lord also when posited in the 7th acts as a Maraka. The sloka is very alluring for its simplicity, but it has less than half truth. Its application in financial matters needs the above additions. The Maraka may be replaced by a malefic.

जातस्य निर्धनो योगो वक्तव्यस्य सदा बुधैः ॥ 2 ॥

"If the 2nd lord occupies the 12th and the 12th lord is placed in the 2nd, the native suffers from poverty."

(Translation mine)

Here the sage refers to the exchange between the lords of the 2nd and 12th. I feel this exchange in itself cannot make the native poor. I have often observed that an exchange between the lords of two Bhavas -- even if the 6th, 8th and 12th are involved -- does not damage the good house much unless it is further afflicted by a strong malefic. Rather, it guarantees the promotion of the said Bhavas' significations.

Both the lords are bound by the precept of mutual interest

The nature of the planet influencing the 2nd, its lord and Jupiter and the place of operation from which the influence is sent out decide the way wealth is piled up.

Kalatramooladdhana Yoga supports this observation. It states that the native becomes rich on account of his wife — "If the strong lord of the 2nd should join or be aspected by the 7th lord and Venus and the lord of the Lagna(must) be powerful."[3]

The 4th Bhava

I have included the 4th, Venus and Mars as they all rule the native's immovable property, vehicles and domestic appliances, which are an integral part of his financial status. When the 4th, its lord and Venus and Mars are strong or free from afflictions, they place him in a comfortable position and he enjoys many luxuries. Their associations with the 9th, its lord and the Sun ensure that he will get landed property and other valuable things from his father. When the 12th, its lord and Saturn, the Karaka, are related to the 4th and its agents, he spends money on their purchase during the periods of the planets concerned, provided the malefics do not stand in their associations. If they do, he may sell them. When the 6th, its lord and its Karaka are in the picture, he is likely to be troubled by litigation or debts or enemies in their matters. The planets involved should be much afflicted, otherwise there is no chance of their being sold out or lost, though there may be some problems, which he may overcome under the operation of the benefic planets.

Sarvartha Chintamani has taken up almost the same combinations concerning the native's landed property and other belongings, but it has not included inheritance (from father) in the results they bring about. I wish to emphasize the fact that the following combinations do bless him with good inheritance from father:

भाग्यस्थिते वाहनराशिनाथे सशुक्रजीवे सुखराशियुक्ते ।
भाग्याधिपे कोणचतुष्टये वा बहुवर्यदेशा भरणार्थयान्म ॥

—Sarvatha Chintamani, Chapter IV, Sloka 157.

"If the 4th lord occupies the 9th, Jupiter and Venus are placed in the 4th and the 9th lord is in a Kendra or trine, the native possesses valuable land, ornaments, wealth and many conveyances."

The 9th represents bhagya (fortune), and is, therefore, unequalled in importance. If the strong 9th, its lord and the Sun and Jupiter happen to unite with some of these — the 1st, 2nd, 4th, 10th and 11th and their lords (Karakas are also included), father and fortune favour the native with financial prosperity. But if the 9th and its agents are weak or afflicted, he finds obstructions in his moves to raise it. I do not say he will not become wealthy. My point is — life is not going to be easy--despite the strong positions of other factors ruling financial prosperity.

I have observed that the influences of the Bhavas and the planets falling on the 9th and its agents reveal the manner through which fortune blesses the native. For instance, if the 4th, its lord and its Karakas — Mercury (education), the Moon (mother), Venus (luxuries) and Mars (landed property) — influence them, these, in the guise of fortune, do so.

There is much truth in the following statement of DR. B. V. RAMAN: "When the 9th lord is placed in the 1st house, the native becomes a self-made man. He earns much money through his own efforts."[4] The same effect is obtained when the Lagna lord occupies the 9th or associates with its lord. The only thing is that the malefics, whatever be the manner of their assault, should not disturb them.

The 10th Bhava

Since the 10th rules livelihood, it also needs to be examined regarding the native's professional or financial opportunities and their outcome. If the 10th, its lord and the Karakas are strong, the native is engaged in a respectable occupation, which brings in more money than he actually needs. Generally, four Karakas — the Sun, Jupiter, Saturn and Mercury — are mentioned for the 10th, but DR. B. V. RAMAN states[5] only one, Jupiter. I treat Saturn and Jupiter to be its Karakas. Industry and wealth signified by them are chiefly related to the Karmasthana. The relation of some of the factors of financial prosperity to the 10th and its agents makes a good ground for the native being financially well off through his professional activities. But when the 10th and its agents are weak or afflicted, he fails to promote his riches. Whatever wealth he has is drained away gradually as a result of misdeeds. The mode of earnings depend upon the Bhavas and the planets with which the 10th and its agents join hands. An example —If the 10th, 6th and Mars are combined, his occupation may have some bearing on hospital, law and the allied departments.

The 11th Bhava

Varahamihira states that the 11th rules aya (income) and Mahadeva calls it labhasthana (place of gains). Without income or gains, the native's financial status remains stagnant. The 11th and its agents —the lord and Jupiter — must be strong to generate wealth for him. The sloka given below explains the role of this Bhava nicely:

लाभेश्वरे केंद्रगते त्रिकोणे वा समन्विते ।
लाभे वा पापसंयुक्ते धनलाभ मुढीरयेत् ॥

"If the lord of the 11th is in a Kendra or Trikona, or if a malefic occupies the 11th, th native gets a lot of income."

[Sarvartha Chintamani, 11th Bhava' Sl. No. 2 (Translation mine)]

The following words differentiate betwee the ways of earning wealth.

"If a benefic planet occupies the 11th Bhava the native acquires wealth through honest an noble means. If malefics be in the 11th Bhava the native resorts to unfair and unscrupulou methods of earnings.[6]

The source of gains or income can be know through the nature of the planets or Bhava related to the 11th, its lord and its Karaka. Fo example Mars as 3rd lord influencing the 11t and its agents may help the native to gai through lands, brothers, factories, machine tools, hardware goods, short journeys, writing and means of communications. The amount o gains depends on the strength of the Bhavas o planets involved.

The Moon and Mercury

They signify reactions and discriminati faculty. If beneficially disposed, they help th native to think and act sanely. Then, most of hi plans to raise his income succeed. I alway focus my attention on their attitude to ascerta the native's bent of mind. Most of our suffering including the financial ones are the result o wrong thinking without the favours of the Moo and Mercury, then one cannot scale the heigh of financial bliss, even if its other indicatio are bright.

A word about the 6th, 8th and 12th. The significations — debts, disease, litigation, en mies, disgrace, sorrow, impediments an losses, extravagance and expenditure — pro bad for the native's financial prosperity, whe these Bhavas, their lords and Saturn th common Karaka influence the factors promi ing this prosperity, particularly if these Bhava and their agents are afflicted.

There is much controversy about their role I have often observed that when these Bhava are occupied by their own lords, and are n afflicted, and Saturn is strong, they create ve few troubles. But their 'bite' is indeed ve painful if they are otherwise.

Why be Afraid of Saturn's Sade Sathe?

R. M. BANERJEE

1.0 FEARS lurk in an individual mind when Saturn in transit comes to the 12th house from his Moon-sign and such fears constantly haunt him till Saturn completely leaves the 2nd house from his natal Moon. This period of approximately 7 1/2 years' duration is termed in astrological parlance as Saturn's Sade Sathe and in reality is a sub-cycle of Saturn's complete revolution around the zodiac in 30 years. Analysis of empirical materials at the disposal of astrologers reveals a high concentration of important events in human life around the period of Sade Sathe and many people reportedly were not happy with their experience during this critical phase of life. In fact, varied events structurally different with significant future implications have been observed to occur during the Sade Sathe of a man's life. This establishes a prima-facie case for attaching so much importance to this astrological phenomenon but reasons for being unnecessarily panicky about it can, hardly be defended.

Sade Sathe, as already stated, is basically a period of change coming in every human life in a cycle of 30 years. All men would have continued in their state of rest or of uniform motion unless they are impressed upon by some external force to change that state and Saturn is the harbinger of that change. It cannot however be ignored that such vital changes with far-reaching consequences also take place in a man's life when Saturn in transit attacks the other luminary viz., the Sun in his chart and/or transiting Saturn contacts his radical Saturn. Even then astrologers argue that Sade Sathe is of longer duration with effects spread over a fairly long period and so its importance must be greater.

1.1 Events, during Sade Sathe identified through analysis of astro data and dialogue with individuals offer a varied spectrum.

These are (i) love or negotiated marriage usually consummated through enormous troubles, (ii) job entry, job transfer, job change and even promotions, (iii) abrupt termination of academic career and entry into service life, (iv) breakdown of long-standing relations and new emotional tie-ups, (v) change of residence and even drift to foreign land, (vi) retirement from service, realisation of due and complete change in life-style (vii) bereavement in the family and arrival of new member as compensation for loss. Incidents during Sade Sathe therefore are all not bad and compensating elements are also there in this strategic sub-cycle.

1.2 An exercise on realistic appraisal of 'Sade Sathe' takes the following factors into consideration:

Firstly what is not promised in the basic chart will never be fulfilled in one's lifetime, let alone Sade Sathe. So without properly examining the horoscope, there is hardly any reason for being unnecessarily apprehensive about an unpleasant event to occur during this period. My father had his 10th lord Moon in the 10th house in Cancer strongly aspected by Jupiter. He worked in the same office during 40 years and Sade Sathe could not dislodge him from his stable posting. That is why Hindu Astrology has produced a wealth of literature on horoscope analysis, house study, planetary strength and interrelationships.

Secondly, Saturn's Sade Sathe cannot transcend limitations set by Dasa. Dasa method in predictive Astrology has successfully withstood years of rigorous statistical testing by competent astrologers. Basic events stored in horoscopes inexorably unfold themselves through a sequence of periods and sub-periods. Against this backdrop, Saturn's Sade Sathe can at best be interpreted as a superimposition of a cycle of small amplitude on that trend-line which can temporarily depress the trend or elevate it but can seldom supersede it. So, if foreign travel strongly indicated in a birth chart is estimated by an astrologer to take place during a particular Dasa and sub-Dasa which just happens to fall within Saturn's 7 1/2 years sub-cycle, the event materialises during that period and credit or discredit goes to Saturn. A practical case may be used to demonstrate the point.

Horoscope 1. Rasi: Scorpio - Ascendant, Sun, Mercury and Rahu; Capricorn - Jupiter and Mars; Pisces - Saturn (R); Aries - Moon; Taurus - Ketu; and Libra - Venus. In this horoscope foreign journey is strongly indicated. The lady was undergoing Moon-Venus during 1970-71 when transiting Saturn was on her radical Moon. The Dasa lord which is also the lord of the 9th house is found locked in a reciprocal aspect relationship with the Bhukti lord Venus, the lord of the 12th house being also in the 12th. The lady gave up her Government service when Saturn was about to leave Aries for Taurus in April 1971. She went to the U.S.A., got a job and permanently settled there. So here Dasa reigned supreme and Saturn merely acted as a catalyst. Had Dasa run counter to the Sade Sathe, Saturn would not have dislodged the native from her place of birth. The Editorial of May 1990 issue of the A.M. discussed the same point with the help of a horoscope, of course, in a different context.

Horoscope 2. Rasi: Leo - Ascendant, Sun and Venus (R); Virgo - Mercury and Moon; Libra - Mars and Jupiter; Sagittarius - Rahu; Aquarius - Saturn (R); and Gemini - Ketu. In this horoscope, basic indications in the birth chart regarding service and professional life present a dismal picture. The 10th lord Venus remaining retrograde in the Ascendant is conjunct Sun and aspected by both Saturn and Rahu. The native's Saturn Dasa started in 1978 when Saturn in transit was on his radical Sun and the first phase of Sade Sathe also commenced. The man gave up his salaried employment and started a business with disastrous consequences. Here in this horoscope Dasa is again found to be the main culprit and Sade Sathe just aggravated the adverse trend.

1.3 In this connection readers may recall that during Pandit Nehru's second Sade Sathe he became the first Prime Minister of India. Mrs. Indira Gandhi during her second Sade Sathe lost both her husband and father but during that period she also became the Prime Minister of India. Her basic horoscope*, was exceptionally strong and during Saturn's 2nd sub-cycle, she was under the influence of Jupiter as her period lord. Jupiter in her horoscope is the 9th lord in the 11th and directly aspecting her radical Sun in the 5th house. This Sun again is linked to her Yogakaraka Mars through exchange of houses. So Jupiter gave her eminence and success. It also gave its 6th house effect in the form of turmoil in her family life. So Mrs. Gandhi's 2nd Sade Sathe gave such results as expected from her horoscope within the constraints of Dasa at that time. Incidentally it may be mentioned that she died in October 1984 when Saturn in transit through Libra aspected her radical Saturn in the Ascendant sign Cancer. She was at that time far away from her 3rd Sade Sathe.

1.4 So given basic indications and Dasa as the datum of the situation some attempts may be made to analyse effects of Sade Sathe, which, needless to say, will vary from individual to individual depending upon overall planetary build-up of his/her horoscope.

Direction of Sade Sathe: As regards assessment of anticipated results during Sade Sathe Dr. B. V. Raman has suggested a simple but very useful method which is as follows. Reckon Saturn's lordship from the Moon and the Ascendant signs of a birthchart. Saturn, in all probability, will try to give such results during its Sade Sathe which are expected of due to its lordship over specific houses. Thus if Taurus is the Moon-sign, a man may expect a breakthrough in his luck and career during his Sade Sathe. If Leo is the Moon-sign, he may marry and so on. Of course these structural changes will be attended with usual troubles and turmoils characteristic of Sade Sathe.

Dr. Raman has further observed that he has found the method to be correct in the majority of horoscopes studied by him during the past five decades (My Early Experiences in Astrology - XXI, A.M., May 1986, P. 400) and so implicitly recommends its use. Inspired by this observation, the present writer also statistically tested the hypothesis and found results to be highly positive in a good proportion of cases. It was also felt that precision in estimates can be further improved through a simultaneous consideration of Saturn's lordship from the Moon-sign, the Ascendant and the Sun-sign.

Born on 6.2.1947 at 4.20 p.m. at Calutta with a balance of 4 years, 7 months and 2 days of Ketu Dasa at birth to his credit.

Rasi: Cancer - Ascendant and Saturn (R); Leo - Moon; Scorpio - Jupiter and Ketu; Sagittarius - Venus; Capricorn - Sun and Mars; Aquarius - Mercury; and Taurus - Rahu. In this horoscope Saturn is the lord of 7th house when the 7th house is reckoned both from the Ascendant and the Moon. In the middle of 1979 or to be more precise when transiting Saturn was on his radical Moon, the native, all of a sudden, married. He also faced a lot of troubles both in his family and place of work and suffered from various physical ailments (6th and 8th house effects of Saturn).

1.5 Intensity of Sade Sathe

Intensity of Sade Sathe also differs from horoscope to horoscope and can be determined in the first place by counting the number of dots in the strategic houses (viz., the 12th, 1st and 2nd houses from the Rasi) in the Asthakavarga chart of the native. If these houses contain an insufficient number of dots, the native may, in all likelihood, face rough weather during his Sade Sathe. If those houses display marked variation in the number of dots, abrupt fluctuation in the intensity of Sade Sathe effects can be postulated. This technique of intensity measurement finds elegant expression in Mr. G. S. Patel's paper 'Use of Ashtakarvarga in Prognostication' (A.M. September 1985, P 709). I request readers to go through it as it is sufficiently enriched with empirical evidence in support of the theory. One more example, however, from our inventory may not be out of place.

Born on 26-11-1944 with a balance of 3 years, 8 months of Mercury Dasa at birth.

Rasi: Cancer - Ascendant; Virgo - Jupiter; Scorpio - Sun and Mars; Sagittarius - Venus, Mercury and Ketu; Pisces - Moon; and Gemini - Saturn (R) and Rahu.

The number of dots in the 12th, 1st and 2nd from her Moon-sign work out to 27, 19 and 35 respectively which visibly display jerks from medium high to abrupt low and then again to sharp increase. In the first 2 1/2 years' of Sade Sathe, the lady did not feel anything significant. Then from 1966-68 when transiting Saturn was on the lady's radical Moon, she began to suffer from various physical ailments. She became mentally depressed as negotiations for her marriage, one after another, did not mature. The whole atmosphere in the family was tense. Against that unfavourable trend, she however got a temporary appointment in a school. This result given by Saturn appears to be quite consistent with Saturn's lordship over the 11th house from the Rasi. But as soon as Saturn left Pisces for Aries, the whole scenario totally changed. In February 1970 the lady was married to an educated, well-to-do gentleman and got settled. This abrupt change can be astrologically explained in terms of a sharp rise in the number of dots. Readers may please note that Saturn is also the lord of 7th house reckoned from her Ascendant and transiting Saturn from Aries activated her radical Saturn in Gemini and aspected her 7th house Capricorn. Reckon Saturn's lordship both from the Moon and the Ascendant and calculate the number of dots in the strategic signs. You can obtain an idea of the direction and intensity of Sade Sathe effect. We may call it Raman-Patel effect.

1.6 Instead of using sophisticated techniques as suggested in the paragraph above, readers can obtain a rough and ready estimate of the intensity of Sade Sathe through a careful study of the position and lordship of the Moon and its relationship with other planets in the birth chart. Thus effects of Sade Sathe will be invariably pronounced if (i) the Moon stands afflicted in the horoscope with Saturn, Rahu or Mars either individually, jointly or severally; (ii) it is located in the 6th, 8th or 12th house with anyone of these lords; (iii) the Sun and Moon are conjoined, or the Sun is exactly opposed to the Moon or the Sun remains either in the 3rd or 10th house from the Moon, the effects of Sade Sathe may be realistically presumed to be greater than other alternative arrangements, of career. He changed horses several times to suit his political ambitions. He succeeded in occupying prime minister's chair for about 5 to 6 months by betraying his colleagues. Thus, Rahu's influence here is apparent in his case. Queen Elizabeth of England has Mars and Jupiter in the 2nd in Capricorn and the Moon in the 8th in Cancer. This has caused a first-class Chandra Mangala Yoga with Guru-Mangala and Neechabhanga Raja Yogas. Besides stability and durability of her reign, she has vast wealth obtained through inheritance.

Capricorn

For Capricorn Lagna also, Chandra-Mangala Yoga may have great significance. The Moon and Mars in Lagna may cause Ruchaka Yoga in addition to a Chandra-Mangala Yoga. The Moon in the 7th and Mars in Lagna may also cause the above two Yogas. The Moon in Lagna and Mars in the 7th may cause Chandra-Mangala and Neecha bhanga Raja Yogas. Mao-Tse-Tung had Moon in the 8th in Leo and Mars and Mercury in the 11th in Scorpio. He had to struggle for long and he was an expert in betraying his friends. He was surrounded by a caucus led by his wife that virtually led to his downfall at the fag end of his career. Although through help of other Yogas he remained in power for long and Chandra-Mangala Yoga also helped him to gain power, yet his 7th lord Moon in the 8th made him virtually bereft of all powers in his last days owing to the misdeeds of his wife.

Aquarius

For Aquarius natives, Chandra-Mangala Yoga is not so helpful. The Moon in the 4th and Mars in the 10th is the best position for high profession and rich property. Mars in the 12th and the Moon in the 6th is a good position for success in social and spiritual fields. Karl Marx had Mars in the 6th and the Sun, Moon and Rahu in the 3rd. His Moon was afflicted badly. Karl Marx gave a new social philosophy that was based on class-struggle. An Indian air-force officer who later became an M.B.B.S. doctor has Mars in the 4th in Taurus and the Moon in Leo in the 7th. He has earned much wealth as a doctor. If this native had his Moon in Taurus and Mars in Leo he would have had great success in a military career. K. K. Birla, the great capitalist, has exalted Mars in the 12th and Moon in the 6th. Jupiter in the 4th aspects his Mars. His Mercury-Rahu in the 2nd causes a Neechabhanga Raja Yoga due to the 2nd lord Jupiter in a Kendra from Lagna. The 12th lord Saturn in the 8th caused Vipareeta Raja Yoga. His Chandra-Mangala Yoga made him very rich through export import business.

Pisces

For Pisces Lagna, Chandra-Mangala Yoga carries much significance. The Moon and Mars in the 2nd or Mars in the 2nd and the Moon in the 5th or Mars in the 11th and the Moon in the 5th or Mars in the 5th and the Moon in the 11th and Mars in the 5th may give quite favourable results. An officer of ex-Chief Secretary rank with Pisces Lagna has Mars and Venus in the 5th and the Moon and Saturn in the 11th. Apart from Chandra-Mangala Yoga he has Neechabhanga Raja Yoga and a special Raja Yoga caused by the Moon and Saturn in the 11th. Another I.A.S. officer who is a Divisional Commissioner and is of Pisces Lagna has his Moon and Mars in the 2nd house which is a good position for Chandra-Mangala Yoga. Also, Saturn in the 2nd house has caused Neechabhanga Raja Yoga.

From the discussions so far it is obvious that Chandra-Mangala Yoga is an important combination for material prosperity. Even if it is adverse to material prosperity, one can harness its energy properly in social or spiritual directions.

Importance of Moon and Mars Dasas

The general consensus among astrologers is that Chandra-Mangala Yoga will give specific results only in the Dasas of the Moon and Mars and if these Dasas do not run in life its results will be experienced in a modest form in a general way. We shall see how far this view is correct from some important cases.

(1) M. S. Golvalkar, a Capricorn native, had Moon in the 12th and Mars in the 3rd forming a Chandra-Mangala Yoga. His active interest in Hindu culture began in the Dasa of the Moon. He came to prominence in the RSS. In Mars Dasa he became the head of the R.S.S. Thus, both Dasas played a very important role in his life.

(2) General Franco of Spain, a Libra native, had Mars in the 5th and the Moon in the 8th constituting Chandra-Mangala Yoga. His Dasas of the Moon and Mars were over before he was 8 years. However, the dispositor of Mars, Saturn in its Dasa made him the dictator of Spain.

(3) Swami Sivananda, a Cancer native, had Mars in Lagna and the Moon in the 10th constituting Chandra-Mangala Yoga, Maha Yoga and Neechabhanga Raja Yoga. Saturn and Rahu also occupied Lagna. The Moon and Mars Dasas gave him very good results. He became a full-fledged doctor in Mars Dasa. In Rahu Dasa he pursued a successful medical career in a foreign land (Malaya). Rahu is with Mars whose dispositor is the Moon. So, Rahu gave the results of Chandra-Mangala Yoga in its Dasa. It was in Jupiter Dasa that he joined the spiritual line.

(4) Mussolini, a Scorpio native, with Moon, Saturn and Mars in the 7th had finished the Moon and Mars Dasa before he was 11 years old. Surprisingly, he rose to power in Saturn Dasa. Here the conjoining planet Saturn gave the results of the Moon and Mars.

(5) Hyder Ali, a Libra native, had the Sun, Moon, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn in the 2nd. He was born in Mercury Dasa and so the Dasas of Jupiter and Saturn were almost out of question. Venus is in the 4th. He reached the top of his political career in Venus Dasa. In Sun Dasa he inflicted a crushing defeat on the English but in the Moon Dasa he could not succeed in routing the English. He fell ill and died in Mars Dasa. As his Moon and Mars were severely afflicted their Dasas gave him troublesome results. Mars being a strong maraka gave him illness leading to death.

(6) Aurangzeb, an Aquarius native, had the Moon and Saturn in the 4th and Mars in the 7th. Jupiter aspected his Mars. He had Jupiter in Lagna. His Moon Dasa ran between his 3rd and 13th years when he enjoyed the privileges of a prince. In Mars Dasa he got married and appointed as the Moghul Viceroy of the Deccan. It paved the way for his future rise in career.

It is clear from the above illustrations that the Moon and Mars in their Dasas will give the results of Chandra-Mangala Yoga not freely but within the control of other astrological conditions. If the Dasas of the Moon and Mars do not run in one's lifetime, the results of Chandra-Mangala Yoga may be felt in the Dasas of their dispositors or planets associating with them or in Dasas of Rahu or Ketu when the Moon or Mars is the dispositor of Rahu or Ketu.--176.90.

the Sun and the Moon because under the first type of arrangement, transiting Saturn through Rasi will be able to attack both the luminaries in the chart; (iv) similarly those natives are sure to feel the full weight of Saturn's Sade Sathe if in their horoscopes the radical Sun, Moon and Saturn are consecutively placed. Under this type of arrangement, Sade Sathe will operate with equal intensity throughout the period giving little opportunity for the native to heave a sign of relief.

Examples above are illustrative and not exhaustive. In fact each horoscope is a type by itself. Its own planetary arrangement uniquely determines the extent to which transiting Saturn through the sensitive zone can attack crucial planets in the birth chart.

1.7 In conclusion, any discussion on Saturn's Sade Sathe remains incomplete without at least a passing reference to Jupiter's movement through different signs during that critical period. When Saturn in transit comes upon the Moon-sign in a chart, it may be that Jupiter at that time is also aspecting the native's radical Sun powerfully placed in the chart. So given adequate Dasa support, the native may even get a promotion in service after initial jerks when transiting Saturn connects itself with the Moon-sign, transiting Jupiter may also be apsecting this vital luminary. As a result Sade Sathe may be neutral to scale at least for a year. If that Jupiter in addition aspects his radical Venus, the native may also marry.

1.8 Saturn's Sade Sathe therefore never operates in isolation. It very much operates within the framework of a given chart and very much subservient to the dictates of Dasa. Given this, (i) one may ascertain Saturn's lordship reckoned from the Moon and the Ascendant sign, (ii) work out Ashtakavarga dots in the 12th, 1st and 2nd houses from the Rasi, (iii) meticulously study the pattern of planetary arrangement in the chart and also (iv) concurrently study Jupiter's transit. All these exercises invariably help an individual for a precise breakdown of his Sade Sathe results period by period—without being irrationally apprehensive about all sorts of evil to take place during this critical period.—189.90.

the Life Spark and its understanding of this relationship imparts to it the great unifying impulse. All actions, motives, aspirations of the persons evolving under this impulse will have the basic foundation of understanding as the primary motivating and centralising force in their life. This we shall call the Second Ray.

Mercury leads to comprehension which is different from understanding aroused under the impulse of the Moon. The difference between the Second Ray and the Ray of Mercury is very subtle. It is not without any significance that Mercury is said to be a son of Soma, the Moon. Comprehension arises when a certain situation, certain relationship, certain ideas, certain facts are presented to the individual. Out of the given, Mercury reveals a new relationship, something not obvious. It leads to an understanding of the real significance of the situations and facts presented, The understanding arises as a result of mentation. Mentation is a subjective process but it has to have certain nucleus. Wisdom does not have a cause, it does not have a seed, or a nucleus. Wisdom is at the back of comprehension.

If and when we consider the relationship between the two planets namely, the Sun and the Moon, and the remaining five planets namely, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn we shall see how all these have to merge in the former two before merging in the Original Cause, but here we shall not go into these details. Under the Third Ray one becomes pioneer of ideas, he becomes a philosopher, there is polarisation between the real essence of things and situations presented as the nucleus and the real import or the significance of these situations and the things. This polarisation could lead to conflict, as well as the desire to unify the two—the ideas and the reality—which might be understood as the urge to create (which is different from the creative urges under the impulse of Venus and Mars); it also leads to adaptability which occurs when comprehension is tinged with understanding. The nature of the Third Ray is very enigmatic.

The diagram will similarly show the significance of other planetary impulses but it should be recognised that the individuals do not necessarily express the primeval qualities of the planet linked with them basically at each birth, because we meet the individuals during the middle course of their evolutionary journey. The karmic forces which have enmeshed the individual in diverse situations often blur the clear ray of the specific planet. The horoscopic planetary conjuncture reveals the situation of the individual's journey: It indicates the stage of his evolutionary journey and when the stage for clearer flashing of the specific ray arrives. It is helpful for the individual to approach his chart with a view to understanding his stage in his evolutionary pilgrimage. In this regard, the individual will have to examine the nature of different planets and the pattern of horoscopes. (Sometime back I had introduced to the readers of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE the subject of the Patterns of Horoscope and how they reveal some of the basic Karmic forces working on the individual. Many readers have been good enough to send me the feedback to state that the approach suggested there was very helpful to their understanding of the numerous problems of their everyday life.) These patterns reveal to the individual how Karmic forces are inducing him through certain situations which could ultimately make the path clear so that he could embark on his ultimate pilgrimage when the pure Ray of the specific planet could shine through his life.

The discovery of one's Ray and the stage of one's evolutionary status are important and very satisfying. But the discovery and the understanding of these on the basis of horoscopic indications will require much more understanding of the method of 'reading' the horoscope. In the classical works only hints and suggestions are given but direct teachings and clues are not given. On one's intuition and other occult teachings one may attempt to pierce the veil but it has to be an individual effort. The limitations of space restricts us from going into details of these intricate details. If the readers find the subject interesting and if it has aroused in them a little desire to pursue the subject in its esoteric dimensions, the scribe is grateful to the Editor of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE for giving him this opportunity.—214.90.

The Operating Planets

The wealth possessed by the native usually increases or decreases. The operating planets connected with the Bhavas or planets ruling financial prosperity help us to know whether times are good or bad for it.

While judging the effects shown by the operating planets, I also take into view their transit positions, which enable me to measure their actual strength at the time of their working. It requires clarification: Suppose, the native is having the Dasa or Bhukti of Saturn, who is exalted, and beneficially disposed. He is expected to benefit him through his Karakatwas or the Bhavas under his effects, particularly the ones he rules or occupies. But if he goes combust or is afflicted or is debilitated in transit, his potency to do good is lessened immensely.

I conclude by stating that the more the number of factors of financial prosperity are related to one another, the better it is for its steady promotion. They should be free from afflictions or weaknesses. The concerned planets must operate, otherwise the financial prospects visible in the horoscope are not realised.

I will discuss only two horoscopes to illustrate my views.

1. Born 29-10-1955 at 4. p.m.(IST) at 28° 37' N, 77° 04' E with a balance of 15 years, 9 months and 1 day of Mercury Dasa at birth.

A perusal of this chart indicates that the native has good financial prospects and his financial status will be high, though he will have to face tension and hardship in his business undertakings.

Pisces is the Lagna. The benefic Moon occupies it. Mars and Mercury as lords of the 2nd, 9th and 4th and 7th aspect it from the 7th. Jupiter, the Lagna lord, is in the 6th, the Bhava of struggle. There are no other aspects on the Lagna and its lord. This is certainly propitious. The Karaka, the Sun, occupies the 8th with his debilitation cancelled. He is weak being with his enemies. Papakartari Yoga also afflicts him. The 2nd is aspected by Mars, its own lord, Venus, the Sun and Saturn. Except Mars, they are not disposed favourably to it, being malefics for Pisces Lagna. But Mars is a great saving factor. The 4th is without aspects, good or bad, and its lord, Mercury occupies the 7th in his own sign along with Mars, the 2nd and 9th lord. The bhagyasthana and its Karakas are not strong, but its lord, Mars, is. Debilitated Rahu is bad there. The 10th is aspected by its own lord, Jupiter, from the 6th, indicating that his business will be struggle-oriented, but the outcome of his actions will be good. The Karakas for the 10th have average strength. They aspect it giving it additional support. The 11th, its lord and Jupiter, the Karaka, are not very fortified, showing obstructed gains and irregular income. The other Karakas for the Bhavas governing financial prosperity are not satisfactorily strong.

Jupiter does not enjoy any of the three sources of strength, generally considered by me. His dispositor is also weak. Mars, with his dispositor, has good Sthanabala, half Digbala and much Drugbala. Mercury is also powerful. The other planets do not have these strengths even moderately. In Navamsa, the planets ruling financial prosperity have lost some points.

Venus Dasa began operating on 30th July 1978, and since then the native's financial position has been improving much. Venus rules the 3rd and 8th: initiative and impediments. He is in his own sign and associated with Saturn, his friend. Saturn is exalted, and rules the 11th and 12th. Venus is placed in the 3rd from Jupiter, the 10th lord. Both Venus and Saturn are able to counteract the pricks the unfavourable Sun causes. Mars, the planet of drive, influences the strong Moon and Mercury, making the native impatient, ambitious and even restless.

He has a very spacious house, a car and other modern amenities, but his bank balance fluctuates. His inheritance is almost negligible.

Expenses are also heavy. He has three sources of income. His financial status is good. It will go higher in the Dasas of the Moon and Mars. At present he has the Dasa and Bhukti of Venus and Jupiter. It is a slightly good period for financial matters. Their positions in transit are not sound, though Jupiter, the sub-period lord, is exalted. The sub-periods of Venus and other planets (except Rahu) have brought in much wealth, comforts of course through struggle and tension. The Dasa period lord points to the roots. The sub-period lords do take nourishment from him, though they also depend on their own strengths.

2. Born 2-5-1944 at 8.32 a.m. (IST) 30° 0' N, 76° 48' E with a balance of 2 years, 4 months and 4 days of Ketu Dasa at birth.

KETU			MOON

KETU		MARS VENUS	MOON
JUPIT.	NAVAMSA
	ASCDT.	SAT.	SUN MERC. RAHU

This horoscope belongs to a man who is thoroughly self-made and moderately rich. Its beauty lies in the fact that the lords of the Lagna and 11th have exchanged places, indicating much potential for income and gains. Saturn, the 9th lord, occupies the Lagna in a friendly sign. He aspects the 10th, showing that the native will make his life through self-effort and industry. He earned money even as a 10th class student. The Sun the Karaka for the Lagna, is exalted in the 11th. He rules the Parakrama Bhava, and becomes gain-oriented. Mercury, the Lagna lord, is both combust and retrograde. Venus, the best benefic for Gemini Lagna, gives him company. Mercury is decidedly powerful. The 2nd has exalted Jupiter, who rules the 7th and 10th, and Rahu who has also turned favourable because of benefic influence. The 2nd lord, the Moon, occupies the 3rd and aspects the 9th, the Bhagyasthana. His dispositor is exalted. The 2nd Bhava and its lord and its Karaka Jupiter are strong. There is no planet in the 4th, and its lord, Mercury, is in the 11th. Mars aspects it. The 4th and its lord are also strong. Venus, one of its Karakas, is not combust. Both the Karakas for the 9th, the Sun and Jupiter are exalted, and its lord, Saturn is with Mars, the ruler of the 6th and 11th. The 10th is vacant, but is aspected by its own lord Jupiter from the 2nd. Its Karakas, Jupiter and Saturn, are powerful. The 11th, its lord and its Karaka, Jupiter, are stronger than all the factors governing financial prosperity.

The Sun has Sthanabala, Digbala and Drugbala. Jupiter also enjoys all the three balas. Saturn has only half Sthanabala. Mercury, the Moon and Venus have half of these balas. In Navamsa, the positions of the planets ruling financial prosperity have slightly improved.

Jupiter and Venus are in Kendras from each other. The Moon and Mercury are in 5th/9th positions from each other. There is less intervention from the 6th, 8th and 12th, their lords and Saturn, the common Karaka. Most of the planets have established temporary friendships.

The native has received some inheritance from his father. He has reasonable comforts. The Dasas of the Sun, the Moon and Mars have pushed up his earnings, and have also brought him land, vehicle and other valuable things. He has good deposits. Now, Rahu is in operation, and his Dasa will end on 6th September 2007. The native will get more riches during this Dasa. In transit, Rahu Dasa and Bhukti lord, is not much afflicted.—209.90.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Political Forecasts

Sir, - The predictions mentioned in the Annual Number 1990 under "World Trends and Tensions in 1990/1991" were accurate and precise.

God bless you.

Shahid Mumtaz.
Obertshausen, Germany.

Sir, - Congratulations to you for predicting the fall of this government eight months back.

Could this ministry have survived if it had been sworn in at some better time? I doubt not. Will the new ministry set up by the Congress (I) with the breakaway group of Janata Dal survive? What is the future of the Indian Government——will it continue to be a democracy or will there be a military coup?

The job reservations under Mandal Commission report sponsored by the V.P. Singh Government was its biggest blunder followed by the Ram Janmabhoomi issue both of which you have so clearly highlighted. Will these problems continue to dog the future government or will these be also solved soon?

Please throw some light on these matters in your January 1991 issue and oblige.

Madras. A. S. Narayanan.

West Asia

Sir, - I have curiously gone through your interesting article of the time-bomb in West Asia. It could have been predicted easily from the then current transit of Mars on August 2. Baghdad (i.e., gifted by God in Arabic meaning the same as Sanskrit Devadatta) is on 44° 27' which would roughly indicate Taurus 14 as Iraqi M.C. On August 2, transiting Mars fully opposed Pluto:

M.C. - Taurus 14; Pluto - Scorpio 15; Mars - Taurus 13.

As long as Pluto remains in the 4th house of the locality chart, West Asia will be literally on a time-bomb! Some day, with appropriate transits it might cause a great fiery conflagration. God forbid!

I join many in extending my heartiest congratulations on predicting this event months ahead to my respected friend DR. B. V. RAMAN. I convey my best wishes to him.

Sir, - On reading your editorial (A.M., July 1990) what I deeply felt was about ancient India where our astrologers were enjoying their proper and rightfull place — as a cabinet minister or an adviser to the King.

How exactly and to the point, you review our national present and future problems considering the past history logically is admirable. Whatever you write is an eye-opener guideline for not only our politicians but also statesmen. Kindly accept my respectful regards and affection. I wish Almightly bless you with longevity.

Sri Surya Prakash Memorial Number

Sir, - The Sri Surya Prakash Memorial Number on matching of horoscopes is very timely and highly interesting.

All the articles are well written but I like the editorial article by Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev and I think it is very justified to have the charts delineated first before they are studied on conventional methods. Among Hindus it is a very common practice to have the charts matched before a marriage is settled but on many occasions the charts are not astrologically delineated.

The articles by Prof. P. S. Sastri and Mr. Iranganti Rangacharya on conventional methods of matching are interesiting, no doubt. Mr. Rangacharya goes by Jaimini and I am not very sure if the charts could be matched according to this system.

Calcutta. A. N. Bhattacharji.

Sir, - I must express our gratitude to you for bringing out the Sri Surya Prakash Memorial Number of the journal so nicely with a number of valuable articles on horoscope matching.

Several additions to the system of conventional matching e.g. runanubandham, as suggested by Mr. S. N. Kapoor are thought-provoking and worth study.

Varanasi. V. P. Shukla.

Sir, - I congratulate all the contriibutors for their deep knowledge of the subject. The following lines are worth reading.

Smt. Gayatri Devi Vasudev - Jupiter's aspect on the 7th house or the 7th lord ensures a reasonably happy and stable marriage.

Ekalavya - A good aspect between male Mars and female Venus will contribute to sex attraction.

K. N. Rao - If the 7th lord is in the 6th house, the Dasa of the 6th lord proves difficult in matrimonial affairs. If it comes early in one's married life the slightest provocation can lead to divorce and if it comes late in life it proves bad for the spouse as far as health is concerned.

S. R. Gupta - Jupiter tries his best to delay the event of separation or divorce or death.

S. N. Kapoor - Marriages are not settled by us but by our Karmas in the past life creating runanubandha.

S. Natarajan - Pushya is a constellation par excellence for all purposes excepting, of course, marriage.

I. Rangacharya - Matching should not be judged on the basis of the name star of the boy and birth star of the girl.

Buell D. Huggins - If Jupiter, lord of the 7th, is in the 6th, it leads to disgrace in marriage, separation from spouse who is or becomes impotent or contracts venereal disease.

Dr. P. S. Sastri - His article is a ready reckoner for the marriage settlement.

The research of Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev in respect of female charts reveals that "It is always the female chart that suffers the blow" is correct and thought-provoking. She thinks that this is due to Theory of Karma and Rebirth.

The articles of Dr. B. V. Raman, Messrs. Abhayakoon, H. R. Shankar, the late R. Lakshamanan are wanting in the A.M.

Composite Approach to Predictions

Sir, - The logical arguments in "Composite Approach to Predictions" (A.M., July, August 1990) have no textual basis. Fate or Destiny is for individuals and is not composite. In the absence of the horoscope, several methods have been given in Brihat Jataka to reconstruct the chart correctly. Bhrigu Samhita also gives the correct horoscope and reasons for the death in accidents correctly.

Lord Krishna's Horoscope

Sir, - I am a regular reader of your magazine. I am confused by the following (A.M., August 1990):

Please refer to the Rasi of Lord Krishna (page 627) under "Sidelights on Practical Astrology - IV".

Would you like to clarify the position of Rahu and Ketu in the chart of Lord Krishna? I think they are not in the correct place.

Sidelights on Astrology

Sir, - Mr. M. V. Subba Rao (A.M., August 1990) says that the direct aspect between exalted Mars and exalted Jupiter gives rise to Raja Yoga. But is not aspect between exalted planets very bad? Further both Mars and Jupiter are malefics in that horoscope, Mars being lord of 6 and 11 and Jupiter having Kendradhipatya Dosha.

Again, he says that the 2nd house Jupiter is very good for the development of wealth and family. Is the 2nd house Jupiter good for wealth?

He says that the 10th lord Moon in the 3rd house raises the individual to a very good position of power. But I have read that the placement of the 10th lord in the 3rd annihilates all the Rajayogas in the horoscope. It can be only like that because the 3rd is a dusthana and the 10th house and the 10th lord will be in shashtashtama. Further, the 10th lord Moon has Kendradhipatya Dosha, also, however little that may be.

We may be enlightened on these aspects.

Sir, - Mr. M. V. Subba Rao has discussed the horoscope of Mahatma Gandhi (page 416, A.M., May 1990) and he has also made a comparison of this horoscope with that of Pandit Nehru without mentioning the horoscope. He has mentioned the Ascendant of Mahatma Gandhi as Leo. Those of us who have read Notable Horoscopes (page 261) of our learned Editor know authentically that the Ascendant of this luminary of India is Libra.

Now my contention is that in Astrology without verifying the actual date of birth and time and place, can one draw the horoscope at random and explain the salient points. When the Ascendant is not correct no accurate analysis of the horoscope can be made. Astrology is a science. It has to be interpreted in the light of modern needs, situations etc. Science has a certain procedure. This is observation of phenomena, collection and compilation of data, interpretation and analysis and drawing inference. One may differ in drawing inference because it depends on experience, perception, interaction and value judgements. Will Mr. Subba Rao clarify?

I would request the learned Editor to give his comments in the case of such horoscopes. Thousands of persons every month read the Magazine and preserve it for reference and research purposes.

Propitiating Saturn

For propitiating Saturn, two more slokas (one Sani Gayatri and the other from the Navagraha Stotram are given below which your readers may find interesting and useful. (These slokas can be recited daily irrespective of Sadesathe, Ashtama Sani, Ardhashtama Sani or Kantaka Sani):

Sani Navagraha Stotram

Evil Muhurtas

Sir, - In the Table (A.M., October 1990, page 800) enumerating evil Muhurtas Gulike is included and Rahukalam excluded. Is it correct?

Trichy. R. Seshadri.

[T. V. N. Reddy replies: Rahu Kalam has not been dealt with in any of the four Muhurta Granthas cited by me. However, Mr. N. P. Subramania Iyer, who has translated Kalaprakasika*, has mentioned in a footnote as follows:* "Rahu Kalam - This is also inauspicious. It occurs only during the daytime on the following days; Sunday 4.30 to 6.00, Monday 7.30 to 9.00, Tuesday 3.00 to 4.30, Wednesday 12.00 to 1.30, Thursday 1.30 to 3.00, Friday 10.30 to 12.00, Saturday 9.00 to 10.30. These periods are positively harmful for all good business."

It may however be stated that the text of Kalaprakasika in Sanskrit does not contain anything about Rahu Kalam.

I request the readers to throw light on the classical or any other authority which treats Rahu Kalam as an evil muhurta.

I would also like to add a correction to my statement in the letter. In the sentence appearing just before the sloka of Gargacharya the statement should be that "Gargacharya has been quoted for non-applicability of the evil effects to certain parts of the country, and not for non-observance of Yamaganda under unavoidable circumstances".]

Matching of Charts

Sir, - Mr. R. A. Padmanabhan in "Quantificaton of Matching of Horoscopes for Marriage" (A.M., October 1990, page 777) had given a ready reckoner for matching of any two star pairs of bride and groom.

This chart is different from that given in Electional Astrology by DR. B. V. RAMAN. An example is quoted in the same article, i.e., boy's star is Krittika (Taurus) and girl's star is Swati (Libra). On matching these two stars according to Mr. Padmanabhan we get 26 kutas. According to DR. B. V. RAMAN, it shows only 11 kutas. As per ancient books and almanacs also we get 11 kutas and Shashtashtaka Yoga.

Please elucidate this discrepancy.

Sir, The September 1990 issue of A.M. is very valuable in so far as it has attempted to unfold many mysteries of planetary combinations that affect adversely married life. Prof. S. R. Gupta observes: "Similar afflictions in both the hoorscopes cannot bring in the expected compatibility or harmony." This seems to me a rare statement. I give below a case in point. Dosha Samya is not an 'opinion', but a widely followed convention, and I have frequently heard eminent astrologers like the late R. Lakshmanan say that Dosha Samanvaya mitigates mutual Doshas, particularly in the 7th and 8th Bhavas.

The following charts bear full testimony for a happy married life of 47 years:

Husband - Born 25-6-1925 at 2.35 a.m. Star: Aslesha. Rasi: Ascendant - Aries; 3rd - Sun, Venus and Mercury; 4th - Moon, Mars and Rahu; 7th - Saturn (R); 9th - Jupiter (R); and 10th - Ketu. Navamsa: Ascendant - Leo; 2nd - Mars; 3rd - Rahu; 5th - Jupiter and Moon; and 6th - Sun and Saturn; 7th - Mercury and Ketu; and 10th - Venus.

Wife: Born 21-10-1928 at 10.20 a.m. Star: Utharashadha. Rasi: Sagittarius - Ascendant and Moon; 5th - Jupiter; 6th - Rahu; 7th - Mars; 10th - Mercury; 11th - Sun; and 12th - Venus, Saturn and Ketu. Navamsa: Ascendant - Taurus; 3rd - Jupiter, Venus and Mercury; 5th - Ketu; 7th - Sun; 8th - Moon; 9th - Saturn; 10th - Mars; and 11th - Rahu.

A study of these charts confirms the view of the esteemed Editor DR. B. V. RAMAN that the horoscopes should be seen in their totality. The wife's chart has 8th house fortified (sowmangalyatva) while husband's chart ensures longevity. This position has cancelled the evil influence of Mars (also 12th lord in the 7th) while in the husband's chart the Badakadhipati Saturn who is as well a natural malefic has turned good on account of retrogression, although seemingly Mars and Saturn have mutually cancelled the evil effects. This approach does not however minimise the Dosha Samya theory which holds good when other influences of planets do not come to the rescue of the couple.

I have seen several horoscopes which have Dosha Samanvaya that has ensured a happy married life of appreciable length. It appears to me only logical to look into the Dosha Samya for a healthy matching because two negatives make a positive in grammar; two Marakas do not kill the native but allow a further lease of life till any one Maraka takes over the role of ending life.

There are many other points which require a wide discussion in the A.M. and I mention only two for the sake of brevity;

(i) What is the principle, if any, behind Vedha (mutual attacks) between two Nakshatras, e.g. Aswini to Jyeshta.

(ii) The numerous exceptions to Mars Dosha, when studied in depth reveal conflicting points, namely - Mars is ineffective when it acquires and as well as loses its strength. How is this possible?

Mars plays a vital role in matrimony. Unless conflicting theories are reconciled and a careful study of Mars and Venus, with all their ramifications, is made, it would be difficult to match horoscopes without taking chances.

Madras. G. Chandrasekar.

Rectification of Birth Time

Sir, - In "Is Rectification of Birth Time Necessary?" by Mr. V. A. K. Ayer (A.M., October 1990), the learned author has quoted Prasna Marga to indicate madness arising out of Jupiter's affliction in the Ascendant caused by Mars and Saturn. I draw the author's attention to Dr. B. V. RAMAN'S Three Hundred Important Combinations and Notable Horoscopes. This Yoga has been criticised with various examples, notably that of Lord Rama. With due deference to the views of DR. RAMAN, I cannot accept this criterion as a basis for rectification.

CC-0. In Public Domain. Gurukul Kangri Collection, Haridwar

It is not correct to take Mars (Western system) and Jupiter (Hindu system) as Karakas for the left ear to explain the traumatic incident. Instead, for Libra Lagna, Jupiter as 3rd lord and karaka is afflicted. The 11th lord Sun (left ear) is in the 6th subjected to a Papakartari Yoga (violence) conjoining the 9th lord in debility (denoting higher studies), the 12th lord (hospitalisation) and 8th lord (medical intervention). The presence of the Moon eclipsed by Ketu in the 11th house only complicates matters further leading to pus formation etc.

The Parivartana Yoga between the Lagna and 6th lords gives a delicate constitution.

Dental Problems: Nisva Yoga has been quoted by the learned author, but Parasara states that Jupiter afflicted by Rahu or Saturn in the 2nd from the 7th lord of Upapada, or Arudha Lagna or Lagna itself causes dental complications. Specifically, Rahu causes holes and complicated diseases, whereas Saturn causes "pectoral impectation" or simply lack of space in the mouth to house the teeth. The smoking habit may be developed.

The arguments given for blood vomiting apply better for Libra Lagna than Scorpio Lagna as Mars becomes the primary malefic. Why would Mars, as Lagna lord for Scorpio, damage health?

Further Mercury in the 6th causes gastritis. Here, a debilitated Mercury under Papakartari Yoga between Mars and Rahu could indicate the problem. The use of medicine (Venus) saved the situation.

I am unaware of the Moon being considered Karaka for medicine. The Sun, as Dhanvantari, is in the 6th in Pisces (for Thula Lagna) along with Mercury (12th lord) and exalted Venus (8th lord). Mars and Saturn are in the 7th and the former aspects the 10th house. Thus, specialisation in surgery is in tune with the predominant Ruchaka Mahapurusha Yoga.

Phaladeepika also states that the Moon should be in Kamatrikona (3, 7, 11) to Lagna as applicable to Thula.

Regarding the fact that the father was born in Scorpio Lagna, Leo Rasi, I can vaguely recollect a dictum "If the son's Janma Rasi is identical to father's Janma Rasi, or father's Navamsa Rasi as their Lagnas are identified, death of the father occurs immediately". This disqualifies Scorpio Lagna.

With experience limited to 27 years of age, I can only turn to stalwarts like DR. RAMAN or the learned author to verify this Yoga and many others appearing in Hindu Astrology.

I believe that we have inherited the greatest astrological system and it is upto us to prove its merits.

Correct Astrological Prediction

Sir, - I am giving here the prediction given on 22-10-1986 by a professional astrologer.

"The present time since October 1982 is not that smooth for you according to Gochara. This comes to an end by 15-11-1986. Therefore you can be 100% positive of your promotion this time."

I was interviewed for my promotion on 25-11-1986. I got the promotion in my 3rd appearance and the 4th call.

The emphasis I would like to lay here is, that in our organisation, till the results are declared, nobody can be 100% sure of promotion. Even our meteorologists with super (CRAY) computers do not give 100% predictions for any weather phenomenon.

Naturally the 100% positive prediction and assurance given by my astrologer is no flash in the pan. It only confirms my utter faith in correct astrological predictions based on correct astrological data.

Since I do not want to give undue publicity to my astrologer I am withholding his name and address.

Mrityubhaga Table give by Ms. Meenakshi Raut (A.M., October 1990, page 779) as claimed by her that it was the one modified by Mr. K. N. Rao. What is quoted in Jatakaparijata, translated by late V. Subrahmanya Sastry, has been tested by the authors all these years in their research, and the result has come out satisfactorily. In his notes also Sastry has quoted the M.B. of the Moon from Phaladeepika and Brihat Prajapatya. Instead of accepting so, a claim that a modification on the original text has been done, is really superfluous. So, the question of an attack by orthodox astrologers does not arise.

Calcutta. S. S. Gopalan.

Sir, - With reference to the articles "There Lurks Fear" and "Composite Approach to Predictions", I would like to seek some clarification from the authors.

In Part III of "There Lurks Fear" (A.M., October, 1990) the author justifies the need to modify "Mrityubhagas" with the following statement:

"No planet will be, say, exactly twenty degrees in Mesha as for the Sun to be in M.B. It will be some minutes more or less."

I am unable to digest this statement because in the following table of "modified MBs", the author mentions 20 as the Mrityubhaga of Sun in Mesha, and according to the conventional meaning 20 refers to the 20th degree (bhaga) of Mesha i.e. 19° 00' to 20° 00'. What really does the author mean by mentioning 20 as Mrityubhaga? Does she mean that 20° 00' is the MB? Or does the author mean that MB lies on both sides of 20° 00'? If so what is the extent of Mrityubhaga? Does the MB lie symmetrically around the given "digits" by 30 minutes, say 20 degrees + 30 minutes?

In Part I the planets Saturn 09° 02' Cancer, Venus 28° 33' Kumbha and Moon 11° 31' Meena, get described as being in MB. If the conventional meaning is opted for, Saturn is in the 10th degree of Cancer and is out of MB, while Venus and Moon are in the 29th and 12th degrees of the respective signs which are MBs.

In the various examples given the author does not provide a consistent view.

The above referred confusion exists in the articles of Mr. K. N. Rao also which appeared in July and August 1990 issues of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. Jupiter 4° 15' Virgo and Sun 8° 01' Leo are described as being in "Mrityubhaga". In his earlier article "Tragedy of a Prediction" (A.M., December 1984) Sun 5° 27' Cancer is mentioned as in Mrityubhaga. If the conventional meaning is adopted for the digits the above cases are mutually contradictory. He also describes Saturn of the 17th degree of Kanya as in MB, and in the case of Amitabh Bachan Sun is in the 25th degree i.e., (24° + some minutes) of Kanya and is hence out of MB but Mr. Rao mentions Amtiabh's Sun as in MB. Mr. K. N. Rao gives examples that create ambiguity in the minds of readers regarding MB.

However, I appreciate both authors for introducing an interesting as well as important topic for detailed research.

BOOKS ON REVIEW

OUR LITERARY EIDTOR

THE GHERANDA SAMHITA, Tr. by Rai Bahadur Srisa Chandra Babu (Sri Satguru Publications, First Floor, 40/5, Shakti Nagar, Delhi 110 007, 1986, Pg. 59, Rs. 30.00)

Gheranda Samhita is an accredited manual on Hatha Yoga which sets forth all the aspects of its practice, in detail and with authority. The translator has done us a service in presenting us with the original text in Devanangari and a faithful English translation.

The text is in the form of a colloquy between a guru and sishya -- Chanda Kapali and Gheranda. It consists of 7 chapters. The first details the purification (Shatkarma) exercises, dhauti, basti, neti, laulciki, trataka and kapalabhati, with their subdivisions. The second describes 32 asanas; the third 25 mudras and their benefits; the fourth is devoted to a dissertation on pratyahara; 5th, pranayama in great detail, followed by dhyana and samadhi Yogas. No serious student of Hatha Yoga can afford to miss this text. The book is neatly printed and produced.

WHAT IS HINDUISM, by S.D. Kulkarni (Shri Bhagavan Vedavayaysa Itihasa Samshodhana Mandira, B/7-8, Shreepal Apartments, Panchpakhadi, Thane 400 602, 1989, Pg. 90, Rs. 20.00).

What is Hinduism is a cogent exposition of the basic tenets of Hinduism and its comparison with those of Semitic Faiths, Judaism, Christianity and Islam. It aims at enlightening and educating the Hindus as also followers of other faiths about its message of Universal Brotherhood. The book covers the entire area of philosophical and spiritual achievements of the Hindus, their way of life, their scriptures, their Samskaras and their mission in life. It also brings out the need for Christians and Muslims to eschew proselytisation and follow the practice of 'live and let live' in our secular country.

RSS-A VISION IN ACTION by H.V.Seshadri (Jagarana Prakashana, Rashtrotthana Sahitya, Kempegowda Nagar, Bangalore 560 009, Pp. xii+322, Rs. 40.00).

Such a lot of dis-information has been spread by parties in power both at the Centre and the States about the Rashtriya Swayam Sevak Sangh that most people, educated at that, are led to believe that it is a communal and therefore, anti-national organisation. The policy of giving a bad name for a thing you don't like before flogging it may serve for a time, but not for ever. The book under review seeks to disabuse us of all such wrong notions.

It is a reasoned, documented, well-presented account of a totally unassuming, national, creative and vibrant movement that has a great future. One who reads this unvarnished account will realise that it is impossible to stifle the movement even as the air in one's lungs.

Founded by Dr. Hedgewar in 1925, with a handful of youngsters, it has now spread to 20,000 centres covering all parts of the country, and sections such as students, teachers, farmers, workers, traders, artisans, employees, industrialists, intellectuals and professionals. It has many centres abroad too.

In the course of 15 chapters, the author has succinctly recounted its birth, development, activities and achievements. Among its early well-wishers were Gandhiji and Dr. Ambedkar too. Its commendable objectives include fight against enemies of national integrity, countering conversion, strengthening nation's morale, promoting social harmony and equality, character and discipline, fighting for social justice, service during calamities etc. Its emphasis categorically states: "Fr. how Christian faith and Hindu culture complete one another, may appear as far-fetched ideas and suggestions."

One sees the thin end of the wedge when the author advises the Christian covert to agitate for the application of the Hindu Law of Inheritance to themselves so that Baptism poses no bar; so he can have the cake and eat it too!

CATHOLIC ASHRAMS - ADOPTING AND ADAPTING HINDU DHARMA by Sita Ram Goyel (Voice of India, 2/18, Ansari Road, New Delhi 110 002, Pg. lxvii+100, Rs. 40.00)

The author critically examines the Christian Ashram movement in India in this well-documented and competently written book. He sees this ashram movement as an indigenization and inculturation process with several planks such as colloquies, seminars and workshops followed up with implementation of decision. All this effort stems from a sense of failure. Christianity is suffering in this country. He likens the efforts of these ashrams as marketing management by multinational corporations, finding the stock-in-trade as stale, as they find no buyers in Hindu society. Characterising it as a predatory movement, the author sees it all as an imperialist hangover and feels that they 'invent spurious labels which can hoodwink Hindus". That is how he sums up today's work of Christian theologians, historians, sociologists, artists and musicians.

The work carries the full text of the dialogue between Swami Dayananda Saraswati and Fr. Bede besides three appendices which cover the colossal financial aids received from the West.

THE BHAGAVAD GITA translated by Kashinath Trimbak Telang [India Book Centre, 40/5, Shakti Nagar, Delhi 110 007, Pg. 446, Rs. 80.00 (HB)]

This is an Indian reprint of the text originally published in the famous Sacred Books of the East series edited by Prof. Max Mueller. In his scholarly introduction Prof. Telang says that his attempt is mainly for students of history of religions, because of paucity of historical information about the author or the work. He translates the title as the Divine Law following Wilkins. He is not sure that the Gita is a genuine part of Mahabharata. He quotes the observations of Wheeler. He feels a parallel in this to the Homeric tradition in Greece. However, he stoutly refutes the Brahminising spirit attributed to Gita by the foreigners. He feels quizzed about the authorship of Vyasa the earliest mention of which was made by Sankara. As to date, he places it earlier than classical literature and near contemporaneous with the Upanishads. He then examines the Gita in relation to Buddhism. "The Upanishads with the Gita and the precepts of Buddha appear to me to be the successive embodiments of the spiritual thought of the age, as it became more and more dissatisfied with the system of mere ceremonial." The work carries no original text, its translation is literal and is dotted with footnotes, and makes reference to Nilakanta's commentary.

What is noteworthy is that this volume includes the translations of Sanatsujatiya and also Anugita with separate introductions. There are two indices, and the book is well printed and sturdily bound for library use.

THE BRIHAT SAMHITA OF VARAHA MIHIRA translated into English with notes by N. C. Iyer (Sri Satguru Publications, 40/5, Shakti Nagar, Delhi 110 007, Pg. xiii+455, Rs. 200.00).

Sri Chidambara Iyer is a pioneer in translating valuable Sanskrit astrological texts. The work under review and Brihat Jataka constitute seminal texts in Astrology. For a long time this translation had been out of print and the world of Astrology had been the poorer for it, although a few other translations have appeared and are widely used. It now appears as No.43 in Sri Garib Dass Oriental Series.

Now, Brihat Samhita is a huge attempt to interpret the language of nature and its effect on the lives of men and nature. The author says: "Nature has been found to speak in a number of ways at every moment of time and the Hindus from the earliest times have learned to hear and understand its language. This language, the modern scientific world at present ignores and can even afford to laugh at the supposed ignorance of the Hindus... They have not the patience to try and see what amount of truth there is in the Hindu interpretation of nature's language."

The present book does not carry the Sanskrit original text but only the English translation. In the introduction the author examines the date of Varahamihira from internal evidence which he finds to be 416 A.D. according to him.

The complete text is faithfully translated with adequate references by way of explanation. One wishes there was an exhaustive index. The book is well printed and produced.

THE NYAYA SUTRAS OF GOTAMA - Translated by M. M. Satisa Chandra Vidyabhusana (Motilal Banarasidass, Bungalow Road, Jawahar Nagar, Delhi 110 007, Pg.366, Rs. 150.00).

First printed in 1930, this edition comes after exactly six decades.

Nyaya is equated with logic. The Goutama Dharma Sutra prescribed a course of training in Nyaya for the king and emphasised the need for proficiency in it for proper administration of the state. Nyaya was held in very great esteem by Manu, Yagnavalkya, Kasyapa and other great seers. But in the course of the last five hundred years or so, Nyaya lost its special status and was mixed up with law, Alankara, Vedanta etc.

The Nyaya Sutras of Gotama deal with the Nyaya Philosophy. It is divided into several parts - The Sixteen Categories, Discussion on Veda, Means of knowledge (or Pramana), Sense as different from Soul or Indriya and Atma, Intellect or Buddhi, Activity or Pravaritti, Rise of True knowledge or Tattwagnanotpatti, Futility or Jaati, and Occasions for Rebuke or Nigrahasthana.

The present volume contains the Sanskrit text, word by word Sanskrit-English equivalents, the English translation of the verses and a commentary.

There are six appendices containing the English translation of Vachaspati Misra's Nyaya Suci Nibandha, Sutras omitted in the 2nd edition, summarised version of Vatsyayana's commentary, alphabetical index to the Sutras, a word index and lastly, an index of words in English.

The publishers have done a commendable job in brining out this edition of the Sutras after a lapse of many years. A.

SRI AUROBINDO AND THE MOTHER - Kireet Joshi (The Mother's Institute of Research, 10, Talkatora Road, New Delhi 110 001, Pg. 295, Rs. 150.00).

Sri Aurobindo emerged on the Indian horizon when the country was in the throes of political vasalage. Initially a revolutionary leader in the political struggle for India's freedom, Sri Aurobindo's activities diversified into the spiritual where finally he became a beacon light to all struggling aspirants. He was collaborated in this task by a French disciple, Mira Alfassa, who later came to be known as the Mother.

There are a countless number of works on Maharshi Aurobindo. The author, in the present volume, endeavours to give us a bird's eye-view of the Maharishi and his unfoldment from a freedom fighter to a Divine Sage by quoting extensively from original works of and about the Sage of Pondicherry. For all true seekers this study of Sri Aurobindo and the Mother provides deep insights into the different layers of consciousness in the human mind which should be first crossed before a glimpse of the Divine can be had. A scholarly and incisive study of the lives of these two spiritual figures has been attempted, with considerable success, by Kireet Joshi. Extracts from the diaries of Sri Aurobindo make for authentic insights into the soul of the Sage. G.D.V.

SRI CHAKRA by S. K. Ramachandra Rao (Sri Satguru Publictions, 40/5, Shakti Nagar, Delhi 110 007, Pg.96, Rs. 50.00).

In this informative book the author explains the cult of Sri Vidya with its diagrammatic and symbolic methods of preparation, details of mantras, Panchadasi and Shodasi with their philosophical import and Tantra ideology. He emphasises that the union of Siva and Sakti is the central idea of Sri Chakra and Sri Vidya philosophy. The two methods of preparation of Sri Chakra viz., Kaula and Samaya, the main difference between them in the position of the primary triangle and bindu, materials used for inscribing the design such as gold, silver, copper, etc., and their relative potencies and grouping into fixed and mobile chakras are described. The nine enclosures beginning with the outermost square and ending with the central bindu, their individual meanings, physical characteristics and spiritual significance, their appropriate colours, names and presiding deities and their corresponding centres in the human body are dealt with.

The main object of Tantricism being the rousing of Kundalini, the Yoga is also described with its correspondence to the units of the Shad Chakra in the human body.

Symbolic significance of the central triangle Kamakala with the bindus are also discussed.

In the last chapter some derivatives of deities of Sri Vidya like the Yoginis, their forms and specific bijaksharas, worship of Bala are outlined. The book is profusely illustrated with drawings and photographs from anceint manuscripts.

Having said this, one cannot help observing that Sri Vidya although clothed as Mother worship, is really a Brahma Vidya i.e., self-realisation through Kundalini Yoga. This should never be forgotten.

The author appears to underrate the contribution of Sri Sankara to the evolution of Sri Vidya cult and to doubt his authorship of Prapancha Sara, the ace manual on Tantricism, which he specially wrote in order to cleanse the Kaula cob-webs in Tantricism as part of his reformation of the Shanmathas.

Indeed the author does not appear to believe that this Vidya is derived from Vedic sources. The guru-parampara of this mantra and the rishis who envisioned them should be able to give the lie to this dis-belief.

One must emphasise that we cannot understand Sri Vidya properly without faith in Advaita. And the use of Kama, Lakshmi, Maya and other bijaksharas in the Shodasi are meant to pierce through the veil of Maya or Avidya which alone leads to Brahman or self-realisation and real scholarship consists in cutting across prejudices and discovering the soul of the subject which can be achieved only with sympathy and understanding, as the peripherals could be handled at lower levels. And Sri Vidya is not materialist-oriented.

THE 1990 SIDEREAL ASTROLOGICAL ALMANAC by P.U. Krishna Warriar, Molly F. Seeligson, Sally W. Gorell and David A. Zimmermann (Personal Insight Data Services, Post Office Box 425, Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632, U.S.A., Pg. 118, $ 12.00).

This interesting almanac was received after 8 months of the year were over. Provided it appears before the year of the almanac, it provides much information on Sidereal astrological data for students and professionals alike. Meant primarily for the westerner it is designed on the lines of the Panchanga in which the information is extremely relevant to the Hindu ethos and social fabric. This volume contains, to start with, instructions on converting a tropical to a sidereal chart (which is important for only then can the sidereal data provided be relevant), details of Tithi, Yoga, Nakshatra, what tithis and what Nakshatras are important for specific activities, planetary charts for the 1st of each Gregorian calendar month, tables of planetary combustion, eclipses, retrogressions and transits, all in CST, Tables of Ascendants for 90° West and for Latitude 25° N to 48° N for the 1st of each month, Dasa-Bhukti Tables, some details of Muhurta factors, Rahu Kalam, and Matching charts for marriage. The Ayanamsa used is Lahiri's. A

YOUR Technical Difficulties Solved

MIHIRA

Q. 1. Rasi: Taurus - Ascendant 24-58; Gemini - Herschel; Cancer - Pluto; Leo - Mars 6-32 and Saturn 22-33; Virgo - Ketu 22-31, Mercury 23-42 and Neptune; Libra - Sun 9-35; Scorpio - Venus 25-04; Sagittarius - Moon 13-43; Capricorn - Jupiter 1-22; and Pisces - Rahu 22-31. Are there Amala Yoga/Samrat Yoga, Durdhara Yoga and Neechabhanga Rajayoga in the chart? Is Jupiter Vargottama? What is the effect of unafflicted Mars and Saturn in the 4th? What is the effect of powerful Mercury with Ketu and Neptune in the 5th (Virgo)? Do two debilitated planets in Rasi Chakra cause any Yoga? What will be the profession of the native?

Arun Kr. Sinha, Calcutta.

Ans: Amala Yoga gives you fame and prosperity. This you will have in the sub-periods of Mercury. Durdhara Yoga gives you wealth and conveyances. For this you have to wait for the major period of Venus. Jupiter is Vargottama. But his debilitation is not cancelled. Mars and Saturn in the 4th give you accidents, inflammatory fevers or skin troubles. The period of Mars gives mixed results. Mercury, Ketu and Neptune can give you still-births and daughters if proper propitiation is not done. The presence of two debilitated planets does not cause any Raja Yoga.

Q. 2. Rasi: Libra - Ascendant, Rahu and Mandi; Scorpio - Saturn; Aquarius - Moon; Aries - Ketu; Cancer - Sun, Mars, Mercury and Venus; and Virgo - Jupiter. Navamsa: Aries - Rahu and Mandi; Cancer - Sun; Libra - Ketu; Scorpio - Mercury and Saturn; Capricorn - Jupiter and Mars; Aquarius - Ascendant and Venus; and Pisces - Moon. How far has the native to wait for a profession and marriage? What is the effect of Chaturgraha Yoga in the 10th? What is the effect of Kuja-Sukra Yoga?

P. R. S. Nair, Painkulam.

Ans: Marriage is likely in November 1991. A good job will come your way in September-October 1991. The planets in the 10th are vitiated by debilitated Mars. But a certain spiritual development will take place after October 1996. Asceticism is not ruled out. But it may not come. Mars and Venus are within four degrees. There is ardent affection between you and your wife. It depends on how you handle your domestic life.

Q. 3. Rasi: Aries - Ascendant 26 and Ketu; Libra - Jupiter (R) and Rahu; Sagittarius - Moon and Saturn; Capricorn - Mars and Venus; Aquarius - Sun; and Pisces - Mercury (C). Navamsa: Scorpio - Ascendant; Sagittarius - Jupiter; Capricorn - Rahu; Aquarius - Mars; Aries - Saturn; Taurus - Venus; Gemini - Sun and Moon; Cancer - Ketu; and Virgo - Mercury. Balance of Ketu Dasa: 2 years, 11 months and 7 days. The girl with weak constitution from birth suffered from bronchitis till her age of 2. She suffered from cold periodically till 18. Thereafter she is again suffering from allergic bronchitis and other allergic complaints. (a) Which planets are responsible for the ill-health? (b) Does the chart indicate full recovery? (c) What gem should be recommended for her health?

Ans: The Moon, Saturn and Jupiter aspecting the 3rd have given rise to bronchial afflictions. There are very good chances of great recovery from March or July 1997. Moti (pearl) of four rathis and Gomedha of six rathis, both in silver, are recommended. The first is to be on the ring-finger and the second should be on the little finger.

Q. 4. Rasi: Aries - Ascendant with Moon; Leo - Saturn; Virgo - Mars and Ketu; Sagittarius - Sun; Capricorn - Jupiter, Venus and Mercury; and Pisces - Rahu. (a) Inspite of Mars' aspect on the Moon and Venus being in Capricorn the native has not been successful in films as an actor. Whether the native will come up as an actor or not? At present doing service. Mercury Maha Dasa is going on. (b) What will be the native's span of life as Jupiter is in Neechasthana and Lagna lord is in 8th house?

S. K. Ganguly, Bombay.

Ans: Venus is strongly placed. But he is with debilitated Jupiter and the 6th lord. The 3rd lord and Venus are well placed. You cannot have a major career in films. You can become a stage actor. But it is better you get into a regular job as a teacher or as accountant. The data is incomplete to give an idea of the span of life. Rahu or Saturn can be marakas.

O

Q. 5. Rasi: Capricorn - Ascendant; Aquarius - Moon; Pisces - Saturn (R); Taurus - Ketu; Cancer - Venus; Leo - Mercury (R); Virgo - Sun; Scorpio - Mars and Rahu; and Sagittarius - Jupiter. What is the proper gems for this chart? So many astrologers prescribe different stones. I am really confused which one I should wear.

S. K. Das De, Calcutta.

Ans: You have not given your date of birth, nor the Nakshatra. Emerald of five rathis in gold on the little finger appears to suit you.

O

Q. 6. Rasi: Cancer - Ascendant 7-56; Sun 168-57; Moon 62-46; Mars 238-10; Mercury 186-3; Jupiter 136-35; Venus 193-26; Saturn 146-52: and Rahu 196-29. Date of birth 3/4/-10-1920 at 12.52 a.m. Balance of Mars Dasa: Years 2-0-17. Rahu and Mars aspect 8th Bhava. Will Rahu give violent end in Mercury Dasa, since Mercury being lord of 3 and 12 is also a maraka*? If not, which planets are the most likely* marakas*?*

Sub. No. 10580.

Ans: There is no question of a violent death. July 1992 can be a critical period. If you overcome it, Ketu is a maraka. Maximum longevity appears to be 81 years.

O

Q. 7. Rasi: Gemini - Ascendant, Sun and Mercury; Cancer - Moon; Virgo - Jupiter; Libra - Rahu; Sagittarius - Saturn (R); Pisces - Mars; Aries - Ketu; and Taurus - Venus. Navamsa: Scorpio - Ascendant and Rahu; Sagittarius - Sun and Mars; Capricorn - Venus, Mercury and Moon; Aries - Saturn; and Virgo - Jupiter. Dasamsa: Leo - Ascendant and the Sun; Virgo - Mercury; Libra - Moon; Scorpio - Rahu; Sagittarius - Saturn; Capricorn - Venus; Aquarius - Jupiter; and Aries - Mars. Three planets are in their own Rasis. Jupiter is Vargottama and was stationary on 21-6-1958 (date of birth). Saturn is in Sagittarius (Kodanda) and retrograde. All the four Kendras are occupied. Ascendant is flanked by Moon and Venus, situated in their own signs. The Sun, Mercury and Mars occupy their own Dasamsa. Saturn occupies Neecha Navamsa but is in Vargottama Dasamsa. (a) The native is a bank officer. His ambition was to join the top administrative services such as the IAS/allied etc. But even after being successful in the preliminary examination, thrice he could not get through the main examination. Why did this happen when Sun, Mars, Mercury occupy their own Dasamsa and Jupiter is Vargottama? Saturn too is Vargottama in Dasamsa. (b) Which combination pushed him towards a career in bank? Will the points quoted above take him to the very top careerwise as well as financially? Can the native wear stones of Sun and Mercury as they are afflicted by Saturn and Mars or should he wear stones for Saturn and Mars as these are malefics?

Ajit K. Sinha, Bhagalpur.

Ans: Though a bank officer your chart shows affliction of the 10th lord Saturn and Mars. The proper Dasas of Moon and Mars are coming very late. The Dasas of the three planets in your chart will operate only after 1996. The 10th lord is in Mercury's house and Mars aspects him and also Mercury. Hence banking is inevitable. By your 46th or 48th year you will be holding a top position. Financially you are well off from that time. You may wear red coral of seven rathis in silver on the ring-finger and yellow topaz of seven rathis in gold on the index finger.

Q. 8. My son tripped on an iron installation and fractured two bones on his left hand. Kindly clarify the reason it was iron that caused the accident and not any other substance. The incident took place around 5.30 p.m. on Friday (31-8-1990) at Mangalore. Will this affect his studies? If yes, why and if no, why not? Rasi: Scorpio - Ascendant and Rahu; Capricorn - Mars; Aquarius - Mercury; Pisces - Sun and Jupiter; Aries - Venus and Moon; Taurus - Ketu; Gemini - Saturn; and Libra - Mandi. Navamsa: Leo - Ascendant and Jupiter; Libra - Rahu; Scorpio - Moon; Sagittarius - Mercury; Pisces - Saturn; Aries - Ketu; Taurus - Venus; Gemini - Mars; and Cancer - Sun.

R. Anantharam Singh, Mangalore.

Ans: Saturn in the 8th and Mars in Saturn's house are responsible. The ailment will not affect his studies though there will be delays and unexpected obstacles. The significator of education and Jupiter are well placed. The delay or obstacle is due to the 4th house being hemmed in between malefics.

Q. 9. Rasi: Aries - Ascendant, Sun and Moon; Gemini - Mars; Leo - Rahu; Capricorn - Saturn and Jupiter; Aquarius - Ketu; and Pisces - Mercury and Venus. Navamsa: Cancer - Ascendant, Moon and Rahu; Scorpio - Mercury; Capricorn - Ketu; Aquarius - Saturn and Venus; Aries - Sun and Jupiter; and Gemini - Mars. (a) What is the significance of the presence of Rahu in the 5th on progeny? (b) How do Saturn and Jupiter in the 10th affect career matters?

N. Subramanian, Madras.

Ans: Rahu in the 5th causes Sarpa Dosha. It affects the children if proper shanti is not done. Jupiter and Saturn in 10th give him a position only that of second in command. He can be a PRO, an excise official or a revenue official.

Q. 10. Rasi: Cancer - Moon, Rahu and Mars; Leo - Uranus; Virgo - Ascendant; Libra - Neptune; Sagittarius - Mercury and Venus; Capricorn - Sun 23-52, Saturn 20-52 and Ketu; and Aquarius - Jupiter. Navamsa: Aries - Jupiter and Neptune; Gemini - Venus; Cancer - Saturn, Moon and Uranus; Leo - Sun and Rahu; Virgo - Ascendant; Sagittarius - Mercury; Capricorn - Mars; and Aquarius - Ketu. (a) Do Lagna and its lord Vargottama and Mercury and Venus in 4th house and Jupiter's aspect to the 2nd house ensue happiness in married life throughout her life and Lagna and its lord Vargottama help overcome all problems in life?

G. R. Mutalik Desai, Belgaum.

Ans: There is happiness in married life. But some trouble can arise because of children. This can be between her 37th and 44th year. Later married life will be happy. The Lagna lord, Venus and Moon will help her overcome serious troubles. The health of the eldest child causes some worry.

Q. 11. Rasi: Libra - Lagna, the Sun and Mercury; Scorpio - Venus; Pisces - Saturn and Rahu; Taurus - the Moon; and Virgo - Mars, Jupiter and Ketu. Navamsa: Aries - Ascendant and the Sun; Taurus - Ketu; Leo - the Moon; Scorpio - Rahu; Sagittarius - Mercury; Aquarius - Mars and Jupiter; and Pisces - Saturn and Venus. Sun Bhukti in Rahu Dasa having just started in January 1990. Does the chart show success in milk vending business? Moon Bhukti of Rahu Dasa is on.

S. No. 12898.

Ans: Milk vending in the sub-period of Rahu cannot be so profitable. It will not give any losses. The better period is from the sub-period of Mars.

Q. 12. Rasi: Gemini - Ascendant 2-17; Leo - Ketu 13-53; Scorpio - Moon 9-11-30 and Venus 28-30; Sagittarius - Saturn 12-18 and the Sun 20-25; Capricorn - Mercury 8-40; Aquarius - Rahu 13-53 Pisces - Mars 28-17; and Taurus - Jupiter 2-48. Does the Lagna lord in 8th and the Moon in the 6th affect longevity and cause bad health?

Raj Kumar Sharma, Faridkot.

Ans: They do not affect your health seriously. Only digestive and nervous troubles are likely. You have round about 62 years of longevity.

Q. 13. Rasi: Pisces - Ascendant; Cancer - Rahu; Leo - Mars; Scorpio - Venus; Sagittarius - the Sun; Capricorn - Saturn, Mercury and Ketu; and Aquarius - Jupiter and the Moon. Navamsa: *Aquarius - Ascendant, Jupiter and Mercury; Pisces - Ketu; Aries - Mars; Taurus - Saturn and the Moon; Cancer - Venus; and Virgo - the Sun and Rahu. (a) Do Saturn acting on Lagna from 11th and Mars from 6th house show job or business in metal (of engineering brand) or chemical or anything else? O. P. Tiwari, Ballia.

Ans: There are better chances for a job only. He can do business or job in mechanical or civil engineering only. Since Jupiter's major period is over, you need not worry. Only he should not give up a job without proper and prolonged thinking and planning.

O

Q. 14. Rasi: Taurus - Ascendant; Cancer - Venus; Leo - the Sun, Moon and Ketu; Virgo - Jupiter and Mercury; Sagittarius - Mars; Aquarius - Rahu; and Aries - Saturn. (b) Please indicate line of further studies or career prospects in view of the 10th lord Saturn being in 12th.

J. P. Tiwary, Dhanbad.

Ans: The 4th lord is eclipsed. The significator of education is with an enemy. He should take up a study of chemicals, liquids or gases. The last resort is accounts.

O

Q. 15. Rasi: Libra - Ascendant; Taurus - Mercury; Cancer - Ketu; Leo - Venus and Sun; Virgo - Saturn; Libra - Moon; Scorpio - Mars; Capricorn - Rahu; and Aries - Jupiter. What is the significance of Mercury and Ketu in the 3rd house?

A. K. Roy, Patna.

O

Q. 16. Rasi: Scorpio - Ascendant, Mars and Moon; Sagittarius - Ketu; Gemini - Rahu; Virgo - Mercury; and Libra - Sun, Jupiter, Venus and Saturn. Though the 4th lord Saturn is exalted as also the Karaka Mercury, why is she lagging in studies? Dasa is of Mercury. When she will improve?

C. Devidas, Vijaipur (M.P.).

Ans: There is Kalasarpa Yoga. The 4th and 5th lords are in the 12th. Some propitiation is essential.

O

Q. 17. Rasi: Libra - Ascendant, Sun and Venus (Venus not combust); Scorpio - Mercury; Sagittarius - Ketu; Capricorn - Moon; Gemini - Rahu; Cancer - Mars and Saturn; and Virgo - Jupiter. Navamsa: *Capricorn - Ascendant and Moon; Taurus - Sun; Gemini - Ketu; Cancer - Jupiter and Saturn; Virgo - Mars; Scorpio - Venus and Mercury; and Sagittarius - Rahu. Amar Jit, Chandigarh

Ans: Vipareeta Raja Yoga involves lords of 6 8, 12. Here it does not appear. The presen period gives rise to unexpected or over-expendi ture. Vargottama Moon and Saturn give rise t unexpected and unfortunate developments in married life. Mercury enables some kind o safety in the financial position. Jupiter is a malefic functionally. It is better he listens t and follows the advice of his wife.

J. L. Narayana, Guntur

Ans: Mars is not a maraka. He causes ill health to the wife. He will improve the finances after the sub-period of Mercury begins.

Q. 19. In a translation of Bhavaratha Rat nakara into Bengali "Saturn is Rajayogakaraka for Libra Ascendant. (b) If Jupiter is Rajayogakaraka for Libra Ascendant, then, is Mercury also Rajayogakaraka for Aries Ascendant as here Mercury is lord of Upachaya houses (i.e., 3rd and 4th)?

Miss. Sutapa Bhowmick, Calcutta

Ans: Jupiter is not a Yogakaraka for Libra But in the first two-thirds of his Dasa he gives favourable results. Mercury is not a Rajayogakaraka for Aries Lagna.

Will Mercury (R) with Sun in the 10th give a career in journalism or will 10th lord Jupiter in 12th give service?*

S. K. Sinha, Varanasi.

Ans: The Sun with Mercury in the 10th can give you a good job in a bank or a teaching job. There is service only.

O

Q. 21. Rasi: Gemini - Ascendant; Cancer - Saturn; Leo - Mars and Moon; Scorpio - Sun, Mercury and Jupiter; Sagittarius - Venus; and Aquarius - Rahu. Jupiter is in the 6th house aspecting the 10th. How will Jupiter Dasa affect the results pertaining to career?

M. K. Chhibbar, New Delhi.

Ans: Jupiter helps you in banking or accounts, teaching or industry. You have to wait for Saturn's major period.

O

Q. 22. Rasi: Aquarius - Ascendant, Sun, Mercury, Mars and Saturn; Pisces - Jupiter and Venus; Gemini - Rahu; Virgo - Moon; and Sagittarius - Ketu. Navamsa: Scorpio - Ascendant and Saturn; Sagittarius - Mercury; Aquarius - Rahu and Mars; Pisces - Sun, Venus and Jupiter; and Leo - Moon and Ketu. Will Jupiter and Venus cause Dhana Yoga being in the 2nd house and in the 7th from Chandra Lagna? When will this Yoga, if present, manifest itself?

Aman Rao, New Delhi.

Ans: There is Dhana Yoga. But there is loss because of love, travels, strangers and/or law. The results will appear in the major or sub-periods of Moon, Jupiter and Venus only.

O

Q. 23. Boy: Rasi: Libra - Ascendant; Sagittarius - Jupiter, Venus, Saturn and Mars; Capricorn - Sun and Mercury; Pisces - Moon and Ketu; Virgo - Rahu and Mandi. Navamsa: Pisces - Ascendant; Aries - Jupiter; Gemini - Sun; Cancer - Mercury and Venus; Leo - Ketu and Moon; Virgo - Saturn and Mars; and Aquarius - Rahu. Girl: Rasi: Pisces - Ascendant, Sun, Mars and Mercury; Taurus - Rahu; Gemini - Jupiter and Moon; Cancer - Mandi; Scorpio - Ketu; Capricorn - Venus; and Aquarius - Saturn. Navamsa: Pisces - Ascendant; Gemini - Saturn; Cancer - Mercury; Leo - Ketu; Virgo - Venus; Libra - Jupiter; Scorpio - Sun and Moon; Capricorn - Mars; and Aquarius - Rahu. In the wife's chart, Lagna is occupied by Sun, Mercury and Yogakaraka Mars. Rahu-Ketu are exalted. Lagna lord occupies 4th, constituting Gajakesari Yoga with Yogakaraka Mars. Mars is exalted in Navamsa Lagna and 10th lord Jupiter and 4th and 7th lord Mercury exchange their houses. Is there any significance regarding this? 10th and 5th lord is aspected by Yogakaraka Mars. Jupiter aspects her 8th house also. Jupiter is in the 8th from Navamsa Lagna. Is it good for her husband's longevity? Mars aspects her 4th, 7th and 8th. Please clarify my doubts.

Ms. Kamala Krishnan, Madras.

Ans: The exchange is between lords of 1 and 4, and not between lords of 7 and 10. It has nothing to do with married life. The aspect of Mars gives rise to miscarriages or loss of children. The husband's longevity is well protected. Only his health will be indifferent.

O

Q. 24. Rasi: Sagittarius - Ascendant and Moon; Capricorn - Ketu; Gemini - Saturn; Cancer - Rahu; Leo - Sun, Mercury, Venus and Jupiter; Virgo - Mars; and Scorpio - Mandi. Navamsa: Gemini - Ascendant; Cancer - Rahu; Leo - Sun, Moon and Jupiter; Scorpio - Mercury; Sagittarius - Venus; Capricorn - Ketu; Aquarius - Saturn; and Pisces - Mars and Gulika. Vargottama Rahu is posited in the 8th house. There is difference of opinion regarding the results of Rahu Dasa. Kindly confirm the results of the Rahu Dasa.

K. V. Srinivas, Salem.

Ans: Rahu will give highly favourable professional and financial results. The digestive and bronchial systems will be adversely affected. There can be B.P. or blood sugar.

O

Q. 25. Rasi: Cancer - Ascendant; Leo - Jupiter; Scorpio - Rahu and Saturn; Aquarius - Mars; Pisces - Moon; Taurus - Mercury and Ketu; and Gemini - Sun and Venus. Navamsa: Scorpio - Ascendant, Moon, Rahu and Venus; Aries - Mars; Taurus - Ketu; Gemini - Jupiter; Leo - Saturn; and Virgo - Mercury. How will 10th lord Mars in 8th in exchange of signs with 8th lord Saturn affect career prospects?

A. K. Banerjee, Calcutta.

Ans: The exchange is only between the lords of the 5th and the 8th. The period of Venus will be highly favourable. You can't have Saturn's period again. After Venus, the career will not be bright.

Rahu Dasa is running. Is there any possibility for medical education? Both Mercury and Moon are in Vargottama in addition to Budhaditya Yoga.*

Ch. S. R. Murthy, Vijayawada.

Ans: There is medical educaiton. It should not be related to surgery. ENT specialisation is likely. Otherwise he would go in for auditing and accounts.

O

Q. 27. Rasi: Lagna 77-5; Sun 53-8; Moon 83-38; Mars 26-01; Mercury 45-32; Jupiter 114-33; Venus 82-31; Saturn (R) 281-23; Uranus 0-22; Neptune 131-55; Rahu 329-0; and Pluto 87-41. (a) In spite of having Jupiter in Indu Lagna why the financial condition is not good? (b) Though 10th lord is exalted in the 2nd, 11th lord in the 11th, 2nd lord exalted in Navamsa, Lagna lord is Vargottama, the native is not professionally successful, why?

Bimalendu Guha, Bishnupur.

Ans: Aspect of the 6th lord and that of the 8th lord are on Jupiter. The lord of 9 is in 8. Indu Lagna cannot overcome this. Professional success comes from Jupiter's sub-period in Venus only.

O

Q. 28. Rasi: Gemini - Ascendant; Leo - Mandi; Virgo - Rahu; Libra - Venus; Scorpio - Mercury, Sun, Mars and Jupiter; Sagittarius - Saturn; Capricorn - Moon; and Pisces - Ketu. Could you please inform whether the chances of marriage of the native while Jupiter is in Capricorn would he there despite the presence of 4 planets in Scorpio (11th from Moon Lagna) indicating Sanyasa Yoga?

S. No. 10179.

Ans: There is no Sanyasa Yoga. Marriage will be beneficial. Real fortune arises a year or two after marriage.

O

Q. 29. What are the effects of the planets posited in the Rasi Sandhi viz., the last Navamsa of Cancer, Scorpio and Pisces in the nativity and also Mulatrikona? Will they adversely affect the Bhavas for which they are Karakas? Will the effects be same even if they are in Vargottama and own and Mitra Vargas and are posited in Kendra, Kona or Ekadasa-sthana? Please clarify.

R. Nagaraju, Bangalore.

Ans: In Rasi Sandhi they are said to be weak. Actually they are weak in a Bhava Sandhi only. They adversely affect the Bhava, not the sign. In Vargottama and benefic Vargas the results will be as per the Bhava and lordship. Kona and Ekadasa positions are beneficial. Kendra positions depend on their owndership and actual nature only.

O

Q. 30. Rasi: Aquarius - Ascendant; Pisces - Moon; Aries - Ketu and Mandi; Taurus - Mercury; Gemini - Sun and Venus; Cancer - Mars; Virgo - Jupiter; Libra - Rahu; and Scorpio - Saturn (R). (a) Will marriage take place during Ketu Dasa which is running? If not, when will it take place? (b) Will it take place if no efforts are made in that direction (i.e., if the head of the family does not take positive steps)? (c) What does retrograde Saturn in Scorpio mean?

Rekha Bhandarkar, Trivandrum.

Ans: Marriage takes place in Venus major period. It takes place only after some effort. There can be a love affair. Retrograde Saturn in the 10th gives very good promotions in the professional career. But can bring him down in the sub-period of the Sun or Rahu.

Kidney Failure: An Astrological Study

DR. LALITA GUPTA, S. N. KAPOOR

ONE of the most dreaded ailments is kidney failure. In cases of acute kidney failure one can be sure of recovery if one gets timely treatment. In cases of chronic renal failure, there are two options: one is to keep the patient on hemo-dialysis; and the other is to get a kidney transplant. Dialysis could prolong life, say, upto 8 years, with all its trauma. Kidney transplant, if it succeeds, could prolong life from 5 to 15 years and in some cases even more than that. The treatment is very costly and beyond the reach of the common man.

God has given us two kidneys. So long as even half of the kidney continues to function properly, things may appear normal. By the time one goes to a physician it may be too late. From this angle, believing in Karmanye Vaadhika Raste, notwithstanding predetermined tendencies in this respect, medical Astrology could give timely warning to fight a tough battle with patience and equanimity.

Khalid Yusuf, who was himself a patient of this painful malady, studied 77 cases based on solar charts (See "Kidney Disease - An Astrological Approach", June 1984 A.M., page 480). But before coming to the astrological aspect, let is first understand the disease. According to David P. Earle of Northwestern University (See 1980 Year Book of Urology by Gillenwater and Howards of Department of Urology, University of Virginia School of Medicine, page 143), "A symptomatic chronic renal insufficiency is common and goes undetected. The diagnosis implies permanent nephron loss, but acute renal failure may supervene at any time; an active search for reversible factors is indicated if renal function deteriorates rapidly in a patient with previously stable chronic renal failure or at the time of discovery of renal failure. The rate of reduction on renal function in chronic renal disease is quite variable and depends on many factors. The prognosis depends in part, on the natural history of the specific renal disease present. Overt symptoms do not develop until renal function falls below 25-30% of normal or the serum creatinine value increases above 3 mg/dl. In some patients, symptoms may not become overt until the serum creatinine value approaches 10 mg/dl.

"The earliest measurable abnormality that may sometimes precede a definite fall in glomerular filtration rate is an increased serum parathyroid hormone level. Modest hypocalcemia may occur in even mild renal failure . Considerable impairment of intestinal calcium absorption is present ...".

In most cases disease is brought about by accentuated blood pressure resulting in damage to kidney. It could start with early sore throat trouble also.

Astrological Approach : Dr. Jagannath Rao in his book Medical Astrology has given a number of classical combinations leading to nephritis. They are reproduced in brief:

(a) Saturn, Sun and Venus in 5th, (b) Mars in 10th, aspected or conjunct Saturn, (c) Sun in Lagna and Mars in 7th may lead to kidney problem — failure. According to Khalid Yusuf, out of 77 cases, Venus was found in 37 cases in Aries — 12, Scorpio — 12 and Virgo — 13. In 8 cases it was found in Taurus, indicating that Venus in Taurus in 8th from its Moolatrikona Rasi should not be taken as a very happy position. These 4 Rasis thus covered 45 cases out of 77, i.e., 58.44% if you add cases of Venus in Sagittarius, Moolatrikona Rasi of its enemy Jupiter. it goes upto 66.23% without adding Pisces cases. If you add 4 cases of Pisces and 5 cases of Leo then the result goes up to about 77.91%. We are using Khalid Yusuf's study from a different angle. For this purpose take Libra Ascendant, Virgo is its Vyayasthana, Scorpio and Aries are its Marakasthanas, Sagittarius is 3rd and Pisces 6th and Leo being 11th represents Badhakasthana for Chara Rasi Lagna. Taurus is the 8th from Lagna. This would explain 77.91% cases. Venus would be further afflicted if it is conjunct or aspected by malefics Mars, Saturn, Rahu or is combust, for such a dreaded disease, it will be an over-simplification. Khalid Yusuf has made certain other observations, which are reproduced below:

(1) Saturn was found retrograde in 34 cases, while Venus was the least retrograde in 4 cases and that too in Virgo or Scorpio.

(2) Natives of Sun in watery signs were found least prone (only 11 cases — 2 in Cancer).

(3) Even where no Venus affliction is involved, afflicted Jupiter in Cancer revealed a high frequency, accounting for 12 cases, while Jupiter in Capricorn was found in 3 cases.

(4) Saturn was found in Libra, its exaltation sign, in 11 cases, followed by 10 each in Capricorn (afflicting Libra), and Sagittarius (again afflicting Libra by increasing its wastage due to aspect on Virgo), and in 1 case in Cancer.

(5) Moon was found in 48 cases in male sign, i.e., 62.33% —Aries with 12 cases, Pisces with the least, only 2.

(6) Mercury showed lower frequency in airy signs — 14 cases, as compared to other elements.

(7) Rahu (North Node) found in 2 cases in Sagittarius.

Keeping in view, limitation of his study to the Sun-sign, one must appreciate his efforts, yet at the same time one has to keep his mind open from this angle.

Despite our best efforts we could not lay our hand on a sufficient number of horoscopes with required details. As such, we are putting forward our observations only and not the conclusions. For conclusions we need more data. We would be happy if we are given data by those who are either suffering such trouble or those whose relations are suffering in this respect.

Our Observations

Native suffers from chronic renal failure if the following conditions are fulfilled:

(a) Venus is afflicted badly not only in Rasi chart, but also in Drekkana and Dwadasamsa charts and Navamsa also.

(b) Libra Rasi is also similarly afflicted.

(c) The 7th house and 7th lord are similarly afflicted.

(d) Moon afflicted similarly.

(e) Affliction is generally caused by lords of 6th, 8th, 12th and Rahu.

At the crucial time, 22nd Drekkana and 64th Navamsa must be checked. Also one must check whether the operating Dasa, Bhukti, or Pratyantar Dasa lord is not in Mrityu Bhaga or Arishtamsa.

Illustrations

We are just giving few illustrations to make our points clear. The first illustration (Chart 1) is that of Jai Prakash Narain.

Charts 4, 5 and 6

Chart No. 4 is that of an young and only son of his father and mother. He fell seriously sick at Gangtok on 29th March 1982. Was shifted to Delhi on 3rd April 1982. His mother donated kidney on 15th June 1983. Transplanted kidney started showing rejection. He expired on 9th September 1984 near Brindavan, while coming back from Agra. The Moon is in Arishtamsa. See degrees of the Moon and compare it with age of death.

Chart 5 is from 1983 A.M., page 801 "Astrology and Kidney Transplant" by Harsha Vardhan Chopra. Mr. Chopra laid emphasis on 6th house as it shows part of the body around kidney. The best results can be obtained if these two approaches are applied together. In this case in Rahu/Saturn from October 1979 health deteriorated. He was operated on 12th May 1982 in U.S.A. where he was taken after collecting money by donations. I would request Mr. Chopra to give follow-up of this case. Kidney was donated by her sister. In Rasi chart Venus is in Aries and in Navamsa again it is afflicted by Mars.

Chart 6 is taken from "Shattering Blow (1989 A.M., page 250). The kidney transplant took place during Sun Bhukti, Rahu Dasa (18-6-1987 to 12-2-1988), and death took place on 3-11-1988. Venus is afflicted by the Sun, Mars and aspect by Saturn. Sign Libra is not afflicted. The 7th lord, Sun is afflicted by saturnine aspect and Mars. Same is true about 7th house. The Moon is aspected by Saturn and Jupiter. Saturn is the dispositor of the Moon and aspecting the Moon. But nobody should expect that Saturn would leave its malefic tinge and color in its aspect. Similarly Jupiter, a natural benefic, would also have a colour of a maraka, being 2nd and 11th lord.

Kidney Donation

These very afflictions in slightly different way cause loss and damage to kidney. We would now refer to two cases where persons concerned donated their kidneys to save the life of their near and dear ones.

Chart 7 is of the wife who donated a kidney to save the life of her husband (Chart 6) and is taken from "Shattering Blow (supra). In Rasi chart Venus in this case though exalted is afflicted by 8th lord the Sun and debilitated 6th lord Mercury. It is posited in the 3rd. Libra sign is again afflicted by Rahu and Ketu axis, 7th house is not afflicted, but the waning Moon is placed in inimical sign, without any benefic aspect. In Navamsa chart Venus is aspected by Saturn and Rahu. Same is true about Libra sign. The 7th lord in Navamsa, Sun is aspected by Mars, the 3rd and 10th lord. The Moon is in Rahu-Ketu axis.

Charts 7, 8

Kidney donation should show further voluntary self-affliction for a better cause. It is not a small sacrifice, for kidney donors undergo a pretty major operation and some of them have collapsed on the operation table itself. For it, one has to see affliction of these very factors by Lagna lord or 3rd lord, together with 12th lord. In chart 7, in Rasi Venus is in 3rd aspected by 3rd and 12th lord Jupiter. This also afflicts Libra, as it posited in 12th from Libra also. She took it as if it was her Dharma to do whatever was humanly possible to save her husband's life. For 12th and 3rd Jupiter is placed in her 9th. In her case 7th house is not afflicted; the 7th lord Moon is not that severely afflicted. In Navamsa, Navamsa Lagna lord Saturn is afflicting Venus and Libra, along with Rahu. The 3rd lord Mars is afflicting 7th and 7th lord the Sun. The Moon is in Rahu—Ketu axis.

Chart 8 belongs to the mother who donated her kidney to save life of her only son (Chart 4). In Rasi chart, Venus is in Rahu-Ketu axis and afflicted by Saturn, 12th and 11th lord. Sign Libra is aspected by Rahu. The 7th lord Mercury is in 6th aspected by Saturn and Mars, placed in the 3rd. As in Chart 7 in this case also, the Moon does not suffer from severe affliction except that it is placed in a malefic sign. In Navamsa chart, Venus is afflicted as it is with Lagna lord Sun, 12th lord Moon and aspected by Saturn, 6th and 7th lord. But see also aspect of 9th lord Mars on

GENERAL MARKET INDICATIONS FOR THE YEAR 1991

PROF. B. C. MEHTA

THE year 1991 is indeed a year of great importance for the business world indicating heavy and astounding fluctuations in all the principal markets like oilseeds, cotton and kapas, bullion, jute, hessian, shares and stock markets, food-grains, jaggery and sugar markets etc., due to the fact that many important planets having a special bearing on market fluctuations change their Rasis and Nakshatras and form special aspects and astrological phenomena.

The most important was Saturn's entry into its own sign Capricorn late in 1990, joining Rahu which is already there since almost a year. Jupiter will cover two signs during this year 1991. Jupiter will be in its exalted sign Cancer till 7th August 1991 and then it will enter Leo, the 5th sign of the zodiacal circle ruled by the Sun and will continue there till end of this year 1991.

On 11th May 1991 Rahu will leave Capricorn and enter by its retrograde motion Sagittarius wherein Herschel and Neptune are already there. Three major and malefic planets were together in Sagittarius for the last three years from 1988 to 1990. We had been every time predicting its very evil influence on world political, economic and social conditions. Now again the three most malefic major planets Herschel, Neptune and Rahu will be together after 11th May 1991 and continue throughout the year.

In view of all these planetary Yogas it can be safely said that 1991 is also an extraordinarily important year not only for market fluctuations but also for political upheavals and economic as well as social conditions.

Oilseed Market

This consists of groundnut oil, castor seeds, cotton seeds, linseed, sarsoo seeds, vegetable and coconut oil, etc.

The chief significator of this market is Saturn and the helping planets are Rahu, Jupiter and Mars.

All airy signs have special affinity with oilseeds markets and when any malefic planet crosses these signs and the three special Nakshatras Aridra, Swati and Satabhisha, the market shows bullish trend. If a benefic planet passes through them, the market declines.

Saturn entered Capricorn in late 1990 and joined Rahu there. This forms a very malefic conjunction which cannot be called favourable as Capricorn is supposed to be the Lagna Rasi of our country, India. However God is great and so during this period Jupiter will continue in its exalted sign Cancer and aspect this malefic conjunction and thus safeguard our country and its malefic effect will be highly reduced.

However, this Saturn-Rahu combination in Capricorn is a bullish factor for oilseed market and you can follow bullish trend from the beginning of 1991 or from December 1990. This combination will continue till 11th May 1991. Rahu then enters Sagittarius, the 9th sign ruled by Jupiter. Rahu is supposed to be debilitated but it will join two most malefic major planets Herschel and Neptune. However this may bring some declining trend in oilseed market for a couple of weeks or till May and then again bullish trend is expected as Jupiter will be in its exalted Rasi till 7th August 1991. Jupiter will enter Leo ruled by the Sun. This entry of Jupiter is an important mandi factor for oilseeds market as it will cross Makha Nakshatra first of all for a couple of months. So please note and then after October 1991 it may bring again bullish trend. Hence this year 1991 is very important for bull and bear persons, kindly note.

Cotton and Kapas

Libra, the 7th sign, is the significator of cotton and kapas market. Pluto is passing through this sign. Herschel and Neptune form a sextile aspect with Pluto and this denotes bullish trend. Jupiter will be in its exaltation sign from the beginning of 1991. The trend will be quite bullish or teji till first seven months. After Jupiter's entry into Leo from 7th August 1991 declining trend can be expected till next Diwali and then again teji after Diwali 1991.

Billion

The ruling sign of silver is Cancer and of gold Leo. But according to Indian commercial Astrology, Pisces is for silver and Aquarius for gold.

In our view all watery signs, that is, Cancer, Scorpio and Pisces have special affinity with bullion market. The Nakshatras bearing on silver are Punarvasu, Visakha and Poorvabhadrapada and for gold Pushya, Chitta, Dhanishta and Mrigasira. The controlling planets are Jupiter, Saturn, Rahu and Mars.

1991 is very important for bullion market as Jupiter will cross Cancer, its exaltation sign, during the first seven months i.e., from January 1991 to August 1991. Secondly, Saturn will enter Capricorn in late 1990 and will aspect Cancer and also Jupiter in it. It will prove a bullish factor of bullion market till first six or seven months of 1991 and then will prove a bearish year from August to October 1991.

Jaggery and Sugar Market

This market is governed by Jupiter, Rahu, Neptune and Mars. The combination of three planets Saturn, Herschel and Neptune in Sagittarius is a teji or bullish factor. We have predicted good rise in the year 1989 and now we again predict bullish trend during 1991 as Saturn will join Rahu in the beginning of this year and from December 1990. Saturn and Rahu combination in Capricorn is supposed to be a bullish factor till 11th May 1991 and then Rahu may bring some mandi reaction but this will be temporary. After a month or so again bullish trend can be expected till next July or August 1991. In August 1991 entry of Jupiter into Leo may bring good declining trend for a couple of months.

Share and Stock Market

I have been very keenly researching on this market since last twenty years and I have seen that Scorpio has an important bearing on this share market. All three watery signs Scorpio, Cancer and Pisces have special bearing on this market. Herschel, Saturn, Neptune and Mars affect this market very much.

Saturn was in Scorpio the ruling sign of this share market till December 1987 and we have been always predicting bearish and declining trend and this prediction proved quite accurate. But from the year 1988 we have been always predicting bullish trend as Saturn left Scorpio and bullish trend commenced. We have requested all our reader friends to follow the bullish trend. Our prediction of the year 1990 proved most accurate.

In 1991, we again predict bullish trend in the beginning of 1991 as Saturn and Rahu will form a conjunction in Capricorn before 11th May 1991 and Jupiter will continue in its exaltation sign Cancer and aspect Scorpio, the significator sign of share market. Till 7th August 1991, the market would show bullish trend though with mandi reactions. But after 7th August 1991 Jupiter will enter Leo and bullish trend can be finished and good declining trend will begin. Jupiter in Leo is supposed to be a mandi factor for a couple of months for the share market.

Jute and Hessian Market

This market is governed by airy signs - Gemini, Libra and Aquarius. Hence the rulers of the three signs, namely, Mercury, Venus and Saturn have their special bearing on the fluctuation of jute and hessian markets. Saturn being malefic denotes bullish trend and Jupiter always favours its production. Saturn in Capricorn will join Rahu. From December 1990 to 11th May 1991, there will be an important bullish or teji factor of jute and hessian markets. On 11th May 1991 Rahu will enter Sagittarius wherein Herschel and Neptune are already posited. This Yoga cannot be supposed to be favourable for the world's political, economic and social positions. This Yoga is also a bullish Yoga for jute and hessian markets but market would rise with mandi reactions at intervals. With Jupiter's entry into Leo we expect excellent bearish trend or market would decline from its top level rates. This bearish or declining trend will continue somehow or other till next Diwali 1991. Again bullish trend is expected thereafter.

Special Note:

Please start in beginning very small business and if market goes in your favour or according to our expectation of chance increase your business; if market goes reverse stop your business. - 210.90.

PLANETS AND Career COUNSELLING

ANURADHA

My son who has a Master's degree in science, born 14-9-1961 at 1.40 p.m. (IST) at Saharsa, is presently a teacher in a plus-two school. He feels very frustrated. When will he get a better job? He thinks it should at least be a lecturer's post in a degree college or a post graduate class.

The 10th lord is Mercury well placed in his own sign with 5th lord Mars and the 8th lord Moon. Saturn aspects the 10th from Lagna; so does Lagna lord Jupiter from the 2nd, a saturnine sign. The influence of 8th lord Moon and of Saturn tend to delay results. Otherwise, the 10th house is quite well-placed.

Venus Bhukti of Rahu Dasa has just begun. Venus as 6th lord in the 8th is welcome. Rahu in the 9th is with 9th lord Sun. Therefore, shortly, your son can expect to find a good opening that will give him satisfaction in his job.

Venus is a Yogakaraka with reference to the Moon. Transit Saturn's movement into Capricorn marks the end of ardha-ashtama which should open up the potential of the chart.

I was born 3-8-1952 at 7.28 a.m. (IST) at 29 N 42, 77 E 02. I am in business since 1970 and lost all my property and cash amouting to Rs. 50 lakhs. I am caught in litigation with the banks.

Will I be successful in my business and will the bank litigation end in my favour?

The Moon as 12th lord is in the 5th in the house of hopes, speculation and investment. Unfortunately for you, the closing Bhuktis of Moon Dasa coincided with transit Saturn's passage over natal Moon (also Dasa lord) adding fuel to fire.

Now Mars Dasa has just begun and Mars is excellently placed. He is a Yogakaraka from Lagna placed in the 3rd aspected by 5th lord Jupiter. The 3rd is an Upachaya and Mars here promotes one's career. He is aspected by 5th and 8th lord Jupiter from the 9th. Mars aspects the 6th house.

Therefore, litigation may continue upto Jupiter Bhukti of Mars Dasa when some kind of relief is possible. As Mars Dasa progresses, business will again pick up pace and as transit Saturn leaves Capricorn, you can look forward to prosperity and profits.

My son, born 19-5-1967 at 6.15 p.m. (IST) at Challakere, has finished his B.Com. and is now studying I year law. Please advise regarding his future career and prospects.

The 10th lord is with Mercury in Taurus aspected by Jupiter. This is quite consistent with the line the boy has chosen. The Moon in the 8th is adversely aspectd by Lagna lord Mars. The Moon is also aspected by debilitated Saturn. The boy may be more interested in zooming on mobikes than his studies. The disposition of the Moon indicates he is likely to get into all sorts of scrapes. Unless it is clearly explained to him, he will be uncontrollable in his urge for speeding and may meet with major accidents, messing up his career and future life.

I joined a bank on 10-9-1984 as a Probationary Officer. Now I am a Branch Manager. I am not satisfied with my job and am considering trying for the Indian Forest Service Examination. What is the reason for my dissatisfaction with my bank job and what chance do I stand if I appear for the competitive examinations?

The 10th house has Mars aspecting both Lagna and Lagna lord Mercury. That makes you highly ambitious and restless. Even the 10th lord Jupiter is aspected by Mars further intensifying your efforts to aim very high.

The current Dasa lord Venus, though in his own sign, is between melefics Ketu and Sun and this makes you restless, dissatisfied and generally disappointed, your ambitions outracing your attainments.

The strong disposition of the Sun and Lagna lord Mercury in Lagna and the Subhakartari Yoga to the Ascendant are plus points and indicate with the advent of Sun Dasa, a major shift in career life. The Sun is aspected by Mars and Saturn and can indicate an administrative job commanding respect, authority and good benefits.

Further, the Bhukti is now of Saturn who is in the 7th in extreme retrogression and is also the 9th lord. Venus, the Dasa lord, is a benefic and in the 12th in his own sign aspected by 10th lord Jupiter. This could accelerate your ambitions and with the advent of Mercury Bhukti favourable changes in the direction of career are foreseen.

My husband was never interested in academic studies, till his 23rd year (1954) when he left for India to obtain a degree. Things steadily deteriorated for him until 1972 when he left U. K. to take up an assignment in the Far East and landed in Singapore. He married me in November 1977 when his finances had again turned bad in 1976. From August 1978 to early 1986 things moved smoothly. His services were discontinued in January 1989 and since then he has been passing through a nighmarish phase. He has sold away his shares at great loss and debts are piling up. He was born 4-5-1931 at 7.40 a.m. at Jaffna.

The Ascendant is weakened by several factors. The Ascendant lord is exalted in the 11th but is with Rahu. Venus Dasa was inhibited from giving good results by reason of association with Rahu. Then came Sun Dasa. The Sun is exalted and with 2nd and 5th lord Mercury. This brought in good income but the Sun and Mercury in the 12th in Vyayasthana did not help him to consolidate the gains acruing in this Dasa.

The present Dasa is of the Moon, the 3rd lord, who is Neecha or in debility and in exchange of signs with Neecha Mars. Both planets do not get effective Neechabhanga. Further, transit Saturn also contributed liberally to harassing the natal Moon with the result your husband not only suffered materially but also mentally.

The aspect of the 3rd lord Moon on Lagna and the Lagna lord Venus in a common sign have constantly kept him on the move.

Once Saturn moves out of Sagittarius and transit Mars leaves Taurus in March 1991, things may slowly improve.

The Moon Dasa will run upto August 1995. He does not promise success in business. Any kind of service would be preferable. Though income may be modest, at least losses will not mount which is what the present Dasa lord Moon can lead to. His weak disposition blurs your husband's business sense with the result,. wrong decisions will only bring in more complications.

reveals that in the lives of these men the influence of Mars is very strong. Generally, when such personalities take birth, the planet Mars is also taking birth. The moment of their birth is also the moment of birth for Mars. Just the opposite to this, no matter how many professors there are in the world, they never take birth at the time of the planet Mars' birth. Occasionally, in these cases, a coincidence may occur — but a hundred thousand cases of coincidence cannot occur. Mathematicians are born under a special constellation; poets are never born under this same constellation.

The more research is done, the more it is being discovered that the talents of a man are revealed by the time of his birth. Those who are even a little conversant with Astrology say that this happens by his being born in a specific stellar situation. But I wish to say to you that man chooses the stellar situation in which he is to be born. According to what he wants to be — whatever his innate possibilities, whatever the shape of his last life taken in its entirety, whatever his motivating consciousness — he will be born under the appropriate constellation. Every child, every new life, insists on a specific moment for birth before its entry. It wants to be born at a specific moment. Only at this moment does it wish to be conceived. His desire and that moment are interdependent.

Once one has the idea that we are not separate or isolated but joined together in an organic way, then it will be easy to understand Astrology. This is why I am explaining all this to you.

Some men have thought, and even now think, that Astrology is superstition, blind faith. To a great extent this seems to be true. Actually, those things for which it is difficult to construct a scientific explanation seem to us to be based only on blind faith. But Astrology is very scientific. The meaning of science is the investigation of the relationship between cause and effect. Astrology says that whatever happens on this earth is not uncaused. However, we may not be aware of the causes. Astrology says that the shape which the future will take cannot be isolated from the past but must be joined to it: What you will be tomorrow will be joined to what you are today; what you were until today is joined to what you will be tomorrow.

Astrology is a very scientific way of thinking. It says that the future will emerge only out of the past: Your today has emerged from your yesterday; your tomorrow will emerge from your today. Astrology also says that whatever will happen tomorrow is in some subtle way present even today.

Three days before his assassination, Abraham Lincoln dreamt that he had been murdered and that his corpse was lying in a special room in the White House. He even related the number of his room. His sleep was broken and he laughed. He said to his wife, "I dreamt that I was murdered and that my body was lying in such-and-such-number room, and in such-and-such wing of the White House." He was sleeping in that wing of the White House. "You stood at my head, and such-and-such people were stand all around." It was a joke laughing matter to him. Linc went back to sleep, his wife a went back to sleep. Three d later, Lincoln's assassination t place. Three days later, his b was lying in that number roo in that very place, and in t sequence people were stand around.

There is reference to one eve in Mahavira's life, over whi there has been much dispu Because of this dispute, a gro of his disciples broke away fro him, in his very presence. B cause of this dispute, f hundred of Mahavira's mu created a separate order. M havira used to say that whatev is happening has in some sen already happened: If you a walking, then in a sense y have already arrived at the de tination; if you are growing ol then in a sense you have alrea grown old.

One senior disciple Mahavira lived at a distance fro him during the monsoon. H was sick, so he asked a juni disciple who was present spread out a mat for him. T junior disciple began to spre out the mat. The junior disci had just unfolded the twiste rolled-up mat a little when t senior disciple remember Mahavira's saying. He thoug "Stop! Mahavira says that wh is happening has already ha pened." The mat was in t process of being rolled out but was not yet opened. It sudden occurred to him that Mahavi had said a very wrong thin The mat was half-opened, but what sense was it alrea opened? He left the mat the After the monsoon he came Mahavira and said, "You a mistaken when you say that wh is happening has alrea happened, because the mat even now lies only half-opened. It was being opened, but it has not been opened. So I have come to prove that your saying is wrong..."

Mahavira told him that he had not understood the saying. Mahavira said "You have stopped the process. It was happening but you interrupted it. The mat which you prevented from unfolding was already actualizing itself in the very unfolding process. It had, in fact, already actualized. You only saw the mat in the process of unfolding, but one more process was going on, and that is what has already happened. So, for how long will your mat remain folded? It has begun to become opened, and will open. You go back." When he returned he saw that a man had opened the mat and was lying on it resting. This man had upset everything; he had destroyed the whole thesis of the disciple.

When Mahavira used to say that whatever is happening has already happened, he was saying that whatever is happening is the present, whatever may be is the future.

Astrology recognizes the incompleteness of the view that the past is giving the impetus and that the future happens as a result. If one views a phenomenon in its totality, one sees that the past is providing the impetus, but also that the future is exercising a pull, an attraction. The bud becoming a flower is not all that is happening. The flower is calling out to the bud to become a flower; it is exercising a pull. The past is behind; the future is ahead. Now in the present moment, there is a bud. The entire past is pushing the bud to become a flower and the entire future is calling on the bud to become a flower.

Under pressure from both directions, past and future, the bud will become a flower. If there were no future, then the past by itself would be unable to create the flower, because the future must provide space for the bud to become a flower. In the future a place, a space, is necessary. If the future provides a place, only then will the bud be able to flower. If there were no future, then no matter how much the past should try, no matter how much it were to push you, it would be in vain.

The future is not utterly uncertain. Our knowledge is uncertain; our ignorance is weighty. But something of the future is revealed to us — and Astrology is not merely the study of what the stars and planets say or of calculating their significance. This is but one dimension of Astrology.

Still, knowing the future is a dimension of Astrology. People have lines on the palms of their hands. People have lines on their foreheads, people have lines on the soles of their feet — but this too is superficial. In the human body there are hidden chakras. Every chakra has its own unique sensation. Every chakra vibrates in its own unique fashion, at its own frequency, all the time. This matter has been investigated.

Human beings have concealed within them the mental impressions or seeds of the past. Ron Hubbard has brought a new word, a new science, to the West. For the East it is ancient. The name of this science is time track. Hubbard thinks that in whatever form a man has lived, whether as man or beast, whether as plant or stone... in whatever form he has lived throughout his infinite span of lives, that this entire stream of memories is still contained within him.

In all of Hubbard's research, this is the most valuable discovery. About time track Hubbard has said that within man there are engrams. On the one hand, we possess a memory by which we recall what happened yesterday and what happened the day before. This is our "working" memory, this is our everyday memory.

But even deeper than this is a memory which is not merely for getting the work done, which is our life, which sums up our entire experience: the accumulated essence of our experience throughout countless lives on the path. This, Hubbard has called "engram" — it has become "engrained" within us. It lies in its entirety, locked deep within, just as if a tape is kept locked in your pocket. It can be opened, and when it is opened, it becomes what Mahavira used to call "race memory". Hubbard calls it time track — it enables one to go back in time. When it is opened the experience is not that you are "remembering". It is not as though you are remembering — you relive the experience.

When the time track is unlocked, you do not feel that "I am remembering" — no. You relive it. Try to understand. If your time track is unlocked, it will not be difficult. In fact, without it Astrology is incomplete. The deepest realization of Astrology is that your past must be unlocked — because if you become aware of your entire past, then you will be aware of your entire future, because your future will emerge out of your past. Without knowing your past you cannot know your future, because your future will be the child of your past, your future will be born out of your past.

Seventy percent of our illnesses have happened through the time track - they have been caught and grasped so tightly that again and again we relive them.

Astrology is an attempt to probe the future by many, many paths. Among these, the most commonly used path is the study of how the planets and stars influence man. For this, scientific evidence is becoming more available every day. This much has been decided — that life is affected and cannot avoid being affected by these influences. Only the second part remains difficult — whether each person as an individual is also affected. It worries scientists a little whether each person is affected individually — whether the three or four billion men on this earth are each affected as individuals. But they must realize that this is so.

Why are they so troubled? Nature can give each man a thumb that is uniquely his, that is individual and unrepeated. Several billion people may have lived on the earth, several billion people may live in the future on the earth, but my thumb-print will not be repeated. You may be surprised to learn that in the case of twins born out of one egg, which I have spoken about, even their thumb-prints will also differ from one another.

If nature can bestow so much individuality on each man with regard to a worthless thing like a thumb — a thing which is of no special value and which seems to fulfil no special purpose — if nature can even give a thumb a uniqueness, then can it not bestow on each man a unique life and a unique spirit? There seems to be no reason why not. But science goes in slow motion -- and it is good! Until a fact has been completely proved, it is not proper to creep forward even an inch. But prophets can take a leap. That which will happen a thousand or even a hundred thousand years later, they can declare right now.

Astrology is basically the investigation of the future. And science is basically the investigation of the past and the present. Science is the investigation of what is today and what is its cause. Astrology is the investigation of what tomorrow will be and what will be its consequences. Between the two there is a huge gap. But every day science experiences new things, and theories to which it has become attached can never be proved absolutely correct — they only seem correct.

As I have said, science has only recently accepted that every man is born with built-in individuality. It had long been reluctant to accept the validity of this idea. But Astrology has always been saying this. When we sow the mango seed, there must be contained within it some sort of built-in program; there must be a blueprint. If this were not so, then the seed would be helpless. It neither takes advice from a specialist, nor does it study at a university. How then can a mango tree develop out of this seed?

Scientists used to say that it is just coincidence. But the word 'coincidence' seems very unscientific. Coincidence means chance. By chance a foot may begin to see and a hand to hear. But there does not seem to be much coincidence. Everything seems to be in order, prearranged.

Astrology says a more scientific thing. It says that everything is available within the seed. Astrology says that if we can study the seed, if we can discover the language of the seed, if we can decode this language — if we can ask the seed, "What is your intention?" — then we will be able to draw up the complete blueprint of a human being too.

Astrology declares that if by divine grace we come to know the whole, then the future as such will not exist at all. But because we do not know the whole but only a little fragment, what we do not know therefore becomes "the future".

Birth charts and horoscopes are only for probing into all these matters. For thousands of years we have tried, when a child is born, to find out what will happen to him. If we could get some estimate, then perhaps we could make some arrangements, perhaps we could increase the child's opportunities. Then whatever is to happen, we could become accepting towards it.

Mulla Nasruddin declared towards the end of his life that he had always been miserable, but that suddenly one day he had become happy. The entire population of the village was struck with wonder that a man who had always been depressed, who always used to see the dark side of things, should suddenly have become cheerful. He was a man who had always been pessimistic, who always used to look for thorns.

Once there was an excellent crop in Nasruddin's garden. There were so many apples that the trees were overloaded. In the neighborhood, one man inquired whether Nasruddin could now possibly have any complaint. He said, "This time the crop is such that it will rain gold. What do you think, Nasruddin?"

Nasruddin, in great sorrow, said, "Everything is okay, but where will I get rotten apples to

(Some books on obstetrics give duration of pregnancy as 280 ±7 days.) The maximum period will be 273.2 + half the sidereal period of Moon i.e., approximately 287 days. In other words, astrologically the duration of pregnancy can be expressed as 280±1/4 sidereal period of the Moon.

On the basis of the above, I would like to say hypothetically that, the foetus completes all the physiological formalities and becomes fully grown within the period of 273.2 days. At this point of time the transiting Moon will be in conjunction with the Moon of LMP and in general i.e., in two out of three cases at least, delivery takes place within a period of 14 days. Let us remember here that the "ovulation-menstruation interval" is also 14 days. This leads us to the conclusion that the exact date of delivery is governed by the transit of Moon through 180°, within which it is able to influence all the points of the zodiac either by placement or by direct aspect. The transiting Moon tries to match itself most appropriately with the charts of parents, and when the proper alignment is obtained the date of birth gets fixed. Then the ascending signs also repeat the above exercise to deliver the child at the respective time. Destiny probably imposes its commands through the astro-genetical influences from the parental charts.

Astro-Genetical Factor: "Astro-Genetics" refers to the transmission of horoscopic features from one generation to another. The crucial points of a chart which are involved in this transmission are the Lagna, the Moon and the 5th house. Their diagonally opposite signs also get involved by virtue of the 180° aspect. The above points of parental charts compete among themselves to appear as Lagna and the Moon in the charts of the children. The term Astro-Genetical Influence (AGI) can now be defined as the ability of a parental sign to appear as either Lagna or Chandra Lagna in the charts of the next generation. The ability of a parental sign to transmit itself downwards in a new generation as Lagna or the Moon depends on (i) the frequency with which it appeared as "crucial points" in the ancestral charts and (ii) the influence of the transiting planets on that sign at the time of birth of a child and the matching of the same with the planetary influence over the crucial points of parental charts.

In any chart, all the signs will have a certain amount of AGI's embedded in it and the signs depending upon the relative strength of their AGI's, influences or provides for the cosmic design of the future generation. The total Astro-Genetical Influence a parental sign is able to exert is the sum of the respective maternal and paternal AGI's and can be called the Astro-Genetical Factor (AGF) of that sign. From generation to generation the AGF gets transmitted and is probably the carrier of cosmic commands and the string of "bio-cosmic tie up".

According to medical science, the normal duration of pregnancy varies and depends on individual peculiarities and on factors which have not yet been determined. On the basis of the above discussion, I would like to draw an inference that the factors which remain to be discovered by medical science are only the "astro-genetical" ones.

Astro-Genetics and Date of Labour

According to the formula of gynaecologists, in the case of Example 1, the expected date of labour is 20th June 1989, i.e., LMP + 9 months + 7 days. According to their conclusion based on statistics, delivery may take place any time between 13th June and 27th June 1989.

Astrologically, delivery takes place after a period of ten lunar months (i.e., 273.2 days) when the Moon transits or aspects the Rasi of the highest Astro-Genetical Influence. In this case, we have to examine the transit of the Moon from Virgo to Pisces to determine the date of delivery. While doing so we must keep in mind the important planetary features of the parental charts.

In Example 1, it can be seen that the sign axis Cancer-Capricorn is doubly strong, Cancer being the Lagna of the mother and Chandra Lagna of the father. The paternal Moon is in its own house, while the maternal Lagna lord is in Parivartana with 9th lord Jupiter and hence the respective Moon as well as Lagna are quite powerful. So within the limits of the probable interval, the ideal position for the Moon of the child is Capricorn, because from there it can aspect the Lagna of the mother and, the Moon of the father. Also when the Moon occupies Capricorn, it aspects the transiting Mars placed in Cancer and, therefore, on the day of birth, the Lagna lord and the 5th lord of the mother will be in mutual aspect. It is to be noted here that then the most predominant planetary feature of the maternal chart viz., the Moon-Mars mutual aspect will be accounted for in the case of the child. In the case of mother, the Lagna lord was in parivartana with Jupiter, whereas in the

I Analysis: Distribution of Planets

Table 3 shows the pattern of frequency distribution of planets.

The frequency distribution is striking indeed for the Cancer born. In terms of individual houses, the 10th house accounts for 30, the 1st for 27, 4th for 24, 6th for 23, 12th for 22, 11th for 21, 2nd for 20, 5th for 17, 3rd for 14, 7th for 13, 9th for 10 and the 8th house for 6, with a total frequency for 243 (inclusive of 16 for correction for incomplete details as shown in Table 3). This means that the affairs of houses with considerably larger number of frequency distribution are activised to a very great extent and in such houses the frequency of malefic planets far outweighs that of the benefics, and in the 7th and 8th houses, the frequency only of malefics is registered in the examined horoscopes. These are indications of the loss of balance in and an interest for life in the material sense of domestic life, as houses indicative of this part of life are mostly under the care of the malefics.

When we consider the total frequency of planet configurations, it is found that the first 4 houses (representing personality, home, relations and education) of the zodiac account for 85 points, the second 4 houses (representing children, health, wife and life) account for only 59 points and the last 4 houses (representing luck, profession, profits and other happiness) account for 83 points. That is to say, the first 4 and the last 4 houses are much less weak or happy than the middle 4 houses, which but are vital for domestic life.

This finding only strengthens the belief that the Cancer natives are denied the vital happiness on the domestic life coinciding with the middle portion of their lives. Let us probe into this a little further. What are the good and bad planets for Cancer Ascendant? These have already been indicated and as regards the earth's satellite, in the majority of cases either his association or nature of flanking houses, although otherwise by himself capable being a benefic, makes him bad. In this situation for the charts analysed, only Jupiter, Mars and Venus are good. Disregarding their rulership afflictions if any, let us now see their frequency in the 3 divisions of the zodiac. Table 4 presents the details.

Planets	Zodiacal Division
	I	II	III
Malefics	47	44	58
Benefics	38	15	25

Is there any wonder then that the general domestic life of the Cancer natives is bad and in the process therefore Cancer Ascendant itself becomes bad? This is reinforced when we analyse further into the relative position of the Cancer Ascendant as follows:

The position of the Ascendant is considerably shaken by evil forces, although the benefics somewhat try to mitigate it. This leaves a bad stigma for the Ascendant although in it were born many a sage of renown. The latter perhaps can be explained by the fact that in the first 4 houses the benefics are relatively more than in the other divisions and that Sun (ruler of 2nd) and Venus (ruler of 4th and 11th) invariably occupy, with or without Mercury (ruler of 3rd and 12th) in Aries or Taurus in their cases with Jupiter's 7th house beneficent rays on them.

Further Moon represents the mind and he is also the owner of Cancer. In the charts analysed, he is predominant in the 1st and 4th houses and tends to occupy to some extent the 2nd, 3rd, 10th and 11th houses. Saturn's aspect on Moon is by and large negligible. Mars affects Moon predominantly by 4th house aspect. Among Rahu and Ketu, the aspect of the former is nil and that of the latter not in many charts.

Is there anything else wrong with Moon for the Cancer born? There are two things to consider here. We have already noticed how the 2 strong malefics, namely Saturn and Mars, happen to be predominantly in the 1st house where Moon is also predominantly situated. In other words, Moon's association with not only malefics but with lords of the 8th house and the angles, in addition to the 4th house aspect of Mars, makes him a first-rate malefic. The second thing is that the 12th house is afflicted by Saturn and Mars and more than that by Rahu and Ketu and the second house is always afflicted by Mars. That is, Moon is posited with and hemmed in between malefics. And in such cases where he is with Jupiter or with Jupiter flanking him in the preceding or succeeding houses immediately, he is unable to mitigate all the enormity of Moon's afflictions, since he is the owner of the 6th house. When Jupiter is in the 12th, he is below the horizon and when he is in Cancer, the sign of his exaltation, he could at best prevent death of the marital partners (here note that in Chart 1, his presence in the 1st house prevented death, but in charts where one of the partners died, he is not at all in the 1st house) but he does not eliminate some trouble or other overtaking or interfering with marital happiness. That the 6th house is as a rule occupied, for Cancer natives, either by Saturn and Mars or Rahu or Ketu or Mercury (whose disposition turns for the worse on account of his association and/or being the owner of 3rd and 12th houses) oppose the marital partnership amity and the house is never relieved of this affliction. We must also note that only in 4 out of 25 cases there is Jupiter's aspect on the 7th house (where his position is nil in the charts analysed), 5th house (where he is posited 1 in 25) and 9th house (where his position is nil). On the other hand, Saturn and Sun happen to occupy together the 7th house in a few cases, Sun occupies the 5th more number of times and Saturn and Mars throw their full beam on the 7th.

In the 9th house itself, in almost all cases (except 4 in 25) no planet is posited, although in 5 out of 25 Mars afflicts it with the 8th house aspect and the same planet continues to afflict it with the 4th house aspect.

In the case of the 12th house, not only the malefics tend to gather there (specially Rahu and Ketu) but Saturn afflicts it by his 3rd and 7th house aspects, and Mars by his 7th house aspect. Invariably Rahu and Ketu afflict it equal number of times their stay in that house. The relief to the house comes only in the shape of the aspect of Jupiter in the 4th house in the majority of cases.

What about the 2nd house? Mars predominates in his position there relative to other planets and that appears enough to cause domestic unsettlement.

Our finding in our first analysis is that the Cancer Ascendant is possessed by itself of evil forces for marital happiness.

II Analysis: Sarvashtakavarga

We shall now consider the Sarvashtakavarga bindu totals housewise in order to find out whether the Cancer natives are lucky on their domestic front. Table 6 gives the relevant data.

The Sarvashtakavarga analysis of the Cancer natives makes very valuable and interesting conclusion. In 16 horoscopes the 5th house, in 13 horoscopes the 7th, in 12 horoscopes the 9th house and in 15 horoscopes the 12th house are very weak because the total number of bindus in them are less than 25. When the 5th becomes weak, courtship and pleasure diminish, when 7th is weak, sexual enjoyment of wife or husband as well as partnership are thwarted, when 9th becomes weak, luck withers away, besides the native's character becoming questionable and when the 12th house becomes weak, obstacles in life increase and conjugal pleasures are dimmed in as much as sinful habits are likely to develop.

There is a rule that more bindus should not collect in 6, 8 and 12th houses. For Cancer it is precisely in these houses that the totality of the bindus is strong. For 21 horoscopes in 6th house, for 17 in 8th and for 10 in 12th, the total is immensely stronger than desirable.

However the point which clinches the issue of marital happiness for the Cancer born is this: In 25 cases, for 15 the bindus are so weak as to make the 12th house activity dull and spineless; and for the rest, that is 10, the bindus are too strong to allow for sanity in the house activity, so that in all cases, in cent percent cases, the life is ruined. No wonder then Cancer is cancerous!

Our finding is therefore that the Cancer born is destined to lead a barren domestic life.

III Analysis: Sarvashtakavarga and Trifold Zodiacal Division

Let us now compute the totality of the Sarvashtakavarga bindus in terms of the 3 divisions of the zodiac. Table 7 gives the particulars.

In 21 out of 25 cases there is deterioration in the lives of the natives. When the Cancer natives move from the first to the second zodiacal division, there is a great fall in the total of the bindus and in 12 cases there is a further fall for them in the third division as well. As already noted, we know that when the second division suffers, the natives are less happy than before and more importantly they suffer in respect of issues and pleasure, health and partnership progress and in every other way.

We must also note that Charts No. 1, 8, 9, 13, 19, 22, 23, 24, 25 and 26 belong to natives who lost their partners and it is very apparent that there is a very huge difference in such cases in the total of bindus between the first and the second divisions. Barring Chart No. 1, in the other cases the magnitudes of difference (minus sign) are respectively 31, 19, 25, 13, 3, 25, 2, 11, 21 and 15. It will be seen that in Chart No. 23 the difference is the least and perhaps it makes an only exception. As regards the small differences in Charts No. 19, 24 and 26, they belong to natives who married for the second or the third time. The first chart is that of Sri Rama and there is an accretion of 11 units in the second zodiacal division and a steep fall of 15 units in the third division. The explanation for the former can be that in His case His consort was only separated and the explanation for the latter attributable perhaps to the truly sagely life which He exemplified in later life for humanity down the ages to follow. In the case of the Buddha also we see this fall in the last part. It goes to show the real ascetic life which he led with complete inner realisation with renunciation of earthly associations of whatever character.

This part of our research leads us to the conclusion that the Cancer Ascendant's intrinsic propensities tend to make the native live a life shorn of the pleasures of the home but attain greatness in other respects.

IV Analysis: Planetary Conjunctions and Principles

We have already discussed in detail how different conjunctions of planets may lead to beneficial Yogas and how some conjunctions are evil potential. We however invite the attention of all to specific conjunctions afflicting specific horoscopes examined. Among many principles for judging evil effects on the 7th house, the chief are the following: (1) Sun is in 7 and is afflicted; (2) Mars along with another malefic occupies any of 1, 4, 7, 8 or 12th houses; and (3) a weak malefic planet occupies 7 and is aspected by malefic. When we apply these principles to the charts in Table 1, it will be found that most of them answer the rules in one way or other. For instance, Charts No. 7, 9, 10, 11, 14, 18, 25 and 26.

Malefic forces thus prepossess the Cancer born.

V Analysis: Star Formation

Perhaps the Ascendant Cancer derives its evil nature or propensities from the stars[4] covered by it. The constellations or the Nakshatras for the Cancer Ascendant are the last quarter of Punarvasu (Beta Geminorum, part of the stars) like the potter's wheel, Pushyami (Delta Cancri, 3 stars) resembling a block-sucker and Aslesha (Alpha Hydrae, 6 stars) in the form of a serpent. Of all the 27 stars, it is only these 3 which acquire sinister significance in the shape of their constellational formation. The beginning of the Cancer Ascendant with a quarter of Punarvasu, a part of the potter's wheel, broken as it is, is neither complete in itself nor can it balance itself as it were, can only mean a broken life! Whatever remains of the initiation of the evils or break by the first star is nearly done dry by the block-sucker and the serpent finishes it and seals it up.

VI Analysis: Rulerships for Cancer

That Cancer does not confer general happiness, specially domestic life, is a distinct property of that house itself. To validate this statement again, we will analyse the various houses of the zodiac from the point of view of their planetary rulerships and apply thereto the principles of benefic and malefic attributes of planets arising from their owning square and angular or cadent houses. The rules for these are quoted elsewhere in this research paper.[5]

Table 8 deals with this. To evaluate the aggregate rulership benefit for a house, we assign a point for every planet's unsullied beneficent capacity, and where a planet owns 2 houses, one of which happens to be malefic, half a point only is allowed for that planet in respect of the house considered.

In this analysis we find that of all house Ascendants, only Scorpio obtains the maximum of 5 points and Cancer obtains only the least with 3 points. This is another proof that Cancer Ascendant is all but sweet in life.

VII Analysis: Astronomy in Cancer

An astronomical explanation for the predisposition of Cancer to cause unlucky life for its natives may now be attempted.

It is common knowledge that the velocities of the planets in relation to their distance from the Sun vary. The velocity itself depends upon the diameter of the planets. Revolving round it continuously in elliptical orbits, the planets are held near the Sun by the pull of gravity, and kept from being drawn into it by the speed with which they move through space. The closer they are to the Sun, the faster they move. When the Hindu solar months are measured along the anomalistic line, the lengths of the months increase gradually from Dhanus (Sagittarius) to Mithuna (Gemini) and decrease gradually from Mithuna to Dhanus. [6]Mithuna has maximum length and Dhanus minimum length of month. The Sun passes through Dhanus when the earth is at perihelion and through Mithuna when the earth is at aphelion. The zodiacal signs are of equal space and when the velocity is the greatest for Sun the duration of the period of transit will be the least. And Sun's movement from Gemini to Cancer therefore causes violent disturbances more to Cancer Ascendant than to the others and more to the Capricorn also. In fact precession of the equinoxes causes the ever-shifting nature of the Tropics of Cancer and Capricorn. Views[7] differ on these whether the terms Tropics of Cancer and Capricorn are true only in the system of Sun's movements apparently causing a virtual or shadow zodiac or in the Hindu sidereal system the solstices should be called the Tropics of the North and the South to be true.

Nevertheless the fact remains that the planetary velocities are frequently more disturbed in Cancer due to Sun's ingress in Cancer (thereby causing changes of seasons). This ingress is perhaps not very transitional. This fluctuation occurring in Cancer, being as it is located in a crucial part of the zodiac, may possibly reflect itself in the ever-shifting or impermanent lives of Cancer natives. [8]Cancer indeed becomes the seat of ill-defined influences.

VIII Findings

We have now looked at the charts of the Cancer Ascendants from many angles. In every angle there is overwhelming evidence for the following conclusions:

(1) A Cancer native is deprived of his partner for good or they live in separation or they have endless quarrels or either of the partners becomes sickly and proves a burden on the other or they do not marry at all[9]; (2) Cancer Ascendant alone, without reference to other planetary positions or combinations, brings about marital unhappiness; (3) in a horoscope where Cancer is Ascendant, the planets take such positions as to complete the ruin of marital happiness; (4) the above facts have been proved cent percent in this research; and (5) the Cancer Ascendant acts in this way irrespective of sex.

However I am at a loss to advance any reason (other than I have shown in my analyses) for Cancer ruining marital happiness. But it is a fact that it, independent of other considerations, ruins marital happiness. It is funny to observe the planets as though are afraid of Cancer and arrange themselves in such positions in the zodiac as to aid Cancer and complete ruination brought about by it. In this connection, the story of Hiranyakasipu, father of Prahlada, comes to my mind. Hiranyakasipu was the master of the worlds, the earth, heaven and nether world, and it need not be said that even the planets came under his sway. When his son Prahlada attained school-going age, Hiranyakasipu sends for his priest Sukra and asks him to fix an auspicious date for commencing education for his son. Sukra fixes an auspicious date falling 12 months hence. But Hiranyakasipu would not wait so long. A date falling 6 months later was fixed and that too did not meet his approval. So a date falling a month later was fixed and when that was also not suitable the priest fixed the evening of the day on which they were deliberating. Thereupon Hiranyakasipu asks his priest, "why not straightaway commence teaching my son just now when we are here and the boy is here?" The priest declared that the same hour was auspicious. It is to be noted that the planets were in mortal terror of Hiranyakasipu, with the result, they took such positions as to constitute an auspicious time, every time the priest fixed the date. This is a mythological story and I know that my readers will take it with a grain of salt. Still it illustrates in a way the strange fact of the planetary positions occurring in the houses of the Cancer people.

Mr. R. Natesa Pillai's analysis[10] also leads to the same conclusion. He is struck by the misfortune of Cancer subjects (men or women) in respect of their married lives. He does not mean that one should steer clear of Cancer natives but it is his conviction that no Cancer person can have a continuously smooth or happy married life. Either the partner is lost or disabled or some supervening cause intervenes to promote some form of disagreement apparent or undisclosed.

IX Some Possible Doubts Cleared

My finding and my contention are that Cancer people's marital happiness is affected in almost all cases and therefore Cancer Ascendant is a potential factor in ruining marital happiness. But many of my astrologer friends are going to contend that marital unhappiness is due to the debilitation of the 7th house, its lord, the Karaka planet and many other evil combinations and so on. The question they have to answer is, whether these occur only in relation to all Cancer people? Are not these tests usually applied in respect of all Ascendants to find out marital happiness? Again the 7th house is strong, its lord is exalted, the Karaka is strong and there are no evil combinations or aspects in the horoscopes of some Cancer people and there are a few such horoscopes among those examined. Yet their marital happiness is ruined in one way or the other. Therefore I say that irrespective of other considerations, the mere fact that one is born under the influence of Cancer, is alone responsible for his marital unhappiness.

Now here comes a friend with the horoscope of a gentleman whose Ascendant is Cancer and who is in the enjoyment of perfect marital happiness in the opinion of the friend and therefore the finding, that Cancer without reference to other factors solely affects the marital happiness, has no leg to stand. I can only answer him saying that all that glitters is not gold and that we must probe deep into the marital relationships of this friend which is not always easy. If even after this probe my friend still finds that there is marital happiness in respect of the gentleman, it must be decided as a case of exception as one in a lack or crore of cases. Here the time-honoured observation that every rule has an exception plays its part.

A doubt may possibly arise if the number of horoscopes examined will be sufficient to warrant a generalisation about the Cancer Ascendant. In the Notable Horoscopes out of 77 horoscopes listed, only 11 belong to the Cancer Ascendant or about 14%. In THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, for years 1959 to 1966 September out of about 115 horoscopes recorded, only about 15 were that of Cancer. In all cases the home life is unhappy. The point is not how many cases we have examined but the point is what is the net result in the cases examined. As said above there is uniformity of marital unhappiness in all cases examined. Therefore we can safely affirm that Cancer is not conducive to marital happiness.

X Purpose of Research

Lastly let us see if my finding that Cancer Ascendant acts as if it is cancer malady in the relation between husband and wife, leads to any useful purpose. I have already observed that marriage is a necessity. It is a landmark in the life of a man. It affects his future either for good or bad and fortunately there is a tradition from ancient times to compare the horoscopes of the would-be husband and wife to find out if they are assured of a reasonable chance of happiness astrologically. Now in view of the finding that Cancer plays an independent part we must take extra and special effort in the comparison of horoscopes when we meet with Cancer Ascendant either in the case of a bride or bridegroom. It is not enough to decide a marriage merely on the conventional agreement called the ten Poruthams or points. We must also take into consideration the strength of Kalatra Bhavam regarding the house, the lord and the Karaka, and also of the other combinations. In this way, we can mitigate the evil consequences of Cancer, for according to eminent authorities the influences of planets do not constitute fate but only show tendencies and their evil tendencies can be greatly mitigated by taking proper precautions.

5. SIMHA (Leo)

General: The Sun in the unfavourable 5th till 12th with check transits afterwards the favourable 6th with Vedha. Mars in the 10th and Saturn in the 6th are fully favourable. Venus in the 6th and the 7th is thoroughly unsatisfactory but he is under check till 22nd. Jupiter is also totally unfavourable when transiting the 12th. Mercury also is adverse when transiting the adverse 5th practically throughout till the last day when he moves into the favourable 6th. In a month of mixed results the good effects will be more in evidence. Through connections in high circles you will gain authority and influence. Engineers are particularly favoured. You will make good profits in the steel trade. Poorvaphalguni is better than Makha and Uttaraphalguni.

Health and Domestic: Health problems are likely to worry you during the month and these will not be of a serious nature. Chronic sufferers should take good care of their health. You will have domestic bliss in full during the first three weeks. You will have domestic troubles during the last ten days.

Finance and Speculation: Pressure from creditors will be somewhat severe. But friends will gladly help you out of an embarrassing situation and you will be able to meet your obligations. Speculative deals should be avoided during the month.

Real Property, Services, Professions, etc.: Real property transactions will be smooth, satisfactory and profitable. Yield and rentals will be quite good. Labour will cause considerable annoyance to you. This is not an unsatisfactory month for the services. Businesses and professions will find the month, more or less, profitable.

Women: Social contacts will help you greatly in your business activities. Social climbers will find the month quite helpful. Employed girls are likely to be transferred to places of their choice.

Students: You will shine very well in the field of sports. The chances of your inclusion in the national team are quite bright. Commissions in the army are likely to be offered to you. Contacts with the opposite sex could be reduced during the last ten days to your advantage.

ASTROLOGY: THE SCIENCE OF COSMIC ONENESS

where will I get rotten apples to feed the animals?"

This man remains miserable: All the apples were good, none were rotten — this was his difficulty.

So when this man suddenly became happy the people of the village were curious. So they asked, "You are happy, Nasruddin? Has the kingdom become yours?" Nasruddin said, "I have learned to co-operate with the inevitable. After many years of struggling, I have realized something. Now I have decided that what must be, must be. Now I co-operate with the inevitable, so now there is no reason to be miserable. Now I am happy."

Astrology investigates many things. To whatever is inevitable, it lends a co-operative hand. Whatever is to be, it does not madly struggle against. Whatever is not to be, it does not demand, does not reach out towards. Astrology was a means for making man religious — for bringing him to suchness, for bringing him to an ultimate acceptance. It has many dimensions, it has many aspects.

Life is a whole. If you can perceive this wholeness, only then will you understand Astrology — otherwise you will not understand. Astrology is an aspect of spirituality, a dimension of spirituality. It is the science of wholeness, unity, nonduality.—225.90.

aspect of Jupi@ter. If we look into the ephemeris it can be seen that the longitudes of the Moon and Mars in their respective signs will be equal at about 0430 hrs on 22 June 1990, and on this basis, astrologically, the probable date of delivery can be predicted as 22nd June 1989. With a certain amount of risk, we can venture to predict that the delivery will be after 0430 a.m. on 22nd June 1989. I think it will be possible to give the exact date of delivery by a consideration of the divisional charts.—148.90.

Q. My daughter, who is in the teaching profession, got married in September 1988. Her husband and in-laws began to harass and ill-treat her for bringing insufficient dowry forcing her to leave her matrimonial home in January 1989.

Her husband has shown no signs of understanding her plight. What is your advice?

Ans: The 7th house is quite well-placed. The 7th lord Venus, though in the 12th, is quite well-placed in his Moolatrikona Rasi. Venus is aspected by benefic Jupiter, as also malefic Saturn and Mars, the last named being Lagna lord.

The Dasa of Rahu cannot be very adverse as he is in the 9th. Therefore, there is hope your daughter's problem has a solution. Once Saturn moves out of Sagittarius, your son-in-law will start rethinking on the matter. This may take some time but if you are patient, your daughter will be able to lead a normal married life.

In the meanwhile, she can try to keep herself occupied by giving tutions at home.

Q. My niece got married in 1986. She lived with her husband only for 3 days. All our efforts to make her live with her husband went waste. She has studied only upto S.S.L.C. We have applied for divorce. Is a second marriage indicated ?

Ans: The 7th house has Mars, 11th lord, and Rahu aspected by Saturn. Venus, the Karaka, is Vargottama and joins Saturn. This can indicate a second marriage. The girl is finishing her Mercury Dasa in July 1992. Then begins Ketu Dasa. Ketu is in a mercurial sign and Mercury is well-placed. So, she can pursue her studies privately until the question of her marriage is resolved. This will meet with some delay since Ketu, the next Dasa lord, is aspected by malefic Mars and the divorce may be contested by the husband. However, about the time of the Moon

Bhukti in Ketu Dasa, she may get legal relief.

Q. My daughter is inclined to study further. She is a B.Sc. gold medalist. In January 1988, she discontinued her M.Sc. studies joining a bank. In 1989, she was diagnosed as having lung T.B. and after treatment for 10 months, she is completely cured. She does not seem interested in marriage. What would you advise?

Born 12-11-1966 at 3h. 56m. (IST) at 16 N 40, 81 E 00.

Ans: The 7th house Pisces is hemmed between malefics, though aspected by exalted 7th lord Jupiter and 8th lord Mars. Rahu is in the 7th from weak Moon. Venus is combust. The Dasa is of the 5th and 6th lord Saturn. So, marriage may not necessarily imply happiness and stability. I think she can continue her studies and go in for marriage only after a suitable astrological match is found.

Q. My repeated attempts in securing good academic qualification and settling in computer career have failed miserably. Since 1987 upto date I have not had the taste of success in any event in my life, why?

Born 5-3-1967 at 10.40 a.m. (IST) at 13° N, 77° E 35'.

S. No. 10777

Ans: The Ascendant Taurus is aspected by Mars which makes you over-ambitious. Saturn's aspect on the Ascendant gives you patience and perseverance to steadily work towards your objective.

The Sun in the 10th is a sign of ultimate success. What you are passing through is, therefore, only a transitional phase and therefore you need not feel frustrated. You are now in the last Bhukti of Sun Dasa. This finishes in October 1991. The Moon (Janma Rasi) has also been under affliction. Therefore until late 1991, the same trends may continue.

The next Dasa is of the Moon who is aspected by Yogakaraka Saturn. Once this Dasa begins there may be slow but steady progress in your attempts. The 8th house position of the Moon is a slightly dampening position but Saturn's aspect helps a lot. You can therefore pursue your goal of acquiring computer-qualification. As 3rd lord the Moon's 8th house position can even be described as fairly good in one sense.

The Moon Dasa, since his sign-dispositor Jupiter is exalted, may also make you review your attitudes and think afresh on many matters which you had not thought important. This Dasa can help you grow in mind and spirit and can be profitably employed to venture into Vedanta and allied areas of knowledge.

Q. My elder daughter wants to get married to an engineer from a different caste. The parents of both have liked the match and it is only a question of time till the boy gets settled in his career. He left one job, joined another. Then he was selected for the Army and his training will finish shortly. Till July 1990, he was at the top. Suddenly he fell sick and is mentally upset. Will my daughter get married to him or what? My younger daughter is due to get married in December 1990.

S. No. 1529[illegible]

Ans: Since the marriage has already been decided upon, the question is only when. Jupiter Bhukti of the Moon Dasa will begin from February 1992. Jupiter is the 9th lord in the 2nd and aspecting the Dasa lord Moon (who is also the Ascendant lord) and can bring about marriage.

Boy: Born 22-6-1967

In the boy's chart, the Sun Dasa is coming to a close and the Sun is the 8th lord placed in the 6th. This can give an element of frustration especially that transit Saturn transits natal Moon. However, the next Dasa lord Moon (Dasa begins in May 1992) is Vargottama and aspected by both Mars and Saturn. So, once this Dasa begins, he will find his niche careerwise. So, there is really no room for worry!

Q. All my efforts to get my daughter married have been in vain. Is it a case of no marriage?

Born 13-10-1965.

S. No. 9605

Ans: The girl is running Saturn Bhukti of Rahu Dasa. Rahu is in a venusian house with 2nd lord Moon and aspected by Mars and Venus and becomes capable of bringing about marriage. Karaka Venus is in the 6th with 6th lord Mars aspected by Saturn and this can hardly conduce to an early marriage.

However, Jupiter in the Ascendant aspecting the 7th house and Lagna lord will not delay it unduly. It indicates marriage following some initial frustration in groom-hunting.

Marriage may come about only in the last part of Venus Bhukti of Rahu Dasa. There is no point in fretting unnecessarily and running around in search of a suitable match. The girl could be prevailed upon to study further or acquire some kind of training for employment so that she will be busy and not made to while away important years of her life doing nothing.

Q. I would like to know if my younger sister will ever get a reasonably paid permanent job and what sort of job you would advise her? She is now only doing lowly paid and temporary jobs. Also, despite her hard toil and thrift, she gets neither affection nor any help from her husband. Will she ever be happy with him or must she remarry?

Born 17-11-1951 at 1.10 p.m. (Malaysia Time).

Ans: Your sister is passing through an adverse phase—Saturn Dasa, Jupiter Bhukti.

Saturn as Lagna lord is a benefic but he is in the 8th. Jupiter marks the closing Bhukti of Saturn Dasa and, naturally, it is a period of frustration and disappointment. Jupiter is no benefic for Aquarius, in fact he is unhelpful as regards family peace and monetary matters.

However, Saturn, though in the 8th, is with Yogakaraka Venus and 10th lord Mars. The next Dasa is of Mercury who is in the 10th with the Sun aspected by Jupiter. The Sun is the 7th lord and in the 10th aspected by Lagna lord Saturn. This would imply that if your sister goes about her life with great restraint and patience, handling her husband with tact, she will be able to bring him around. Since the 10th house is involved, both husband and wife may find their careers stabilizing. This is a period that must be met with stoicism with the hope of a good future promised by the chart. Let her not think of a second marriage but wait for the critical phase to blow over. The time now is not right in being choosy about jobs or pay, so long as the place or employer is congenial. Any decent job would be best for her in the present astrological circumstances.

Astrologically yours,

Arundhati

MY TURN

THE RESURGENCE OF THE CHARAVAKA

W. H. PANDE, AKOLA

India is the land of philosophers. Hinduism is not a religion by definition but a federal philosophy which has accomodated all contradictory thought. The Hindu philosophers emphasized simple living and high thinking. But there was one school of thought which was the anti-thesis of the mainstream. This was the Charavaka school which advocated Runam kritwa ghritam pibet - borrow and enjoy, never think of tomorrow. The Charavaka was always debunked by Indian thinkers. He is remembered as irrelevant to the Indian concept and style of life. This alienated man never imagined that there would come a day when his philosophy would rule the globe.

The common man today has increased his wants, even if he cannot afford them. He wants to ape every new fashion. Glittering affluence draws him like a magnet. To obtain it, borrowing has become a way of life. He who does not borrow or cannot afford these glamorous acquisitions is considered a great fool. To spend more than one earns is the rule. Consequently corruption has become a world-wide phenomenon.

India is the torch-light of developing countries. Many concessions have been granted for the development of the poor masses - subsidy, loan waiving, credit without guarantee etc., are all Charvakian measures on the national scene. India is on the brink of falling into the debt-trap of global creditors.

The developed world too is haunted by the spectre of exhorbitant consumerism. Spending more than what one earns, and therefore working more and becoming a workoholic, finally begetting only tension. People are now beginning to get fed up of worldly enjoyment and cut-throat competition. This is indicated by the growing bearish trend in consumption which was indicated on 19th October 1987, the Black Monday of the decade. The westerners are finding new areas of Eastern Europe, USSR and the Third World to sell their products to satisfy the Charvakian greed of those masses.

The world is heading towards gloom, indecision and war mania which could cause its doom soon. There is no joy in physical terms. Happiness can only be felt and experienced in the inner core of the mind and the soul. Those who condemn Astrology and other branches of the philosophy of India must remember that the condemned branch of philosophy of India is ruling the world today and this is fraught with grave consequences.

Indian Council of Astrological Sciences

Delhi Chapter I

The 3rd Convocation of the Delhi Chapter I of ICAS was held on 28th October, 1990. The Governor of Orissa, Mr. Vaidya Raj Yagya Dutt Sharma, was the Chief Guest.

Mr. K. N. Rao, I.A.A.S., presided.

Earlier, there was a seminar on Horary (Prasna) Astrology with Messrs. S. N. Kapoor, Z. Ansari, J. N. Sharma and J. Jaggayya presenting papers.

Four students, Ms. Sudha Wadhwa, Mrs. Supriya Jagdish, Messrs. P. K. Verma and D. K. Pradhan, all of Visharad classes, through practical illustrations, showed how missing persons either returned or did not come back within the time-frame indicated through the application of the principles given by the first set of speakers.

Mr. N. R. Chandran, Director of Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, welcomed the Chief Guest.

A report of the activities of the Chapter was read by Mr. R. N. Vasishth, Course Director. Mr. Rajnish Kataria and Ms. Sudha Wadhwa spoke appreciatively of the excellent coaching they had received in the course.

Governor Yagya Dutt Sharma referred to the great Indian scientific tradition of Astrology which needed a fresh look and a newer type of approach to modern problems. A doctor, he said, developed proficiency after killing some patients through wrong treatment and the same situation applied equally well to astrologers who should not be afraid of committing mistakes. The Governor narrated his own example of the fulfilment of a forecast given to him by Mr. S. N. Kapoor on the eve of the 1989 General Elections. In this age of technology where there were planes, operating through computerised controls, air accidents were still common. It would, therefore, be useful to remember that there could be no substitute to human intelligence and human endeavour.

The Governor presented Mr. K. G. Dutta, a veteran astrologer of Delhi, with a woollen shawl and a purse of Rs. 1001 on behalf of the ICAS Delhi Chapter I in appreciation of his predictions for over 3 decades.

In his presidential remarks, Mr. K. N. Rao said the students of the Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan had performed extremely well in the seminar carrying on the tradition of acceptance of the scientific approach to Astrology which was the main aim of the ICAS. Mr. Rao concluded by pointing out that in 1986 when the course was first started, there had been misgivings about compressing so many astrological subjects into weekend classes. But results had been very satisfactory. What in 1986 appeared like a gamble had now become a spectacular success, he concluded with satisfaction.

The function concluded with a vote of thanks.

The opportunity for Blacks to govern South Africa may be delayed because of the power-struggle between the two old friends Nelson Mandela and Mangesuthu Buthelezi, causing bloodshed. In fact the country may be worse off after "liberation". Violence will escalate alarmingly in South Africa. Terrorist violence will be extensively used to achieve political objectives.

All in all the African countries may take a major step towards the integration of their own cultures, arts and crafts. In many of the African states instability will be the order of the day: Tribal rivalries will adversely affect the democratic processes.

EUROPE

Taurus rises with Mars in most of the capitals in Western Europe, and the lord of Lagna is in the 12th. This could mean these countries getting involved in the Gulf crisis. Britain's links with America will continue to be closer on important world problems. Some sort of a change in the rights and privileges of royalty can be expected as the malefic conjunction has reference to the 10th from the ruling sign of England. This will also give rise to racial riots. There is no indication of the dissensions within the country and relations with Ireland taking a more constructive direction. Britain will be playing the tough partner of U.S.

Austria may drift away from democratic socialism towards more conservative policies. The country will be in a state of political turmoil.

In Greece Papandreau may continue despite muzzled murmurings against his autocratic rule.

France's distrust of American domination and its relations with the Arab world may make the French co-operation in the Gulf conflict somewhat half-hearted.

Increased spurt in crime and violence will be witnessed in Italy. Mafia activities will spread further and the President's position becomes vulnerable.

Ethnic and racial tensions will hit Unified Germany. Unemployment will generate political unrest. Germany's gain in power in the future will have other European countries feel just as was the case when Hitler became the Fuhrer. In Navamsa, Saturn is in the 10th aspected by Mars. It is likely that a militaristic group may attempt to revive National Socialism. U.S.-German relations may not be that cordial.

In Poland and Hungary hostilities may break out in different parts of the countries. Industrial strikes and increased militancy at all levels will plague the Governments. Yugoslavia has a tense year ahead as it stands on the brink of a civil war. Eastern Europe may witness much bloodshed as the virus of ethnic clashes spreads around.

CHINA AND JAPAN

The 9th degree of Leo rises at Beijing. The Sun (lord of Lagna) and the Moon (lord of the 12th) are in the 8th with debilitated Mercury, but aspected by Jupiter, lord of the 5th and 8th. Such a disposition usually indicates an unsatisfactory internal situation and disputes with neighbours. Saturn, as lord of the 7th, is in the 6th with Rahu. The common people will not be happy and the Government may face many difficulties. China's role in world affairs will increase. While there will be clashes on Sino-Indian border, relations with India will thaw a little. With Russia more intimate ties may be established. The country will gradually drift towards limited capitalism. A notable Chinese leader may pass away. Chinese economy will improve. The 12th lord's affliction denotes a national mourning. A powerful earthquake may hit the northern parts of China about the time of the Mars-Saturn conjunction.

The latter part of the lunar year may witness much turmoil and violent protests may break out in Sinkiang. The grip on Tibet will not be relaxed. Chinese-U.S. relations will be ordinary. Export of military wares by China may be a blessing in disguise to Saddam. Deng Xiaoping may not survive the Mars-Saturn conjunction. While China's global status may be intact, the situation of Mars in the 10th may result in large-scale political uprisings, ethnic strife and maladministration. Natural calamities may hit the country on the heels of the July solar eclipse.

The 24th degree of Leo rises at Tokyo. The 4th house is afflicted because Mars is exactly in the 10th house. While this indicates a comparatively peaceful period for the common people, politically the year ahead will be somewhat turbulent. Tushiki Kaifu's honesty may keep him continuing in office. As a major economic power Japan will play a significant role in international affairs and will work for the resolution of the West-Asian crisis. A major shift in U.S.-Japanese relations is likely. The Mars-Saturn influences afflicting the 12th house may cause destruction due to earthquakes and tornadoes. Religion will become more important especially in the areas of morality and ethics.

OTHER COUNTRIES

In North Korea, Gemini Navamsa rises in Leo in shashtashtaka with that at Tokyo's. Japan's efforts to woo North Korea will go amiss. Russia's ruse to use S. Korea as a weapon against Japan will fall flat. South Korea benefits from trade with the U.S.

Vietnam comes under unfavourable influences and the U.S. may, at the last minute, vote against lifting its veto on loans to the country.

About the middle of the year a coup to overthrow Aquino may surface in Philippines. In Indonesia Suharto may step down. No significant developments in the political or economic scenes are foreseen in Malaysia and Singapore.

SOUTH AMERICA

Capricorn Navamsa in Aquarius rises in Argentina. Its monstrous foreign debts will keep mounting. Civil unrest will spread widely. Carlos Menem will survive a strong wind of opposition blowing against his inept handling of the administration. In Nicaragua, the President Violeta Barrias de Chomorro will have her hands full with domestic discontent—drought, disease and idlers from the army. The army itself will be a supportive force and help in the privatisation of state property. Brazil's supplies of weaponry to Iraq will draw strong criticism. The U.S. will not be convinced of its having shelved its nuclear programme. Foreign debts will continue to give it top place in the list of the Third World countries.

Summing up, as the world moves into the new year Prajotpatti, West Asia equation may significantly alter because of the end of super-power rivalry. From the standpoint of an astrological student the most interesting features are the Saturn-Rahu conjunction, Jupiter-Saturn and Saturn-Mars oppositions apart from such phenomena as a Saturday coinciding with the 17th day in the lunar month Pushya, the association in January-February of Rahu, Saturn, Venus and the Sun; and Mars-Venus transit of the same sign in June-July.

The year ahead will be one of excitement strengthening the seeds of new political concepts. The West will also suffer horrifying consequences and terrorist outrages on a scale not seen before will happen.

India will be seething with trouble and will pass through a period of ferment. Fall of the present Government and general elections are likely. Confusion and inefficiency and corruption will adversely affect all fields. While on the one hand labour troubles in all sectors will be on the increase, on the other some progress will be made to establish a statutory framework for workers' participation in management.

Politics in Tamil Nadu and Andhra Pradesh are likely to witness strange developments resulting in the exit of both the Chief Ministers. Day-to-day problems of political survival will be eclipsing both the short-term and long-term problems of development. The Bodos' demand for a separate state will increase but the Government will not yield. Indian politics will gradually change from psuedo-secularism to genuine nationalism. The Indian Communist parties may meet with the fate of their counterparts in Europe. The B.J.P. may give a new thrust to its policies and play a more significant role in national politics. There will be growing violence against women in West Bengal. State governments in the South may vie with each other to resort to populist measures unmindful of the wasting of crores of rupees. India is due for instability both at the Centre and in the states. This will not adversely affect either India's independence or integrity. The emergence of the Sherif government in Pakistan may have an adverse impact on India's security and no improvement in the potentially violent relationship with India is foreseen. The situation in Kashmir, Punjab and Assam will continue as at present, with no solution possible. A strong Centre is absolutely necessary to face any outside onslaughts on our borders.

Continuing political deterioration may accelerate the violence in Sri Lanka. It may take a long time to establish stability.

Global alignments may get transformed because of Saddam's aggressive action in Kuwait.

Amongst other events that may be triggered off by the explosive nature of the malefic combinations referred to earlier, will be earthquakes in the sensitive areas, destructive fires in Delhi and Bombay, mine cave-ins and sabotage and fall of at least two rulers in West Asia. The years 1991-1994 will be marked both by huge shifts in world power-structures and the reorganisation of individual nation-states. The U.S. stay may be prolonged in the Gulf.

We have given above a bird's-eye view of how world events are likely to shape in the year ahead. As we have observed several times in these columns it is not binding on man or nations to meekly submit to the indications of planets with a fatalistic attitude.

To a certain extent, man is a free agent and cannot be considered a pawn in the hands of a merciless fate. Astrology gives scope for the development and application of iccha sakti or so-called volition, so that knowing in advance the trend of events, individual or national, one could adjust or move harmoniously to a certain extent with the forces of nature. Astrology aids prevention.

Astrology, as every other subject handled by man, has its own limitations. It cannot be infallible. Yet within the limitations imposed by the science at least the broad trends if not the exact events of the future in store can be anticipated. Astrology lays no claim to absolute prediction of future events. Every science handled by man is imperfect, so is Astrology too. But it does point out the direction which affairs, national or individual, are likely to take.

May God grant wisdom to the leaders of the various nations and enable them to tide over the critical periods ahead.

is the best and the greatest. This causes liberation, never bondage. The Jeevan Mukta alone can have this egoism.

"I am different from all; I am the witness. I am the smallest, smaller than the one-hundredth part of a hair's cross- section; I am limbless". This is also good, which leads to liberation and not bondage. This too the Jeevan Mukta alone can possess.

"The third is the worst kind of egoism, and the most dangerous; it consists in thinking that the body with the hands, feet etc are oneself. This is Durahankara. This should be shunned at all costs. It has been there since creation; it plunges one in durvasanas and leads one from danger to danger.

"One possessing the first two automatically gives up the third and becomes a great soul. This is the path shown by the wise elders of ancient times."

To another question from Sri Rama, how one betters himself by leaving aside the third kind of egoism, Vasishta replies, "Rama! if one develops the first two kinds of egotism, the Sarvahambhava (I am all) and Shuddhahambhaava (I am the Pure Consciousness) the third will automatically vanish! He evolves into enjoying his real self, which leads him to salvation.

"Here are some practical steps towards that end. One must first quit the egotism of the body by all means at all levels and times. This egotism of the body is one of the most fatal and incurable of diseases. Absence of this is the presence of the highest salvation.

"It can be destroyed by contemplation on the Self.

"To him enjoyment of the physical flesh, the cause of all ailments, will never be to his taste, like juice mixed with poison.

"By developing distaste in the pleasures of flesh one goes nearer to self-realisation.

"When the thick darkness of ignorance vanishes, there will be no hindrance at all to self-realisation.

"Summing up, giving up bodily egotism, cultivating courage and relying on the tenets of spiritual sciences, one easily crosses over the ocean of samsara".

The girl has 24 fingers and toes in all on both hands and feet unlike the usual 20 (4 X 5). She is also squint-eyed. Look for unusual combinations and write to us.

2. Surrogate triplets born on 18-10-1988 at Perth (Australia).

The facts: Vickie Hillary, mother of Australia's first surrogate triplets, delivered her younger sister Susan Ferry's babies because Susan herself was infertile.

The triplets were born by caesarean section on 18th October, 2 girls and 1 boy. Girl One- Monique was born at 10.45 a.m. and Girl Two - Alara came at 10.46 a.m. and the boy Liam came at 10.47 a.m.

All three babies were healthy though delivered prematurely at 33 1/2 weeks instead of the usual term of 40 weeks as the surrogate mother began to develop high-blood pressure. Points to think about are the triplet births and their surrogate maternity.

KIDNEY FAILURE: AN ASTROLOGICAL STUDY

Venus indicating self-sacrifice due to influence of 9th lord, Lagna lord and 12th lord. Sign Libra is afflicted by Mars and Rahu. The 7th house is in Rahu-Ketu axis. The 7th lord Saturn is aspected by Lagna lord and the Sun and 3rd lord Venus. See Moon is also afflicted by Saturn, Mars and the Sun.

This discussion makes one believe that for kidney trouble, one has to judge Venus, sign Libra, 7th house, 7th lord and the Moon in Rasi chart and Navamsa chart at least if not in Drekkana and Dwadasamsa charts. If it is indicated then longevity must be judged. One has to advise parents of such a person to fight a battle with equanimity to discharge one's debt of past Karmas—for Karmas and Karmas alone make and mar our fate and Karma is duty prescribed by Lord Krishna in Holy Geeta. —246.90.

ASTROLOGERS !

An M.P. Gem delivers what all your predictions promise...

You analyse a horoscope. Assess the planetary positions. Calculate the client's current 'dasha', right down to his present 'bhukti'. Decide that a gem would help appease an enemical or weak planet. And recommend that the client wear it....

But how can one be sure that the gem one buys is genuine ?

Science and technology have helped develop such clever imitations that it takes an expert to expose them ! These fakes look like the real ones. But do not deliver the benefits that a genuine gem would...

And even among genuine gems, there are so many grades ! It takes expertise and experience to recommend the right grade that would catalytically contribute the correct influence....

That is where M.P. Jewellers Can come to your rescue : For 46 years we have been catering to the complicated demands of competent astrologers. An M. P. gem delivers what you had promised it would. Positively. Perfectly. And permanently.

Our Mail Order Service is renowned. Write to us today, for our detailed Price List.

INDIAN INSTITUTE OF ASTROLOGY AND OCCULTISM

In the service of mankind through the magic and art of Astrology and Occultism and its Relation to healing.

The Institute is engaged doing research in the following, branches of Astrology, Occult and Allied Sciences. 1. Natal Astrology, 2. Horary Astrology, 3. Election Astrology, 4. Kabala Astrology, 5. Astro-Pathology, 6. Mundane Astrology, 7. Astro-Materiology, 8. Esoteric Astrology, 9. Astal-Gemology, 10. Hymnology, 11. Omenology, 12. Palmistry, 13. Numerology and 14. Occult Sciences, etc.

The motive behind the Institute is, 'the desire to serve, the humanity',. The knowledge of future does afford mental strength to the feeble and weak-minded, solace to the depressed, peace to the anxious and worried, and steadiness to those who are wavering and vacillating in mind. It is a common experience now-a-days that when troubles come, they come in battalions. The afflicted person can get rid of these troubles through indispensable suggestions of this Institute. Fore-knowledge of events bestows strength on man to face ups and downs of life peacefully and bravely. The greatest advantage of Astrology is that it helps mankind to understand himself through the knowledge of destined events. Astrology does not draw us in Magic World of fortune, but it gives us the indication of future events to guard against the approaching tides and floods, the lurking sharks and whales of human life's miseries. It helps us know in advance as to when the fortune will smile and we will feel majestic and splendid.

Planetary influences are in consistent with the working of the divine will. There is a subtle destiny which sometimes escapes the ken of an astrologer/palmist or a destiny forecaster who simply looks in the future events through the mathematical and mechanical bush. It is, therefore, necessary to look into the future events of mankind through spiritualism and intuition together with astrological calculations. Intuition gives us immediate insight into situations and human problems. Intuitive inspiration is, however, not the smell of the lotus from the being's abyss. It is the outcome of one's accumulation of past experience and reflective thinking. The Institute thus provides help to those who are in need as a service to the humanity through the art of astrology.

MEMBERSHIP OF THE INSTITUTE :

Membership of the Institute is open for public to enable them to take maximum advantage from the Institute. Three types of Members are enrolled by the Institute:

1. LIFE MEMBERSHIP OF THE INSTITUTE (Plan No. 1)

PLANETS AND DETECTING UNDERGROUND WATER SOURCES

THE summer is in full force and in most of India -- cities, towns, villages -- water shortages and scarcity have assumed menacing proportions. This scarcity is not natural. It is man-made. Poor planning and corruption that percolates into every single rung of the bureaucracy are the factors behind this acute shortage of a vital necessity. Bore-wells have been dug indiscriminately in urban areas and so poorly planned that many of them have simply dried up after an initial gush of water.

Population growth at an alarming rate is also to some extent responsible for many of the ills we face today. Planning has been haphazard. The glamorous has been pampered at the cost of the practical with the result problems beseech the common man at every level of existence. Space science and technology are projected as the panacea for all our ills and concentrating on them and our image in the international space-club has done little to provide the commoner with the basic needs of food, shelter and clothing. What is worse, if food is not available that is bad enough but even water, the vital element, is hard to come by.

In the cities, people who can afford and they form a miniscule fraction of the population, buy water in tankers paying as much as Rs. 150/- to Rs. 300/- per tanker. But what about the rest? The Government has been so busy with its utsavs and festivals and melas abroad, elections, setting up and toppling governments, misappropriating crores of rupees and such other exciting activity, the fact the common man is a human being with vital, if not basic needs, has all but been forgotten.

Space science peers are claiming to be exploring the possibility of harnessing water with the help of satellites. A science peer has opined that drinking water problems can be improved by redesigning storm water drains.

While these grandiose ideas and plans are being discussed and reviewed, countless summers have come and gone making the problem that much more acute each year. Modern space techniques are expensive but of little use, that is, constructive use. Their destructive potential is indeed tremendous as has been amply demonstrated in the recent Gulf crisis which saw highly sophisticated sensors and imageries being employed to defeat Saddam.

Astrology, not orthodox science and even less, space science and satellites, can provide the answer to the acute water problem in our country.

Varahamihira in his famous magnum opus, the Brihat Samhita, has dealt exhaustively with the the means and methods of identifying underground water sources. The chapter Dakargalam meaning "divining udaka or water" details out a systematic and comprehensive methodology based on different kinds of natural factors to locate subterranean springs. Modern techniques of hydrological exploration, especially the satellite sensing variety, are painfully complicated, expensive and rarely successful. Effective cost is one of the weighty reasons next only to the success rate or lack of it by these methods that pleads for exploring the simple but highly workable methods offered by Astrology.

It is not for nothing that this science is known as Jyotisha, the science that radiates light wherever there is darkness and ignorance. The methods outlined by Varahamihira, if closely examined without bias, show a link between all the phenomena involved in hydrologic exploration confirming the theory of cause and effect being present in the same environment which is another dimension of the basic postulate of Jyotisha or Astrology.

Ancient western literature on hydrology, primarily Greek, in contrast to Jyotisha, is unreliable and full of wild theories on the origin of groundwater.

The Bible says the sea is the source of all springs. The bottom of the sea, according it, is said to have holes through which wa escapes, flows through subterranean ch nels and emerges as a spring.

Thales, the Ionian philosopher, says water comes from the oceans. The win push the sea water through rocks and them up through the mountains to emerge springs.

Plato, the great philosopher, was even m phantasical in his explanation of undergrou sources. He said there was a huge und ground cavern called 'Tartarus' filled w water from which all the water sources their water. These waters, he said, returned the cavern through subsurface passages.

Senaca, the founder of the Stoic Philos phy, refused to accept that rainfall could the source of springs as rainwater could pe etrate only a few feet into the earth while springs came from deep down. And all the thinkers were of comparatively recent orig belonging to the post 600 or 650 B.C. perio

In the Vedas however, dating far far bac there are valuable references to undergrou water. In more recent times Varahamihira his treatise, says he has only collected inf mation and facts already known and pounded by Rishis, and does not claim to their originator. He assertively says almost underground water is derived from rain infiltration from the surface. Listing differe surface phenomena drawn from both flo and fauna, Varahamihira even gives t exact location of the underground water a the depth at which it can be found.

The unit of distance employed is t purusha. Purusha is the height of a man a is defined as the distance (height) covered an average man standing with his han outstretched overhead, this being rough equivalent to 7.5 feet or 90 inches. O Purusha is equal to 5 hastas which mak one hasta equal to 1.5 feet or 18 inches.

Unlike the complicated techniques modern science, Varahamihira's are outrig simple. He says, to begin with, indications for water by trees in forest tracts may not work in desert regions.

जम्ब्वाश्वोदग्धस्तैस्त्रिभिः शिराधो नरद्वये पूर्वा ।
मृल्लोहगान्धिका पाण्डुरा च पुस्षेत्र मण्डूकः॥
LIV-811

A Jambu (rose-apple) tree occurring in a dry region (but in areas of vegetation) means an easterly vein at a depth of 2 purushas (15 feet) and at a distance of 3 hastas (18 x 3 = 54 inches) or 4.5 feet to its north. Confirmatory clues are, the soil has an iron-like smell at a depth of a purusha (7.5 feet), next pale white clay and then a frog in that order are likely to be pitched on.

A termite mound near a Jambu tree to its east shows plenty of sweet water yielding for a long time.

दीर्घं कालं बहु तोयम् ।

The water will be at 3 hastas (54 inches= 4.5 feet) to the south of the tree and at a depth of 2 purushas (15 feet). A fish at a depth of half a purusha (45 inches), then a dove colored rock and then blue clay confirm water after the digging is begun. The presence of fish may imply a locked bowl of water underneath the ground.

In a similar manner, Varaha Mihira refers to various factors involving trees and termite mounds or anthills(वल्मीक) and confirmatory factors such as non-poisonous snakes, black frogs, rats, turtles, clay or rock of different hues etc., as showing water. General clues include the presence of a frog at the foot of a tree, grassy patch in a grassless place, thorny shurb in the midst of non-thorny trees, a white or low-lying branch and date palms with two crowns. In all, he lists about 32 distinct types of plants and trees accompanied by several other pointers as showing ground water.

Varahamihira also tells us where to look for and find water in desert regions (मरूदेशे). If clues indicated for forest regions are present in desert areas, then the digging has to go deeper down two-fold. In certain spots, water can be found beneath a rock and he outlines how the rocks can be blasted. Rocks answering certain descriptions are said to be perennial sources of water and Varahamihira asserts such areas will never suffer drought (... तेषामवृष्टिर्न भवेत् कदाचित् ।).

Water location is followed by details on construction of ponds, wells and tanks. He prescribes a mixture of antimony, myrobalan and other natural ingredients as an effective water purifying agent to be used when the water is brackish, muddy, saltish, bitter, bereft of good taste or of bad odour.

Rohini, Pushya, Makha, the 3 Uttaras -- Uttaraphalguni, Uttarashadha, Uttarabhadrapada -- Hasta, Anuradha, Dhanishta and Satabhisha are said to be favourable asterisms for sinking wells.

Varahamihira's treatment is an integrated study of water ecology and shows the advanced scientific strides made in ancient India. The treatment of the subject shows the profound understanding the seers had of the interrelation between living organisms and their environment extending to the cosmos as a whole.

While Varahamihira's methods are based on ecological factors, Kupa Prasna based on Horary Astrology can also be equally applied to ascertaining if there is underground water in a particular stretch of land or premises.

Watery planets in watery signs at question time show copious water sources underground. The Moon and Venus are watery planets. Cancer, Scorpio and Pisces are watery signs.

Watery planets in non-watery signs indicate very little water. Non-watery planets in non-watery signs show dry waterless depths.

Favourable influences on the Ascendant and the 4th house also signify water.

A moveable sign (Aries, Cancer, Libra or Capricorn) rising with Rahu and Moon in it shows the presence of water.

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

The Sun in the 10th and Jupiter in the 4th is also indicative of water.

When the Moon is in the Ascendant and a malefic occupies the 4th, then also underground water is indicated.

If Capricorn rises with the Moon in the 7th, Venus in the 10th and Jupiter in Pisces, water is present.

If Venus and the Moon are exalted and aspected by debilitated planets, water is shown.

Some combinations with reference to Arudha are also given.

If Arudha is Virgo and the Moon is in Pisces aspected by Jupiter and Venus, water will be found.

If Arudha in Virgo is hemmed between the Moon and Venus, then also it shows water.

When a fixed sign rising on the Lagna is occupied by Venus and Saturn or the Moon in Leo with the Arudha falling in a watery sign, it shows water.

If Arudha is Taurus occupied by the Moon, it shows a water source underground.

If Pisces is Arudha, the Moon is in Virgo and Jupiter occupies Gemini, water is shown.

When these combinations are present, it is safe to presume there is underground water in the premises and digging a well would be successful.

The next step would be to try to locate the exact spot where water is available. The Chandra Gupti Chakra offers guidance at this point.

It is a diagram of the area of the premises divided into 28 rectangular segments, anyone or more of which may carry water underground.

This diagram has to be drawn according particular rules depending upon the time question.

If the question is put between morning a noon, the astrologer should face the East between noon and sunset, South; if betwe sunset and midnight, West; and he shou face the North if the question is asked betwe midnight and the following sunrise.

Suppose ABCD is the area in which one looking for underground water. The dime sions of this piece of land are l x b. The arro N shows North. If the question, for example, put between noon and sunset, the perso should face South when constructing th Chandra Gupti Chakra. He should place th plan of the area in such a way he occupies with reference to the side AB and proceed construct the diagram as follows:

Eight equidistant lines are drawn longit dinally between A and B starting with AD an ending with BC, both inclusive. Next 5 equ distant lines are drawn across horizontal including AB and DC. These lines divide th site-area into 28 distinct rectangular block which are numbered in a particular wa Starting with the block corresponding to th corner A, enter the numbers 1 to 5 horizon tally. Enter 6 below 5. Then enter 7, 8, horizontally towards the left. Place 10 und 9, mark 11, 12, 13, 14 towards the righ Mark 15 above 14 and 16, above 15. Place 1 to the right of 16 and the rest of the numbe upto 28 in sequential order in the remainin blocks moving downwards from 17.

Method One

These 28 blocks are assigned 28 equ parts of the day's length. That is, duration day (60 ghatis) is divided equally into 2 units. Each works out to 2.142 ghatis.

Next, go back to the question tim Determine the number of ghatikas of th question time from sunrise. Divide this 2.142 and we get Dinarsha counted fro Aswini.

The Nakshatra occupied by the rising sign at the time of question is Udaya Nakshatra.

After determining the Dinarsha, place it in the 1st block at A. Count according to the order marked in the figure till you reach Udaya Nakshatra. Count again from Udaya Nakshatra in the order marked in the figure to the Nakshatra occupied by the Moon at question time. The block occupied by this Nakshatra marks the spot in the site where underground water is present.

Method Two

Another school of writers gives a different method. Place Aswini in the block marked 1. From here count to the asterism occupied by a watery planet in the Prasna chart. This also gives the spot where a well can be sunk.

Method Three

Place the Udaya Nakshatra in the 3rd square. From here count upto the Nakshatra occupied by a watery planet. This also gives the location of water.

These methods work exceptionally well in practice. (For more details reference may be made to Prasna Marga, English translation by DR. B. V. RAMAN.

In the example here, (Chart 1) the querent wanted to find out if he could sink a well in his site. The question was asked at 10.15 a.m. (IST) on 11-3-1991 at Bangalore.

According to Uttarakalamrita, digging of a well (कूप) comes under the 4th house. The 4th house here is Cancer occupied by exalted 9th lord Jupiter and aspected by Saturn. Rahu-Ketu influence the 4th house in Vargottama strength. The 4th lord Moon is in the 9th in exchange of signs with 9th lord Jupiter, the former being Vargottama. This Parivartana Yoga involving the 4th and 9th (good fortune) houses with the lords being strongly placed in a highly favourable position is an indication for finding water in the site. Saturn's aspect and Jupiter's debility in Navamsa indicate not a very rich or strong spring; nevertheless a fairly good source is possible because of the strength of the two planets involved.

The next question was naturally to locate the spot where water could be found. A Chandra Gupti Chakra was drawn.

Time of Question	=	10.15 a.m. I.S.T.
Sunrise on date of question	=	6.20 a.m. IST
Difference	=	3h 46m
	=	226 minutes.
Time of Question	=	9.4166 gh. after sunrise

Dividing this by 2 1/7 or 2.142, we get

$$\frac{9.4166}{2.142} = 4.396$$

Therefore, the Dinarsha is the 5th from Aswini which makes it Mrigasira. Insert Mrigasira in the first square. (Fig. 1). The Udaya Nakshatra or the Nakshatra rising on the Eastern Horizon at the time of query is Krittika. So, we start from Mrigasira and count to the Udaya Nakshatra Krittika in the diagram. Mark it.

The Moon at question time is in Uttarashada. So we count from Udaya Nakshatra Krittika to Uttarashada in the sequential order of the numbers marked. This spot (block 16 in Fig. 1) holds water underground.

Since the house was already built and the space shown in Fig. 1 had a structure at this spot, the spot shown in Fig. 2 (Method 2) was chosen and a rig set up to bore a well here successfully.

The watery planets are the Moon and Venus. The Moon is in Uttarashadha. Venus is in Revati. Let us take the Moon and count from Aswini to the constellation the Moon occupies; that is, Uttarashadha in Fig. 2. Venus is stronger being in a watery sign. So, the spot marked by Revati also shows water.

But in another case, a water spot was sought in a site of 50 ft. x 56 ft. dimension. While the Chandra Gupti Chakra shows the location, the Prasna (Chart 2) must first be checked if at all there is any underground water in the site in question.

The question was asked at 4.15 p.m. on 20-4-1991 at Bangalore.

The Rasi chart is slightly misleading although the Bhava chart gives a very difinite answer.

The Ascendant Virgo is aspected by the Sun and Mars, both hot, dry, fiery planets. The 4th house is aspected by Mars and the 4th lord, by Saturn. The Moon's aspect misses the 4th house in Bha This led to the conclusion there could be underground water in that site. RAJIV GANDHI

It is hard to believe Rajiv Gandhi is dead. The cherubic face with beaming eyes is still stamped indelibly in the hearts of everyone. India's youngest prime-minister met with a gruesome end when he was blown into smithereens in a bomb-blast in Sriperumbudur, about 40 kms. from Madras on Tuesday night (21-5-1991).

Born as the grandson of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, India's first prime-minister, the mantle of the country first fell on the shoulders of 40-year old Rajiv Gandhi in October 1984 when his mother and the then prime-minister, Indira Gandhi, fell to the bullets of assassins in a dastardly shooting incident. Ironically, just 10 minutes before the horrendous blast he had garlanded a statue of Indira Gandhi at the fateful place where he was to address a public meeting seeking support for the local Congress (I) candidate. Luckily, his wife Sonia Gandhi and his two children were not with him when the ghastly end came.

A reluctant entrant to politics, he was a pilot with the Indian Airlines. His initiation into politics was forced by his mother after the tragic death of Sanjay Gandhi in an air-crash in June 1980 as Rahu Dasa* started. In 1986, he contested and won the bye-elections to the Loksabha from Amethi under the same directional influences. He was made General Secretary of the Congress (I) party. He maintained a low-profile until October/November 1984, when the prime-ministership descended on him unsought following the assassination of Indira Gandhi. In the elections soon after, he carried his party to a landslide victory becoming India's seventh prime-minister. This coincided with the end of Jupiter Bhukti.

Rajiv Gandhi's tenure as prime-minister which was spread over Saturn and Mercury Bhuktis saw the signing of the historic Punjab and Assam accords in 1985 and the Indo-Sri Lanka Peace Pact in 1987. Rajiv Gandhi was constantly under threat of danger during his term of office. He escaped two attempts on his life in October 1986 at Rajghat and again in 1987 in Sri Lanka.

Rajiv Gandhi's horoscope is significantly powerful with Leo rising with a Chaturgraha Yoga in the Ascendant formed by the Sun, Moon, Jupiter and Venus. Endowed with dashing looks and a disarming smile, his thrust to politics was as sudden as his ascent to power. The outstanding feature of the chart is a Mahabhagya Yoga formed by the Ascendant, the Sun and the Moon occupying an odd sign, Leo. This yoga he inherited from his prime-minister mother who had Cancer ascending at birth, the Sun in Scorpio and the Moon in Capricorn, all even signs.

Rajiv Gandhi lost power in 1989 when the National Front came to power headed by V. P. Singh. This came about in Mercury Bhukti of Rahu Dasa. Mercury as 2nd and 11th lord is in a cuspal degree.

The brutal death took place just as Venus Bhukti of Rahu Dasa began. Venus is with the 8th lord Jupiter in an inimical sign Leo aspected by 7th lord Saturn. Venus is in an Ayudha Drekkana aspected by Saturn, also in an Ayudha Drekkana. The Dasa lord Rahu occupies the 12th house Cancer in Pushya ruled by 7th lord Saturn.

The 8th house falls in Pisces aspected jointly by two malefics, Mars and Saturn, indicative of a violent end. Saturn is in Aridra, ruled by the explosive Rahu, while Mars in an Ayudha drekkana is in fiery Uttaraphalguni ruled by the Sun.

The Ascendant, though occupied by natural benefics Jupiter and Venus, comes under a Papakartari Yoga caused by Rahu and Mars. The Ascendant lord Sun too suffers from this affliction. The 8th lord in Lagna and the 8th house vacant point to Madhyayu.

As President of the Congress (I), India's premier political party, Rajiv Gandhi was a strong force holding together its crumbling structure. As early as in the August 1989 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE we had said "As it is, the fabric of the party has been mutilated beyond recognition.... Coming back to the party chart (Chart 3).... This Mars-Saturn connection has sinister implications and involving as it does the Moon and the 8th generates an arishta, of a severe nature. The end of the Sun Dasa as transit Saturn moves into and through Capricorn (starting with a nigala drekkana) can deal a blow to the pillars of the party rocking the infrastructure with it at the same time". In the Annual Number (January 1991), on page 8, we had said "Death of a national figure may plunge the nation in mourning" which unfortunately has since been tragically revealed to all.

The bomb-blast is said to have occurred at 10.20 p.m. which ominously puts Capricorn as the rising sign. Mars in Cancer is exactly in conjunction with Rajiv's Dasa lord Rahu. Can this chart give a clue to the perpetuators of this heinous and cowardly act? We shall deal with it on a later occasion.

The nation is deeply shocked and stunned by Tuesday's bizarre explosion. On this occasion, we offer our heartfelt and sincere condolences to the bereaved Sonia Gandhi and the two children.

May the soul of Rajiv Gandhi rest in peace.

We also pray for the 15 others or so said to have been killed in this senseless criminal act and pray God to give their families the strength to bear this devastating blow.

ASHTAVAKRA

Astrology, Rationalists and The Media

NOW and then some of the journals in India have the habit of taking a pique at Astrology. Ignorant as they are of what Astrology is all about, they lose no opportunity of presenting the subject and its practitioners in a derogatory manner. Obviously their stance appears to be anti-Astrology even though they have no scruples to use populist Astrology to increase their sales.

Recently, a correspondent of a leading English daily interviewed DR. RAMAN who insisted that the draft of the interview should be approved by him before publication, lest the editors use their prerogative and indulge in cynical and snide remarks on the subject. The interview was approved by DR. RAMAN but never appeared in the paper because DR. RAMAN had lambasted the politicians and men of pseudo-scientific temper, pseudo-rationalists etc., for their hypocritical attitude in making full use of Astrology in private and denouncing it in public. But the paper has no scruples to use its columns for giving weekly Sun-sign readings and misleading the public.

On 7th April 1991, in his key-note address at a workshop "Astrology in the Space Age" presided over by Mr. R. Ramalingam, Commissioner of Police, DR. RAMAN had condemned the attacks on Astrology by pseudo-rationalists. A report of this address was carried under a three column-headline [a]"Star cursed Satellite" in the INDIAN EXPRESS of the 8th April. The report in THE HINDU also spread over three columns under the headline [b]"Science status for Astrology Urged" was of course more sober.

Probably incensed by these reports some 'rationalists' challenged astrologers to make predictions on who would and who would not win the mid-term polls involving in all about 36 to 40 specific forecasts. Any one who accepted the challenge was to deposit Rs. 1000/- with the rationalist to prove one's bonafides. The one who got all the forecasts right was to get Rs.50,000/-. The cheeky ratianalist even waived the deposit amount in DR. RAMAN's case. Some condenscension, eh! But talking of bonafides, what about the rationalist's? Where are his ?

It is a pity that the ignominous exposure of Kovoor, the "super-rationalist" has not gone into

[a]Well-known astrologer DR. B. V. RAMAN said the INSAT-1C which failed to take off last year was destined to fail as it was launched on "Chaturdasi" day.

Delivering the key note address at the inauguration of a workshop 'Astrology and Space Age' organised by H.S. Viswantha Memorial Foundation, here on Sunday, he said, though many of the space scientists had known that the day marked for the launch was a Chaturdasi day, they had tried to defy nature, and "naturally the spacecraft instead of going into orbit crashed into the Bay of Bengal".

DR. RAMAN launched a tirade against rationalists for what he termed as their "crooked approach to life. Everything going on in the world in the name of scientific approach and rationality was crooked" he declared.

Exhorting about the significance of Astrology in various walks of life, he deplored the Indian attitude of looking to the west for inspiration. On the other hand, he said, the westerners were taking a pragmatic view of the usefulness of Astrology. He pointed out that Jung, the disciple of Freud, in his correspondence with him (DR. RAMAN) had several times mentioned about how he always studied the horoscopes in all complicated cases of psychiatry. He also said many of the American psychologists and psychiatrists were taking to Yoga and Astrology to master their subjects.

DR. RAMAN also referred to the importance of intuitional perception and said it was absolutely necessary for a scientist to make discoveries. Astrology, he said, was based on intuitional perception.

He also wondered why seismologists should not consider the astrological prediction on earthquakes.

Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev, daughter of DR. RAMAN and an accomplished astrologer herself, predicted that the boom in real estate in the city was coming to an end. She said the investment in real estate would come down soon.

Earlier, inaugurating the workshop, Mr. R. Ramalingam Commissioner of Police, said the quacks had brought disrepute to astrology. He said he himself was not a "disbeliever" in astrology.

the heads of his chelas who continue to parade their ignorance of Astrology by such silly `challenges'.

Under the caption, "The Kovoor Story - the Denouement" (vide Astrology and Hoax of "Scientific Temper" by Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev), our late contributor Mr. Y. Keshava Menon, quoting from the weekly Malayalam Nadu has exposed Kovoor's patently irrational `challenges'. The paper says "Please do not churn our mind, thought and soul any more and create ulcers for which there might not be any remedy even in rationalism. I published your articles and statements hitherto accepting your genuineness prima facie. Please do not put human faith on trial any more".

The 'pseudo-rationalists' can always "challenge" astrologers and denounce Yagnas and Homas etc., But their "rationalism" is so cunningly practised that they dare not challenge the beliefs and observances of non-Hindu religions; nor the meteorologists whose forecast are never correct. Astrologers who have developed the habit of rushing to the Press with their forecasts on political events are advised not to volunteer statements on Astrology in the belief that they would be doing any good to either Astrology or the astrologer. In all these articles the final editorial comment is astrologers have either erred in their predictions or failed to foresee events - as if we had an obligation to any on this count.

Words of Wisdom

Ancient Indian literature is full of wisdom of significance in day-to-day life. According to Matsya Purana King Yayati after putting his son the throne lived in the forest on fruits and he By subduing his mind and conquering his an he passed a thousand years. Then he lived o on water for three years and kept up his vow silence. The glory of the king's asceticism reach the celestials. He then attained Brahma Lo When he once chanced to visit Indra the la wanted to know what advice Yayati gave his s Yayati said, "Man devoid of anger is superior one full of it; a learned man is superior to illiterate person. One who shows forgiveness another who abuses him in anger consumes t angry being and gets all his virtue. One should utter such a harsh word as may cause pain another. One should not use speech that wou grieve others. A harsh speaker whose word pierce others like nails, should be considered low creature who goes to hell. Harsh words penetrate a man like arrows and cause grief. Th should therefore be avoided by sensible person In the three worlds there is nothing superior friendship, charity and sweet speech. Conse quently one should always be gentle in speec and should show obedience to men of charact and not curse any one."

Muhurtam First

Kerala is the repository of some of our m treasured sciences such as Astrology, Ayurve and Nritya. The conviction of astrological tru is engrained so deeply in its people, all else m make way before the Muhurtam.

Recently, a 28-year old bridegroom travell to the Sri Krishna Temple at Aluva in this state his marriage met with an accident when his je collided with a lorry. Unmindful of the seri injuries he had sustained he insisted on going the temple straight instead of the hospital. Af tying the knot at the auspicious moment, t newly weds sped to the doctor.

[b] Prof. B. V. Raman, Astrologer has said that the people must ignore the attacks on Astrology in the name of rationalism and scientific temper.

He was delivering the keynote speech at a workshop "Astrology and Space age" organised by the H.S.Viswanatha Memorial Astrological Foundation.

He said there was a time in the past when science was controlled by the Church and the Christian orthodoxy. India should recognise Astrology, as a national science of relevance. "Jyotisha, Yoga and Ayurveda" were natural to India. Astrology adopted a holistic approach unlike most of the sciences. If the contribution of Indian science was not appreciable, it was because the scientist ignored the role of intuition.

There was truth in the view that new Moon days and full Moon days brought disasters, accidents, quarrels, affected the functioning of the brain and blood pressure. Medical experts had noted more number of cerebral haemorrhages on those days. He said that an Indian spacecraft launched on Chaturdasi failed and plunged into the sea as the scientists had ignored the advice of astrologers. He had himself predicted devastating earthquakes in Iran which the seismologists had failed predict.

It was the Indian scientist of ancient times, Bhas and not Newton who propouned the theory of gravitati Modern scientists had only confirmed what Varah mihira had said 2,000 years ago that the solar sys influenced life on the earth.

Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev said that a scientist spoken of an earthquake in Assam in the next decades. Such predictions were of little use. It wrong to criticise the science of Astrology, merely cause some unscrupulous persons were saying wr things. She said that the boom in real estate prices Bangalore and other Indian cities was coming to an

"A CAT is said to have nine lives. Here are 2 incidents in which the family came out unhurt after two appalling experiences.

"The native was sitting on a chair reading the newspaper. He fell down unconscious suddenly for no reason. When he came to, he realised that he had a knock over his left temple and a deep bruise over his left eye 2 inches square. Half the left side of the face was swollen, his left eye completely blocked. He was worried about his eyesight. He ran to the eye doctor who after examination told him no damage had been done to the eye. It is common knowledge that if the temple which is a dedicate part of the body is hit by any object it can even prove fatal. It is a wonder how he escaped with eyes unhurt!

"Another incident was a pressure cooker blast. The inmates in the house were the man referred to above and two ladies.

"The gas-stove with the pressure cooker on it was burning. All of a sudden there was a loud explosion. The kitchen was enveloped in steam. After visibility was established, it was found that the burner and the cooker were in pieces and strewn all over the floor. The gas tube connecting the burner to the cylinder was detached -- can't say when this happened -- the gas was coming out. This was immediately put out.

"Let us see the Rasi chart of the man.

"Exalted Jupiter in Cancer aspects Moon in Scorpio and Saturn in Pisces. Transit Jupiter is also in Cancer aspecting natal Moon, natal Saturn as also Capricorn Lagna.

"The 6th house is the house of accidents. It houses Mars, Mercury, Sun and Rahu. The only possible explanation one can give for the survival of the inmates of the house is Jupiter's grace. Saturn caused the accident and benign Jupiter came to the rescue.

"Learned astrologers may be able to find out more reasons for the escape" writes reader K. Narayanan of Delhi.

There definitely are more reasons than outlined by reader Narayanan but without complete horoscopic details, which he has failed to send us, including the dates of the accident, not much can be done.

Who is a Sanyasi ?

Reverting to the discussion on what astrological factors lead to Sanyasa, reader P. R. Sanathanan Nair of Painkulam elucidates on who is a real Sanyasi.

(In this feature, unusual and interesting events that occur in day-to-day life will be discussed astrologically. They may be about anything - birth, marriage, accident, sport, career, art, farming, weather, animals and the list is endless - so long as it is different from the monotony of life. Readers are invited to send in details of such instances plus relevant astrological charts and dates to Astrological Miscellany, THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, Bangalore 560 020.)

"In most cases ochre robes are only an excuse to fill the belly. King Janaka and Vyadha, the butcher, wore no ochre robes. But they were so evolved as to be able to guide Sanyasins in their spiritual quest.

"Lord Krishna in the Srimad Bhagavad Gita Ch. 18-2 has clearly explained the position.

Kamyanam karmanam nyasam
sanyasam kavayo vidu
Sarvakarma phalathoyam
prahusthyagam vichakshana

"Renunciation of the desire for fruit of work is thyaga. The so-called Sanyasa is considered by many to be an escape from a world too tough for one to get on with. But in actual result, it is not an escape because one's own Karma will drag one back to Samsara. What is required by Sanyasa is liberation of Jeeva and not the escape of the body. Prarabdha Karma has to be fought out in this world. Sanchita and Agami Vasanas have to be burnt out in the fire of Brahmagnanam. Abandoning outward work is not Sanyasa. But abstaining from mental likes and dislikes is Sanyasa, as per the Srimad Bhagavad Gita(6-2)'

Utterly Desperate

"My mother is a patient of severe muscular dystrophy, passing her life dragging herself on the ground. She was deceptively married to a person who had been treated for lunacy before marriage and who deserted her and her children in November 1989. Fully dependent on her only son, she is worried about her two marriageable daughters. Besides she is suffering from other consequential ailments. She would even like mercy-killing if her two daughters can get married before that.

"Mother: Born on 10-5-1942 at 15.25 in Jaipur. Rasi: Virgo-Lagna 8-0; Aquarius - Ketu 17; Pisces - Venus 11 and Moon 1; Aries - Sun 26; Taurus - Mercury 15 and Saturn 7; Gemini - Mars 15 and Jupiter 0; and Leo - Rahu 17.

"Father: Born 15-12-1938 at 5.00 a.m. at Nagpur. Rasi: Scorpio - Lagna, Sun 29 and Mercury 23; Aquarius - Jupiter 6; Pisces - Saturn 16; Aries - Ketu 22; Virgo - Moon 8; and Libra - Mars 6, Venus 23 and Rahu 22.

"My mother was married in June 1962. Three issues, one son and two daughters, were born through operation, no natural births. According to my own opinion her sufferings should be due to three strong Papakartari Yogas and the Kalasarpa Yoga" writes a very unhappy young man from Jaipur.

As rightly pointed out by the reader, the mother's horoscope is saddled with Papakartari Yogas leading to frustration at every level.

To begin with the Ascendant lord in the 9th is with 6th lord Saturn caught between malefic Sun and Mars, signwise.

The Moon as also Bhagyadhipati cum Kalatrakaraka Venus is between Ketu and the Sun. The Lagna is aspected by a malefic 8th lord Mars. Luckily, there is no Kalasarpa Yoga present as Lagna falls outside the nodal arc. Even otherwise, it would not be of much significance as this Yoga has to do more with collective and national destinies than with individual charts.

The 7th lord in a cuspal degree afflicted by Mars, the 7th house and its Karaka Venus also afflicted by a Papakartari Yoga have led to a very unhappy marriage and an extremely self-centred husband.

The 5th lord Saturn is in the 9th house with the Ascendant lord and this helps the 5th Bhava significations to some extent. The Papakartari Yoga causes some stress in relationships with children which is an obvious possibility in the context of her illness. The 5th lord Saturn with the Lagna lord Mercury in the trinal 9th house indicate in a very general sense, the children will get settled in their respective slots reasonably well.

"My son, a 2nd year student of M.B.B.S. in the Medical College, Burla in Sambalpur District who was staying in the college hostel, went out on 3-9-1989 at 3.00 p.m. Since then he has not returned. His whereabouts are not known?" writes a distraught father from Orissa.

Question time: 3.55 p.m. (IST) on 7-5-1991 at Bangalore.

Rasi: Virgo - Ascendant 16-14; Capricorn - Moon 28-35; Saturn 14-26 and Rahu 0-09; Pisces - Mercury 28-50; Aries - Sun 24-05; Gemini - Venus 5-53 and Mars 26-42; and Cancer - Ketu 0-09 and Jupiter 13-24.

The Ascendant lord Mercury aspects the Ascendant from the 7th and is in turn aspected by exalted Jupiter. This is a favourable sign, the boy is alive and will be returning.

Jupiter aspects the 5th house and also the 5th lord as well as the Moon and Lagna lord. The planets are all in moveable or common signs, showing the boy should return at a not too distant date. Interested readers can send in their views on this case before 30-7-1991.

The Badhaka as a Maraka

BUELL D. HUGGINS

SOME Hindu astrologers regard the Badhaka (hindrance) as the worst malefic, as it can even cause death. Yet for eight of the twelve Lagnas (Ascendants) the Badhaka rules otherwise good houses and can, therefore, take the unwary by surprise. The Badhaka may be the lord of the Badhaka house, a planet in the Badhaka house or in some other house but ruling the Badhaka house, or the asterism a planet is in and in the Badhaka house or some other house.

The Badhaka for the cardinal (movable) signs or Lagnas--that is, Aries, Cancer, Libra and Capricorn--is the 11th house, the house of gains, and the Dasa of the 11th can be good unless the lord thereof is in a bad house such as the 12th, where the gains are subsequently lost. Moreover, the general rule is that any planet in the 11th house is good.

The Badhaka for the fixed (immovable) Lagnas --Taurus, Leo, Scorpio and Aquarius--is the manifestly auspicious 9th house. Consequently, one can be taken aback when one learns that the Dasa that was supposed to be very auspicious in fact caused problems or even death.

Mr. B. N. Addy, in the December 1965 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, wrote that he believed the 3rd house should be substituted for the auspicious 9th. But if we substitute the 6th for the 9th, why not substitute the 6th for the 7th, since the 7th, like the 2nd, is already a well-known Maraka house? Experience shows that the 9th can be a Badhaka.

The Badhaka for the dual (common, mutable) signs -- Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius and Pisces -- is the 7th. This creates no surprise, since the 7th is a well-known Maraka (death-inflicting or troublesome) house.

As indicated above, the Badhaka planet or luminary may be in another house, and if in a hidden house, such as the 3rd, 6th, 8th or 12th, or in debility, death will not ensue though the Dasa may not be very good, according to Mrs. Gomathi Annapoorni in the May 1965 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, page 458. If, however, the Badhaka planet is in the 7th house for a dual Lagna, say, Mercury in Gemini for a Sagittarius Lagna, death is very likely in the Mercury Dasa or Bhukti. But in the case of a cardinal Lagna, if the Badhaka lord falls in a trikona house -- the 5th or 7th -- while ruling the 11th (the Badhaka for the cardinal Lagnas), then the Badhaka planet becomes a Sadhaka, conferring God's grace, the evil effects are cancelled and the Dasa will be good. (See article by Mr. R. Lakshmanan in the September 1966 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, pages 825-826.)

While we first consider the lord of the Badhaka house, the asterism (star, Nakshatra, constellation), a planet or luminary is in can be equally important. For example, a planet may be in the 6th house, but in the asterism of the Lagna lord or the Yogakaraka, in which case, the Dasa should be good, since the Dasa of the Lagna lord or Yogakaraka is invariably auspicious, unless, of course, debilitated, combust, etc.

Taking the cardinal (movable) Lagna Libra for our first illustration, Mrs. Grace Metalious [1] had the Sun (with Rahu) in Leo in the 11th house. Her Rahu Dasa began towards the end of 1951, and in 1956 her noval Peyton Place was published and she became suddenly famous as a woman who had been unable to sell her novels and stories but finally achieved success.

Her Rahu gave the results of the Sun, was with the Sun, and the Sun was in the asterism of Venus, the Lagna lord. By Saturn Bhukti (her Saturn was exalted in Libra) her book, a best seller, was made into a movie and was on television. In Venus Bhukti, in September 1963, her novel, No Adam in Eden, which she regarded as even better, was published and this novel was also made into a movie.

But she began having marriage problems, a divorce, became extravagant and took to the liquor bottle, became ill and died on February 25, 1964, also in Venus Bhukti, and five years before

Rahu Dasa ended. Venus, though lord of Lagna and in the asterism of Yogakaraka Saturn, was also lord of the 8th, was in the 8th from her Chandra Lagna and a bad planet for her Chandra Lagna, being lord of the 6th and 8th therefore; hence, Venus could not give continuous good results.

Gustave Flaubert[2], author of the novel Madame Bovary, considered by some critics as the greatest novel ever written in any language, also had a Libra Lagna, with Ketu in Leo in the 11th, giving the results of the Sun in the 2nd from Lagna. He died May 8, 1880 in the Sun Dasa, Ketu Bhukti. The Sun killed not by being in the 2nd, for the Sun is loath to kill, but as lord of the 11th (Badhaka) through Ketu in Leo did kill the native.

For a Capricorn Lagna, consider David Lloyd George[3], "founder of the modern welfare state" and prime minister of Great Britain from 1916 to 1922. Mars, lord of the 11th, is Badhaka. Rahu in the 11th gave the results of Mars in the 4th from Lagna, but in the 5th from Chandra Lagna.

His Mars Dasa, beginning in 1903, was very good. About 1906 he began pushing through Parliament his social legislations -- unemployment insurance, pensions, etc. Mars gave Yoga as lord of the 5th from his Sagittarius Chandra Lagna. Then in Rahu Dasa he became prime minister in December 1916, Mercury Bhukti. Mercury and Venus in Capricorn in the 1st rule the 9th and 10th houses, and Saturn in the 9th in Virgo exchanges houses with Mercury in the 1st in Capricorn. In December 1918 he was re-elected prime minister in Rahu Dasa, Mercury Bhukti. Rahu, giving the results of Mars in Scorpio, was in the asterism of Mercury, lord of the very auspicious 9th. So in Rahu, he had a double Sadhaka -- Rahu giving the results of Mars in the auspicious 5th from Chandra Lagna, and Rahu in the asterism of Mercury, lord of the auspicious 9th. His Badhaka became a Sadhaka.

For a Taurus (fixed) Lagna, take the Nazi, Adolph Eichmann[4] who raibroaded thousands of Jews to the Auschvitz death camps during the Hitler era in Germany.

Saturn in a Kendra in Aquarius in the 10th is a Badhaka by being lord of the 9th also. Eichmann was captured in Argentina by detectives and commandos from Israel on May 29, 1960 in Jupiter Dasa, Rahu Bhukti and taken to Israel, where he was on trial four months, ending in August 1961. He was found guilty and hanged on May 31, 1962 in Saturn Dasa, Saturn Bhukti. Yogakaraka Saturn became a Badhaka.

Henry L. Menaleen[5], author and newspap man, had a Taurus Lagna with Saturn in A retrograde in the 12th. According to Kalidas Khanda II, Sloka 6, a debilitated planet if retro grade has exaltation strength, and an exal planet if retrograde becomes debilitated.

Meneken's Saturn was Yogakaraka as lord the 9th and 10th from Lagna, but as lord of the 9th was also a Badhaka. He died in Saturn Da Mercury Bhukti on January 29, 1956 of a coro nary occlusion. Mercury was lord of the 7th from his Sagittarius Chandra Lagna.

Montgomery Clift [6] began acting at age 14 the Broadway, New York stage and later switche to Hollywood, California, becoming an insta movie star in 1948. He had a Leo Lagna, for whic Mars, lord of the 4th and 9th, was Yogakaraka but subject to being spoiled by the 9th as also the Badhaka for his fixed Lagna.

Clift died unexpectedly in his sleep of a occlusive coronary arteriosclerosis and hea failure on July 23, 1966, in Mars Dasa, Ket Bhukti. His Mars was in the 5th, but Ketu in Arie in the 9th gave the Badhaka effects of Mars.

Honore de Balzac[7], the 19th century Frenc novelist, had a Leo Lagna also, with the Moon Scorpio. Mars was lord of the 9th and 4th and therefore Yogakaraka; but the 9th could also be Badhaka.

Mars in the 11th with Venus, lord of the 10th and 3rd, was not good; but Mars conjunctio Venus in the 11th, ruling the 7th and 10th should give Yoga. Even so, his Mars as lord of the 9th proved to be a Badhaka and he died in Ma Dasa, Jupiter Bhukti on August 17, 1850. Jup ter, though lord of the 5th and in the 10th occupied the 7th from the Moon -- hence, Maraka from his Chandra Lagna.

However, the Mars Dasa of the Austrian a trologer, Gustav Schevickert [8], who had a L Lagna, was good. He had Mars in the 10th in th asterism of the Sun, lord of Lagna. So during his Mars Dasa (1924-1931) he prospered as astrologer.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt [9], wife of Preside Franklin D. Roosevelt, had a Scorpio Lagna, w the Moon in Gemini in the 8th. As lord of the 9th the Moon was a Badhaka. The Moon as lord of th 2nd from her Chandra Lagna rarely kills, so it wa the Moon as lord of the 9th (Badhaka) whi brought death from non-contagious tuberculos and pernicious anemia on November 7, 1962 the Moon Dasa, Jupiter Bhukti. Jupiter as lord o the 7th from her Moon was, of course, a Maraka too.

The novelist and playwright, Gore Vidal [10], had a Scorpio Lagna with the Moon in Aries in the 6th, a hidden house. In his Moon Dasa, 1955-1965, he seems to have produced no novels or plays, nor did he die. As Mrs. Gomathi Annapoorni said in her previously mentioned article of May 1965, the Badhaka planet if in the 3rd, 6th, 8th or 12th house will cause little harm and is good for longevity.

Will H. Hays [11], American lawyer and politician, who became Chairman of the Republican National Committee in June 1918, Postmaster General in President Harding's cabinet from March 5, 1921 to March 4, 1922, when he became "movie czar" of Hollywood films, screening them for quality and good taste, a position he held until September 19, 1945.

Hays had a Scorpio Lagna with the Moon in Cancer in the 9th and died March 7, 1954 in the Moon's Dasa, Saturn Bhukti. Saturn, the ultimate Maraka, is in Pisces in the asterism of Mercury, a notorious Maraka for the Chandra Lagna.

In the above case of David Lloyd George we had an example of a double Sadhaka. With the Austrian musical composer, Wolfgang Mozart [12], we have a double Badhaka. Mozart had a Leo Lagna with the Moon in Scorpio. His genius became noticeable at age 3 and at age 5 he began to compose small pieces of music. Though one of the world's great musical geniuses, his life was an unhappy one, full of anxieties and worries, physical illness and lack of money. Of his six children, two died early.

He himself died, probably of kidney disease and dropsy, although he thought he had been poisoned by his jealous enemies. Death came on December 5, 1791 in the Moon Dasa, Mars Bhukti. His debilitated Moon in the 4th is lord of the 9th from Chandra Lagna and, therefore, a Badhaka. Mars, Yogakaraka for his Leo Lagna, is in the 11th, but becomes a Badhaka as lord of the 9th. So we have a double Badhaka.

It is said that the Scottish poet Robert Burns [13] was "born in the early morning hours", which would probably be sometime between 1.00 a.m. and 5.00 a.m., although Maurice Wengsde, in his Wheel of Life, Vol. 3, page 58, gave between midnight and sunrise.

A.J. Pearce, in his Textbook of Astrology, 2nd edition, page 70, re-published by the National Astrological Library, Washington, D.C., about 1950, said Burns was born with Venus and Mercury ascending in tropical Aquarius. However, Mercury was in 24° Capricorn (tropical), retrograde, and not in Aquarius as he calculated. Venus was in 8° Aquarius, so the tropical Ascendant would be about 8° Aquarius and the time about 8.20 a.m. L.M.T. The sidereal Ascendant would be Capricorn and the sidereal Moon 1° 22' Sagittarius.

Burns' father died on February 13, 1784, in Venus Dasa, Mercury Bhukti, using Pearce's time. While Venus rules the 2nd from the 9th, a Maraka house for the father, Jupiter -- not Mercury, which is in the 1st -- rules the 3rd, the other Maraka house for his father.

The poet Burns died July 21, 1776. This would be in the Moon Dasa, Saturn Bhukti. Saturn is in the 2nd, a Maraka house, but the Moon rules the 7th, the other Maraka house, and the Moon and Sun seldom kill as lords of the 7th and 2nd or even in the 7th or 2nd. So Pearce's supposed Ascendant for Burns would seem to be incorrect.

The astrologer James Harvey of Scotland believed Burns was born at 2.37 a.m., L.M.T., according to his rectification. This would give a sidereal Libra Ascendant, with the Moon in 28° 04' Scorpio. Burns' father would then have died in Venus Dasa, Saturn Bhukti, However, this seems unacceptable because Venus in the 4th rules the Ascendant not the 10th or 3rd, Maraka houses for the father, and Saturn is in the 5th. The poet's Maraka houses are ruled by the Moon and Jupiter, using Harvey's time.

Also, with this Libra Lagna, Robert Burns would have died in the Moon Dasa, Rahu Bhukti. Rahu is in the 9th in Gemini, which does not make much sense, and the Moon in the 2nd, but as stated above, the Moon is seldom a Maraka for the native if involving the 2nd or 7th house.

In the writer's opinion, Burns was born about 4.00 a.m. and had a sidereal Scorpio Lagna with the Moon in Scorpio. The Sun's and Saturn's are Maraka houses for his father, whose death was then in Venus Dasa, Mercury Bhukti. Mercury is in the 3rd and also the Sun, ruler of the 10th, the other Maraka house for his father.

With this 4.00 a.m. time Burns died in the Moon Dasa, Jupiter Bhukti. Jupiter, ruler of the 2nd, is in the 2nd and in the asterism of Venus, ruler of the 7th and the Moon as lord of the 9th is a Badhaka for his Scorpio Lagna.

Using these three speculative horoscopes, Burns would have died in all three in the Moon Dasa, but the Moon is a Badhaka only for Scorpio Lagna, not for Capricorn or Libra.

At the poet's death transiting Mars in Aries aspected his Lagna (Scorpio) at death by 8th house aspect, and Rahu transited his 8th house at death.

Finally, we have the dual Lagnas with the lord of the 7th as Badhaka. A good example is Spencer Tracy[14], one of the best Hollywood actors, who had a Sagittarius Lagna with the Moon in the 7th.

In 1921 he began acting on the stage and in October 1930 had his first Hollywood film. By 1937 he was recognised as a great star whose acting was singularly natural.

But in 1963 his health began to fall and he died on June 10, 1967 in Mercury Dasa, Jupiter Bhukti. His Mercury, lord of the 7th, was in the 4th and Jupiter in the 12th was a Maraka from his Chandra Lagna. Notice that the Moon in the 7th house did not kill. Mercury, the Badhaka, killed.

Nicholas Murray Butler [15], President of Columbia University in New York and one of the leading educators of his time, had a Gemini Lagna and Aries Chandra Lagna. He was President of the University from 1902 to 1945, when he retired. He was also an author, adviser to Presidents of the United States, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, was invited to address various European Parliaments, and shared the Nobel Peace Prize in 1931 with Miss Jane Addams.

He thrived during his Jupiter Dasa (1902-1918) though Jupiter was the Badhaka. His Jupiter occupied the 3rd, a hidden house, and was in the 5th from Chandra Lagna. He died on December 7, 1947 in the Dasa of his Lagna lord Mercury. Mercury was in the asterism of Jupiter, lord of the 7th from Lagna. It was Rahu Bhukti and Rahu in the 7th in Sagittarius gave the results of Jupiter, lord of the 7th and Badhaka.--47.91.

The Theory of Astrology

Conjunction of Planets

R. KRISHNAMOORTH

WE HAVE seen influences from the planets come in the form of short wave harmonics and microwave harmonics. Wherever a planet is situated in a horoscope, its short wave harmonics will enter the earth at that point and influence the human. The strength of these waves is constant at all times and at all positions of the planet. The microwave harmonics is a pointed beam in a specific direction from a planet. The power is known as exaltation power and its 100% power is carried by the centre of the beam when the planet is located in its exaltation point. When the same planet is located at its debilitation point, the exaltation power reduced to 0%. The Sthanabala in Astrology is with reference to this exaltation power, i.e., we assign full power when a planet is located at its exaltation point, gradually reduce it to zero power at debilitation point and again increase it to full power gradually as it moves from debilitation to exaltation point. It has to be remembered that even when a planet is at its debilitation point, the short wave harmonics of that planet still work with their own impact. So no planet can be said to possses zero power in any house.

Every planet has an undefined subtle power flowing from it towards the earth. The short wave harmonics of that planet are also carried along with it. The microwave harmonics, however, work independently and are in no way influenced by this subtle power unless the beam of power coincides with the line through which the subtle power flows.

The planets in the sky are never stationary but always in motion. The stars are however fixed and they do not move from their location. The planets in their orbit around the Sun have varying speeds. The duration of one revolution of the planets around the Sun is as follows:

1. Mercury - 88 days
2. Venus - 224 days
3. Earth - 365 1/4 days
4. Mars - 3 1/2 years nearly
5. Jupiter - 12 years nearly
6. Saturn - 30 years nearly.

Neptune, Uranus and Pluto are not considered in Hindu Astrology.

7. The nodal points Rahu and Ketu complete one orbit along the ecliptic in nearly 18 1/2 years.

8. The Moon orbits around the earth in a period of 28 days approximately.

The speed of each planet including the apparent motion of the Sun as viewed from the earth varies from planet to planet. The result is that it appears as if a fast moving planet approaches a slow moving planet and speeds away from it after crossing it. As a fast moving planet approaches the slow moving planet, the angular distance between them gradually reduces and fin reaches 0. When there is difference in their longitudes is called perfect conjunction Samagama. The fast mov planet then gradually mo away from the slow mov planet. Much astrological s nificance is attached to (1) wh 2 planets approach within 1 (2) while they are in the sa longitude called Samaga position and (3) while they sep rate from each other upto t first 10°.

Actually, when a planet located within the same ho i.e., 30°, we generally take it a conjunction. But it will be m pertinent to call it a conjunct when they are within ± 10° fr each other as interaction b tween them is possible. T Samagama can be taken as perfect conjunction. This int action between planets is term as "Grahayuddha".

In Sloka 20, Chapter 2, Brihat Jataka the Chesta Ba of all the planets are mention and it is stated that the plan in the North win over the plan in the South in Grahayudd The word 'North' has to be ca fully analysed to find out as what it actually means. It necessary for us to understa the direction from the particu position of a planet i.e., a poin reference involved in the Yudd viz., East, West, North and Sou approaching it, the approaching planet is actually on the West of the planet at Mesha 20°. In other words the planet at Mesha 20° is on the East of the approaching planet. The East and West directions are thus very clear as the Zodiac itself is divided and serially named from West to East direction.

If a planet is at Mesha and another planet

Now the North and South have to be found more specifically. We have to find out whether the approaching planet which is involved in the Grahayuddha is in the North or South with respect to the other planet.

The planets have declinations with respect to the Celestial Equator. Suppose one planet is at 24° North and the other at 20° North, we can conveniently say that the former is on the North while the latter is in the South. But the point is Hindu Astrology has not employed this astronomical declination of planets which is measured with respect to the Celestial Equator in its entire treatment of the subject. Therefore the word North mentioned in the Sloka cannot mean the difference in the declination. More so, with respect to the ecliptic too. Another possible interpretation of the North and South direction in the Zodiac is as follows:

Assume that you are standing at Mesha 20° while you face the North direction on the earth. In the sky on your right is the east side of the Zodiac viz., Vrishabha, Mithuna etc. On your left are Meena, Kumbha, etc. There are two planets one above in "Grahayuddha" over your head. Let them be Mars and Jupiter. Jupiter is the more distant planet over your head and so it is to the North of Mars which is nearer to the earth. If the planets involved are Jupiter and Saturn, then Saturn will be to the North while Jupiter will be to the South at Mesha 20° i.e., the point of reference.

Therefore it can conveniently be assumed that the most distant planet involved in the Graha Yuddha is on the North and such a planet wins over the other planet in the South as evidenced from the meaning of Sloka 20, Chapter 2 of Brihat Jataka.

Let us assume that Jupiter is at Mesha 20°. Mars is at Mesha 15° and moving towards Jupiter. The straight line of subtle power connecting Mars to earth converges on the line of subtle power of Jupiter to earth. In this condition, the short wave harmonics produced by Jupiter which are travelling towards the earth encounter the subtle power of Mars-Earth and travel along with the Mars power. Thus the Mars power is modulated with the power of Jupiter nullyfying the effect of Mars entirely. Jupiter maintains superiority over Mars and controls its bad effects. The short wave harmonics produced by Mars also travel towards earth, encounter the line of subtle power of Jupiter-Earth and travel along with it. Still the result is the same. It is a point to be noted that the combined power of Mars and Jupiter enters our ionosphere at two places (1) at Mesha 15° and (2) at Mesha 20°. Mars and Jupiter have been effectively coupled together when they are within ± 10°. The grade of mutual coupling of power gradually reduces as the separation between them increases. Beyond 10° of separation, Jupiter in the above example will not have effective control over Mars. As the fast moving planet approaches a slow moving planet the angular distance between them gradually reduces to 0. As it approaches 0, the two straight lines containing subtle power of Mars and Jupiter overlap each other. It is at this point (of perfect conjunction) that both these planets are said to be highly active. The action of approaching is called Ithasala and the action of separating is called Muthasila.

Let me elaborate a little more.

Let us assume Mars at Mesha 15°, Jupiter at Mesha 20°, Venus at Simha 10° and Saturn at Simha 25°. In the trine fromation Mars and Venus are in perfect trine (120° ± 5°). Also Jupiter and Saturn are in perfect trine (120° ±5°). The conjunction of Jupiter and Mars is perfect (± 10°). The conjunction of Venus-Saturn is less coupled or not coupled at all. There are 4 subtle power entry points viz., Mars at Mesha 15°, Jupiter at Mesha 20°, Venus at Simha 10° and Saturn at Simha 25°. The grade of conjunction of Venus and Saturn is very much less than the grade of conjunction of Mars and Jupiter due to wider separation. Similarly Mars-Saturn and Jupiter-Venus trine are less coupled when compared to Mars-Venus and Jupiter-Saturn trines.

The powers that enter our atmosphere at the four entry points will be as follows:

Mesha 1°	=	Mars power	+	Jupiter power	+	Venus power
Mesha 20°	=	Jupiter power	+	Mars power	+	Saturn power
Simha 10°	=	Venus power	+	Mars power	+	Jupiter power
Simha 25°	=	Saturn power	+	Jupiter power	+	Mars power

CC-0. In Public Domain. Gurukul Kangri Collection, Haridwar

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

Thus it may be seen that due to perfect conjunction between Mars and Jupiter, the powers of those 2 planets find an entry at 4 different places due to trine formations. Mars will always be kept under check by Jupiter.

As the separation between Mars and Jupiter reduces to 0, Jupiter will have full control over Mars and when the separation increases to 10° and above, the control of Jupiter over Mars gradually reduces. Beyond 10° separation Mars is capable of acting independently giving out his malefic nature.

This will enable us to calculate the incidence of specific planetary power at specified house divisions in the horoscope, as per Sloka 13, Chap. 2 of Brihat Jataka.

Thus combining of planetary powers takes place even before they enter our ionosphere under two conditions viz., Conjunction and Trikona formations. This rule is applicable to planet to planet conjunctions only. When the luminaries Sun and Moon are involved the number of powers finding entry points become more due to Vasi or Vesi and Anapha or Sunapha Yogas.

In the light of the explanation of the principles of conjunction, I would like to explain the working of star powers. We have seen that the star powers are the microwave harmonics produced by the stars which travel in the straight line and reach the vicinity of our ionosphere. They are dormant at this point of the sky as there is no driving force associated with them and they are unable to penetrate the ionosphere on their own. When the Sun or the Moon or any other planets come near them, they enter the earth with the aid of the subtle power associated with these planets. Twenty-seven specific stars have been chosen in Hindu Astrology. These stars are considered to be the source of power that influences the human. Each star is allotted an arc of 13° 20' in the Zodiac. The entire area does not give the power of that star. Only the chief star of that constellation is the actual source of power. When any planet comes within ±5° of the chief star, the microwave beam of that star encounters the line of subtle power of that planet and travel along with it to the earth in the manner of conjunction of planets. An arc of ±5 is needed for any planet to carry the star power to earth. In the case of the luminaries, ±15° can be taken as a perfect conjunction with the chief stars while it can work upto Vasi or Vesi and Anapha or Sunapha Yoga ranges.

The qualities of each star given in Brihat Jataka and Brihat Samhita.

Referring to Sloka 20, Chapter 2 of Brihat Jataka again would like to draw the attention of the veterans in Astrology the controversy that one set astrologers are of the opinion that the Moon becomes combust when it comes within ±12 from the Sun while the Moon becomes combust. Surya Siddhanta enunciates the former view. I feel this controversy needs to be resolved.

Similarly, it is stated that planet in retrogression is highly powerful when it gets Chesta bala. Many are of the opinion that if an exalted planet becomes Vakra, then it becomes debilitated in effect while a debilitated planet in retrogression is equivalent to being in exaltation. This appears to me as a fallacy of logic and hence this theory whose origin is not known also should be brought under dispassionate discussion. It is also pointed out that there is no such theory in the old astrological texts. Sloka 20, Chapter 2 of Brihat Jataka also does not say this.--227B.90

Lessons in JAIMINI ASTROLOGY

IRANGANTI RANGACHARYA

THIS is the first of a series on Jaimini Astrology, a tough subject, but made simple and free of all controversial arguments, Sanskrit quotations and Sutras for the quick comprehension of and proper application.

Aspects Defined

Let us begin with the aspects. They are quite different from the planetary aspects in Parasari. The readers should remember that Parasari planetary aspects have nothing to do with those of Jaimini.

The twelve zodiacal signs are classifed into three categories. They are movable , fixed and dual signs. Aries, Cancer, Libra and Capricorn are the movable signs. Taurus, Leo, Scorpio and Aquarius are the fixed signs. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius and Pisces are the dual signs. A movable sign aspects (looks at) three fixed signs. But it does not aspect its next sign, though a fixed sign. For example, Aries is a movable sign, Aries aspects Leo, Scorpio and Aquarius. But it does not aspect Taurus though Taurus is a fixed sign. Similarly Cancer which is a movable sign aspects Scorpio, Aquarius and Taurus which are fixed signs. But Cancer does not aspect its 2nd sign, Leo, though Leo is a fixed sign. Similar is the case with the movable signs, Libra and Capricorn.

Let us see how the fixed signs aspect. A fixed sign aspects three movable signs. But it does not aspect its 12th sign though the 12th sign is a movable sign. In other words, we may say the movable and the fixed signs do not aspect their adjacent signs. For example, Taurus is a fixed sign, it aspects Cancer, Libra and Capricorn, but not Aries, its 12th sign though a movable sign. The aspects of the other fixed signs are also similar.

A dual sign aspects the other three dual signs. For example, Gemini aspects Virgo, Sagittarius and Pisces.

Table of Aspects

Aspecting Sign	Aspected signs
Aries	Leo, Scorpio, Aquarius
Taurus	Cancer, Libra, Capricorn
Gemini	Virgo, Sagittarius, Pisces
Cancer	Scorpio, Aquarius, Taurus
Leo	Libra, Capricorn, Aries
Virgo	Sagittarius, Pisces, Gemini
Libra	Aquarius, Taurus, Leo
Scorpio	Capricorn, Aries, Cancer
Sagittarius	Pisces, Gemini, Virgo
Capricorn	Taurus, Leo, Scorpio
Aquarius	Aries, Cancer, Libra
Pisces	Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius

The planets in the signs can aspect both the signs and the planets in the signs. For example, a planet in Taurus can aspect Cancer, Libra and Capricorn and the planets in them.

Frontal and Lateral Signs

Sage Jaimini enunciated this item of sign-aspect simply that a sign can aspect its frontal

We bring our readers from this month onwards a series of lessons in Jaimini Astrology by Mr. Iranganti Rangacharya, a great scholar of this branch of Astrology. Starting from the fundamentals these lessons are designed to take the student step by step through the intricacies of Jaimini in simple lucid stages.

Mr. Iranganti Rangacharya, B.Sc., B.E., is the author of Muhurtakalpadramamu, Bhuvana Deepika and a Jaimini Sutra Bhashyam in Sanskrit. A profilic writer in Telugu and Sanskrit, his poems in Sanskrit have also been published. He is a retired gazetted officer in the Andhra Pradesh Education Department. Reference may also be made to Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao's English translation of Jaimini Sutras, Adhyayas I and II and to Studies in Jaimini Astrology by Dr. B. V. Raman.

sign (Abhimukha) and lateral signs (Parswa) as well. What are the frontal signs? What are the lateral signs? The 8th of a movable sign, the 6th of a fixed sign, the 4th of a dual sign are the frontal signs. The 5th and 11th of a movable sign, the 3rd and 9th of a fixed sign, the 7th and 10th of a dual sign are the lateral signs. This exposition gives us to understand that a sign can aspect first its frontal sign and next its lateral signs.

Table of Frontal and Lateral Signs

Sign	Frontal sign	Lateral signs
Aries	Scorpio	Leo, Aquarius
Taurus	Libra	Cancer, Capricorn
Gemini	Virgo	Sagittarius, Pisces
Cancer	Aquarius	Scorpio, Taurus
Leo	Capricorn	Libra, Aries
Virgo	Taurus	Aquarius, Leo
Scorpio	Aries	Capricorn, Cancer
Sagittarius	Pisces	Gemini, Virgo
Capricorn	Leo	Taurus, Scorpio
Aquarius	Cancer	Aries, Libra
Pisces	Sagittarius	Gemini, Virgo

How Gemini happens to be the 4th of Virgo and Sagittarius the 4th of Pisces will be explained in the ensuing lessons. For the present, it would be enough to know that Gemini is the frontal sign of Virgo and Virgo is the frontal sign of Gemini. Similarly it should be remembered that Pisces is the frontal sign of Sagittarius and Sagittarius is the frontal sign of Pisces. But Gemini is not the frontal sign of Pisces, nor Pisces the frontal sign of Gemini. Similarly Virgo is not the frontal sign of Sagittarius nor Sagittarius the frontal sign of Virgo.

Aspecting Planet

Let us see how the planets aspect. For example, Janma Lagna is Aries and Jupiter is placed in Scorpio. Hence Jupiter is considered to be aspecting Janma Lagna, Aries. Then Jupiter becomes the aspecting planet (A.P). Suppose Jupiter is placed in Sagittarius. Then Jupiter does not aspect Janma Lagna, Aries. It means that Jupiter in Leo, Scorpio and Aquarius aspects Janma Lagna, Aries. Then Jupiter becomes the aspecting planet. In fact, Jupiter in Leo can aspect Libra, Capricorn and Aries and the planets therein. But we say that Jupiter becomes aspecting planet when he sees Janma Lagna. Suppose Jupiter is in Scorpio. Then Jupiter aspects Capricorn, Aries and Cancer and the planets in them. Because Jupiter is aspecting Janma Lagna, Aries, Jupiter becomes aspecting planet. Suppose Jupiter is placed in Sagittarius. Then Jupiter aspects Pisces, Gemini and Virgo and the planets therein. Because Jupiter is not aspecting Aries which is Janma Lagna, Jupiter does not become aspecting planet. Suppose Janma Lagna is Taurus and Jupiter is in Cancer. Jupiter aspects Scorpio, Aquarius and Taurus and the planets therein. Because Jupiter is aspecting Taurus which is Janma Lagna, Jupiter is considered an aspecting planet. Suppose Jupiter is in Leo or Virgo or Sagittarius or Scorpio or Aquarius or Aries or Gemini. Then he does not aspect Taurus which is Lagna and hence Jupiter does not become aspecting planet. Thus we can understand how the planets aspect in the manner of sign aspects and become the aspecting planets. A planet placed in the frontal sign aspecting Janma Lagna should be preferred. It means that in the absence of frontal aspects only, the lateral aspects may be accepted for the planet to become aspecting planet. Suppose Janma Lagna is Taurus. Cancer is occupied by the Sun and Libra is occupied by the Moon. Both the Sun and the Moon aspect Janma Lagna, Taurus. But the Moon in the frontal sign is aspecting Janma Lagna, Taurus, and hence the Moon becomes an aspecting planet.

Determination of Profession

IN GENERAL, the Sun denotes the following professions: Royalty, Ministers, Magistrates, high class gentlemen, doctors, goldsmiths, chemists, and all avocations connected with day-to-day politics, and also money-lenders, druggists etc.

When the Sun is strongly disposed in the horoscope or has much to do with the 10th house, the native will generally have an occupation thrust upon him. The subject holds his views strongly. He is brilliant, a dashing figure, confident of himself. He is generally successful. These qualities have to be modified in accordance with other aspects and associations the Sun may have. One who has Sun strong-- in whatever walk of life he may be--will never be mean, vicious, criminal or untrustworthy, unless, in addition to being strong, the Sun is afflicted.

When the Sun is strong as stated above and is connected with the Moon, the characteristics above referred to will be more pronounced; the native will have large imagination. Through this combination, the native can be a good journalist as he will have a large vocabulary and imagination. As a salesman also he may have much to do with propaganda or advertising.

As a scientist, one who has the Sun powerful may not succeed well.

If Mars is connected with the Sun, either by way of association or aspect, a large measure of resistance is added to the nature of the native. Such a combination can give success as a diplomat, ambassador etc. Depending upon the strength or otherwise of the Sun and Mars, the native may be successful in embassies--as clerk, secretary, etc. Such a person may also succeed well as a trade commissioner in a foreign country. A good knowledge of economics, banking and company law may be acquired. Mars can make one an excellent foreman and commissioned and non-commissioned army officer.

If Mercury is connected with the Sun, the native becomes shrewd, calculating, and possesses an uncanny faculty of doing successful business. One with a combination of this type can become a very successful businessman. If Mercury is afflicted considerably the traits will degenerate into those of trickery and deceit and the native becomes a thief and will misappropriate large amounts of money.

Examination of a number of horoscopes reveals that Mercury connected with the Sun and well placed in the horoscope makes the native highly successful in insurance. Banking will also be suitable. One may also become a statistician, an actuary and accountant. It should be emphasised that Mercury should be free from affliction for achieving real success.

If Jupiter is connected with the Sun in the capacities suggested above, a great desire will be produced in the mind of the native to take a leading position in any walk of life he may enter. One may achieve some good success as a playwright. Great success is also shown as a writer on philosophical, metaphysical and astrological subjects. Astrology will also be suitable as also Mantra Sastra. Small success may be achieved in law but as a journalist the native would thrive well provided he handles a philosophical or a subject of cultural interest. Jupiter is the planet of wisdom. An advocate general, head of a church, mutt or mosque, priest, counsellor are some of the avocations indicated by such a combination.

Next we come to the Sun connected with Venus. One can attain success on the stage: May become an exponent of dramatic art. Fine voice and fine physique are prerequisites of success on the stage and Venus gives these. Distinguished actors may have such a combination.

Such subjects can be successful artists, sculptors, etchers, engravers and all those who transfer creative thought to canvas and express it in other ways. People with Sun-Venus connection (devoid of any trace of affliction) can have their talents developed in artistic career. Moving pictures are also a nice selection--either as actors or producers or exhibitors or distributors.

It is difficult to say which career would be made suitable to those who have the Sun disposed strongly but connected with Saturn. Of the several horoscopes examined, it is found that engineering positions suit the natives. Clerks, typists, cashiers, stenographers and executive positions as heads of small banks--auditors, policemen, commission agents etc. are some of the avocations connected with such a combination.

Earlier, we have dealt with the professions which Jupiter indicates in a horoscope singly as well as when in combination with other planets. When we talk of Venus as influencing the 10th house we mean that Venus should be connected with the 10th house either by location or by aspect or by ownership. When we talk of secondary connection we mean the primary planet (relating to the 10th house) being aspected or otherwise having anything to do with the primary planet. If a planet is in the 10th house then that planet becomes the key-planet.

In this article we shall take up what profession Venus would give when he has anything to do with the 10th house. In the next article we shall discuss Saturn. Then we shall take up the practical aspect of the 10th house and give varied examples whereby the student of Astrology with the knowledge he possesses in the subject can guage. At least roughly, the nature of profession which one would have as a result of dispositions of planets in the horoscope. The purpose of these articles is to show to the public in a concrete way that they may select the occupations for which their young children and those ready to enter the struggle for life are best fitted.

Dr. Hanna Thompson, M.D., LL.D., in his Brains and Personality establishes a link between the hand and the hemisphere in the brain. According to the author the faculty of speech is located in the hemisphere which governs the hand which is most used. Hand and brain are therefore physiologically connected. The hand and horoscope are also connected in the sense that a powerful planet in a horoscope expresses itself in the mount on the hand which will be predominant. Those who have Saturn mount prominent will have Saturn powerful in the horoscope. Thus it will be seen that there is an intimate connection between the positions of planets in the horoscope and operation of faculties in the brain. When the hand is physiologically connected with the brain and when we know that the hand is active agent in the matter of choice as to the fu operations of the person it follows that the ho scope contains in a latent form all that one ma in his future. In other words, the horosc reveals one's aptitude and the channels of s cess.

Venus is the planet of pleasure. The Venus is the embodiment of love, sympathy, warmth attractiveness. He is of a healthy type. He is unselfish and seeks to help the sufferers. He be interested in music. If he is a musician compositions are full of tilting harmony and music he loves to hear must be the perfection rhythm and full of sparkle of life.

Where Venus is unafflicted the native wil graceful. Sidelights on Practical Astrology -- VIII*

Gochara

YEARLY predictions made with reference to the movements of the planets, particularly Saturn, Jupiter and Rahu come under Gochara. Saturn takes 2 1/2 years to move from one Rasi to the next, Jupiter one year and Rahu, 1 1/2 years.

When the new year comes, the day is observed as a festival day with relations and friends gathering at one place looking into the new year's almanac and reading out aloud the good luck the year will bring one. The readings for different Rasis are given with reference to Saturn, Jupiter and Rahu. While the Yogas are enjoyed according to the horoscope, the effect of Gochara cannot be ignored.

Where Do You Want Jupiter To Be?

The most benefic of all planets is Jupiter. He is the Poorna Subha (complete and cent per cent benefic). He is physically a stout person, with shining eyes and hair, the colour of gold and with a sound mind and a complexion of a yellow tint. He is a man of wealth, and good health and body, of very good temperament and who always talks to you with utmost care trying not to hurt your feelings even in the slightest manner possible; he can give you sons if you have none. He has knowledge of Astrology. He is said to own buildings, mansions and clothing made of choicest precious silks; he is a leading and important personage, a man of wisdom, god-fearing and engrossed in prayers. He goes from place to place on pilgrimage. He is the personification of goodness being the Guru of the Devatas.

In the sequence of the Dasas, Jupiter's comes after Rahu's. The duration of Rahu Dasa is 18 years. While Rahu will give Bhagya or fortune in certain exceptional positions and in combination with or with the aspect of benefics, being a natural malefic and chandala, one cannot expect good treatment generally from him. He is a person who can only think in the basest manner and who seeks the friendship of persons like drunkards, card-players, womanisers, low castes, slum dwellers and cheats. The burial ground is also one of his favourite spots. Snakes, ghosts and such other fearful beings are his pets, with whose help he will make your life nightmarish. Thus he will make you paranoid and create hallucinations. He will not let you have good sleep nor will he give you domestic peace. He will make your wife your bitterest enemy and will make you move in the company of forbidden men and society. He will make you do what you never wanted to do, and make you wander aimlessly rendering all your attempts futile and useless.

Jupiter comes to you as your saviour and friend, as a David to save you from the Goliath, just as the nightmare of Rahu Dasa comes to an end. You would immediately feel that you have been rescued by an unseen force. Jupiter now extends you his helping hand.

Money seems to be coming in as your attempts start bearing results one by one. People will start listening to you. You will be in a good house which will give you immense satisfaction. Your sons and daughters would start getting good results at school and college. Your mind becomes steady and peaceful and you will be able to concentrate on God. You become religious. You visit places. Promotions will come unsought.

Being the sworn enemy of the Sun and the Moon, the Bhukti of Rahu in their Dasas will give very bad results for 10 and 18 months respectively. Nor will Rahu Bhukti in Jupiter Dasa for 28 months be anything good. The characteristics of Rahu and Jupiter being poles apart, Rahu will give all bad during his period. One should take adequate care of oneself and one's household members, property and daily activities. One should think well before acting -- but Rahu's Venus appears to be better, just as Venus in Rahu will be the real starting point for Yoga in Rahu Dasa.

Jupiter as a Malefic

Coming back to Jupiter again, where do you want this revered entity to be -- in Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer or where? It is said that Jupiter will give Yoga when he is placed in Cancer, Sagittarius, Pisces, Kendra or Kona; or, if he is associated with the Moon and Venus. But, if he is with Rahu, Yoga will be spoiled. I would like this great master to be anywhere from Lagna except in the 6th, 8th and 12th houses. In all the other places, i.e., 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 7th, 9th, 10th and 11th, Jupiter will give benefits, such as improvement in wealth and success.

If Jupiter assumes the lordship of the 1st, 4th, 7th and 10th houses, he will become a very powerful malefic and will assume the portfolio of Maraka (death) if he is located in a Kendra, i.e., 1st, 4th, 7th or 10th, at the same time. This pernicious and malignant character of Jupiter will be cent per cent in the 10th and will gradually decrease in the 7th, 4th and 1st Kendras respectively. He will act in a deadly manner when he becomes the 7th and 10th lord and occupies the 10th position. This situation obtains for Gemini Lagna. Again for Virgo Lagna he is the 4th and 7th lord. If he is situated in the 10th, he will be a Maraka. And for Pisces Lagna, Jupiter being the 1st and the 10th lord can be instrumental in causing death if he is in the 2nd house.

The salvation for Jupiter, when he becomes the lord either of 1st, 4th, 7th or 10th is when he is placed either in the 5th or 9th house when he gives Rajayoga. It is also said that the dreadful effects of Kendradhipatya Dosha will be mitigated if he is placed in the 6th, 8th or 12th house. Below is the Table of places where Jupiter will give Yoga for different Lagnas.

Irrespective of the lordship of Jupiter my choice for him is the 2nd house. The 2nd house stands for speech, good words, truth, money, living, costly clothing, diamonds, gold, silver, wealth, family, philanthropy, happiness, fame, education etc.

Placed in the 2nd, he will take care of the 6th, the 8th and the 10th houses which stand for enemies and health, longevity and profession. Such a person will not have enemies and enjoy good health; he will have good span of life and will steadily grow in his profession. Being in the 2nd house, the individual will be beautiful, pleasing, attractive, well educated and good mannered; will become important; will have no enemies and hence will have no opposition; will be wealthy, have sons; being a God-fearing person, will be a philanthropist. When you are happy at home, have no enemies and have an honourable profession and good length of life, what more do you need? (to be continued)

Select Readings from Nadis – IV*

GEMINI

I SHALL now give extracts from a reading where the results predicted are mostly based on the positions of planets from Chandra Lagna. This was a reading for a lady whose left-hand thumb impression was taken. Women they take the right hand thumb impression. Perhaps, this confirms the practice of palmists who scrutinize the right hand of a male and left hand in the case of a female native.

This girl's thumb impression was classified as Thiruppulli Nedu Malar Sangu Reka. The Lagna is Sagittarius and the planetary positions are as given in Chart 16, the birth star being Bharani. The reading is reproduced below:

Vindu Vida Mathikkazhar Sunganahi
Vinatyundu Oundi Sikhiyodu Ayndil
Kandu Uraikka Koodi Keda Vendar Eazil
Kothalarku Attamathipan Udhayanodu
Nanru Pera Naangathanil Sera Kutram
Nangalyarku
Mangalya Dosham Pugalvom

Notes: (Mathi - Moon), (Sungan - Venus), (Pundi - Mercury), (Sikhi - Ketu), (Velan - Jupiter), (Udhayan - Sun), (Kothalar - Girl).

This means that since Venus who is the 7th house from the Moon is in the 5th with Mercury and Ketu and also after scrunity Jupiter is placed in the 7th house from the Moon but Mars, the owner of the 8th house from Moon, is conjunct Sun in the 4th there is a blemish and we predict Mangalya Dosha for the girl. This is followed by advice that if Santhi is performed to remove this dosha she will have a happy and a prosperous married life.

	MOON SAT.
ASCDT. RAHU	Chart 16		SUN MARS
			MERC. VENUS KETU
		JUPIT.

Obviously in this case the Chandra Lagna is more powerful than the Ascendant and hence we may deduce that results have to be predicted from the position of the planets from the Moon-sign in such cases. Only in one place have they referred to the owner of a house from the Ascendant. But here also, the accent is on the effect of its being placed in the 5th from the Moon-sign.

Iruvanai Andil Idearundu Panchamathipan
Kettirukka Uyyave
Putra Dosham Poorvasabam Kudiyil

This means that there will be putra dosham in the 25th year of the girl due to the blemish of the owner of the 5th house and there is a curse carried over from the previous birth. The blemish seems to stem from the owner of the 5th house from the Lagna viz., Mercury being with Ketu in the 5th from Chandra Lagna.

Here I think I should explain the system that the Nadi readers follow. Genuine Nadi readers do not ask for your horoscope but only take your thumb impression and date of birth. From this they pick out the particular palm-leaf and read what is called Podhu Nool or Podhukaandam which establishes that it is the correct reading for you by mentioning one or two past events and an important thing which has happened sometime just before you get the reading. Then they describe some events that are to happen in the future. If you want to know more details about a specific thing, for example marriage, you should see the 7th Canto and so on. The Podhukaandam states whether your parents are alive or one or both of them is dead at the time of the reading, the name of your parents, your name and also the name of the partner if married.

In the reading for Chart 16 more details than usual came out in the Podhukaandam like the father having lost a lot of money in business, the girl's own marital problems, the time of solution, profession of the husband and the period of change of his profession. It predicted even the education of the girl's brothers.

*Part IIIA of the article has appeared in The A.M., May 1991.

For another person who wanted to know about his profession and financial prospects, very little came out about the future in the Podhukaandam except two events to confirm that the reading pertained to that person. The reading described the thumb as Valakarathil Nedunthandu Purana Rekha. The reading stated that this gentleman though born with a silver spoon in the mouth had lost heavily in his business which he had to close down finally, and that he had sold his house worth several lakhs shortly before this reading and was now living in a rented house. His Ascendant was Capricorn (Chart 17) and the debacle happened in Venus Bhukti of Saturn Dasa.

			SAT.
	Chart 17		SUN VENUS RAHU
ASCDT. KETU			MERC. MARS JUPIT.
		MOON

In the 10th Canto only the following noteworthy reading was given:

Vellukinna Naaladhavum palanum mudakkam
Vazuvathu Palan Seer Viyangal Mevum
Allalila Jeevanathiapan Sunganahi Eazil
Adhavan Karunagam
Jeevanathipathiyodum Sera Palavithamaai
Suya Thettam Lohathitharagum
Balaganum Seidhu Nal Manaiyum Theedi
Thollaitila Thettavadum Mudakkam
Therivatthom
Aarettu Bannile Pudhu Vazvhu Thettal Seivan.

This means that since the owner of the 10th house is Venus and he is in the 7th house conjunct the Sun and Rahu, the native wo have earned by doing brokerage in dealing w metals. In spite of earnings, at some period predicted loss also. In his 48th year he wo have a new type of life and good earnings. He again the principle of Bhavath Bhavam i.e., 10 from 10th or 7th house effects, seems to apply

The above two readings are from Vasish Nadi - Not the one that is the Prasna type refer to in Part III earlier. This Nadi in my experienc is par excellence in delineating the specific profe sion of a person at the time of consultation a whether there will be a change in future and if s when and the type of new job or business.

For example in the case of Chart 16 the rea ing specifically stated that the husband of the g would be a high official in a brewery which w correct. The reading stated melalaar thondum seidhu.

It also predicted that he would leave this j and start his own business after 3 years and th it would flourish very well.

It is noteworthy that all these precise predi tions have been made without any reference to th so-called extra-Saturnine planets. There is amp proof in the Nadi readings, that our Rishi superseers as they were, had foreseen all th modern inventions and the technologic developments of the present century.

The phraseology in the Nadis about the profe sion in each case is precise and unambiguou For instance, in one case, the profession of th querent was described as Vanavundi Sutchum Ganitham or intricate and as concerning aircra accounts.¬27.91.

The Mystery of the I Ching -- III*

U. S. PULIPPANI

More Information about the Lines

A BROKEN or a yielding YIN line is supposed to be unfortunate and weak and a solid unbroken YANG line is considered fortunate and constructive. A Hexagram containing more YIN lines, generally indicates unfortunate situation and that which contains more solid lines is considered fortunate. A Hexagram containing more of YANG or YIN lines is considered unbalanced.

Pattern and Structure of Hexagram

Each Hexagram combines two trigrams, as has already been explained:-

1. A lower inner trigram
2. An upper outer trigram.

They frequently relate respectively to subjective and objective conditions of states of change.

The 64 Hexagrams forming the 64 life-situations comprise the entire text of the I CHING. Each of the Hexagrams comes under independent treatment.

First, an introductory note covering main indications, nature and other features of the Hexagrams are given. There is a guiding principle mostly in the cases of drawing of locked Hexagrams or in the case of knowing the answer through resultant Hexagrams. This is followed by the undermentioned parts of text under various headings.

1. The name of the Hexagrams is in Chinese in the Wade-Giles system of Romanization which is adopted more commonly. The phonetic name is also included within brackets followed by the name.
2. Short title of the Hexagram.
3. Clear meaning of the Hexagram.
4. Judgement or the main discretion of the Hexagram.
5. Image, the symbolical expression of the Hexagram.
6. Suggestion of the Hexagram -- this particularly indicates advice or instructions and the course of action to be taken to get rid of the existing bad or unfortunate situation etc.
7. Meaning of the symbolic and other explanation of each of the moving lines.

The second part of each of the chapters contains the following, explained under various headings separately. This is to be read when an Hexagram is drawn as a locked one (without moving lines) or for the resultant Hexagram. It is to be noted that when an Hexagram is drawn without moving line, it is called a locked Hexagram which by itself forms the answer or gives YES/NO replies for the questions asked.

1. Later scholars have assigned gradations of good fortune or bad fortune, 3 in each by the following names.

Good Fortune

1. Extreme Good Fortune.
2. Medium Good Fortune.
3. Good Fortune.

Bad Fortune

1. Extreme Bad Fortune.
2. Medium Bad Fortune.
3. Bad Fortune.

This is what is indicated in the 2nd part of each of the Hexagrams under the 1st sub-heading as "Condition of Fortune".

(1) Condition of Fortune, (2) Wish, (3) Marriage, (4) Children - Pregnancy - Boy or Girl, nature of children etc., (5) Sickness - Health, (6) Law suit, (7) Employment, New business, change of occupation, (8) Travel, and (9) Lost articles.

In addition I have given notes under introductary note on each Hexagram, its judgement, symbol and also for each of the individual lines of the Hexagrams from my own practical experience.

How to Consult the Oracle

To consult the I CHING, the first step is to frame the question correctly. This is an art by itself. Your question should be clear cut and

*Part II has appeared in the A.M., April 1991.

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri definite. There should be nothing vague and ambiguous about it. Indication of timing of event, though not impossible with the I CHING, being a sophisticated method of divination, time principle, should be specified while asking. Conversely you can fix a time and ask the I CHING when the wish will be fulfilled, whether it is possible within that particular period. The following are some typical questions that can be asked:

1. Will I succeed in this endeavour?
2. Is this marital alliance suitable for me?
3. Can I accept this assignment - position?
4. Can I make investments in real estate, share, business etc., (each should be separately asked).
5. Will my health improve?
6. Can I travel now?
7. Pregnancy — Whether boy or girl?

Various other types of questions can also be asked. The subjects explained under various headings in the text of the second part of each of the Hexagrams will indicate what other type of questions can be asked. The only condition is that the question should be clear cut and unambiguous.

The second step is to draw the Hexagram by tossing of coins. Before drawing the Hexagram the questioner should deeply think of the question, with serenity and meditate upon it for some time with undisturbed mind, if possible, offering a prayer to the Cosmic Intelligence. The third step is interpretation of the Hexagram drawn.

Key for Identifying the Hexagrams

TRIGRAMS UPPER→ / LOWER↓	Ch`ien	Chen	K`an	K`en	K`un	Sun	Li	Tui
Ch`en	1	34	5	26	11	9	14	43
Chen	25	51	3	27	24	42	21	17
K`an	6	40	29	4	7	59	64	47
K`en	33	62	39	52	15	53	56	31
K`un	12	16	8	23	2	20	35	45
Sun	44	32	48	18	46	57	50	28
Li	13	55	63	22	36	37	30	49
Tui	10	54	60	41	19	61	38	58

The simplest way of interpretation is explained here. Adopt a quiet peaceful receptive attitude of mind knowing that the Infinite Intelligence within your sub-conscious mind will give the answer, precisely with the course of action you may have to take for the fulfilment of the answer given.

Then draw the Hexagram tossing 3 coins, six times as explained earlier. In each toss, the value of six and nine, arrived at as total, should be marked as the MOVING YIN and YANG lines respectively. Value of lines, arrived at as eight and seven, will be marked as ordinary YIN and YANG lines respectively. You can locate the Hexagram by referring to the key table provided, by identifying the lower trigram in the first vertical column, and the upper trigram in the horizontal column. The meeting point of these will indicate the number of the Hexagram drawn. The Tables show a complete list of Hexagrams and numbers.

After you have drawn the Hexagram, watch whether you have got any moving line in it. You may get one or more moving lines. Then change these moving lines to their opposite line to form the resultant Hexagram, keeping the non-moving lines as they are with their positions. If the moving line is old YANG line (solid), it will change into YIN lines (broken) and vice versa in case of YIN moving lines resulting in YANG lines. Based on this the new Hexagram is formed as explained earlier. If there are no moving lines, only one, the present Hexagram drawn which is to be considered for the culmination of present situation into future. In this case, this is called a locked Hexagram. (to be continued)

Ancient Classical Writers of Jyotisha

Rama Daivagnya

K. R. KRISHNAMURTHI

General

MUHURTHA works play a vital role in Hindu Jyotisha Sastra. From the time of Grihya Sutras, Muhurtha has gained great importance in our domestic life. By Muhurtha we mean an auspicious moment (Kaala) for commencing any important domestic function ranging from house building, Grihapravesa, Vivaha, Seemantha, Jaathakarma, Upanayana, Yatra, Mantropadesa, Thyajya Prakarara etc.

Lallacharya's Ratna Kosa, Sripathi's Ratnamala, Kesava's Muhurtha Tattwa and Narayana's Muhurtha Marthanda are some of the well-known Muhurtha works.

Personal

Rama Daivagnya, son of Anantha Daivagnya and younger brother of Neelakanta has written a very popular Muhurtha work called Muhurtha Chintamani. It was written by him in Saka 1522 (1600 A.D.) at Vaaraanasi, with his own commentary on it called Pramitakshara. It was widely followed during his time in North India. His family history can be found under Anantha Daivagnya II (vide A.M., June 1990). From the works of the author one can gauge his deep knowledge of Kaavya, Vyakarana, Jyotisha. Muhurtha Chintamani contains all the topics that are usually covered by Muhurtha works. He was chosen as the Asthana Vidwan in the court of King Akbar (1556-1605 A.D.) in recognition of his scholarship and popularity.

His Works

Rama Daivagnya has also written a Karana work called Ramavinoda, at the instance of the Jaipur King Ramadasa, a Minister in Akbar's court, in Saka 1512 (1590 A.D.) to commemorate the 35th year of Akbar's reign. It contains 11 Chapters with 280 slokas, with the required tables for motions of planets, length of year, etc, based on modern Surya Siddhanta, with corrections recommended by Makaranda. The corrections for Tithain etc., are covered in 17 slokas, which form a part of the work. Sudhakara Dwivedi has said that people in Jaipur area used to compile their Panchangas with the help of Ramavinoda.

A famous commentary on Muhurtha Chintamani was written by Govinda Daivagnya called Piyushadhara in Saka 1525 (1603 A.D.). It may be recalled that Govinda was the son of Neelakanta, the elder brother of Rama Daivagnya. Of Muhurtha Chintamani, it is said that it is on the lines of Ratnamala of Sripathi. Rama Daivagnya is known to have written Yantraprakasa, a work on astronomical instruments, which, however, has not been traced so far.

His acquaintance with Todarmal in Akbar's court got him some favours in the king's court. In return, he wrote Todaraananda in Samhita form, which became popular later on. Copies of this work can be found with much difficulty with a few hereditary astrologers at Varaanasi.

If Ramavinoda was compiled by Rama when he was 30 years old, his birth year would come to 1560 A.D. The author starts Ramavinoda with the following sloka:

Ganapathim Abhivandya Sripadaaravinda
Smarana Vidithatatvo Ananthajo
Ramachandraha |
Akbar Nrpathi Sakabdakthi Panchangapatram
Grahagathisa mavatham Ramabhoopala meaning, that Ramachandra son of Anantha, after bowing to Lord Ganapathy and thinking of the lotus feet of Mahalakshmi has compiled this work for Panchanga Ganitha, with all planetary positions, etc., to coincide with the Era of Akbar and to please king Ramadasa of Jaipur. He further adds as follows:
Thushtyay ||

Ramana Yatnadiha Ramadasa Preethyay |
Kritha Ramavinoda Namni Panchangasiddhi
Paripoorthamaagat'. ||

meaning, that Rama Daivagnya has written the Ramavinoda to please king Ramadasa, for purposes of Panchanga Ganitha.--249.91.

Solar influences. Venus and Sun are enemies but these natural dispositions between these two planets will not come in the way of the native prospering in his profession. He may become a detective, high grade statesman and a high grade salesman also. He will be very successful an managing orchestras. A study of the horoscope of spies reveals the presence of this combination but the combination is further afflicted by malefic aspects. Therefore one should not conclude that all those who have this combination are spies. The professions which we have outlined when we dealt with Sun and Venus associations hold good in this case also. Then the Sun was primary and Venus secondary, here vice-versa holds good. The native with such a combination may become the head of a quasi-government concern.

If the Moon is connected with Venus in a secondary capacity then two opposite sets of qualifications are brought together. If this combination has no affliction then the native will possess the gift of imagination, ability as a writer and will possess large vocabulary. He can shine as an employee or head of advertising agency the grade depending upon the strength of the combination. The native can become a teacher. He can also be successful as a composer of delightful music. The Moon no doubt represents royalty but the Moon cannot have all the bright qualifications ascribed to the Sun. He can edit romantic novels, periodicals devoted to woman and children etc., and also sanitation. A number of tailors have this combination. After all Venus-Moon combination as affecting the 10th house is a good one. One can hope to be a successful diplomat, intellectual or a writer.

We now come to the secondary influence of Mars under the primary influence of Venus. When one has this combination the aggressive tendency of Mars gets minimised. The native will lack what is called initiative. Where Mars is not therefore afflicted the native will be active and will exert himself to make the most of the opportunities. While he cannot be recommended for the strenuous occupations mentioned for Mars, he can still try for them but he should be careful. One with this combination will be successful as a trade representative or a commission agent, a business ambassador and the business world will be suitable for such persons.

He can also be successful as a clerk in a b shop, newspaper office and other journal concerns. He can also take agency of his own organize trade concerns. He can compile dire ries and make money out of them. The ot successful lines are insurance and medicine can also deal with drugs and medicines or beco an insurance agent. The practical aspect of combination will be dealt with shortly.

When Mercury is connected with Venus secondary capacity and the combination is afflicted, then the native can safely take to tra but he should avoid military contracts. His appearance and charming manners will attr much trade and his shrewdness will enable to turn his personal charm into money. He can become a scientist. Any trade will suit him re or wholesale. If there is any aspect of Mars, th he can take to medical line. As a broker, comm sion agent, contractor, paper merchant he c establish his reputation. The brokerage may be any line—stocks, wheat, corn, steel, lumber e He has all the qualities for success in cot speculation, wheat and grains.

Next we are going to give influence of Jupi under the primary influence of Venus. As minister, politician, public worker one can b come famous and successful. Andhra Pradesh -- An Astrological Study

R. SATYANARAYANA MURTHY

IN THE context of the mid-term polls to the Parliament, what would be the astrological indications of the political future of Andhra Pradesh (which came into existence on 1-11-1956 Chart 1) is the question dealt with in this article.

Andhra Pradesh has been under the rule of the Congress (I) since 3-12-1989. Chief Minister Dr. Chenna Reddi was made to resign on 14/16-12-1990. It is said that Mr. Janaradhan Reddy who assumed office on 17-12-1990 was born on 20-2-1935 in Nellore District, time not known (Chart 2). From his Moon-sign, the 10th lord is in Grayuddha with Saturn in the 6th with its lord. Saturn is the 8th lord from the 10th. Two important planets Rahu and Saturn have been transitting Capricorn which is the 8th from the 10th and also transitting Capricorn which is the 8th from the 10th and also the 5th from the Moon. His Mercury, the Moon's dispositor, placed in the 6th with its lord and Saturn in the 6th aspected by Rahu indicates lingering disease. According to our Rishis a Bhava suffers destruction when Saturn transits the Rasi or Navamsa held by the lord of the 8th house (death) or the 12th Navamsa held by the lord of the 8th house (death) or the 12th (loss) from the concerned Bhava. Presently, Saturn is transitting Capricorn which is the 8th from the 10th house. However, we cannot come to any conclusion based only on the Moon sign.

The oath of office was administered by Mr. Krishna Kanth, the Governor on 17-12-1990 at 11 hrs. 34 mts. IST at Hyderabad (Chart 3).

The Ascendant is Aquarius and its lord Saturn is in his own house which is the 12th associated with an incendiary Rahu who is a planet known for mesmerism, cheating, conspiracy etc. According to Phaladeepika, for Aquarius Lagna, Venus alone is benefic; Moon, Mars and Jupiter are inauspicious. Mars, the Sun and the rest prove Marakas (death inflicting).

According to Vimshottari, after proportionately reducing Dasa periods to 5 years' span, Venus Dasa started on 18-1-1991 and will end on 17-11-1991. Hence this period affects the native's efficiency, outlook, character, ability, capability of running the administration of the State etc., etc. According to Parasara, a Yogakaraka can become a toppler also.

The Lagna lord Saturn is a natural and dire malefic in the 12th. From the Moon, Saturn also being the lord of 22nd decanate, a Maraka, occupies the 2nd, a death inflicting place along with another malefic Rahu and as well in the 12th from Lagna in Uttarashadha constellation ruled by the Sun, another Maraka for Aquarius Lagna. The chart suffers from Alpayu.

The solar ingress into Aries plays a very important role in predicting the future of heads of states and the ruling parties. The Sun enters Aries on 14-4-1991 at 10 hrs. 4 mts. A.M. (IST) (Chart 4). The 3rd degree of Gemini rises at Hyderabad in Libra Navamsa and Cancer Dasamsa. The retrograde Lagna lord Mercury occupies the 11th with exalted 3rd lord Sun. The 11th lord is in

The dispositor of 9th lord in 8th aspected by Rahu from cruel 7th Rasi indicates violent communal riots during their Dasa period i.e., between 17-5-1991 to 6-6-1991 and between 18-6-1991 to 16-7-1991. Dejected senior legislators may throw threats with dire consequences. Birth of a new regional party is likely. The confused situation (also see 5th in oath chart is aspected by the 6th, 7th and 8th lords) after mid-term polls to the Parliament in May 1991, will lead to mid-term polls to the State Assembly between mid-November 1991 and mid-January 1992. President's rule is likely to be imposed on the state between August-September 1991.

The head of the State is advised to take the legislators into confidence, avoid situations which get him excited, to undergo thorough medical checkups regularly and take every precaution to combat communal riots specifically during the election periods and to be wary of the activities of the hostile elements. (Received 30-3-1991)

Letters to the Editor

Cyclones in Bangladesh

Sir, - One of the most calamitous natural disasters when coastal Bangladesh was devastated by a cyclone on 17th November 1970, taking a toll of over half a million human lives, was foreseen astrologically (A.M., November 1970). The planetary configuration which had promted me in anticipating this major event was the simultaneous transit of Jupiter in Visakha and Saturn in Bharani, in opposition with the luminaries coinciding with the Full Moon day, conjoining the Jupiter-Saturn axis and Mars behind Jupiter casting his 8th house aspect on the Saturn-Sun combine. Precisely this same planetary configuration obtained on 29-4-1991 when an equally devastating cyclone once again struck the Bangla Desh coastal region, causing tremendous havoc to life and property, with the wind speed reaching a phenomenal 235 km per hr. The death toll may again touch half a million mark. Jupiter (Cancer) and Saturn (Capricorn) in opposition, with luminaries in a Kendra axis to Jupiter-Saturn opposition, and Mars transiting behind Jupiter, aspecting Saturn, unequivocally reveal their potential for unleashing tremendous forces of energy. Simultaneous with the cyclone, a severe earthquake reaching the magnitude of 7.8 on the Richter scale struck the Georgia republic of Soviet Union.

What causes us concern is the fact that this ominous configuration continues to prevail with reduced intensity, carrying the potential for generating another severe cyclone, particularly following the next lunar ingress on 14-5-1991. The lunar ingress chart, as for the previous lunar ingress on 14-4-1991 reveals ominous forebodings.

'Samanta Chandrasekhara'

Sir, - In his article "Samanta Chandrasekhara: India's Foremost Astronomer" (A.M., December 1990) Mr. Dukhishyama Pattanayak has stated that Samanta Chandrasekhara was born on 11th January, 1836. He has further said that he has rebuilt his lost horoscope from the planetary positions calculated by him for that date. On the basis of that horoscope, he has tried to justify astrologically certain important events in Samanta's life. Some of the facts mentioned in his article are not correct, but that is besides the point. What is relevant is that the premise on the basis of which the horoscope has been cast is wrong. For, while his statement that the date of birth of Samanta Chandrasekhara was the 8th day of the dark fortnight of Pausa in the Saka Era 1757 is correct, his assumption that date was the same as 11th January, 1836 is not correct. In Orissa, lunar months are reckoned by the Purnimanta system and not by the Amanta system. Calculated on that basis, 8th day of the dark fortnight of Pausa in Saka Era 1757 fell on the 13th December, 1835 and not on the 11th January, 1836. Therefore, the horoscope cast by Mr. Pattanayak for 11th January, 1836 is not that of Samanta Chandrasekhara. All his arguments and statements astrologically justifying certain important events in Samanta's life on the basis of such a horoscope become redundant.

Future of Bangla Desh

Sir, - Begum Khalida Zia has been sworn in as the first woman prime-minister of Bangaladesh at about 3.00 p.m. (local time) at Dhaka (23.45 N, 90.26 E) under the following planetary positions:

Rasi: Aries - Venus 8-36-57 and Moon 28-23-36; Taurus - Mars 29-14-30; Cancer - Jupiter (R) 9-53-48 and Ketu 1-14-21; Leo - Ascendant 3-31; Capricorn - Rahu 1-14-22 and Saturn 10-30-47; and Pisces - Sun 5-33-57 and Mercury 21-42-23 with a balance of Sun Dasa 5 years, 2 months and 20 days.

The 8th house being a dual sign, full life is ruled out. The party may fall apart mid-way.

The position of Saturn indicates the fragile support of the minor parties. This also singifies the overall attitude towards India. Saturn versus Lagna lord is indicative of the relationship in the next few months. The Sun ruling inner strength, honesty of purpose and weakness. The 6th lord approaching slowly the 7th indicates growing distrust.

Jupiter's transit in the 12th does not give strength to the government. Venus, as lord of 3rd and 10th in 9th in natal chart and 2nd as Ascendant lord in Navamsa, indicates cautious relationship with neighbours. Western alliance is not ruled out. Borders of Meghalaya, Tripura and West Bengal are not safe from infiltration and exfiltration. Mounting national problems, empty treasury, increasing foreign debt and fluid strength are the main ones the P.M. has inherited. The Moon being in Krittika, the ruling party may initiate corruption charges and also may face similar charges as well. Non-fulfilment of poll promises, inner strife, dissension and hunger for power and position may crop up with Sun-Rahu, leading to a split in the party. The new faction may forge an alliance with Begum Hasina by 28th June 1992. The country may again come under military or President's rule between 11-9-1992 and 28-10-1992, while Jupiter will be entering Virgo. With Pluto's approach to 3rd and Uranus plus Neptune receding under Rahu, i.e., till 28-11-1994, the overall position may remain fluid. The transit of Jupiter to Scorpio by 11-11-1994 will usher in new stability. The Jupiter-Venus-Rahu-Moon combine around 7-10-1994 in Libra in Rahu's star Swati, indicates extra-ordinary unheavals in the history of the country. Mars, it appears, always has an upper hand in the affairs of this nation.

Incidentally, Sheikh Hasina's Lagna is Sagittarius 3-40 (A.M., April 1991, page 353).

Although the Sun and Mercury combination is considered good, this is spoiled due to aspects from Rahu and Saturn. The frequent retrogression of Jupiter in Leo will increase her popularity and when it enters Virgo by 11-9-1992, she will be able to lure away a faction from Begum Zia. Her 12th lord (Mars) is in 11th spoiling Venus and Jupiter and strengthening Moon. She may not continue in power beyond Mercury-Venus. Please note that her Mars is too dangerously placed and 9th lord is in the 10th (10th is Maraka to 9th and 9th is 12th to 10th).

During Mercury-Venus, she will be out of power. During Mercury-Sun she may attempt another come-back, but will be forced to take political sanyasa during Mercury-Moon, due to flagging popularity and failing health.

Needless Confusion

Sir, - "The Doctrine of the Host Planet" by Mr. P. N. Oak (A.M., Jan. 1991) is really confusing. His theory seems quite contrary to the rules formulated by the ancients. According to classical works, exaltation is the highest position of a planet. Next to exaltation is that of occupation of one's own house. Next to that is occupation of friend's house. Next comes occupation of enemy's house and finally, debilitation. But Mr. Oak has made everything topsy-turvy. According to him the exaltation of Mars in Capricorn spells a triple malefic effect since Mars occupies a malefic sign incompatable to his temperament. Saturn in own house Capricorn or Aquarius has a double malefic effect as a malefic placed in a malefic sign. Saturn, a natural enemy of Moon, is good in Cancer, Moon's sign, since he is placed in a benefic sign suited to his temperament. Which theory is right we to accept? The one enunciated by Mr. Oak or the one propounded by Varahamihira?

Sarvotabhadra Chakra

Sir, - The author (A.M., April 1991) has very nicely explained the arrangement of stars and rounds in erecting the Chakra. However, the arrangement of consonants is rather confusing. The author should have illustrated it better by applying transits and birth-star from a couple of charts to prove the correctness of the rules given by him. He has placed the tithis Nanda, Bhadra etc., in the Chakra but has not demonstrated their effects and time.

Bhukti Reckoning -- Rahu and Ketu

Sir, - Mr. S. Venkatesan has sought clarification as to why Bhuktis of Rahu and Ketu are not reckoned in the same order of movements, as these two nodes always move in the anti-clockwise direction (A.M., December 1990).

Let us take the case of a native born on 8-4-1923 at 7.30 a.m. at Guntur, the birth in Poorvashadha 3rd quarter with balance of 9 years of Venus Dasa. After the native completes 9 years of age, he passes through the following Dasas of planets, one after one, because it is the Moon, who is supposed to move through - Uttarashadha 6 years Sunk Sravana 10 years (Moon); Dhanishta 7 years (Mars); Satabhisha 18 years (Rahu); Poorvabhadrapada 16 years (Jupiter); and Uttarabhadrapada 19 years Saturn) and so on.

The Moon has supreme importance in Astrology in general, and in Vimshottari system, in particular. The Vimshottari system is always reckoned from the Moon's movement through the stars, i.e., in clockwise direction. The Moon does not move in the anti-clockwise direction. Aswini, Aridra, Makha, Swati, Moola and Satabhisha presided over by Ketu and Rahu. Hence, our sages correctly laid down the rules of the Vimshottari system in its present form and this gives very good results.

Ayanamsa

Sir, - Appropos Mr. S. S. Gopalan's letter (A.M., February 1991) the late Rai Bahadur Jogesh Chandra Ray, M.A., the famous astronomer and astrologist and discoverer of the celebrated Mahamahopadhyaya Chandra Sekhar Samanta, published a pamphlet "The First Point of Aswini" wherein he had dealt with the problem of Ayanamsa in great detail both from the historical and astronomical points of view. He concluded that the correct Ayanamsa is a few minutes less than the Lahiri's Ayanamsa i.e., Chitra Paksha.

In the Nautical Almanac the longitudes of the planets etc., are calculated by projecting the planets etc. on to the ecliptic taking the pole of the ecliptic on the focus of projection. In Hindu Astrology the positions are to be calculated by projection from the pole of the celestial equator (Dhruvaka). In most cases there will be some difference in the two methods of calculation leading to difference of results.

More on Rasi

Sir, - Dr. P. S. Sastri has observed (A.M., August 1988, pages 8, 35) "Each Rasi is for thirty degrees. The rising degree (Lagna) is the starting point of thirty degrees. Of this we will speak later." But so far he has not spoken of it at all? May I request him to clarify the point?

Debilitation of the Moon

Sir, - I refer to the answer to question No. 9 (Page 436 of A.M., May 1991). In respect of the Moon in Scorpio, Mihira states that the debilitation is only upto the 3rd degree. Does this mean that the Moon is free from debilitation from the 4th degree? If so, Anuradha and Jyeshta natives have no debilitation of the Moon. Has this statement any authority of the sages? Learned readers may kindly clarify the issue.

The Mystery of the I-Ching

Sir, - I would like to draw your attention to the difference in opinion on computing the static Yang and Yin lines between Mr. Pulippani (A.M., April 1991, page 349) and John Blofeld (vide the latter's I Ching - The Book of Change -- Unwin Paperbacks, London). Blefield gives the Coin Table as follows:

BL + BL + BL - O - an old Yanga line (i.e., moving) RN 9

IN + IN + IN - x - an old Yin line (i.e., moving) RN6

BL + BL + IN ---- an Young Yang line (i.e., static) RN7

IN + IN + BL -- -- A Young Yin line (i.e., static) RN8

CC-0. In Public Domain. Gurukul Kangri Collection, Haridwar

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

Here IN stands for the side in which value is inscribed i.e., Tail. BL stands for Head.

On comparison we find that the Moving Yang and Yin lines tally in both the references. But the static Yang and Yin lines are computed in just the opposite way.

In the Coin Table given by Mr. Pulippani, YAN is a misprint. It should be YIN.

I request the author to clarify.

Pune. Narayan Prasad.

[Pulippani clarifies:

At the outset I request the reader not to compare my way of construction of lines to that given in the book he refers to. Vide A.M., April 1991, page 349. I have given the following values.

1. The denomination side of the coin - 2 - termed as Tail.

2. The side containing the seal - 3 - termed as Head.

With these values, the construction shown in my article is correct.

But the author of the book referred to has given values alternatively as follows:

1. The denomination side - 2 - termed as IN.

2. The side containing the seal - 3 - termed as BL.

On computation, it will be found that both are the same and there is no variation in the case of non-moving static lines also. The difference is that I have placed Moving YIN line on the top and the Moving YANG line at the bottom, and the calculations tally correctly. I thank the reader for pointing out the mistake in the 3rd line, the word YAN should be YIN, being a misprint.]

Horoscope of Congress (I)

Sir, - While discussing Chart 3 (page 604, A.M., August 1989) the author says in the article "Future of the Congress (I)" that the planets of the party spell the "beginning of the end of the Congress (I)". Under Chart 4 the author says that when transit Saturn moves into Capricorn, it will deal a blow to the pillars of the party rocking the infrastructure with it at the same time.

Taking into consideration the current political situation in the country there appears no possibility of any single party emerging in the coming elections with a clear-cut majority to be able to form a government on its own at the Centre.

The Congress (I) appears to have sensed the danger inherent in the current political situation in the country. It thinks that having been in wilderness for 16/17 months the party ranks have gone restive and somewhat demoralised. The party is, therefore, trying hard to influence the voters to gain their favour in order to form anyhow the government at the Centre after the elections. Otherwise there will be serious repercussions on the party's survival.

As per his horoscope the planetary positions do not favour Rajiv Gandhi for the present. It will be only in September 1992 when Jupiter transits through his Virgo Lagna from 11-9-1992 to 12-10-1993 a favourable change may occur in his life when he may lead the nation, but from which platform it is not clear as Saturn is transiting through Capricorn.

However, V. P. Singh appears to stand a chance. He has exalted Jupiter in his Lagna and Jupiter is transiting his Cancer Lagna and Jupiter who is lord of his 9th house.

Cancer Ascendant and Marital Happiness

Sir, - I wish to differ on a number of conclusions drawn by Dr. A. N. Rajamani in his article on the above subject, vide 1991 Annual Number of the A.M.

Primarily, marital bliss is internal -- not external and therefore not directly visible. For an example take Sri Rama's horoscope quoted by him. The Lord was fortunate in getting a harmonious and accommodative wife, purely with her Lord in her heart, helping him thereby to overcome strenuous and heavy hurdles faced by Him in life which He could not have otherwise fulfilled. In fact, adjustibility, one of the main requirements for marital happiness, is abundant in Cancerians. It may also be remembered that the 7th house (wife) is the 10th house from the 10th i.e., the implementation of the profession of a person. The fact that this Ascendant has given rise to a number of great personalities itself indicates that marital bliss

BOOKS ON REVIEW

OUR LITERARY EDITOR

Wait in The Light by John Lampen, (pg. 118, 2.50)
A Measure of our Values by Michael Rutter (Pg. 172, Pds. 3.00)
Both Published by Quaker Home Service, Euston Road, London NW1 2BJ.)

The first book seeks to show the spirituality of George Fox, founder of Quaker (movement) as a sect of Christianity which came into being in the 17th century. As in the case of all reformers, Fox too was labelled a witch, fanatical revivalist etc., and imprisoned for rebelling against organised church not less than eight times. Ultimately his ideas which were startlingly original for his times, culminated into flowering as an organised religion going by the name Religious Society of Friends having large followers in and beyond the shores of U.K.

The present work is arranged in six sections stewarded by suitable introduction selections from Fox's books and letters as also from his friends. Topics are: Fox's Call, His personal and corporate Conscience, Nature of Man and God, Trial and Setback, The Worshipping Community and George Fox, the Man. These cover aspects like his relation to God, other people and his own reality. These selections help us assess Fox's contribution to the development of religious thought and ethics through the centuries.

The second book contains the text of the Swathmore Lecture 1983. This lectureship, established in 1907, seeks to interpret the message of the Quaker Mission. In these days when books are written on bringing up parents, it may seem odd to read one on bringing up the child and that on Quaker ethics, yet it is interesting. The present lecture delivered by the author who is a professor of Child Psychiatry in the London University of London deals with the goals and dilemmas in the upbringing of children of today. By its nature, there cannot be much difference between the Quaker's child and another's. The topics ably detailed are loving relationship, provision of learning experience, place of discipline, morality, religious teaching, worship, effect of corporal punishment, individual responsibility, decision-making, plain living, law and its relation, sexual freedom, marriage and divorce, rights and privileges, emancipation and parenting. There is little doubt about the value of reading this well-written book. Only, forget the Quaker intrusion.

The Yantras by Prof. S. K. Ramachandra Rao, (Sri Sadguru Publications, 40/5 Shakti Nagar, Delhi 110 007, 1988, Pg. vii+60, Rs. 50.00)

In this interesting booklet, the learned author gives us a peep into the origin, cause, practice and effects of Yantras or mystic diagrams, of which we are all familiar. In the introduction, he makes out a case for magic in its original content and intention, but condemns its misuse; it is the operative part of religion even as technology is the operative part of science. If science has erred in the creation of the atom bomb, so has religion in the practice of aabhichara, marana etc.

In this context, the reviewer wants to join issue with a statement of the author that the "Mantra is rather in the nature of caricature". Caricature, says the dictionary, is a likeness of anything so exaggerated or distorted as to appear ridiclous. And to say that a Mantra like the Gayatri is a caricature is taxing human perception too much, and the sound of the Vyahrutis. Savita and Dhee are certainly not ridiculous. In Vedic ethos Varnas have special significance. And modern science has confirmed the value of sound waves in the physical and psychic world.

The author winds up the intro with this statement:

"While many of these spells are little more than gibberish and most drawings nonsensical, it must be conceded that some of them are highly significant as verbal or visual representation of intense and violent emotions" Eureka!

In the text he fully discusses three or more types of Yantras —Raksha, Devata and Dhyana and the Mandala. There are 32 plates of illustrated Yantras.

It is his view that rather than achieve something outside, these Yantras reorganise the individual's own field of awareness. He makes mention of the Dasa-Maha Vidyas and the connotation of some Bijaksharas like those of Tara, Bhuvaneswari, Chinnamastha, Bhairavi and the rituals connected with Yantras and their literature too. Although diminutive in scale this booklet provides intelligent information on the subject.

Chandrasekhar -- The Survivor by K. N. Rao (Manak Publications Pvt. Ltd., A-31/4C, Shastri Marg, Manjpur, Delhi 110 053, Pg. 138. Rs. 130.00).

All our past prime-ministers have been well known because of their dynastic backgrounds. The exceptions were one or two but they too had a lot of publicity before becoming prime-minister, either for their dignified personalities or for fighting the establishment in righteous indignation. The last prime-minister is the exception and relatively little known. We do not know if he has been low-key in his political fights but somehow, he never received much coverage from the media. But he headed for a short while one of the most fragile governments in the world on a support that was as unreliable and volatile as could be.

The book is an account of sorts of the biographic details of Chandrasekhar based on the jail-diary of the man when he was put in jail in 1975 during the Emergency. The author brings out the tenacity of the man who managed to survive for so many years and so near the top with hardly any popular image to hold him there. Extremely interesting and penetrating insights of this rugged politicians come from the author, a versatile and lucid writer with a special penchant for Astrology. Also included in this volume are the astrological prediction the author gave Chandrasekhar barely 3 months before he realized his life's long-cherished dream of occupying the prime-ministerial gaddi.

Clear and unambiguous in his style, K. N. Rao does not hesitate to call a spade a spade and so, it is some surprise when on the whole the account one gets of the present prime-minister is fairly complementary and with shades of subtle admiration for the man. Chandrasekhar is also shown as being plainly honest about his interest in Astrology. There is also an interesting discussion on Chandrasekhar's horoscope strewn with arguments for identifying and confirming his birth Ascendant as Aries. The horoscope of the country also invariably crops in such an analysis involving the head of the Government.

The author gives glimpses into his assessment of Acharya Narendra Deva, his own as well as Chandrasekhar's mentor, in Appendix I. Appendix II is a reproduction of an article on Jayaprakash Narayan's horoscope from THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE. January 1989.

The book is a study not only of the political life of Chandrasekhar but also of the manipulative politics in the country during the last three decades. Mr. K. N. Rao comes out not only as a good astrologer but also a critical analyst of politics and politicians in this recent literary work.

YOUR Technical Difficulties Solved

MIHIRA

Q. 1. Rasi: Libra - Ascendant 11-53; Scorpio - Moon 19-14 and Ketu 2-47; Aquarius - Venus 9-27; Pisces - Saturn 0-4, Mercury 0-43 and Sun 25-4; Aries - Mars 0-20; Taurus - Rahu 2-47; and Gemini - Jupiter 2-10. Vargottama 7th lord Mars in 7th. Lagna lord Venus in trine aspected by Jupiter, therefore there is probability of wedding. Moreover Saturn's Sade-sati is also over. Present Dasa-Bhukti is Venus-Sun. Yet there has been no success in finalising a good match. Would you suggest any remedy?

Vijay Malhotra, Dhanbad.

Ans: The 2nd and the 7th houses are connected with malefics and not with any benefic by aspect or occupancy. The 7th house is hemmed between malefics. The 7th house of Navamsa Lagna is occupied by malefics. Hence the delay in marriage but not denial due to the aspect of Jupiter on Lagna lord. Mars, the 7th lord, is in Ketu's constellation, while Ketu is placed in Mars' house, Scorpio. Thus the places of Kutumba and Kalatra are connected with Ketu and Mars. Hence it is likely that delay may extend to the sub-period of Mars in Venus Dasa, if the Sun Bhukti does not prove fruitful. The 67th Sarga of Balakanda of Valmiki Ramayana may be read daily for the Sun.

Q. 2. How can one calculate the Maraka period of father?

R. Ananthanan Singh, Mangalore.

Ans: Many factors should be judged if one wants to predict the Maraka period of father. I give below a few principles for it.

(1) If the child is born in the day, Pitrumaraka is the Sun. If born at night, Pitrumaraka is Saturn. Find out if any natural malefic conjoins with the lord of 9th house. In the Dasa of this malefic planet in Pitrumaraka Bhukti, or in the Bhukti of the lord of the 10th house, the death of the father is probable.

(2) In the Dasa of the lord of 9th house, when posited in the 6th or 8th or 12th house of Lagna. In the Dasa or Bhukti of any malefic associated with the Sun (for day birth) or with Saturn (for night birth), death of father is probable.

(3) In the Dasa of Jupiter for those born in Aries and Cancer Lagnas, if Jupiter is aspected by the malefics, death of father is probable.

(4) In the beginning or the end of Rahu Dasa, when Rahu is placed in the 11th or 12th, of Janma Lagna, death of father is probable. In Jaimini, the period of father's death can be calculated from Niryana Sula Dasa or Pitru Niryana Sula Dasa etc.

Q. 3. (a) If a question is put as to which party secures majority in an election how to tackle it in horary? What houses are to be allotted to the various parties? (b) If the question is restricted to a particular party and a prediction is requested as to how many seats it can secure, can it be answered?

U. Muralikrishna, Razole.

Ans: In the horary chart, take Lagna and its 7th house. Lagna pertains to the party in which the querent is interested while its 7th house shows the opposition parties. The one occupied by the natural malefics wins over the other parties. Or the one occupied by more number of planets win over the other. Or the one occupied by well-placed planets like exaltation etc. wins over the other.

The signs may be ascribed according to the name-star of the party or Lagna may be calculated by the date and time when the party originated. Yes, according to the percentage calculated by the Ashtakavarga bindu in the signs of the parties.

Q. 4. Rasi: Taurus - Ascendant, Moon and Venus; Leo - Ketu; Sagittarius - Saturn; Capricorn - Mars; Aquarius - Rahu; and Aries - Jupiter, Sun and Mercury. The native is a female (born 20-4-1988). What is the significance of 3 malefics Saturn, Mars and Rahu in 3 houses 8th, 9th, 10th regarding native, husband of native and father of native?

Dr. Ranjit Singh, New Delhi.

Ans: The native is highly irritable and jealous and quarrels with her husband, and not dutiful because of Saturn in the 8th and Mars in the 9th. The native dies before her husband dies due to Saturn in the 8th and Rahu in the 10th. Rahu in the 10th does not sporadically say anything about father. But Saturn, the lord of 10th, is in Sagittarius aspected by Jupiter while the 9th house is occupied by exalted Mars. This reveals her father's prosperous position at the time of birth.

O

Q. 5. Rasi: Cancer - Ascendant and Rahu; Scorpio - Moon; Capricorn - Mars, Saturn, Mercury and Ketu; Aquarius - Sun, Venus and Jupiter; and Taurus - Mandi. Navamsa: Sagittarius - Ascendant; Aquarius - Rahu; Pisces - Sun and Moon; Aries - Venus and Saturn; Leo - Ketu; Virgo - Mars and Mercury; and Libra - Jupiter. (a) What is the effect of 4 planets in the 7th and 3 in the 8th house and Moon, debilitated ? (b) Do these positions show unhappiness or separation in married life or a second marriage?

G. Balaji, Tuticorin.

Ans: Three factors are given in Phaladeepika for Patni Viyoga: 1. The 7th lord in the 5th from Lagna. 2. The 5th lord in the 7th from Lagna. 3. The 8th lord in the 7th house. Two of these factors out of the three are present in the given chart. The other two malefics present in the 7th are Mercury and Ketu. Thus 4 planets are placed in the 7th house. If the native has a son or daughter, his wife dies soon. If the native is childless due to debilitated Moon in the 5th, his wife survives for a long time. Jupiter and Venus though with the Sun in the 8th shows the long life of the native. If it is female chart, remarriage is probably due to the four malefics in the 7th house.

O

Q. 6. Rasi: Aries - Ascendant and Moon; Cancer - Mars and Rahu; Virgo - Sun and Mercury; Scorpio - Venus; Capricorn - Saturn and Ketu and Aquarius - Jupiter. Navamsa: Cancer - Ascendant and Venus; Virgo - Sun and Mars; Libra - Rahu; Sagittarius - Moon and Jupiter; and Aries - Mercury, Saturn and Ketu. (a) The 10th house is occupied by Saturn in his own house. The native should get good job but Mars' aspect in debilitation may be preventing him from getting one. Mars' debilitation is cancelled since the lord of 4th house is in Kendra to Lagna. Will Jupiter in Cancer or Leo give suitable employment? (b) Since Mars is in 4th house, will he have an unhappy married life. Kindly enlighten me.

M. Rama Rao, Madras.

Ans: (a) In the given chart, Jupiter is shown in Aquarius. Hence the question of Jupiter in Cancer or Leo giving suitable employment does not arise. (b) Debilitated Mars with Rahu in the 4th from Lagna does not give happiness. Arudha Lagna is Cancer while Dara Pada is Sagittarius. These two are in Shastashtaka (6, 8 positions). Hence marital happiness is not assured. However the exchange of places between Lagna lord and 4th lord redeems him from marital unhappiness.

O

Q. 7. Rasi: Gemini - Ascendant 2-02 and Jupiter 5-36; Scorpio - Ketu 5-01; Aquarius - Venus 23-58; Pisces - Mercury 12-35 and Saturn 2-55; Aries - the Sun 9-36, the Moon 24-25 and Mars 11-16; and Taurus - Rahu 5-01. (a) What business do Mercury and Saturn in the 10th house indicate? (b) Does the chart promise limelight, financial prosperity and social status in the future?

Gopal K. Poddar, Rae Bareli.

Ans: (a) One can try publications, cloth shop (ready-made garments), medical shop etc. as shown by the placement of Mercury and Saturn in the 10th house from Lagna. (b) Jupiter in Lagna, Venus in the 9th and three planets in the 11th clearly indicate the native's high financial status. According to Jaimini Mercury becomes Yogada. The 2nd Argala sign and the 4th Argala are occupied by planets forming Subhargala Yoga. They coincide with the movable and dual signs. Hence by this Argala Rajayoga the native is sure to come to limelight and win high social status.

Q. 8. and Rahu here should be Yogakarakas after disturbing the bronchial system. Any dramatic rise in running Mars Dasa and then Rahu Dasa? Any significance of Moon in anterior house to Saturn? Mars Dasa. Jupiter Bhukti to begin in May 1991.

Ajay Kumar Pandey, Calcutta.

Ans: To form Lakshmi Yoga, both the lord of the 9th house and Venus should occupy a Kendra or Kona which should be their own house or house of exaltation. But in your chart Venus is neither exalted nor placed in own house. Besides Saturn is associated with Ketu. Hence Lakshmi Yoga is not present in your chart. Mars, the lord of 7th and 12th houses, is debilitated and is aspected by Saturn, the lord of 10th and 11th houses. This does not cause any good Yoga because of the connection between the 7th lord and 10th lord and the 11th lord with the 12th lord. But, though Mars is debilitated, Neechabhanga Raja Yoga is constituted by Jupiter in own house placed in Kendra from the Moon. So you should wait till Jupiter Bhukti in Mars Dasa for your getting settled in a job or business. Rahu in the 3rd house in Cancer particularly is good and you can expect to rise in Rahu Dasa. I find no significance of Moon in anterior house to Saturn. But Sunapha Yoga is formed by Saturn in the 2nd from the Moon.

Q. 9. Rasi: Aquarius - Ascendant and Jupiter; Pisces - Mars; Taurus - Sun and Mercury: Gemini - Venus: Cancer - Rahu: Scorpio - Moon: and Capricorn - Saturn and Ketu. Navamsa: Aries - Ascendant; Taurus - Saturn; Gemini - Ketu; Virgo - Mercury; Scorpio - Venus; Sagittarius - Rahu; Capricorn - Moon; Aquarius - Sun and Jupiter; and Pisces - Mars. Will Full Moon in 10th help the native establish a huge hospital in Ayurveda?

Dr. D. S. R. Chakavarty, Hyderabad.

Ans: The Full Moon is debilitated though not at the exact 3rd degree and is in a Kendra from the Sun who again is in his inimical sign. Hence the Adhama Yoga is more effective. I do not see how the 10th house Moon in the chart can help the native establish a hospital. Other factors should be sought.

O

Q. 10. Rasi: Cancer - Ascendant and Ketu; Sagittarius - Jupiter; Capricorn - Rahu; Aquarius - Sun, Moon and Mercury; Pisces - Venus; Aries - Mars; and Taurus - Saturn and Mandi. Navamsa: Virgo - Ascendant; Libra - Mercury and Ketu; Scorpio - Sun and Venus; Aquarius - Saturn and Mandi; Aries - Moon and Rahu; Gemini - Jupiter; and Cancer - Mars. Does the chart indicate (a) higher education and good job, if so, what field? (b) Will the native have a good future in general (regarding health/wealth)? The Lagna lord is in the 8th house and aspected by Saturn, and Saturn is more powerful than the Lagna lord. Is this considered a Dosha?

Ms. Roopa Nair, Trivandrum.

Ans: Mars, the 5th and 10th lord, is well placed in Kendra, in Moolatrikona position and is aspected by Jupiter. Venus the lord of 4th house is exalted. So far, good in the educational aspect relating to intellect. But Lagna lord is in the 8th associated with two malefics. Mercury is in the 8th while Jupiter is in the 6th. And Saturn aspects Lagna. These factors do not indicate much luck in educational career. According to Jaimini, no factors for higher education are seen from Atmakaraka. Hence education in technical field is more probable. Lagna lord in the 8th house is not a wholesome condition while the aspect of Saturn (Ayushkaraka), the 8th lord on the Lagna and Lagna lord, is good for longevity.

O

Q. 11. Rasi: Cancer - Ascendant: Leo - Jupiter: Virgo - Ketu: Libra - Gulika: Aquarius - Moon; Pisces - Saturn and Rahu: Aries - Venus: and Taurus - Mars, Sun and Mercury. Navamsa: Virgo - Ascendant and Mercury; Scorpio - Venus and Moon: Capricorn - Sun: Aquarius - Rahu: Pisces - Saturn: Taurus - Mars and Jupiter: and Cancer - Ketu. (a) There is a Parivartana Yoga between 10th and 11th lords causing a Mahayoga and in addition the current Dasa lord Jupiter is aspecting the 10th house. Kindly advise when and what kind of job the subject can get? (b) The 7th lord is in the 9th house Vargottama with Rahu and the Karaka Venus is in the 10th. What would be the nature, capabilities and complexion of the native's wife?

Jacob Abraham, Trivandrum.

Ans: (a) Mahayoga bestows authority, money, vehicles etc. Venus and the Moon are in 3 and 11 positions, mutually aspecting, indicate sure Vahana Yoga according to Jaimini. In Navamsa too, the Moon and Venus conjoin in one sign. Hence you are advised to seek employment in Road Transport Corporation, railways or the judiciary or any similar department where one is given the facility of a four wheeler. (b) The 7th lord Saturn is in Jupiter's house Pisces and is associated with Rahu. Both Saturn and Rahu are in Mercury's constellation. Saturn is placed in the 7th from Umesh Kalre, Nasik.

Ans: The lord of Lagna is associated with Rahu in the 2nd, Kutumbasthana. Saturn, the lord of Lagna is aspecting the passionate planet Venus. The lord of the 7th house is in the 10th house. These are some of the indications for romance. Hence it is probable it will be an unusual marriage. However the data do not suffice to confirm the view and time the period of marriage. O

(b) If no, then what kind of married life do you predict for the girl? (c) The girl and boy are in love for last 7 years but they do not get more than 18 points in marriage compatibility charts. Will the marriage prove fortunate or not?*

C. S. Chabra, Jorhat.

Ans: Jupiter, being the lord of Lagna is aspecting Lagna. This is a redeeming feature from the blemishes in the chart. Jupiter is in the 7th from exalted Moon. This is another plus point. There are no significant Punarbhoo Yogas. Hence remarriage is unthinkable, since her Lagna is in Guru Trimsamsa too. For compatibility 18 points will do well. Besides there are no points of reduction. Blemish of Mars from the Moon and Venus is present in both the charts. Lagnas of both are friendly in 3 and 11 and their lords are neutrals. Hence there is no indication of disturbed married life.

O

Q. 14. Rasi: Gemini - Ascendant and Mars; Scorpio - Sun, Mercury, Saturn and Ketu; Sagittarius - Moon; Capricorn - Venus; Aries - Jupiter; and Taurus - Rahu. Does the chart show post-retirement activity or work or employment?

Sakti Prasanna Mishra, Puri.

Ans: In the absence of full horoscopic data like the Dasas etc., it is not possible to answer your question. The Lagna and its 7th house are occupied by equal number of planets and hence according to Jaimini, Leyalabhayoh parekale, the native may have occupation after his retirement too.

O

Q. 15. Rasi: Virgo - Ascendant; Libra - Rahu; Scorpio - Saturn (R); Sagittarius - Moon; Aries - Ketu; Taurus - Sun and Mercury; Gemini - Venus; Cancer - Mars; and Leo - Jupiter. Navamsa: Gemini - Ascendant; Cancer - Mars; Virgo - Sun; Libra - Moon; Scorpio - Ketu; Sagittarius - Jupiter and Saturn; Aquarius - Venus; Pisces - Mercury; and Taurus - Rahu. Are there any Rajayogas and Neechabhanga Rajayoga in the chart? I am serving in the army as a clerk since 25th April 1978; how long more I will serve in the army? Will I get success if I apply for commission officer in the army? If yes, when? Which line or business will benefit me if I leave the army after completion of 15 years' service?

Dharam Paul Sharma, Ludhiana.

Ans: Besides Neechabhanga Yoga, Sama Yoga is caused by the Moon in a Panapara position from the Sun. This Sama Yoga becomes more effective by the aspect of both Jupiter and Venus on the Moon. As per Jaimini aphorism, Karma Dasayogah, papayoscha and karmanidase va senanyah, Mars in the 3rd house and Rahu in the 6th house from Atmakaraka Sun and from Mercury, the lord of Lagna, will indicate Rajayoga and Senapati Yoga. From Jupiter, the lord of the 7th house, Rahu, occupies the 3rd sign. Hence you stand a chance of becoming an army officer. You will serve in the army till 40-41 years of your age till the end of Taurus Dasa in Chara Dasa.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

is in abundance for a number of Cancerians. Marital bliss can only be defined by the strength of the Karaka for the 7th and 8th houses (2nd to 7th is kutumba for girl and therefore, boy) which for both is Saturn for Cancer Ascendant. If Saturn has full strength, marital happiness is never wanting (Sri Rama's Saturn exalted).

However, I wish to point out that the Lord of the above Ascendant is the Moon -- Mother, which may tend to make them more motherly to their partner in life and this would in some cases lead to some frustration. It is a different thing, moreover, that Cancerians because of their inherent sacrificing attitude in life tend to fall a prey to taking over the burdens of others in addition to their own, thereby presumably indicating domestic frustration. But no -- it is the strength of his/her partner that enables a Cancerian to sustain this -- an exceptional qualification indeed! I can bring to light a number of other Ascendant holders who have separated by death or otherwise or are leading unhappy domestic life.

May I point out that the term malefic or benefic planet is a great misnomer literally and should be dissolved. The cosmos is totally benefic to mankind. Saturn, the worst malefic is an extremely dynamic planet and tends to make the individual think twice before rushing into action and instigates the individual to work -- a great benefit indeed!

Lastly, I would request that such articles, i.e., generalisation of the characteristics of a particular Ascendant and thereby concluding its inability to perform certain Karmas are not appreciated.

PLANETS AND Career COUNSELLING

ANURADHA

I have been trying to secure a job abroad since the last 5 to 6 years, but to no avail. Born 20-5-1952 at 3.57 a.m. (IST) at 30 N 10.

S.N. 17653

The Ascendant Aries is a powerful sign rendered more so by the aspect of its lord retrograde Mars from the 7th house. The exalted Sun, 9th lord Jupiter, 7th lord Venus as also 3rd and 6th lord Mercury in the Ascendant form a strong combination for a successful career. Venus Dasa now on cannot be very helpful in taking you overseas. However, the present Bhukti lord Mercury is well-placed to give an enhancement in career status in the present place. The Sun Dasa begins in April 1994. The Sun is the 5th lord and joins 9th lord Jupiter in the former's exaltation sign in a moveable sign. The Sun Dasa can therefore bring in opportunities for service overseas especially after Moon Bhukti begins.

Born on 27/28-10-1942 at 1-43 a.m. (IST) at 25 N 22, 86 E 30, I am an eye-specialist in Government service. I am on leave since August 1976. I was doing very well in my profession but with the advent of Saturn Dasa, my health deteriorated. I am unable to perform common procedures without some trouble. Income has gone down. Is there a chance to improve or of joining Government service again?

Saturn is a malefic for Leo Lagna. He joins the 12th lord Moon in the 10th house aspected by Yogakaraka Mars. But from Chandra Lagna, Saturn is a Yogakaraka in the 1st but aspected by 12th lord Mars. These do not indicate government service. But the Bhukti is of Venus who is well-placed in the 3rd, although in the 6th from Dasa lord Saturn. This indicates some opportunity for improved earnings may turn up from some unexpected quarter. Since Saturn joins the Moon and is in a mercurial Navamsa and Mercury is well-placed, it may be an academic offer.

I was born on 8-12-1935 at 2.03 p.m. (IST) at Perambur in Kerala. I am a senior executive of a corporation. Since December 1988 I have been having problems. My powers were taken away from me for no reason although my salary remains the same. Will I be restored to the pre-December 1988 position and freed of the problems?

The problems have all reference to the closing years of Jupiter Dasa. Jupiter as 10th lord is well-placed being Vargottama in the 9th. The next Dasa is of Saturn, ruler of the 11th and 12th, in his Moolatrikona Aquarius in Rasi and in Capricorn (own sign) in Navamsa. Therefore, once Jupiter Dasa finishes in October 1991, you may be reinvested with your previous powers. Other problems in your workplace will be automatically resolved leaving you intact.

Since April 1988, I have not been able to get settled in my career. Born on 2-8-1969 at 8-20 a.m. (IST) at 31 N 23, 75 E 25, I have changed my profession 3 times. Please advise me.

S.N.

Both from Lagna and Chandra Lagna, the 10th lords are in signs ruled by Mercury. Jupiter aspects the 10th house. This would mean you will be able to get a footing in a commercial organization such as a bank. Mercury Dasa is running and the Bhukti is of Jupiter. You should be able to land a lucrative job before August 1991.

My son has cleared about 75 precent of the papers for CA. He has only one group to finish but somehow misses it each time. Will he succeed and will he be in service or independent? He was born on 11-10-1964 at 23h. 40m.

The 10th house is aspected by exalted Lagna lord Mercury and Sun. The 10th lord Jupiter is in the 11th aspected by 9th lord Saturn. In Navamsa, he is in debility but makes up for it by being joined by Mars. This retards his progress in preparing for a career. But he will be able to get through by 1994 and set up independent practice. The boy has a bright future.

How is THIS MONTH for You ?

JULY 1991

MAJOR TRANSITS

The Sun transits Gemini till 15th and then enters Cancer. Mars in Cancer during the first two days transits Leo during the rest of the month. Mercury transits Cancer till 19th and then enters Leo. Jupiter and Saturn (retrograde) continue their progress in Cancer and Capricorn respectively. Venus continues his progress in Leo. Rahu and Ketu continue their counter-clockwise motion in Sagittarius and Gemini respectively.

1. MESHA (Aries)

General: The Sun in the favourable 3rd till 15th transits afterwards the adverse 4th with check. Mars in the 4th and the 5th, Jupiter in the 4th and Saturn in the 10th are all unfavourable; Mars is under check during the first two days. Mercury in the 5th is fully favourable. Mercury in the favourable 4th till 19th with Vedha transits afterwards the unfavourable 5th with Vedha. The bad influences are more in evidence. Exhorbitant expenditure, delay in enterprises and restlessness are all likely. Venus may cause auspicious celebrations in the family. Aswini is better than Bharani and Krittika.

Health and Domestic: Health and vitality are likely to be affected adversely. Chronic sufferers should be extremely careful. Children's health may cause some concern. Domestic bliss of a high order will, however, be vouchsafed to you.

Finance and Speculation: The month is practically unfavourable for financial matters. The expenditure will get out of control and income will shrink. Medical expenses are likely to be quite big. Although the first half shows promise for profits in speculative transactions it is advisable in view of the general unsatisfactory trend, to refrain from them.

Real Property, Services, Professions, etc.: The conditions pertaining to real property matters are not likely to be satisfactory. Income from land and buildings will go down. Labour problems are, however, likely to be resolved satisfactorily during the first half. For the services, professions and businesses the obstacles will be numerous and nothing is to be anticipated by way of improvement during the course of this month.

Women: You should be very careful about your functional health. In club and social activities the conditions are likely to be disappointing. Romances should be avoided altogether. Social work will give you satisfaction. Employed girls should be very careful in their work.

Students: With some determination on your part you could make progress in studies. In view of your proneness to physical injuries you are advised to refrain from sports, games and athletics. Those interested in fine arts will find the month quite fruitful.

(The forecasts based on Janma Rasi are general and as such those having favourable aspects according to present Dasa and Bhukti in their horoscopes will have favourable results from the indications made above while those having adverse aspects according to current directions will experience these predictions to a lesser proportion. The predictions given below are based upon a clear interpretation of movements of transits of planets. ASTROLOGY AND WOMEN'S WORLD

Q. My daughter suddenly developed diabetes in May 1986. We want her to get married but her health problem stands in the way. Will it be a permanent hindrance in her life?

Born 30-1-1966 at 11-00 p.m. (IST) at 30 N 13, 74 E 15.

Ans: The Ascendant lord Mercury is quite well-placed in the 5th with 2nd and 9th lord Venus and 12th lord Sun. He is aspected trinally by Jupiter. Jupiter, however, is afflicted by Rahu (exalted) and 8th lord Mars from the 6th house. Rahu Dasa has begun and with it the diabetic condition. Jupiter is the planet ruling diabetes and afflictions to him can give this condition. However, Lagna lord is favourably disposed in a trine and shows health can be protected by preventive measures such as exercise, proper food and attitudes. Rahu who afflicts Jupiter is exalted, so with a little exertion the condition can be controlled.

The 7th lord Jupiter is in the 9th trining Ascendant lord Mercury. This shows a fairly happy marriage although the aspect of Mars can make for a rather short-tempered husband. Jupiter's transit of Leo between now and August 1992 can bring in happy developments regarding marriage.

Q. My daughter is a graduate from 2 universities and has a top job as a journalist. She wants to get married but says the right man has not come into her life, yet. Kindly enlighten us on her chart.

Born 24-9-1954 at 9.50 a.m. at Singapore.

Ans: The 7th house is vacant. The 7th lord Mars is with Rahu and he is Vargottama. The 7th house is quite well-placed.

Venus, the Karaka, is in the Ascendant with 9th and 12th lord Mercury and Yogakaraka Saturn. He is also well-placed.

Therefore, marriage is not ruled out. The Moon Bhukti is on and he is in the 11th house. Mercury Bhukti will run between October 1991 and March 1993. Marriage is likely during this Bhukti, especially before August 1992.

Q. My wife is suffering from severe back pain, leg pain and heavy bleeding. All kinds of medicine have been tried on her without success. When will she be freed of this pain?

Born 2-10-1942 at 8-10 a.m.

Ans: Some of the symptoms can be traced to factors consistent with her age. The Lagna lord is with Mars who aspects the 7th house. The 8th lord ruling the uterus is with Mars. Saturn Dasa was on until about 2 years ago when the problems began. Hi is in the 8th. Further transit Saturn is afflicting natal Moon. During this period, the pain and bleeding may not respond to treatment. It is better the lady goes in for palliative measures and since Mercury Dasa has begun, by the time Saturn (transit) leaves Capricorn, the problem will abate. There is no need to take any drastic steps such as removal of uterus etc.

Q. My daughter was good in studies but since a year, has been neglecting her lessons with the result her grades have started falling. Please indicate about her future prospects in education.

Born 2-05-1982 at 1-21 p.m. at Nasik.

Ans: The Ascendant lord is well-placed in the 9th house exalted and aspected by 5th lord Jupiter and Yogakaraka Mars. The Dasa now is of 3rd and 10th lord Venus who is exalted in the 8th house in exchange of signs with 9th lord Jupiter. Rahu Bhukti has begun and Rahu is aspected by 8th lord Jupiter and malefic Saturn. Therefore, her attitudes may come under a shadow. However, pushing her hard to maintain the high standards you expect from her may only harm her. Since the Lagna and 10th house are powerful she will come up well in her career and life. It is better you accept the ground reality of her mediocre performance for the time being.

Q: My daughter was married on 2-12-1981. She was brought back home on 14-12-1981 by her husband alleging mental immaturity. He has filed a suit for nullifying the marriage on 8-8-1983 and the case is still on. What will happen ? Will the girl resume life with her husband? If not, What is her future?

Wife: Born 29-1-1960 at 3-23 a.m. (IST) at 8 N 54, 76 E 38.

Husband: Born 24-5-1956 at 12-14 p.m. (IST) at 11 N 39, 78 E 12.

Ans: The girl is passing through Jupiter Dasa. Jupiter is a benefic and he joins the Lagna lord Mars, 7th lord Venus and Saturn. Jupiter is a benefic from Lagna. However from Chandra Lagna he is malefic and with Mars, afflicts the 12th house which is related to conjugal life.

MY TURN

BASIC PARAMETERS NECESSARY

PULIGADDA V. RAO,
CALCUTTA

Sir, - I have been reading your esteemed magazine for over 10 years now. I am deeply interested in this science and have come to believe that it can be a subject of profound study and research.

On reading the articles published and particularly the analysis of horoscopes of eminent persons, I find a tendency to explain away the events by bringing in causative factors totally unrelated to the issues. For example, if a certain event has come to pass in the life of an individual and apparently the planetary positions do not explain it, then an attempt is made to explain away the incident by brining in the asterism in which the planet is placed which appears to be an after-thought. I would therefore suggest that you, as the foremost astrologer in the country, lay down some basic parameters for judgement of horoscopes if events do not agree with the planetary position or Dasa Bhukti parameters set. We should admit that the event is not explainable astrologically. The basic parameters that can be laid are: (1) placement of planets and Ascendant; (2) Navamsa; (3) Dasa Bhukti; (4) planetary lordships; (5) aspects; and (6) Yogas.

If events are not explained by these basic principles they should not be explained away by bringing in such considerations as (a) lordship of Nakshatras of planets; (b) Dasa Sandhi; (c) Bhavasandhi; (d) Bhava positions; (e) Retrogression of planets; (f) various divisional charts; and (g) Ashtakavarga positions.

If, however, in laying down the parameters, these factors are also to be included, let them be included but once the parameters are decided no extraneous considerations should be brought in to explain away the events and occurrences. I am sure many readers will come forward with definite views.

ASTROLOGICAL ACTIVITIES

Workshop on "Astrology and the Space Age"

A one-day workshop on "Jyotisha Sastra and the Space Age" was organised by the H. S. Viswanatha Memorial Astrological Foundation, Bangalore, on 7-4-1991 at the Institution of Engineers, Vidhana Veedhi, Bangalore. The workshop was attended by 120 participants, including many students of Astrology. Speakers from various parts of the country were invited to share their rich experience with the participants.

The workshop was inaugurated by Mr. R. Ramalingam, IPS, Additional Director General and Commissioner of Police, Bangalore. The valedictory address was delivered by Dr. V. Mahadevan, eminent surgeon and President, International College of Surgeons, Indian Section, Bangalore, under the able presidentship of Dr. B. V. Raman, Editor, The Astrological Magazine.

The inaugural session began with an invocation by Mr. B. S. Ganesh Kumar. Mrs. Rajeswari Raman lit the lamp to mark the inauguration and spoke about the

Mrs. Rajeswari Raman lighting the lamp to inaugurate the workshop dedicated work done by the late Sri Viswanatha in teaching Astrology. She also released the maiden issue of the ICAS Bulletin published by the Poona Chapter.

Earlier Mr. P. Suryanarayana, Secretary of the Foundation, welcomed the gathering.

Mr. R. Ramalingam, delivering the inaugural address, highlighted the importance of Astrology and said that people from all walks of life went to astrologers — people of different faith, people in distress as also people who had to make major decisions relating to business, finance etc. In such cases, prediction had to be carefully worded which would emphasise the scientific nature of Astrology. Quack astrologers like quack doctors were responsible for sullying the reputation of Astrology and they had to be suitably dealt with.

Dr. B. V. Raman delivered the key-note address. He called on the people to ignore the attacks on Astrology in the name of rationalism and scientific temper. He said there was a time in the past when science was controlled by the Church and the Christian orthodoxy. India should recognise Astrology as a national science of relevance. Jyotisha, Yoga and Ayurveda were natural to India and Astrology adopted a holistic approach unlike most other sciences.

There was truth in the view that New Moon days and Full Moon days brought disasters, accidents, quarrels, affected the functioning of the brain and blood pressure. Medical experts had noted that the number of cerebral haemorrhages showed an increase on those days. He said that an Indian spacecraft launched on Chaturdasi had failed and plunged into the sea as the scientists had ignored the advice of astrologers. He had himself predicted a devastating earthquake in Iran which the seismologists had failed to predict. It was the Indian scientist of ancient times Bhaskara and not Newton who profounded the theory of gravitation. Modern scientists were only confirming what Varahamihira had said 2000 years ago that the solar system influenced life on earth.

Dr. Raman came down heavily on rationalists for what he termed their 'crooked approach to life'. Everything going on in the world in the name of scientific approach and rationality was 'crooked' he declared. He stressed the important significance of Astrology in various walks of life while deploring the Indian attitude of looking to the West for inspiration. On the other hand, he said the Westerners were taking a pragmatic view of the usefulness of Astrology. He pointed out that Jung, the disciple of Freud, in his correspondence with him (B. V. Raman) had several times mentioned about how he always studied the horoscope in all complicated cases of psychiatry. He also said many of the American psychologists and psychiatrists were taking to Yoga and Astrology to master their subjects.

Mr. R. Ramalingam, I.P.S., being garlanded by Mr. P. Suryanarayana

Dr. Raman also referred to the importance of intuitional perception and said that it was absolutely necessary for a scientist to make discoveries. Astrology was based on intuitional perception. He also wondered why seismologists should not consider the astrological predictions on earthquakes.

Mr. T. Channappa, Joint Secretary of the Foundation, proposed a vote of thanks.

In the morning session, Mr. S. K. Kelkar, astrologer from Poona and Vice-President, Indian Council of Astrological Sciences, enlightened the audience with his deep insights into and experience in the prediction of earthquakes with illustrations. Mr. V. R. Ramanathan, a noted astrologer from Bangalore, spoke on various aspects involved in matching of horoscopes.

Dr. V. Mahadevan being garlanded

Mr. Iranganti Rangacharya from Andhra Pradesh, an authority on Jaimini Astrology, spoke on Jyotisha Sastra in general. Mr. Shivamurthy from ITI spoke on how to analyse and make correct predictions.

The morning session was summed up by Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev, Associate Editor, The Astrological Magazine, who chaired the session. She also spoke at length on Astrology and the role of free-will in astrological analysis.

Mr. U. S. Pulippani, Secretary of ICAS, Madras, spoke on Pancha Pakshi Sastra with illustrations in the afternoon session. He was followed by Mr. K. V. Narayana of the Bangalore Astrological Association who spoke on the fundamentals of Jaimini Astrology. Mr. Iranganti Rangacharya next explained in some detail different aspects of Jaimini Astrology.

Mr. Jayakar Ullal of ITI, Mr. Laxminarayana and Mr. S. Krishna Kumar spoke on general predictions, marriage compatibility and general Astrology respectively.

Dr. T. S. Vasan, Modern Astro Studios, who chaired the afternoon session summed up the proceedings of the session highlighting the main points lucidly.

The valedictory session was presided by Dr. B. V. Raman. Dr. V. Mahadevan, and Mr. L. P. Ramalingappa, Principal, MEI Polytechnic, were the chief guests.

Dr. V. Mahadevan in his valedictory address, narrated, with examples, the importance of correct application in Ayurveda and Astrology, which have come to us from our ancestors. He said that children should be brought up in a religious atmosphere to master such subjects. He further said that Astrology can be an answer to man-made problems and hence astrologers should study the subject well and convey the correct analysis to lay people. He also called upon people to enrich their knowledge of Sanskrit in order to understand Ayurveda and Astrology better.

Mr. L. P. Ramalingappa distributed mementos to the speakers on behalf of the Foundation. He spoke on the importance of Astrology in daily life and appealed to astrologers to highlight important points for the common man's understanding in such workshops.

Smt. Nalini S. Kelkar released the Souvenir brought out by the Foundation.

Dr. B. V. Raman, in his presidential address, stressed the need to stop exploitation by astrologers of common people as was the case with political exploitation. He also explained the importance of research along proper lines. He said that astrologers had degraded themselves by dancing attendance on politicians and appealed to astrologers to maintain dignity in order to command better public opinion.

Mr. H. V. Krishna Murthy welcomed the gathering. Mr. P. Suryanarayana, Secretary, proposed the vote of thanks. Excellent catering arrangements enlivened the proceedings.

In the husband's chart the Ascendant Leo is occupied by Jupiter and the 7th house, by Mars. The 7th lord Saturn is in the 4th with the Moon (neecha with neechabhanga). and Rahu. Mercury (R) and the Sun are also involved in the affliction which centers on sukasthana (th 4th house) and the 7th house (with reference to Chandra Lagna).

In both charts, afflictions to the factors related to marriage are quite severe without proportionate balancing. It is unlikely if this marriage will work.

In the girl's chart, the 7th lord is in a dual sign from Lagna with Mars and Saturn. Therefore, this suggests a second marriage and some happiness in it after Saturn (Gochara) leaves Capricorn.

MY EARLY EXPERIENCES IN ASTROLOGY - XXXIII*

As I was about to enter my 31st year my urge to acquire more and more knowledge in Astrology grew further. I determined that I would make myself as competent as possible assiduously devoting myself not only to the study of innumerable horoscopes, but also in collecting data for the purpose of a statistical study. The thought of "statistical study" was spurred in me because of a communication I had from the famous psycho-analyst Prof. Carl Jung, in which he wrote:

Dear Prof. Raman,

Since you want to know my opinion about Astrology I can tell you that I've been interested in this particular activity of the human mind since more than 30 years. As I am a psychologist, I am chiefly interested in the particular light the horoscope sheds on certain complications in the character. In cases of difficult psychological diagnosis I usually get a horoscope in order to have a further point of view from an entirely different angle. I must say that I very often found that the astrological data elucidated certain points which I otherwise would have been unable to understand. From such experiences, I formed the opinion that Astrology is of particular interest to the psychologist, since it contains a sort of psychological experience which we call "projected" — this means that we find the psychological facts as it were in the constellations. This originally gave rise to the idea that these factors derive from the stars, whereas they are merely in a relation of synchronicity with them. I admit that this is a very curious fact which throws a peculiar light on the structure of the human mind.

What I miss in astrological literature is chiefly the statistical method by which certain fundamental facts could be scientifically established.

I remain,

Yours sincerely,

—Sd/. C. G. Jung.

Of course as I gained in experience my ideas about statistical studies changed. I have now come to the conclusion that statistical studies would be a waste of time and resources as the ability to predict events correctly is a combination of experience and intuition, though statistical findings may aid us a little.

I was fairly well-acquianted with almost all the extant classical literature on Astrology and had the added advantage of having had serious discussions with well-known scholars in regard to controversial passages in the texts.

At that time I was some sort of a professional astrologer too in the sense that a number of people would consult with me on their problems. I had not fixed any scheduled fees and it was left to the sweet will and pleasure of the consultor to pay whatever he wanted to or not pay anything at all. My finances had improved considerably and THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE had become self-supporting.

My clients varied from the common man and woman to the rich and those in high walks of life. My consultors knew that their approach to me had to be serious, devoid of a patronising attitude, respectful and that I expected they treat me as they would a specialist in any other profession such as medicine, law etc.

On one occasion an elderly family friend S. Venkatakrishnaiah a retired District Judge, said to me: "You have considerable knowledge of the science and have already secured a good name as a successful predictor of national and international events and your forecasts bearing on the present war have been bringing laurels to you; has it not occurred to you to take Astrology as a profession?" I replied: "No, Sir, lately I have been thinking of doing only non-professional work and help people solve their problems. I have profound respect for Astrology. And my dedication is to the cause of promoting it against the odds which are now staring in my face, make the educated public Astrology-conscious and seek a place for it in the comity of other sciences." Venkatakrishnaiah observed: "Your objective noble but you have to face several hurdles and suffer at the hands of what he called vested interests in education, science etc."

His remarks were prophetic in the sense that for decades I had to work against several odds trying to maintain my own reputation and to remove the stigma attached to the very name of 'Astrology' amongst a section of the so-called elite and the educated. The task ahead was, no doubt, arduous, but my determination to uphold the dignity and the social relevance of Astrology was equally firm and unwavering.

Delineating character from the horoscope was somewhat difficult at first. Classical writers did not attach much importance to character-analysis as we do today for reasons best known to them; perhaps, the moral fibre which then held the society together was more strong and uncompromising. Of course, general results ascribed to birth in different constellations, signs and on different lunar days etc., have their own importance.

I felt fairly satisfied with my specialisation in Mundane Astrology and my interpretation of personal charts. But character delineation was of a different type, having a bearing on psychology. Sometimes I would exchange notes with Tucker, Carter and Bailey in England and with Elizabeth Aldrich in U.S.A. They had already a good opinion of my reputation as a correct predictor of political events especially bearing on the World War which was then raging in its full intensity. Taking the cue from Varahamihira's Brihat Samhita I felt even physiognomy would be helpful in delineating character. I shall come to these reflections in a future chapter.

I had a surprising experience one day a my office which was situated a few yards away from my residence. A middle-aged person dressed in a three-piece suit, accompanied by an elderly lady, walked into my room. The gentleman had a distinguished appearance. Introducing himself, the gentleman said: "I am A.S.P. Ayyar, District Judge, Kumnad and the lady is Mrs. Lokasundari Raman, wife of Sir C. V. Raman. I have heard much about you. I am also a reader of your magazine and some of the predictions you have made on the war are amazing. I had my own reservations about Astrology and had often thought that it encouraged inactivity and sapped one's urge to work. I had heard of A.S.P. Ayyar and had in fact read his interesting book "An Indian in Western Europe". Ayyar was an M.A., I.C.S., Bar-at-Law, F.R.S.L. etc. After the preliminary introductory remarks, I said: "At the time of your entering my room Gemini was rising. I think your Ascendant could be Gemini or the opposite sign Sagittarius and Mercury must be strong in your horoscope". Ayyar queried: "What makes you think Mercury is strong in my horoscope?" I replied: "Your educational qualifications are of a high order. Your writings show wide reasoning faculties, perceptive powers, boldness and an ethical approach, creative capacity, sense of humour and constructional ability." Ayyar pulled out a piece of paper containing what purported to be his Rasi chart which revealed that his Ascendant was Sagittarius with Mercury and Rahu. Mildly surprised, he asked me, "Do you attribute the characteristics you have delineated to Mercury?" I said: "Yes Sir." Probably satisfied with my preliminary remarks Ayyar nodded his head as if in approval, got up from the chair, had a few words (in Malayalam or Tamil) with Mrs. Raman and promised to meet me again after a few weeks. Taking leave of me he said "Lokasundari Raman has some domestic problems and she will see you again shortly."

As I have often pointed out in these columns, to make correct predictions an astrologer should not only have the predictive capacity but also good luck, that is, directional influences in his horoscope should be favourable. Since I was having the major period of Jupiter, the confidence that my forecasts would be infallible, had gripped me so that I never hesitated to categorically delineate the past and the future. This over-optimism, however, did land me sometimes in tricky situations with the result in some cases the delineation would go wrong and I would become the butt of severe criticism. Thanks to the advice that had been given to me by my grandfather, I would frankly own my failure instead of blaming it on want of correct birth time etc.

The next time Mr. Ayyar called on me was when he had been transferred to Bangalore as Additional District and Sessions Judge, Bangalore Cantonment. He would visit Bangalore twice or thrice a week and he would invariably call at my place. Our discussions ranged from ancient history to astrological theories. Politics was not, of course, taboo but most Indians had never dreamt then that within a short period India would be freed from the clutches of the British rule to be thrown into the clutches of the Congress, a party that has brought this great and ancient nation to the abyss of political and economic collapse. He would give me instances of the Madras Government practising discrimination against Brahmin bureaucrats.

Once he asked me, "What do you foresee about the end of the war and how would it affect India?" By 1943-1944, I had made considerable research into the role of the major planets in moulding the future of nations and the implications, often sinister, of Saturn-Rahu conjunctions. After explaining the various technicalities I said, "The war in all probability may end in 1945". As a well-known judge and a legal luminary Ayyar could appreciate my astrological arguments.

He was an admirer of our ancient sages, statesmen and scholars and his thinking was gradually veering towards an appreciation of our cultural, philosophical and spiritual heritage. He would often quote from the Bhagavad Geeta and Lord Krishna's emphasis on Karma Yoga had appealed to him much.

One day all of a sudden Ayyar visited me in the evening and said "Do you see astrologically any chance of my being elevated to the Bench of the Madras High Court? Before giving your finding, can you give a few past events so that you are sure about the correctness of the horoscope?" I nodded my head in assent. Giving some past events to verify horoscopes had become a habit with me as this would, I thought in those days, boost my image.

After studying the chart for a while and adapting a verse* from a classic, I said "The Lagna is afflicted due to Papakartari Yoga and the association of Rahu. The Moon, Karaka for the mind, is not only in a saturnine constellation but in exact conjunction with Mars in the 8th house. In the Navamsa, the Moon is afflicted both by Mars and Rahu. No benefic aspects the Moon or Lagna. This indicates early death to the mother. Mercury's sub-period in the Dasa of Saturn ruled till your 2nd year. Saturn is a Maraka from Matrukaraka Moon. Mercury is lord of the 12th from the Karaka. Your mother's death could have taken place when you were under two". Ayyar exclaimed, "Very good! What about father?" Pondering for a while, I said "Saturn is lord of the 2nd from Pitrukaraka and is in the 12th from Lagna. Father's death would have occurred before the end of Sani Dasa, which means when you were about 15 years".

The correctness of my interpretation was a combination of astrological and intuitional factors plus a little bit of bravado as I had to take a risk also in boldly declaring the conclusion before a learned scholar and a great judge and luminary. "Some say that being born on a full Moon day is an astrological handicap. What is your own view in the matter?" queried my learned consultor. This provoked me into giving some sort of a lecture on Sun-Moon relations in a horoscope. I said, "The Sun represents the ego and the Moon, mind. The degree of harmony existing between a person's mind and ego is revealed by the relative positions of these two bodies. On a full Moon day, the Sun and the Moon will be opposing each other. Naturally those born on a full Moon day have a natural conflict between their emotions and their ego. They act hesitantly and are unwilling to let go of the past. They display on outgoing personality. The sign disposition of the Moon is important. In a watery sign like Cancer the Moon gives an emotional nature and strong affections and persistence. Such a Moon conjoined with Mars and also involved in Gajakesari Yoga not only indicates some sort of an inner turmoil and sensitivity but this is more than offset because Jupiter makes one unselfish and concerned for others. But the failing in such a person would be bestowing generosity on those who do not deserve it", I concluded.

"So in a sense Astrology is like psychology. I now come to the main point. Is there any combination in my horoscope indicative of my getting the position of a High Court Judge?

I continued: "Prima facie the horoscope does not show any significant Rajayogas as such. Mars is debilitated in Cancer and the planet who gets exalted there, viz., Jupiter is in a Kendra from the Moon. This is a Rajayoga. The Moon and Jupiter are in mutual Kendras causing Gajakesari Yoga. This has reference to the 11th from Lagna and the 10th from the Moon. Venus Dasa lasts till 1957. Venus, the dispositor of Jupiter, though in the 12th from Lagna, is well placed from the Moon and can raise you to a higher position especially that he is in the constellation of Mercury, lord of the 10th. Saturn, though lord of the 2nd, is in the 12th and in the 5th from the Moon in the constellation of Mercury. Therefore, the event can happen in Venus Dasa and Saturn Bhukti."

Ayyar became a Judge of the Madras High Court and we were in contact with each other for a long time. Whenever we visited Madras, where Ayyar lived after retirement, we would call on him and enjoy the hospitality of Mrs. Ayyar, a noble lady. He presented me with some of his publications — Krishna — The Darling of Humanity, Tenali Raman and An Indian in Western Europe, revised edition, in which he had made appreciative references to me.

There are some persons who have an absolute aversion to working for others. Their mentality is such that they would be rather engaged in a small way on their own than hold quite a high responsible position in which others are above them. There are other types the reverse of this who do better in others' employ than on their own account. I came across an interesting example of this sort when at the instance of a leading personality, a man of medium stature, darkish in complexion with pock marks on his face, consulted me. He was serving in a private business concern but was never satisfied with his job.

The horoscope showed interesting features, all the planets being disposed continuously from the 2nd to 8th house — Dhana Malika. I thought that Lagna aspected by Yogakaraka Mars in exaltation and Jupiter and the Lagna lord Moon forming a fairly strong Gajakesari Yoga involving the 2nd and 8th houses ruled out a position of subordination. Mercury, the planet of business, though subject to Papakartari Yoga was not much afflicted. I told him, "You possess a practical business mind, are enterprising, speculative, sociable, adaptable, truthful and resourceful". He was enthusiastic regarding all that I had told him and kept on exclaiming "Wonderful!", "Remarkable!" etc. "You have told me so correctly except that you have not said one thing which I have concealed from you."

I examined the chart once again "Mars dominant and placed in the 7th", I continued, "You mean about your private life? It is not bad. Kalatrakaraka Venus, though in the 6th, subject to Papakartari Yoga is aspected by Jupiter. You are not guilty of disloyalty to your wife though you may be sociable with other women". "Exactly so," he confessed. Satisfied with what he called my "clever interpretation" of his chart, he came again after a week, exhuberant with praise regarding my delineation. He said "I wish you examine my 10th house and guide me as to the nature of business I can undertake so that I do not fritter away my energies in doing things not warranted in my horoscope". In deciding what line of business would suit him, I had recourse not only to the usual Parasari rules but also to Jaimini. My dilemma was, the 10th lord Mars, exalted and a Yogakaraka also, aspects the 10th, Lagna and the 2nd. The 10th is occupied by Ketu. Lord of the 2nd, Sun, is in the sign of Mars aspected by Saturn.

This conglomeration of saturnine, martian, solar and nodal forces should indicate the business he should take to. I had seen in some horoscopes of excise contractors, dealers in liquids and owners of bars and hotels, the impact of Mars and Ketu/Rahu on the 10th house. After much reflection in my mind I told the person, "Mercury in the 4th house aspecting the 10th is good for business, though worry and anxiety due to domestic matters will be a part of your life. Ketu and Mercury in the 7th from each other create unexpected difficulties with partners, if you have any idea of establishing a partnership business. Rahu in the 4th shows many ups and downs. The Sun in the 5th house aspected by Saturn shows losses in speculation. Venus, Yogakaraka from Chandra Lagna, occupying the 11th from the Moon favours success through medicine, food articles, restaurants etc. Mars in the 7th while adding strength to the horoscope as generator of Ruchaka yoga is adverse for partnership. There will be much strife in business. Ketu in the 10th aspected by Mars is the most significant combination so far as your occupation is concerned indicating gain through pursuits connected with liquids, arrack, hotels and eating houses. Summing up, I feel that hotel business would suit you best. The Dasa of Mercury is about to start and throughout this and Ketu Dasa, your business will thrive well." Nettakallu, the consultor, appeared convinced by my analysis. He started a restaurant and a bar and built up good reputation and made good money also. He was in touch with me for a long time seeking my counsel whenever needed and lived upto a good old age. He studied Astrology and secured a working knowledge of the subject.

The above two are some of the typical instances of the astrological consultations I was giving in those days.

As days passed I tried to cut off the professional aspect of this consultation work though counselling astrologically friends, relatives and those facing difficult problems became a part of my life. Book writing, editing THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE and receiving visitors, holding discussions with scholars and of course attending to the needs of a growing family, kept me very busy throughout the day.

In the next instalment of this series, I shall resume my forecasts about the fiercely raging war and its termination.

Election Forecasts and Media Tricks

I HOLD no brief for astrologers or astrological predictions alleged by newsmedia to have been made by many so-called astrologers on the current political scene. But I do hold a very strong case for truth which has been a major casualty in many sections of the newsmedia. The Sunday correspondent did not meet or interview DR. RAMAN as made out in its issue dated 9-15 June 1991 on page 63. In fact, the conclusions drawn on page 531 of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, June 1991 by Gayatri Devi Vasudev have been distorted to give a totally different meaning and made to appear as if given by DR. B. V. RAMAN. The above mentioned weekly in the same issue on page 61 quotes from THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE editorial of June 1991 written by Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev and potrays it in such a manner as to give the impression it was made by DR. RAMAN in a personal interview with the weekly which, however, DR. RAMAN DID NOT GRANT to the young lady from its office.

In view of the highly biased attitude of the press, I request all responsible astrologers to refuse to see newspeople about political and other predictions which are eagerly sought by them at any cost only to be misused later in running down Astrology.

THE HINDU, published from Madras, dated 26-5-1991 was the lone exception to this mean trick indulged in by most other papers and journals in our country (report reprinted alongside. The successful predictions regarding the end of Rajiv's era were conveniently overlooked by the newshounds. So much for their respect for truth and facts! May their tribe decrease!

further aggravation of the situation.

Rajiv's end predicted

MADRAS, May 25.

When many saw Rajiv Gandhi was all set to win the elections and become the next Prime Minister, an astrologer had predicted that the Rajiv-era could be said to be nearly over.

A report in the Astrological Magazine of June 1991, released in mid-May, had this extract from a speech of Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev, Associate Editor of the magazine: "The Government would be in serious trouble off and on, its very survival being threatened. Death of a national figure would plunge the nation in mourning and an element of violence was not ruled out. Mid-term polls had long been foreseen. A major change in the power echelons at the Centre was in the offing. The elections would show surprising changes in the power equations at the Centre. The Congress(I) would start on a new chapter. The Rajiv-era could be said to be nearly over."

According to the magazine, Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev was addressing a meeting on "The Outlook for the Lunar Year Prajotpatti" on March 16 at the Indian Institute of World Culture.

Ayanamsa

In the sixties a number of articles on this subject contributed by well-known scholars in Astrology and Astronomy appeared in these columns. Today, the generality of astrological students follow either Lahiri or Raman. Buell Huggins in an exclusive article written a decade age established on the basis of a study of a number of horoscopes, the accuracy of Raman Ayanamsa. If the proof of the pudding is in the eating, then the fulfilment of a large percentage of forecasts bearing on world affairs made by the Editor in these columns lends credence to the correctness of the so-called Raman Ayanamsa.

The well known British astrologer Vivian Robson's observation under the caption "The Kaleidoscope" published in the November 1933 issue of "The British Journal of Astrology" on Ayanamsa reproduced below should be viewed by our readers objectively.

"The term 'Ayanamsa' may need some explanation for those who are not conversant with Hindu Astronomy. The Hindu astrologers count their longitudes along the Zodiac of constellations, while we use the Zodiac of signs. By the Precession of the Equinoxes the signs slip backwards through the constellations, so that our 0° Aries is gradually receding from the Hindu 0° Aries at the rate of a little over 50 seconds a year. The number of degrees between these points at any given date is called the Ayanamsa for that date. At first sight, it would appear to be easy to calculate this value with proper accuracy, but unfortunately the problem is one which has never been satisfactorily settled, and many different estimates are current even among the Hindus. Part of the difficulty lies in the fact that the exact Hindu starting point is not very definitely known, while differences between the Hindu and Western astronomical constants add further obstacles to solution. The reason I am bringing up this matter is that I have received a very interesting letter on the subject from Mr. Henry Sellberg, who contends that the true value of the Ayanamsa should be obtainable from the ancient Hindu chronology and astronomy, and supports his case by calculations based upon Delambre's Ancient Astronomy. As the matter is one of considerable importance, and Delambre's method has not, I think, been put before astrological students, I make no apology for appending the following details. According to the Surya Siddhanta the whole period of Cosmic Evolution known as a Kalpa or Day of Brahma consists of 4,320,000,000 years. This is made up of 14 Manvantaras each of 306,720,000 years, together with overlapping twilight periods, each Manvantara being again sub-divided into 71 Maha-yugas of 4,320,000 years. A Maha-Yuga contains four Yugas, namely the Satya Yuga covering 1,728,000 years; the Treta Yuga covering 1,296,000 years; the Dwapara Yuga covering 864,000 years; and the Kali Yuga covering 432,000 years. The world is now in the Kali Yuga of the 28th Maha-Yuga of the 7th Manvantara. The actual number of years from the beginning of Cosmic Evolution to the present date is as follows:

	Years
Twilight at beginning of Kalpa	1,728,000
6 Manvantaras	1,850,688,000
27 Maha-Yugas	116,640,000
Satya Yuga	1,728,000
	1,970,784,000
Less duration of Creation	17,064,000
Times since first movement of planets to end of Satya Yuga	1,953,720,000
Treta Yuga	1,296,000
Dwapara Yuga	864,000
Present Year of Kali Yuga	5,034
	1,955,885,034

This represents the number of years from the beginning of Cosmic Evolution to 1933 A.D. Multiplying this figure by 12 gives us 23,470,620,408 as the number of solar months expired to date. Then, as the number of solar months in one Maha-Yuga (51,840,000) is to the number of intercalary months in the same period (1,593,336) so is the number of solar months expired to date to 721,384,730, which being added to the months since creation gives us 24,192,005,138 as the number of lunar months expired. Multiplying this by 30 gives the number of lunar days expired as 725,760,154,140. Then as the number of lunar days in one Maha-Yuga (1,603,000,080) is to the difference between the number of lunar and solar days (25,082,252) so is the number of lunar days expired to 11, 356, 018, 190 which being subtracted from the lunar days expired gives 714,404,136,050 as the number of solar days expired. It should perhaps be mentioned here that the Hindu solar days are longer than our own, and that their value for precession is also longer than ours, being about 54.525". Using Delambre's method of coversion to arc, we mutliply the number of lunar days expired by 600 and divide by the number of solar days in a Maha-Yuga (1,577,917,828). The result is in seconds of arc, and is equal to 271,650 complete circles plus 8s. 11°47' 43". From this six signs must be subtracted, as there is a half circle in excess, giving 71° 47' 43', and the Ayanamsa is three-tenths of this result, namely 21° 32' 18.9". This means that 0° Aries in our zodiac now coincides with Pisces 8°27' 41.1" of the constellations, and incidentally, like all estimates of the Ayanamsa, it confirms the fact that the Equinox does not enter the constellation Aquarius for another six hundred years, so that those astrologers who are so fond of telling us that we are now entering the Aquarian age are really rather premature".

It will be noted that the Raman Ayanamsa for 1933 viz., 21°28' 31" is very near this figure.

The Solar Visitation

THE girl is an albino but quite intelligent and has to her credit two masters degrees. Her chart has no unusual features; so, what could have caused this genetic disorder in her, asks reader M. V. Kelkar of Baroda. Albinoism is a phenomenon not really understood. Its occurrence is rare and has no medical explanation why a couple should beget such a child even when there is no heriditary history whatsoever in the family.

Born 27-9-1966 at 9.05 a.m. at New Delhi

Rasi: Libra - Ascendant and Ketu; Aquarius - Moon; Pisces - Saturn (R); Aries - Rahu; Cancer - Jupiter and Mars; and Virgo - Venus, Mercury and Sun. Navamsa: Pisces - Ascendant and Mars; Aries - Sun; Taurus - Ketu; Leo - Mercury and Saturn; Virgo - Jupiter; Scorpio - Rahu; Capricorn - Venus; and Aquarius - Moon with a balance of 8 years, 3 months 4 days of Rahu Dasa at birth.

Ketu occupies the Ascendant aspected by Mars. Venus is with the Sun opposed directly by retrograde Saturn. Do these factors explain the albinoism? One cannot be too sure but these factors do indicate skin problems. An albino has photo-sensitive eyes, he can seldom see sunlight directly. It usually hurts. This can be brought under the Sun and afflictions to him; in this case from retrograde Saturn, his bitter enemy, in the 6th house. The Lagna lord himself is in another Dusthana indicating problems in the physical body.

Venus Has to Come

Apart from this defect, the chart is quite well-placed. Saturn Dasa has just begun and Saturn is a Yogakaraka placed in the 6th house aspected by 6th lord exalted Jupiter. Marriage itself may see some delay as the 7th lord Mars is with the 6th lord. From Chandra Lagna too, the 7th lord Sun in the 8th with 8th lord can hardly suggest an early marriage. Venus Bhukti in Saturn Dasa could be eventful in this respect.

Academic Excellence

"It is said that Rahu and Mars will disrupt education if in the 4th. It is also said that they will give best results only in the 3rd, 6th or 11th houses and not in others.

"I produce below the horoscope of a boy with Rahu in the 4th and Mars in the 7th, who has given him excellent education during their Dasas.

"Born on 26-12-1964 at 10 ghatis 25 vighatis after sunrise at Bangalore.

"Rasi: Aquarius - Ascendant 16-18 and Saturn 7-24; Aries - Jupiter 23-9; Taurus - Rahu 29-35; Leo - Mars 28-40; Virgo - Moon 17-24; Scorpio - Venus

In this feature, unusual and interesting events that occur in day-to-day life will be discussed astrologically. They may be about anything - birth, marriage, accident, sport, career, art, farming, weather, animals and the list is endless - so long as it is different from the monotony of life. Readers are invited to send in details of such instances plus relevant astrological charts and dates to Astrological Miscellany, The Astrological Magazine, Bangalore 560 020.

15-5, Mercury (R) 26-0 and Ketu; and Sagittarius - Sun 11-0 with a balance of 4 years, 5 months and 12 days of Moon Dasa."

The chart derives strength from the 10th house in Scorpio. This sign has Yogakaraka Venus and 5th lord Mercury combining and aspected by sign dispositor Mars. The Ascendant lord Saturn aspects Scorpio further adding to its power to confer favourable results. On top of it all, as pointed out by reader Subbanna who has sent this chart, Rahu is exalted and influenced by benefics Venus and Mercury by aspect. Not only that, Rahu is in a Venusian sign whose results he should reflect and Venus is a benefic beyond question.

Mercury as 5th lord-cum Vidyakaraka is well-placed in the 10th in retrogression. Not only does this confer razor sharp intelligence but also academic distinction, the 10th house being involved.

Jupiter Versus Saturn (July 1991)

"Taking off from where I left last month, there are some more particulars relating to the accidents which may be of use", writes reader K. Narayan of Delhi.

"The first accident took place on 26-2-1991 about 2.00 p.m. The second accident on 28-4-1991 about 7-30 p.m. The gentleman was running Jupiter Dasa having spent 14 years, 3 months and 6 days in it. Jupiter in transit is leaving for Leo on 7-8-1991 and Rahu has left for Sagittarius on 14-5-1991.

"The family is aghast. It is in the grip of fear, having experienced two accidents in quick succession within a span of 2 months. Is this all or are there any more such accidents in the near future? What does the future hold for them?

"As soon as I got the news, I drew up the Prasna chart for the time of the query.

"Prasna Chart: Aries - Ascendant 28-56 and Sun 15-59; Taurus - Venus 26-25; Gemini - Mars 21-38; Cancer - Jupiter 12-36 and Ketu 0-35; Libra - Moon 18-05; Capricorn - Saturn 14-16 and Rahu 0-35; and Pisces - Mercury 26-29.

Luckily, the chart has no foreboding planetary combinations. The Lagna lord is in the 3rd with no affliction. The Lagna itself is flanked by benefics Mercury and Venus on either side. The Moon, full, is aspecting the Ascendant which has exalted 5th lord in it. Reader Narayan can assure his friends, they are quite safe.

What of the Future (June 1991)

Much Promise

Veteran reader N. C. Trivedi of Ahmedabad writes "The native is passing through Saturn Bhukti in Venus Dasa from 29-12-1989. Since these are having 6/8 relations the period is terribly trying. But as per Uttara Kalamrita if either is badly placed or depressed or afflicted, then Bhukti of Venus in Saturn Dasa and Bhukti of Saturn in Venus Dasa should prove auspicious. Moreover, the dispositors of Venus and Saturn, Mercury and Mars being enemies the Bhukti of Saturn should not be a total failure.

"The sub-sub-period of Moon, lord of 4th occupying the 12th house—commencing from 24-5-1992, ending on 29-8-1992 should open new direction and send him abroad. The Moon is aspected by exalted Mercury from the 6th house who is lord of the 3rd house (transiting). Again Mercury is dispositor of Venus in the 3rd house. Venus, lord of 7th house, indicates foreign travel, as also Moon and Mercury in this chart.

"Jupiter, lord of 9th and the 12th houses, is combust in Leo and aspected by an afflicted Saturn; both of them are in fixed signs. Lagna lord Mars is in a fixed sign, in the last degree and retrograde Mars is afflicted. Saturn's dispositor. These adverse factors have so far sealed his fate.

"Mercury is aspected by Mars. The Moon is unafflicted. With the start of Mercury-Mercury-Venus from 29-8-1992 the native should comfortably be settled abroad when transit Saturn in Aquarius will aspect radical Saturn, lord of 6th house and transit Jupiter over radical Mercury will aspect 10th house. The Moon is in Pisces and Ketu in house of finance. For Aries-born natives, Saturn is very evil. His sub-period would not be wholly frustrating. Transit Jupiter (afflicted in birth) in Leo will bring in a change for the better before entering Virgo. He may have to return in Mercury-Sun after 6 years' stay abroad.

Yogas That Support

"I shall go into the plus features of the chart. Profession is judged by the 10th to the 10th, i.e., 7th also. The 7th lord Venus is in its 9th from the 7th in the sign of Mercury, a friendly planet. Finance is judged by the 2nd house. Venus is the lord of 2nd and is placed in the 2nd from the 2nd. The 9th lord Jupiter is in the 5th (Poorvapunya sign) aspecting 9th fortune, 11th gains and Lagna. Jupiter is Vargottama. Saturn's aspect of Jupiter can be taken as partial Dharmakarmadhipa nexus.

Astrology in Russia

The former Communist Empire, thanks to Gorbachev's peristroika, Soviet Russia is officially circulating astrological forecasts from the Consulate General's office in Madras. They have no inhibitions, as some of us do, against openly professing their belief and interest in Astrology. According to the circular:

...the 36-year cycle comes in. History goes on in spirals, repeating itself every 36 years -- but only partly. The 1961 boom failed to bring prosperity to the Soveit Union. The next 1997, promises affluence. Economic success will go hand-in-hand with social accord and space breakthrough, because the same open signs of the structural horoscope - horse, rat, cat, rooster and dog -- are responsible for them, promising revival.

Before 1989, these signs were in a crisis in my country. Now, they are on the upswing, with two characteristics crossing each other to account for our future space victories

Horse's leadership in the space effort needs no proof. Vladimir Janibekov and Neil Young, the world's best pilots, were born under this sign. Before the shuttle, all American astronauts were born in 1930. A horse year, and only one of the ten Geminis had no horse man on board. NASA preserved this pattern for the Apollo and Skylab, too .....

Armstrong, Collins and Aldrin, the first lunar team were all horses, as were Conrad, Mitchell and Irwin. It makes six out of the ten moon walkers.

The total number of horse space pilots exceeds thirty, including the inimitable Stafford (4 flights), Klimuk (3) and Kovalenok (3).

Strong willed and close to the open signs, only dog men and horses in space exploits. Gagarin was a dog, as were the three-flight pilots Yeliseyev, Bykovsky, Kubasov, Gorbatko and Ceman. Both signs are represented by equal number of space pilots in the Soviet Union and the United States.

The pattern is clear; open signs lead the space effort. The shuttle flights gave rats a prominent position in America. In the Soviet Union, they were long kept off from flights, but made spectacular advance with Volkov, Solovyev and Romanyev, orbited one after another. Close to the leaders are monkeys and cat. Komarov, Shatalov, Ryumin and Manarov belong to the latter.

Space brings ill-luck to orthodox -- dragons (they account for many accidents), goats and oxen -- and closed signs, tiger, rabbit, serpent and ape, who are luckier but not too happy about their job, especially tigers. That's easy to explain. People of closed signs prefer their inner world to stars.

The vector ring causes space expeditions many predicaments as outsider signs are drawn in: Boar by horse and ox by dog.

The triumph of the strong open signs is celebrated on April 12, the day of Gagarin's flight. Gagarin was born on a dog year, and Sergei Korolev, the renowned spaceship designer, a horse (NOVOSTI).

This is according to Chinese Astrology.

But for Doordarshan and All India Radio, probably dominated by "progressives" Astrology appears to be taboo. Let us hope our own government agencies, taking the cue from their former spiritual guides, revise their unscientific attitude and introduce discussions and various features in Astrology.

Deadly Diagnosis

A young woman engaged to be married to a youth in Mysore fell ill. The doctors were aghast to find her kidneys malfunctioning and declared she would not live beyond six months. The shocked parents from both sides called off the engagement. But the young woman recovered and was soon hale and hearty. Another medical check-up showed her kidneys were perfectly alright and all that was wrong with her was only because of a bout of 'flue'. The overjoyed parents rushed to the youth's family to persuade them to agree to the match. They refused point-blank. Dejected the girl is reported to have attempted suicide and is currently recovering in a local hospital.

One was always under the impression doctors cured; but now it looks like medical diagnosis, and not the disease, can kill.

Marks for Sale

Many brilliant students of engineering of Bangalore University were in for shock when they found they had failed in the December 1990 examinations. Others who were habitually failing obtained high first class marks instead, thanks to "the country's most erratic valuation system" manipulated, as paper reports go, by a cleverly organised racket circle. This is not the first time this kind of thing is happening in this University, notwithstanding its heavyweight rationalistic pedagogues. Gang wars between the students and officials over sharing the booty from a bogus marks racket brought the local police intervening in January 1991. According to inside sources, the University's administration is said to be on the verge of a total collapse. The going rate for altering marks is said to vary from Rs. 5000/- to Rs. 20,000/- per subject, higher marks being naturally costlier. Perfectly understandable, isn't it?

For the hard working student, this is nothing short of dacoity. But who cares? The know-alls of this seat of learning are so busy spreading scientific temper around the country, what would it matter if some brilliant careers got strangled by these malpractices and injustice.

Whereabouts Unknown

All appears to be quiet on the rationalist front. One Mr. Mahesh Chander of 65, Dayanand Nagar, Amritsar 143018 writes in a post card dated 17-5-1991 to THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE:

Ref: newsitem 'Times of India' from Sri Narinder Nayak, Secretary, The Daxin Kannada Rationalist Association, Mangalore. I sent a registered letter to him with D.D. etc., but it has come back stating "no such association". May I know from you address, street, etc., of this Association?

Thanking you and trusting to be excused for the trouble,

Sd/- Mahesh Chander

A case of the vanishing trick, eh?

Throwing the guantlet is easy but facing up to someone who has picked it up is another matter. Definitely not the rationalists' cup of tea !!

"Coming to lunar Lagna partial Chandradhi Yoga and Bhadra Yoga can be seen. Seven planets in six Rasis give Dhana Yoga. Partial Lagnadhi Yoga is also present. Navamsa Lagna is Libra. Navamsa Lagna lord Venus has its Navamsa in Aries i.e., in 7th (10th to 10th).

"The balance of Dasa is located to be 3 years, 6 months and 6 days of Saturn. Rahu Bhukti in Venus Dasa runs from 1-5-1991. Rahu is in the constellation of Saturn and joined by him. Sanivad Rahu means Rahu has saturnine traits. So both are friendly to Venus, Dasa lord. Though Dasa and Bhukti lords are in 6/8, according to lunar Lagna they are in trine to lunar lord. The next Bhukti is of Jupiter in 5th Vargottama. Jupiter is 9th lord from Lagna and Lagna and 10th lord from Moon. Prof. P. S. Sastri on page 30 of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, Annual 1990, states "Combust Jupiter is quite beneficial. It is a highly benevolent combustion". He has taken the chart of Chembai Vaidyanatha Iyer to prove this. Mr. Iyer has the Sun in his own sign with Jupiter. Mars has by his aspect on Jupiter enhanced the benefic qualities. Here also Mars aspects Jupiter.

"According to Bhava Kuthuhalam Sloka 38/Ch. 7, lunar 10th lord in Lagna 4, 7, 10, 9, 2 or 5 makes a native highly rich. This Yoga is apparent in the present chart. The coming Bhuktis and Dasas are promising to the native" writes reader P. R. Sanathanan Nair of Painkulam on a hopeful note.

Professional Success

Reader Richard Houck of far-off Washington, D.C., believes Ranjit Singh has many years of success awaiting him. "He should specialise in children's problems (pediatrics) with a Raja Yoga in the Rasi 5th (Moolatrikona Sun with ruler of 9th) and the Moon as ruler of the 5th in the Chandra Lagna. Note that his Ashtakavarga has 41 points in the 10th.

"He has just crossed Mars Bhukti of Venus Dasa in May thus relieving pressure on the Rasi 2nd house, the Sun and Mercury, and on the 10th Sun in the Navamsa. With Venus in the 3rd (ruling the 2nd), Saturn in the Rasi 8th aspecting Capricorn 10th, and transiting Saturn in the Rasi 10th, he should now do hard research on medical issues pertaining to children and publish his findings. When transiting Jupiter indeed enters the 5th from Lagna he has increasing good fortune with children. By May 1994 he will enter the Jupiter Bhukti and may expect several years of satisfactory professional success."

A person without faith is like a lamp without oil —without light. I expect to pass through this world but once; any good thing, therefore, that I can do, or any kindness that I can show to any fellow-creature, let me do it now; let me not defer it or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again.

Phrenology or Mind Science

--A CORRESPONDENT

"Mind is the most singular work of Divine Wisdom and Power."
—Lord Broughham

WELL and truly has the poet Pope said "The greatest study of mankind is Man. Other sciences but administer to this absorbing theme. Whether physical or metaphysical, they all are subservient to Mind and they can have no attraction, however sublime in character or abstruse in argument, where Mind does not exist. Nay, more, as sciences, they would not exist had not Mind formulated their theories and reduced their principles to exactitude. All sciences therefore are encompassed by the Mind of Man and for this reason, the Mind is the greatest and most intricate of studies and of all sciences.

Phrenology, as a science is the comprehensive study of the seat of intellect and the Brain is the organ of the Mind. This much is universally admitted, but the principles of Phrenology, being so little understood, are not as readily conceded. My object in these pages will be to endeavour to elucidate those principles and to simplify the subject in order that others may be assisted to better knowledge of themselves and of humanity. Like all other important discoveries it has its friends and its foes. Dr. Harvey when he discovered the fact of the circulation of the blood was considered a fanatic and Galileo who discovered the fact of the rotatory motion of the Earth round the Sun was denounced as a heretic. Now, the person who denies either of these great facts of science would be accounted an ignoramus or insane. Those who have given serious attention to the science of Phrenology with few exceptions are captivated by the exactitude of the conclusions which are drawn from an accurate application of its principles.

The word "Phrenology" is derived from the Greek "Phren..." the mind and logos word i.e., words or discourse upon the functions of the mind. We are indebted to a famous continental physician Dr. Francis Joseph Gall for its discovery and elementary formulation (of course in the west), who together with Dr. Spurgien, his accomplished successor, gave to the world a systematic treatise upon the subject. Since their day many master-minds have turned the search-light of reason and research upon it with the result that thousands of influential scientists and thinkers in all parts of the world embrace its principles and abide by its revelations. Before Dr. Gall's time phrenology had been no doubt anticipated in Europe but we have previously very vague hints regarding the form of head indicating calibre of mind. Among the Hindus however the science had been known even before the time of the great Varahamihira. Solomon said "The countenance of the wise sheweth wisdom," that is physiognomy.

Shakespeare says (Merchant of Venice IV. I)

"I beseach you let his lack of years
Be no impediment to let him lack"
"A revered estimation. for I never know
"So young a body with so old a head."

Here the character and ability of Portia is estimated by the head and that is phrenology. Now in my lectures I usually demonstrate the leading principles of the science upon the black board with chalk for it is easier often to teach through sight than through hearing, therefore in the absence of diagrams I must depend upon the imagination of the readers and by appealing to their perception and memory of form, ask them to follow a few illustrations mentally. All creatures, whether Birds, Beasts, Fish or Insects, aid us in this matter. Those with broad or wide heads and short faces are either combative, as witness the Tiger, Bulldog, Cat, Shark, Hawk, Parrah fox, Bee, Ant etc. All of these manifest some of the above propensities and they are all wide of head and short in length of face. On the contrary, those creatures whose heads are relatively narrow and whose faces are low are docile and of the timid, not vicious, nor destructive and are the least inclined to combat such as the horse, sheep, greyhound, deer, stark, ostrich, eel etc. Can it be a matter of surprise therefore that human beings should manifest synonymous traits of character when similarly constructed. The wide-head is according to the exact part which is most prominent, either constructive, combative, secretive or destructive, and if the face be wide and full and neck thick, then the appetites are large also. This, broadly speaking, is a law governing the principles of Phrenology and it will be found that size is the measure of power in any faculty or propensity and if the head is well formed and evenly developed it is also the measure of the whole ability and character. There are many kindred subjects such as physiognomy, graphology, palmistry etc.

The first, of those is a valuable adjunct, though facial delineation is but an index to the character. To read the mind correctly the book itself must be read and that book is the brain, the organ of the mind.

"Come my own heart; now reads too often himself"
"Can all the stars this outward orb illumine,
"Even day itself leaves half our orb in gloom?
"But one low lamp lights up the spirits vault?
"The Agotist has wisdom in his fault."

(Balmer Lytton)

But a study of this subject should produce egoism I trust it will be kind engendered which will tend to the advancement of the individual; for a careful though not necessarily cultivation of the human faculties must improve and elevate the character, bringing to perfection the abilities naturally possessed; rousing into activity ofttimes dormant talents enabling and beautifying the life and thus an advancement must obtain and not only the individual, but society is bene-fitted thereby. Shakespeare the immortal poet has said:

"Is not birth, beauty, good shape, manhood, course, learning, gentleness, virtue, liberality and like. The spice and salt that season a man?"

(Trollias and Crossside 1.2)

Now, if it is not possible to gain some of the distinctions such as "birth, beauty and good shape" even they are lacking, by phrenology guidance, it is certainly possible to attain improvement in many of those accomplishments mentioned by him, such as "Gentleness, Dr course, Virtue, Liberality" and many talents which make the scientist, artist, musician, or the successful mechanic or man of business etc.

Lowell says:

"No man is born into the world whose work
"Is not born with him. There is always work,
"And tools to work withal, for those who will;
"And blessed are the horny hands of toil."

Heredity and environment play an important part in the life of every individual and the person's food, and clothing exercise a great influence upon him, to say nothing of the vaster influence temporal and spiritual, good and evil, which are to a great extent immeasurable. But the actual phrenological development is quantitative and the weakness of any faculty may be fortified by careful cultivation; while the hereditary weakness may often be obviated and the results of unsuitable and unpropitious environment counteracted. Of course this does not apply to certain idiocratic forms, or great deficiencies of brain power, and abnormalities of development found in Lunatic Asylums, nor to the many harmless idiosyncracies found without where absolute lunacy could not be diagnosed, and which may be termed in the majority of instances mere eccentricity. Nevertheless it is quite possible to improve the natural development, by a careful application of advice suggested by accurate phrenological diagnosis as to overcome natural failings and discrepancies and mould the character and ability to great purpose. Dr. F. W. Farrar says: "From the universal law of habit, little by little, day by day, act by act, thread by thread and link by link, we mould the character; we weave the roof, we forge the chains which bind our being; and in forming our habits we form our character."

Just as truly can we, according to the science of Phrenology, locate any weakness of brain development and discover the too often, latent abilities, which, corrected and stimulated become the foundation of future honorable success and the means of lasting happiness. Locke says: "Knowing the extent of our capabilities will hinder us from useless curiosity, idleness and scepticism

Every individual should, therefore, become cognizant of his or her own natural capabilities, and should also continue to educate and improve those capacities. Their libraries and their teachers are but aids: if they would duly profit thereby they must throw force and energy into their work and their studies. He is not educated, whoever he may be, until he can control, command and compel, when necessary, all his native mental power in vigorous prosecution of the great objects he may have in view; or, in the case of emergency, be able to concentrate his mind at the psychological moment which may demand the full exercise of his mental and moral resources:

"There's a hammer called Opportunity and when the moment comes
To clinch success or else to fail
For each who fairly strikes the nail a hundred strike their thumbs."

And Shakespeare says:

"There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune
Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bound in shallows."

And again: "Men at sometime are Masters of their fate." How necessary, therefore, that all should understand their own phrenological development, in order to so control and utilise their capabilities to the greatest advantage. Not he who has read or seen most can accomplish this. Such a one is most likely to succumb like a mere beast of burden, by an overloaded accumulation of unwieldy theories and speculative ideas.

Addison says: "A brute arrives at a point of perfection that it can never pass; in a very few years it has all the endowments it is capable of." Not so with man: He not only is capable of infinite progression in his advance towards the unlimited perfection of the deity, but has also the advantage of all the accumulated wealth of the knowledge of past ages from which to store his mind, and an inspiring expectancy of future triumph and celestial hope to beckon him forward. It will not only depend upon the natural capacities of the individual the measurement of success he is capable of attaining, but much more upon an accurate knowledge of his phrenological development, and a clear indication as to the cultivation or restraint necessary in the individual faculties of the mind that he can so command his energies and abilities as to multiply his aptitude and capability for his studies and undertakings. The poet Drayton has beautifully said of Mortimer:

"Such one he was, of him we boldly say,
In whose rich soul all sovereign powers did suit
In whom, in peace, the elements all lay,
So mix'd, as none could Sovereignty impute;
As all did govern, so did all obey:
He of a temper was so absolute,
That it seemed, when heaven his model first began,
In him is showed perfection of a man."

This is a fine standard of excellence attained by few but reserved for those who are determined to enable their lives by a careful cultivation of those faculties with which a beneficent Creator has endowed them, and which raises them pre-eminently above the lower orders of creation, which do not, as far as we can discern, possess these greater distinctions which characterise the human being. They do not contemplate the past accumulations of wisdom and knowledge, neither do they anticipate future happiness beyond this mortal existence which characterizes all races and nations of the human family throughout the world. Nevertheless what wonderful lessons their various traits and instincts teach us,— "Go thou and learn fidelity from the dog; prudence from the fox, patience from the camel; gentleness from the dove; industry and foresight from the bee."

The true student of human nature will find much therefore to contemplate and compare, even outside the human organism, which will greatly help to elucidate the intricacies of the human being pre-eminently supports the truth of Phrenology, for the body is controlled and governed by the mind, and is completely subservient to its dictates and commands, excepting where deficiency, abnormality or decrepitude robs the being of the power of reason or mind-control. Let, therefore, the penetrating eye and analytical mind be brought to bear on the subject, for "nothing" says Dr. Boyle, "can be unworthy of being investigated by man, which was thought worthy of being created by God".

In all nature there is nothing so complex, mysterious and diverse as the mind and as Cicero says, "the cultivation of the mind is as necessary as food for the body", while Emerson, in his own emphatic style, says, "We are all the slaves of our organism." The Brain rules the being; for it is the fountain of thought, the reservoir of cogitation; therefore, the finer its development, the more perfect its balance; the greater its capacity for comprehension and perception, idealization and construction, observation and reflection, the more intense the ability to analyse and investigate, not only in physical but in metaphysical matters, in spiritual as well as in natural things. Gross materiality may become an obstruction and hindrance to intellectual progress.

tary disabilities, or retarded by unpropitious environment and all these considerations may require careful adjustment and counteraction before the native elements of the mind can exercise their proper functions and realize their latent capabilities. For lack of training and proper direction, the senses may utterly mislead the mind, though they are the channels, through which its education and refinement should be accomplished. A person may have a false view presented to the sight; may hear false argument and be biased; may be deceived in the sense of touch or mislead in the senses of taste and smell; and thus the conclusions regarding any subject may be altogether erroneous or deviate into misconception. Truth must be apprehended by reason and reasoning must be conducted on logical and scientific lines, and it is often necessary to detach oneself from restrictions and impediments of natural disabilities. The desires and determinations of the mind being brought under control and dictated by scientific conclusions will accomplish grander results and achieve greater success. "Knowledge must precede virtue, for no chance act can be a moral one. We must know in order to do." We must give every faculty, and the gifts with which we are endowed, their right aim and object, and carefully avoid a misdirected use of them.

The mind is composed of various faculties which fairly correspond with the convolutions of the Brain. These faculties are phrenologically divided into groups or classes. These groups are phrenologically arranged in an ascending scale, commencing with the purely natural or animal faculties until the intellectual and "reflective" group is reached. No two persons have the same developments in any group of faculties and this accounts in the endless diversity of character in the human race. These faculties, which are most prominently developed, will always be found to exercise the greatest influence over the individual even as we have illustrated by the peculiar deve-lopments of birds, beasts, fishes and even insects, and this accounts for the great diversity in talent and ability, in propensity and disposition. Some faculties may be actively employed while others are passively resting as in dreaming, and in conditions of mental aberration, when a person may be said to "harp on one string". This will be found to be true in cases of monoklepts and dipsomania, and in the various delusions and hallucinations which characterize not only the insane, but thousands of individuals who become infatuated with some eccentric idea or project. These things are only to be accounted for on phrenological grounds and are only effects of certain causes and those causes are either derangement, disarrangement, or want of equipoise in mental balance of faculties.

Insanity is the loss of the proper control of the faculties and derangement of the nervous system and thereby of the proper control of the body as a result of unfavourable development, abnormality or disease. An old proverb has it: "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." Certain, it is that extinction of life is preferable to lunacy when it is chronic and past redemption. But though these terrible results obtain all the world over, I do not intend to linger upon this part of the subject, though the ground is now clearer after our reference to these matters.

We agree that the mind is the most complex organism, and we are further agreed upon the necessity of a careful study of its structure and functions. The Brain, more so than any other part of the body, is constantly changing. The nerve-cells, of which it is composed, are being constantly worn out and exhausted. It is estimated that the Brain is composed on an average of three hundred million nerve cells of which, over three thousand are worn out and removed every minute. This exhaustion and removal is accentuated, and increased by excessive exertion, lack of sleep, anxiety and worry, and in cases where diseases of heart and lungs retard the supply of pure blood to invigorate the Brain and keep it in a condition of normal activity and healthfulness.

To furnish a proper supply of vital force to the Brain over six hundred millions of minute air-cells in the lungs are incessantly at work eliminating all impurities and removing them, and conveying electrized oxygen to the vital force which sustains the Brain. Notwithstanding the continuous disintegration and removal of the nerve-cells, their constant renewal under healthy conditions keeps pace with the waste until the age of 50 or thereabout, when there is an absolute loss incurred of about an ounce every 10 years. By this continual disintegration and replenishment of the nerve-cells the entire Brain is renewed about once in 60 days.

The space occupied by the Brain in cubic inches averages, Anglo-Saxon 105; German, 103; Italian, 101; Indian, 100; Mongolian, 99; Egyptian, 93; Hottentat, 58; Negro, 88; Australian aboriginy, 56; Tasmanian, 55. In all races the male Brain is 10% heavier than the female. The highest class of Apes have only 16 to 19 ozs. of brain as against the Sctoch, 50 ozs.; English, 49.5 ozs.; Esquimeaux, 43.9 ozs.

This is rather very bad for the DARWINIAN theory.

Determination of Profession

IN THE previous issues of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE we have dealt with in a general manner the various professions indicated by different planets which have anything to do with the 10th house. The secondary influences given rise to by different planets when a particular planet has the major influence on the house of profession have also been discussed. In this article we propose to deal with Saturn and what profession he would give when he has anything to do with the 10th house.

Saturn is called in Sanskrit Sanaischara or slow moving. He is also knwon as Duhkam Dinesatmaja meaning that Saturn is the pre-cursor of sorrows and troubles.

Among the planets Saturn acts as the steadying force. He is the Balance Wheel which slows down the anger of the spontaneous type indicated by the fiery Mars. In this respect he has a favourable influence.

There are many specimens of persons in whose horoscopes Saturn well placed favourably leads the natives towards high positions in life as statesmen and benefactors of the human race, notwithstanding the gloomy and melancholy characteristics of the planet. Therefore, never infer upon the discovery of a person who has Saturn connected with the house of profession; that he will be a failure.

According to the author of Brihat Jataka all professions involving struggle, worry dealings with labour, factories, machineries and similar occupations are governed by Saturn. Examination of a large number of horoscopes has revealed that one who has Saturn strongly disposed looks upon life as a none too pleasant experience. He will be the most proficient student. He loves solitude where he can engross himself in his studies and any subject is deep enough to attract his attention. Consistent with the appellation of Dukham Dinesatmajaha the saturnian person will often be the victim of sadness. He will also be superstitious. He is no doubt inherently a mystic and studies all occult sciences, but he cannot be free from his superstitious inclinations. In many horoscopes there will be higher as well as lower grades which would depend on the benefic and malefic attributes suggested by the planet by virtue of its association, location, ownership and aspects. The lower types of people are always disagreeable, may become mean, tricky, vicious, unscrupulous and venomous. It is therefore of paramount importance that unless a very careful examination of the horoscope is made no judgement should be pronounced in a haphazard manner. A saturnian lacks the social qualities.

A saturnian prefers the country where the bustle of city is completely absent. So, the saturnian will be farmer, gardener, horticulturist, botanist or he can teach these subjects in the college. Unless Mercury is powerful he cannot be successful in his business, because he lacks the faculty of making friends and holding them in his confidence.

A saturnian, if he has a mathematical mind, can shine as a writer of books on Mathematics. Engineering, Mining and Metallury will also be suitable to him. He can also become an Engineer in Radio, Electricity, Chemistry and Automobile. If Saturn is ordinarily disposed, the most suitable occupation would be that of a clerk. Gnerally, where Saturn is afflicted, the position tends downward in the scale to the ordinary labourer and mill worker. If Saturn is afflicted considerably, then the person becomes a miner. He is malevolent under a low, mean villain.

If the Sun is connected secondarily with Saturn, then there will be a favourable influence on the native. If there is no exact conjunction between these two planets, a man with such a combination can become proficient as a sculptor. Ordinary diplomats and politicians may have these combinations. He can become head of Insurance and Banking Organisations or any institutions where he can have under him a number of labourers.

If the Moon is secondarily connected with Saturn, then the native should avoid all avocations which may tell on his mind. The Moon gives original imagination. This sometimes goes to such an extent that he becomes a liar. The native can write books on technical subjects. He contributes articles on different aspects of Sanitation, Rural Reconstruction, Agriculture, Manuring etc., to newpapers and magazines.

If this combination of Saturn and Moon is free from affliction, then the native can shine as an author of considerable fame. The original imagination so-well indicated by the Moon in order to find a constructive channel should have Saturn without affliction.

If Mars is secondarily connected with Saturn, then sometimes the results will be disastrous. The native will become highly courageous and he will have developed the power of resistance. The occupations which will be suitable for such a native would be those indicated above for Mars under Saturn. Mining and Engineering will be quite suitable. He can also be successful as a teacher in Engineering.

If Mars or Saturn happen to be in their own houses he can become a diplomat and earn good reputation. If both these planets are afflicted, the native needs no added agression to push his inherent bad quality to greater extent.

Mercury is indicator of intelligence. Where Mercury obtains the secondary influence on profession under the influence of Saturn, the intellectual development will indeed be considerable.

The native can succeed in his business, because he will have shrewdness. He will have what is called the 6th sense which instinctively tells him what to do and when to do. The native can employ himself in gainful occupations. Agriculture is suitable. An attempt may be made to obtain success in Animal Husbandry, Surveying, Irrigation, Nursery Stock, Farm Colonisation, Dairy Products and similar kinds of business. He can become a financial expert, an economist and statistician; but for success in these avocations he should have Saturn completely free from affliction. Where Mercury is with Rahu mean and undesirable people and criminals are produced.

We shall now take the secondary influences of Jupiter. This planet represents all that is divine. It also indicates leadership and authority. One with such a combination will thrive well. He can become a good writer and his writing will not have the tinge of sadness and sorrow. The native can succeed as a political writer. He can also become a psychologist and a teacher in subjects like philosophy, mathematics and psycho-logy.

Finally, we come to the secondary influences of Venus. Venus is the planet indicating sociable and agreeable nature. The native will therefore succeed well in business pursuits. He can also deal with provisions. Agricultural lines of commodities will be suitable. Newspaper field can give him success. If the combinations are afflicted, then in all the above lines of business clerkship and similar grades of profession among the rank and file of those who make these organisations will be quite suitable to him. (concluded)

O

Out of evil, much good has come to me. By keeping quiet, repressing nothing, remaining attentive, and by accepting reality -- taking things as they are, and not as I wanted them to be -- by doing all this, unusual knowledge has come to me, unusual powers as well, such as I could not have imagined before. I always thought that when we accepted things they over-powered us in some way or other. This turns out not to be true at all, and it is only by accepting them that one can assume an attitude towards them.

So now I intend to play the game of life, being receptive to whatever comes to me, good and bad, sun and shadow forever alternating, and in this way accepting my own nature with its positive and negative sides. Thus everything becomes more alive to me. What a fool I, was ! How I tried to force everything to go according to the way I thought it ought to be ! -- Unknown

Sidelights on Practical Astrology -- IX*

M. V. SUBBA RAO

The Story of Rahu and Jupiter

I HAVE been talking about Jupiter and I have expressed my opinion on his position in the chart. Others may differ with me; but that does not matter. Coming back to Rahu and Jupiter, I would like to illustrate with two charts and their experiences in Rahu Dasa and then of Jupiter. One can theorise; but what really matters is whether the theory has become a reality in life!

I give below the horoscope (Chart 1) of a lady who is now in a good position, who had Rahu Dasa when she was hardly 16 years old. Rahu is in the 10th house and as soon as the Dasa started in 1952, it made her life tragic. Though she was doing very well at studies, she was not sent to college. She was confined to the house. A proposal for marriage with a widower came. The elders in the family finalised everything. As per the custom, the bridegroom-bride meet was arranged. The girl refused to marry him. Such an extraordinary stand from a girl in those days was taken as a serious affront by all concerned. The family was almost ostracised. Many other marriage proposals also failed. First three years of Rahu was a tale of sorrow and frustration.

With the advent of Jupiter Bhukti new hope came. She joined college and graduated. She got a job. Twelve years of Rahu passed that way. She was about 27 or 28 years. Then came the man of her dreams into her life. That was the turning point in her life. Then came Jupiter Dasa. As lord of the 1st and the 10th in the 9th and in a friend's house he gave her everything.

To emphasise my point again of the vast variations in the results in Rahu and Jupiter Dasas, I would like to give below another horoscope (Chart 2) of a lady. She was born in Bharani Nakshatra with a balance of one year of Venus Dasa at birth. Until the entry of Saturn in Rahu, everything went on well. From Saturn Bhukti they had to leave their house for reasons of employment, never to come back to it again. Eventually, the house had to be sold due to litigation. The family wandered from place to place. The children's education got disrupted.

The health of the individual and her husband was also badly affected. They had to sell all their gold. They got into debt. Good events like marriages of sons and daughters did take place in some of the Bhuktis of Rahu but it was a great trial until the entry of Jupiter in 1955. Jupiter is in the 2nd house. From then on, all good events went on happening in a galloping manner. The whole of Jupiter Dasa was a blissful period except in the end when Rahu Bhukti came. Rahu and Jupiter are always at antipodes. This I have explained to you in the beginning itself. She lost her husband.

This is the story of Rahu and Jupiter. One has to endure Rahu for reaping the benevolence of Jupiter. So carry on with hope when you are tortured by Rahu.

Enter the Spouse

The wife is the beloved of one's heart! The reverse is also true. The husband, one's lord and benefactor. So, what I am going to write on the wife of the man will also be true of the husband of the woman.

The 7th house stands for the spouse. It is also called the Kalatra Bhava. Besides wife, it also rules romance, love and hatred, fragrance, poetry, flowers, and marriage. There are certain other attributes also for this place. But, I have mentioned only those connected with the sweetheart.

Basically, the planet responsible for the ideal spouse is Venus. He also stands for wife, marriage, romance, beauty, poetry, dance, drama, songs, marital happiness, humour, beautiful hair etc. Here again, I have not mentioned several other characteristics of Venus. Further, the 2nd and 7th lords are also very important for the purpose. Thus, the individual's luck for a happy married life depends upon the planets in the 7th and 2nd houses, Venus (his placement and association) and the 2nd and 7th lords (their placement and association). The position of Mars is no less vital than Venus' (the Karaka) while Rahu besmirches the Kalatra Yoga. A total assessment is to be made considering the above aspects. Wife and affairs are considered as an important Yoga. Likewise, wife and fidelity. Everybody knows that fidelity is the sine-qua-non for long-lasting peace at home. While affairs are also a phenomenon besides the wife, understanding and compatibility are probably proper words that can be used for a happy married life.

The Good Wife

A good wife need not be a beautiful woman. An ideal wife is the one who fulfils the aspirations of the man in all fields of his life.

The conditions in a horoscope for a good wife are:

1. When Jupiter is in the 7th house, the wife will be loving and dutiful.

2. When the 7th lord is either in the 1st, 4th, 7th or 10th houses, the wife will be obedient and ideal.

3. When the 7th lord is in association with Venus (without the association of bad planets or situated in bad houses) the wife will be responsible, good-looking, charming and vivacious.

4. When the 7th house is between two benefics or aspected by benefics, the wife will be good.

5. When the 1st lord combines with the 7th, the wife will be ideal.

6. When the 1st lord is in the 7th and is associated with benefics, wife will be of a cool temperament and ideal.

7. When the 7th lord is either Jupiter or Venus and is in a good position, wife will be good-natured.

The conditions in the horoscope for a ill-tempered, recalcitrant, sickly or barren wife or for more than one wife are:

1. When Venus is in association with malefics or becomes debilitated -- two wives.

2. When the 2nd or 7th house is associated with malefics or aspected by malefics -- 2 wives.

3. When 7th lord is either in 6th or 12th house or in debility -- 2 wives or wife will be sickly.

4. When Mars is either in 2nd, 4th, 8th or 12th houses or in debility - 2 wives.

5. When Jupiter is in the 7th house and becomes debilitated - loss of wife.

6. When the 7th lord is associated with bad planets - problematic wife.

7. When Venus is in association with a bad planet - ill-tempered wife.

When Venus is exalted or when the 7th lord is exalted or when the 7th lord combines with the 10th or 11th lord, the individual will have several wives.

The 7th House Results

Let us see now the results of the placement or combination of different planets in the 7th house.

Rahu - liaison with a widow and also many women, loss of wife and second marriage.

Mars - liaison with a servant, widow and loss of wife.

Saturn - sickly wife, loss of wife, debauchee.

Sun - unrequited love, sickly and barren wife.

Moon - attracted towards women and if it is the Full Moon, has female children.

Mercury - will have good wife but at the same time have liaison with other women.

Jupiter - very good looking and obedient wife; gets money from wife; wife from good family.

Venus - wife from good family, good looking, wealthy and has sons. The individual will be romantic and a debauchee.

Ketu - romantic person, with an intelligent and God-fearing wife but barren. Loss of wife too.

I give below the results of the association of Rahu in the 7th house with other planets.

1. Mars and Rahu - marriage into another caste and therefore ostracism from own caste; contact with a Kshatriya woman, who is a widow; two wives.

2. Venus and Rahu - association with a washer woman or a pregnant woman.

3. Mercury and Rahu - association with a woman from business class.

4. Jupiter and Rahu - association with a Brahmin woman.

5. Sun and Rahu - association with a widow. Further, the Sun-Venus combination gives one a barren wife.

Theory of Astrology

Planets and Combustion

R. KRISHNAMOORTHY

ONLY a handful of astrologers take pains to understand the working of planets while the majority of them simply read the astrological texts and apply them literally. We commonly hear predictions like "Jupiter aspects the Moon and this will bring Dhana Yoga, education, high intelligence etc. to the native". But if anybody should ask, as to how the aspect of Jupiter on the Moon in the sky influences on earth, we should be able to explain as to how the Jupiter power gets the power of action and how it reaches the native and influences him. However, the capability of that influencing planet to act in the specified area of signifcation can subsequently be proved by collecting enough statistical proofs. To enable us to explain how the planetary power reaches man, we should have a clear idea of the power generated by the planet, the transmission of power at every stage from planet to the surface of our earth and a clear-cut idea of what is an aspect, association, opposition etc. pertaining to the planetary configurations and as to what type of changes they undergo during the period of aspect, association etc. Here, I am making an effort to explain them in terms of known scientific facts.

We have already seen the planet-to-planet conjunctions, conjunction of the chief stars of the constellations with the planets and also the planet-to-planet Trikona influences and their mode of action.

Now let us go into the details of the conjunction of planets with the Sun and also of combustion.

The Sun carries enormous power and is the source of energy for the entire solar universe. As explained earlier, an undefined subtle force is flowing from the Sun towards the earth. Being gigantic in size, the flow of this band of subtle power should also be comparatively very high. This subtle power assumes colossal proportions during the period of sunspots such that the power exerted can even dislodge the atmosphere of our earth. But under normal circumstances, though subdued, should be higher than that of any other planetary force.

During the conjunction of the Sun and the Moon, the Moon passes through this high power band. Similarly, when Mercury and Venus are in their retrograde motion, they pass through this high power band from the Sun. Astronomically, the Moon will always be between the Sun and the Earth at the time of conjunction. Venus and Mercury come between the Sun and the Earth only when they are in retrograde motion. During the passage of these 3 planets through the high power band of the Sun, they are apt to be isolated or rendered ineffective as if submerged in the spate of colossal Godavari river. So it will not be out of place if we call them combust, that too totally combust.

According to the Surya Siddhanta, the Moon is combust within ± 12° Sun; retrograde Mercury is combust within ± 12° Sun; and retrograde Venus is combust within ± 8° Sun.

The outer planets viz. Mars, Jupiter and Saturn never come in between the Sun and Earth. Also when Venus and Mercury are in direct motion they do not come between the Sun and Earth at the time of conjunction. In this condition, total combustion cannot take place as they do not come within the high power band.

According to Surya Siddhanta, the following are the details of combustion of outer planets:

1. Mars = ± 17° Sun
2. Jupiter = ± 11° Sun
3. Saturn = ± 15° Sun
4. Venus (direct) = ± 10° Sun
5. Mercury (direct) = ± 14° Sun

Light rays are electromagnetic waves of very high frequency and are known to travel only in a straight line. In the last decade, the scientists have found out that even the light ray takes a curved path, during a solar eclipse, i.e., the light emanating from the Sun, while crossing the Moon, takes a curved path due to the magnetic field of the Moon.

The electromagnetic waves in the short-wave range have no rigidity to travel in a straight line. When they meet with an obstruction, they circumvent the obstruction and traverse beyond. In the case of microwave range of frequencies which is known to travel only in a straight line, scientists were of the opinion that there should be no obstruction to maintain a microwave communication. In recent years, microwave communication had been set up in America, for short distance communication within heavily built up cities, establishing that obstruction is not a problem for the microwave propagation within short distances.

As the scientific indication enunciates that the short-wave and microwave hormonics can circumvent an obstruction, I am inclined to believe that during the period of conjunction, when the Sun comes in between a planet and earth, such a planet cannot be combust altogether by the Sun's power. Though part of the powers of the distant planet may get deflected or absorbed by the strong magnetic field of the Sun, the remaining part however can circumvent the Sun's magnetic field and reach the earth. Thus total combustion of planets cannot occur under this condition. It can therefore be said that only partial combustion takes place.

The outer planets, when in conjunction with the Sun, remain to the "North" of the Sun. Within the meaning of Sloka 20, Chapter 2 of Brihat Jataka the planet in the North wins over the planet in the South in Grahayuddha. As for the conjunction of planets with the Sun, whether they conquer the Sun or not, they cannot be vanquished totally by the Sun. To assume that total combustion cannot take place, is therefore in perfect agreement with the rule of Grahayuddha.

I feel, Budha-Aditya Yoga will give a better idea of the principle of combustion. Mercury is always very close to the Sun. If we assume that Mercury is combust in conjunction with the Sun, Mercury can never give this Yoga. When the Sun and Mercury are within ±10°, and Mercury is in retrograde motion, it becomes combust. But when Mercury is in direct motion i.e. superior conjunction and if Mercury is not afflicted by other planets, the combination gives rise to a perfect Budha-Aditya Yoga. Thus an unafflicted Mercury in superior conjunction with Sun enhances the strength of this Yoga according to its Shadbala.

There are certain basic Yogas pertaining to the Sun. They are Vasi Yoga, Vesi Yoga and Obhayachari Yoga. These are analogous to the Anapha, Sunapha and Dhurdhara Yogas pertaining to the Moon.

The basic Sun Yogas are formed as follows:

1. Vasi Yoga = Planets, other than the Moon, in the 12th from the Sun.

2. Vesi Yoga = Planets, other than the Moon, in the 2nd from the Sun.

3. Obhayachari = Planets, other than the Moon, in both the 2nd and the 12th houses from the Sun.

In the case of conjunction of planet-to-planet the coupling of powers of both the planets takes place effectively when they are within ±10° from each other, i.e. the subtle power from planets to earth carries much less energy than the Sun so that when the separation exceeds 10° between planets the coupling effect does not take place and the planets act independently. In the case of the Sun, the subtle power is extremely high. When a planet comes within ±60° from the Sun i.e., 2nd house/12th house, the short-wave hormonics emanating from the planet, which travel towards the Sun, are attracted and driven towards the earth. This is the explanation of Vasi/Vesi/Obhayachari Yogas. The range of influence i.e. 60° has been taken by me as laid down in astrological rules.

Yogas are of importance in Astrology. I shall explain the scientific principles associated with them.

Our earth has a powerful terrestrial magnetic field. The concentration of magnetic lines is very high near the poles of our earth while it is fairly dispersed in the equatorial region. This is due to the shape of our globe. The celestial powers find high resistance from this magnetic field and practically, no external power can enter near the poles. When light energy enters, it is split into its constituent colours causing a colourful display. This is known as Arora Borealis near the North Pole and Arora Astralis near the South Pole. Such a phenomenon does not occur in the equatorial region, confirming that the percolation of celestial powers in the equatorial region is high due to dispersal of the magnetic field. It is one of the reasons that our ancient sages have chosen all the 27 stars which lie either in the equatorial region or within a band of ±5° from the path of the Moon. Their selective approach proves their profound knowledge.

Our earth has one more shield preventing the external powers from entering the atmosphere. It is known as ionosphere and it contains heavy concentration of electrically charged particles. The electrical charge, however, is derived from terrestrial magnetism. The Sun and the Moon have the highest magnetic interaction with the earth. Though not yet established by scientific observation, I feel that in between the Sun and the Earth or the Moon and the Earth, the magnetic lines of the Earth gets disturbed due to the

TEACH yourself PALMISTRY -- I

DR. T. S. VASAN, B.SC., B.L., PH.D.

Introduction

PALMISTRY is the science of hand-reading. It is called Hasta Samudrika Sastra as per the Hindu school. The Hindus were the original masters of this science which then spread all over the globe. It was studied as Angavidya and the earliest references to it may be found in the Ramayana and the Mahabharata, the great epics of India.

Samudrika Sastra was divided into Hasta Samudrika, Pada Samudrika, Mukha Samudrika and Sthira Samudrika. The ancient masters of this science were said to be Nandi, Narada, Garga, Parasara, Prahlada, Varahamihira, Mahadeva, Aganeya and Karthikeya.

In these lessons we shall be studying both the Western and Hindu systems. This will enable us to appreciate the utility of palmistry.

Palmistry is a science because the whole study of the hand is based on a clear scientific approach. Statistical observations and case studies as done by great men and women of the past have lifted this discipline to the status of science. Even the scientist Dr. Einstein is said to have appreciated the utility and potential of palmistry.

Scientific hand-reading was developed by such great personalities as D'Arpantigny, Adolphe Desborrolles, Cheiro, William G. Benham, Comte, St. Germain, Noel Jacquin, Mrs. St. Hill and Mrs. Dale during the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries. Before them the Greeks and Romans had also contributed a good deal to the development of Palmistry. Aristotle and Anaxagoras and others have also made useful contributions.

The Hindu system of Palmistry is studied with the sole aim of uplifting humanity. The theory of Karma which applies to Hindu Astrology is also applicable to Hindu Palmistry. Reference may be made to ancient works such as Apasthamba Sutra, Garga Samhita, Garuda Purana, Narada Samhita, Narada Purana, Manusmruti, Yagnavalkya Smriti, Skanda Purana, Parasara Samjeevini, Brihat Samhita, Bhavishya Purana and Karthikeya schools of Palmistry.

One should, in order to become an adept in the science, develop one's memory and acquire the power of intuition. These can be acquired by spiritual practices, Yoga and breathing techniques. It is very important to bear in mind that an adept in the science should be aware of the culture and traditions of the country the native of the hand hails from. In short, Kala, Desa and Vartamana (time, country, present existing conditions) should be kept in view while reading the hand.

We have given in this lesson the Lines and the Mounts or sthanas of both the schools which students should memorise. The details and signifcations will be discussed later.

While studying a hand we generally start with a study of its flexibility, different types of thumb, length and breadth, nature of the fingers and its shape, colour, texture, elevations and depressions of the Mounts are also studied.

The hand is a miniature zodiac and a comparative study of the hand and the horoscope of the person is recommended as the sciences of Astrology and Palmistry are inter-related.

The Western system stresses more characterisation as it believes that character is the destiny of an individual.

The left hand generally pertains to in-born faculties or subconscious state, whereas the right hand is one where the environment plays a prominent role whereby many changes are affected. We can also understand from it how the environment influences the native and if it is for his good or bad. This is done by a comparative study of both the hands.

As Cheiro says that great things are hidden in small things, we have to meticulously observe the hand and if possible after taking a hand impression, study it at leisure.

No conclusion should be made on the basis of one sign or the or one Mount or one finger etc. All factors should be taken and a proper blend should be made and final assessment drawn.

The first step is study carefully and memorise the different Lines and Mounts of both the Hindu and Western schools (Figure 1).

Lessons in Lessons in JAIMINI ASTROLOGY

IRANGANTI RANGACHARYA

NOW we come to the exposition of Argala useful for the judgement of financial and professional status. The Argala signs should be reckoned from a planet who aspects Janma Lagna, as explained in the first lesson.

The three categories of the Argala signs to be reckoned from an aspecting planet are: 1. Principal Argala signs. 2. Specific Argala sign. 3. Subsidiary or Secondary Argala signs.

(1) Principal Argala Signs (P.A.S.)

The 2nd, 4th and 11th signs from the aspecting planet are the principal Argala signs. The corresponding Virodhargala signs (V.A.S.) are the 12th, 10th and 3rd signs from the aspecting planet.

Principal aspecting signs	Virodhargala signs
2nd	12th
4th	10th
11th	3rd

If a planet occupies the 2nd sign from an aspecting planet (a planet aspecting Janma Lagna) Subhargala Yoga forms. This gives Dhana Yoga. It is not necessary that the natural benefics only should occupy the Argala sign for the formation of Subhargala Yoga. But this Subhargala Yoga gets cancelled if the 12th sign also from the aspecting planet is occupied by a planet or planets. Similarly, a planet in the 4th sign of an aspecting planet forms a Subhargala Yoga. This may be cancelled by the occupancy of a planet or the planets in the 10th sign of the aspecting planet. Similarly a planet or planets in the 11th sign of an aspecting planet can form Subhargala Yoga. This may be cancelled by a planet or planets in the 3rd sign of the aspecting planet. This means that the Virodhargala signs of an aspecting planet (12th, 10th, 3rd) should lie vacant to form a Subhargala Yoga by the occupation of the planets in the principal Argala signs (2nd, 4th, 11th) of the aspecting planets. However, a concession is given to the formation of Subhargala Yoga. If the number of planets in the Virodhargala signs is less than the number of planets in the Argala signs, Subhargala Yoga does not get marred. Or, if the planet in the Virodhargala sign is weaker than the planet in the Argala sign, Subhargala Yoga does not get marred. However, the Virodhargala signs lying vacant is preferred for the full formation of Subhargala Yoga. For example, Janma Lagna is Taurus and Mars occupies Libra. Mars aspects Janma Lagna Taurus. Hence Mars is the aspecting planet. The principal Argala signs from the aspecting planet are Scorpio (2nd), Capricorn (4th) and Leo (11th). Suppose Saturn occupies Capricorn (4th) while Cancer (10th) lies vacant. Then Subhargala Yoga forms. But if Cancer also is occupied by two planets, say, Venus and Mercury, Subhargala Yoga formed by Saturn in Capricorn (4th) gets marred. But if Cancer is occupied by Mars alone, Subhargala Yoga does not get marred because Mars by debilitation is weaker than Saturn. If Capricorn is occupied by two planets, while Cancer is occupied by one planet, Subhargala Yoga does not get spoiled.

Subhargala Potential

Assess the Subhargala potential for judging the professional or financial status of a chart classifying into three orders:

(a) Superior Order: 1. Involvement of benefics in the principal Argala signs. 2. Involvement of three or more planets in the principal Argala signs. 3. Involvement of the planets in the three Argala signs.

(b) Above Average Order: 1. Involvement of both benefics and malefics in the principal Argala signs. 2. Involvement of two planets in the principal Argala signs. 3. Involvement of the planets in any two principal Argala signs.

* Lesson I has appeared in the A.M., July 1991.

(c) Average Order: 1. Involvement of the malefics in any principal Argala signs. 2. Involvement of one planet in any one principal Argala sign.

Illustration:

Janma Lagna in Chart 1 is Aquarius. This is a fixed sign. The Moon occupies Libra which is a movable sign. Hence the Moon from the movable sign aspects Janma Lagna Aquarius, the fixed sign. Hence the Moon becomes the aspecting planet. From the aspecting planet, Moon, the 2nd principal Argala sign (Scorpio) is occupied by Jupiter while the 12th sign, Virgo, is vacant. Hence Subhargala Yoga forms. The 4th sign (Capricorn) from the Moon is occupied by Mercury while the 10th sign is vacant. Hence Subhargala Yoga forms. Thus in the chart two Argala signs and two benefics are involved in the formation of Subhargala Yoga. Hence the Subhargala potential is above average. The native is a professor in medicine and is financially very sound.

The 2nd category of the Argala sign is the 3rd sign from the aspecting planet, called the specific Argala sign, when occupied by more than two malefics. This constitutes Subhargala Yoga which never gets spoiled even though the 11th sign of the aspecting planet is occupied by the planets. Hence this is also called as the Nirabhasargala Yoga. This Nirabhasargala Yoga forms also if a malefic among the planets in the 3rd sign of aspecting planet gets more degrees. The Nirabhasargala Yoga bestows an independent Raja Yoga.

Illustration:

In Chart 2 of Gandhiji, the Moon aspects Janma Lagna Libra. The 3rd sign from the aspecting planet, Moon, is occupied by three planets viz., Venus, Mercury and Mars. Among the three, Mars attains the highest degrees. Hence Nirabhasargala Yoga is formed and Gandhiji enjoyed independent Raja Yoga. We will later discuss the quantum of Yoga according to the order of the aspecting planet.

	JUPIT.
	Chart 2 2-10-1869		RAHU
KETU			MOON
	SAT.	ASCDT. MERC. VENUS MARS	SUN

The 3rd category of Argala sign is called the Secondary Argala sign. The 5th and 9th signs from the aspecting planet are the Secondary Argala signs. The 9th sign from the aspecting planet is the Virodhargala sign of the 5th Argala sign and the 5th sign is the Virodhargala sign of the 9th Argala sign. Benefics in the 5th sign of aspecting planet while the 9th lies vacant, constitute Subhargala Yoga, or benefics in the 9th sign of the aspecting planet while the 5th lies vacant constitute Subhargala Yoga.

In these Secondary Argala signs, malefics or exalted, also, instead of the benefics, constitute Subhargala Yoga while the Virodhargala sign lies vacant. Subhargala Yoga constituted by the secondary Argala signs confers name and enough money.

Illustration:

	MERC.	SUN MOON	VENUS
KETU	Chart 3 3-6-1924		ASCDT.
MARS			RAHU
	JUPIT.	SAT.

In Chart 3 Janma Lagna is Cancer. This is aspected by the Sun and the Moon. These are the aspecting planets. The 9th sign from these aspecting planets; is occupied by exalted Mars, while the 5th sign lies vacant, constituting Subhargala Yoga. This conferred on him name and wealth.

Thus we have learnt how Subhargala Yogas are constituted by the three categories of the Argala signs reckoned from the aspecting planet. In the formation of Subhargala Yogas by the 1st category of the Argala signs (Principal Argala signs - 2nd, 4th, 11th) both the benefics and malefics are involved. In the formation of a Subhargala Yoga by the 2nd category (specific Argala sign, 3rd) only malefics are involved. In the formation of Subhargala Yoga by the 3rd category (S.A.S., 5th, 9th) only benefics or exalted malefics are involved.

We have learnt so far, that the three categories of Argala signs are reckoned from the aspecting planet, that is, a planet which aspects Janma Lagna, by the sign-method of aspects. If no planet aspects Janma Lagna, see whether any planet aspects the 5th from Janma Lagna and judge from it the Argala signs and the formation of Subhargala Yoga. If the 5th from the Janma Lagna is not aspected, see whether any planet aspects the 9th from the Janma Lagna and judge the Argala signs and the formation of Subhargala Yoga. How Jupiter's Transit in Leo Affects You

JUPITER'S entry into a sign definitely can bring about significant changes both at the mundane and individual level. It is more impactful especially with reference to his position from Janma Rasi in the case of individuals. It also helps to counteract the evil effects of transit Saturn.

Jupiter enters Leo at 1.32 a.m. I.S.T. on 14-8-1991. His passage through the 3 stars, Makha, Pubba and Uttara are as follows:

1. Makha - 14-8-1991
2. Pubba - 17-10-1991
3. Pubba - Retrograde on 30-12-1991
4. Makha - 21-3-1992
5. Makha - Direct - 24-4-1992
6. Pubba - 3-6-1992
7. Uttara - 26-8-1992 (1st pada)
8. Uttara - 2nd pada - 11-9-1992 (into Virgo)

General Effects

According to an ancient Tamil work Choodamani Ullamudaiyan. Kadagam Singam Kadumpast Noal which means Jupiter in Cancer and Leo is said to produce starvation and hunger among people due to scarcity of grains and also cause many epidemics and diseases. Saturn also produces similar effects during his passage through the stars Uttarashadha and Sravana. (A.M., April 1990, page 351) which will be about the same time.

Though such bad effects are given for various combinations involving Jupiter, the Samhita Granthas however give both good and bad effects for Jupiter's passage through the 3 stars in Leo.

1. Varahamihira in Brihat Samhita (8-6) says:

मित्र पूज परिवृद्धिर्माधे हार्दिश्च सर्व भूतानाम ।
क्षोण्य वृष्टिधान्यार्धसम्पदो मित्रलाभश्च ॥ (8-6)

which means that in the Jovian year Magha (Jupiter's transit through the stars Aslesha and Makha) people will worship manes (and parents and elders) with great devotion and all will enjoy happiness, contentment as well as sound health. There will be good rains and fair prices for grains. People will live in greater cordiality.

Jupiter passes through the star of his friend Ketu, Makha and hence Varahamihira declares good results.

2. Adbhutha Samhita quoting Sage Garga gives the following results for the passage of Jupiter through Makha:

माघ संवत्सर : सस्यात सर्वभूत हितोदय ।
सम्यग्वर्षयति पर्जन्य शास्य मुत्तमतां व्रजेत् ।
क्षेमारोग्यानि सुभिक्षानि प्रजा धर्म करी तदा ।

which means, that the passage of Jupiter through the stars Aslesha and Makha, the period goes under the name of Jovian year Magha. During this time people live in comfort and they will keep good health. The period will bring good to everybody. People will do all good deeds and follow the right path.

3. Varahamihira gives the following results for the passage of Jupiter through Pubba and Uttara which goes under the name of Jovian year Phalguna:

फाल्गुनवर्षे विन्द्यात्क्वचित्क्वचित्क्षेम वृष्टिसस्यानि ।
दौर्भाग्यं प्रमादानां प्रबलाश्चौरा नृपाश्चोग्राः॥(8-7)

which means, that during this time there will be some comfort everywhere and rain will be only partial in the world. Women will meet with misfortune and will have very bad time. Dacoits will be on the increase and there will be mass looting everywhere. The heads of the governments will become hostile towards one another.

4. For the same transit of Jupiter, Adbhuta Samhita quotes Garga as follows:

According to us Jupiter enters Leo on 7-7-1991 -- Editor.

चौर प्राबल्य दं घोरं नारी दौर्भाग्य कारकम् ।
क्वचिदक्षेमं सुभिक्षानि क्वचिदक्षेमकारकः॥

which means, that in the Jovian year Phalguna dacoity will be on the rise and the womenfolk will have very bad time. They will meet with misfortune during the entire year. People will enjoy peace and comfort only in a partial sense; at the same time there will be distress and unrest making people suffer very much. Readers may note that Jupiter passes through Pubba ruled by Venus, his enemy, and hence Varahamihira as well as Garga give bad results.

Considering these results, since the evil of the Saturn-Rahu conjunction is over and the aspect of Mars on Saturn will be over by the time Jupiter enters Leo the Middle East and world tensions will be over by stages. But the period of transit of Jupiter through Pubba (16-10-1991 to 20-3-1992 and again from 3-6-1992 to 26-8-1992), and through Uttara (from 26-8-1992 to 11-9-1992, upto 1st pada is only indicated here) will be very bad for the whole world, especially for womenfolk and there will be large-scale looting everywhere during this period.

II. Individual Effects

The transit of Jupiter will affect people in four ways:

1. The results of the cyclic transit of Jupiter (Paryaya)
2. General Conventional Effect
3. Effects due to Moorthi Nirnaya
4. Effects of SStellar Occupation of Jupiter with reference to one's birth star

1. Cyclic Effects (Paryaya)

Jupiter passes through the 12 signs of the zodiac roughly in 12 years. Each round is called a Paryaya. In most cases, Jupiter may not complete more than 6 Paryayas in an individual's lifetime. The effects of Paryaya given below are according to Tamil classics.

(a) When Jupiter is in the 1st round he is said to cause danger to life when he comes to the 8th house. It is also said that the father will enjoy quite contrary results getting all comfort, elevation etc., while the native will suffer.

(b) If, during the 2nd round, Jupiter is in Aries or Taurus, there will be no bad results if the above signs happen to be the 1st, 3rd, 6th, 8th, 10th or 12th from the Moon-sign and there will be no good results in the other houses. This will apply to natives below 24 years.

(c) During the 3rd Paryaya he does good in the 1st, 4th, 5th, 7th, 9th, 11th and 12th signs from one's Moon-sign.

(d) During the 4th round in Janma Rasi, he gives fear from Government, gain of wealth in the 2nd house, comforts in the 4th house, gain of property in the 9th house and gain of money in the 11th and 12th houses from Janma Rasi (Moon-sign).

(e) During the 5th round, he gives mental anxiety in Janma, gain of wealth in the 2nd and comforts in the 4th from the Moon-sign.

(f) During the 6th round he gives good effects in the 2nd, 5th, 7th, 9th and 11th houses from the Moon-sign and gives danger to life in the 8th house (provided there is Maraka Dasa or 3rd round of 7 1/2 years' Saturn).

For example, let us assume Jupiter is in Gemini during its first round for a person born during July 1930 for the Moon-sign, Virgo. Jupiter will be in the 10th house from the Moon-sign. When he passes through Taurus the Paryaya will end. Now when the native is 61 years, Jupiter will be in the 6th round. During this round, he is said to give good results in the 2nd, 5th, 7th, 9th and 11th houses from the Moon-sign as usual. If he passes through the 8th house this time, if the 3rd round of 7 1/2 years' Saturn also coincides with Maraka Dasa, there will be danger to the life of the native which will happen only when Jupiter passes through Aries again in this round namely, 8 years from then.

2. General Conventional Aspect

(a) Jupiter gives very good results when he passes through the 2nd, 5th, 7th, 9th and 11th from the Moon-sign. The results can be described briefly as follows:

Jupiter adds to wealth in the 2nd for Cancer. He gives birth of children in the 5th for Aries, marriage or harmonious conjugal life for Aquarius, he gives help from father, travel and good fortune in the 9th for Sagittarius, and gain of money from various sources in the 11th for Libra.

(b) Jupiter is said to give bad effects when he is in 1st, 3rd, 4th, 6th, 8th, 10th or 12th from the Moon-sign. As mentioned in an ancient Tamil verse (A.M., January 1988, page 93) Jupiter gives the worst results in the 3rd house (quarrels, fear of imprisonment, loss of respect, humiliation, affliction from many diseases, danger to life subject to other conditions for Gemini this time. According to another ancient Tamil verse Jupiter passing through bad houses from the Moon-sign gives results as follows:

1. When Jupiter was in Janma Rasi Sree Rama went to the forest and Sita was kept in captivity by Ravana. This means those born in Leo will be forced to shift to unwanted places amounting to exile with fear of imprisonment. There may be danger to women from men.

2. When Jupiter was in the 3rd house, Duryodhana died along with his men. This means that those born in Gemini may suffer fear of loss of life, if Maraka Dasa period runs. There will be loss of status.

3. When Jupiter passed through the 6th house, Sathyamuni was crucified on a steel pillar for the alleged theft of a queen's necklace which was thrown around his neck by passing thieves in which state he was arrested. This means that those people born in Pisces may have to face false allegations and endure untold sufferings.

4. When Jupiter was passing through the 8th house, Vali lost his life through Rama and also his kingdom. Those born in Capricorn will meet loss of position and there will be danger to life, if Maraka Dasa also prevails.

5. When Jupiter was in the 10th house, even Lord Siva had to beg for food due to the dosha of having severed one of the heads of Brahma. People born in Scorpio will have much financial difficulties, lack of resources etc., and decreased earnings.

6. When Jupiter was passing through the 12th house, Ravana lost his kingdom and life through Rama. This means that those born in Virgo may suffer loss of position and status.

7. When Jupiter was passing through the 4th house, Dharmaputra went into exile to the forest after losing the game of dice. This means that those born in Taurus will be forced to go into exile (transferred to unwanted places).

3. Moorthi Nirnaya Method

Planets give yet another special kind of effect according to what is called Moorthi Nirnaya which is reckoned by the sign occupied by the Moon at the time of change of sign by a particular planet (A.M., January 1988, page 95).

The Moon will be in Virgo during Jupiter's entry into Leo.

According to this rule:

1. Jupiter becomes Swarnamoorthy (gold) for Virgo, Scorpio and Aries Rasis. The good effects of Jupiter being in the 5th for Aries-born people will be enhanced and the bad effects of Jupiter for Virgo and Scorpio people in the 12th and 10th respectively will be minimised, since, as Swarnamoorthy (gold) Jupiter is said to give very beneficial results.

2. Jupiter becomes Rajathamoorthy (silver) for Taurus, Leo and Capricorn Rasis. Due to this the bad effects of Jupiter being in the 4th, 1st and 8th respectively for these signs will get minimised to a considerable extent.

3. Jupiter becomes Tambramoorthy (copper) for Cancer, Sagittarius and Pisces people. The good effects of Jupiter in the 2nd for Cancer and in the 9th for Sagittarius will get slightly enhanced. The bad effects for Pisces of Jupiter in the 6th will get reduced slightly, since Jupiter is said to give benefic results as Tambramoorthy.

4. Jupiter becomes Lohamoorthy (iron) for Gemini, Libra and Aquarius. Due to this the good effects of Jupiter in the 11th and the 7th respectively for Libra and Aquarius will get neutralised at least by 50%. The bad effects of Jupiter in the 3rd for Gemini will get enhanced greatly since Jupiter is said to give bad effects as Lohamoorthy.

Summing up we may summarise the results of Jupiter in Leo for the 12 Rasis as given below.

According to Conventional Aspects

1. Good effects accrue to Aries, Cancer, Libra, Sagittarius and Aquarius people.

2. Bad effects accrue for people born in the remaining Rasis -- Taurus, Gemini, Leo, Virgo, Scorpio, Capricorn and Pisces.

According to Moorthy Nirnaya

1. Very good results accrue to Aries, Virgo and Scorpio people (Swarnamoorthy).

2. Good results accrue to Taurus, Leo and Capricorn people (Rajathamoorthy).

3. Bad results accrue to Cancer, Sagittarius and Pisces people (Tambramoorthy).

4. Very bad results accrue to the remaining Rasis—Gemini, Libra and Aquarius people (Lohamoorthy).

5. Rasis having good results according to both the aspects-- Aries only.

6. Rasis having bad results according to both the aspects -- Gemini only.

Now the good results combining the transit effects of both the major planets Jupiter and Saturn in Leo and Capricorn respectively can be quantified as follows:

Taking the unit value for both the planets, their good effects as one, allotting 0.5 for each planet and allowing 0.25 each for the good effects of planets according to special effect of Moorthi Nirnaya the results will be distributed as follows:

a. For Swarnamurthy - Jupiter - 0.25, Saturn - 0.0625

b. For Rajathamoorthy - Jupiter - 0.125 - Saturn 0.250.

Note: The quantum of effects on special aspects on Saturn differs due to his being malefic. Accordingly, the net benefic results accruing out of both rules combined for both the planets are given in Table 1.

Marriages and Jupiter in Leo?

It is commonly believed that marriages should not be performed during the year when Jupiter is passing through Leo (Simha). But our ancient authors have clarified this point us giving some exceptions.

सिम्हस्थ सिम्हभागस्थे देवराज पुरोहिते ।
दाक्षिणात्यां न कुर्वन्ति व्रतोद्वाह शुभक्रिया ॥

In Muhurtha Parijatha Vaidyanatha Dikshithar (so far not published) declares in the above sloka (Chapter 18, Sl. 14) that "when Jupiter is in Leo upto his transit into Leo Navamsa, namely, upto transit through star Makha and Pubba (first pada) marriages should not be performed, especially in Southern states".

Another Muhurtha Grantha, Rajamarthanda declares as under

सिम्हराशौ सिम्हांशे यदा भवति वग्पति :।
सर्व देश वयं त्याप्ये दम्पत्यो र्निधन प्रदः॥ which means, that if marriages are performed during the transit of Jupiter through Makha and Pubba (first pada) it is dangerous to the life of both husband and wife. The periods to be avoided for performing marriages are as follows.

I (i) 14-8-1991 to 15-10-1991
(ii) 21-3-1992 to 2-6-1992 } Jupiter in Makha

Migraine -- An Astrological Study -- II*

CHANDRAKANT S. KOTHARE, M.A.

AMONG different types, tension headache and depressive headache are common and we shall study them in this paper.

Tension Headache

This is a constant contricting type of dull headache. The pain generally comes above the eyes and at the back of the head.

This type of headache is common amongst women. It is mainly associated with their menstrual periods and pre-menstrual tensions. However, this headache is common amongst both the sexes in periods of tension and pressures, especially if the pressure is accompanied by strong emotions. The Moon, Venus and Mercury in watery signs or in Leo make people emotional. If at the same time there are patterns in the horoscope indicating headaches, then this type of migraine is bound to come. In the case of women the Moon severely afflicted by Mars or a planet in Scorpio afflicted by Mars could create pre-menstrual tensions and headaches. Women having the Moon in Scorpio or Venus in Scorpio usually have pre-menstrual tension and possibly headache also.

Depressive Headache

In this headache, the person gets a dull but constant pain on the top of the head and he feels as if some weight has been placed on his head. This headache, as the name implies, is related more to emotional pressures. The Moon afflicted by Saturn is a sure sign of the person getting spells of depression. The Moon in Aries and Saturn in Cancer, Libra or Aquarius is a sure sign of depressive headaches. Saturn in the 7th house and afflicting the Moon simultaneously also results in depressive headaches. If the Moon, Mercury, Venus and lord of the Lagna get afflicted, there is bound to be depression. The severity would increase as more than one of the above planets comes under Saturn's affliction. In fact the Moon, Mercury and Venus getting afflicted by Saturn would endanger the very stability of the mind and some time or the other, psychiatric help would become absolutely necessary. Such persons are likely to commit suicide due to strong spells of depression.

Causative and Aggravative Factors

Hereditary

It is usually found that either parent has migraine. At times allergic conditions like asthma and hay fever are also present in the family. For hereditary transmission of headache always see the position of the 4th house together with its lord and also the Moon.

Stress Personalities

A migraine person is typically obsessional, fussy, overly conscious of the surroundings, ambitious, a perfectionist and intolerant. Such stress personalities give way to migraine.

These personality factors are seen when Saturn afflicts the vital personality factors such as the lord of the Lagna, the Moon, the Sun and Venus. Saturn in a cardinal house or for that matter in cardinal signs and afflicting the three vital personality points, namely Lagna, including the lord thereof, the Sun and the Moon, is a certain sign of the person exhibiting stress personality.

Physical stress like lack of sleep, prolonged exertion with continuous bending and stooping, exposure to extremes of heat or cold could cause attacks of migraine. These are incidental headaches and if you are interested in finding such periods—say of stress of work, then note the transits of the Moon in the 10th house. Again the lord of the natural 6th house Mercury also brings about pressure of work while transiting the 10th house. Hence these are periods when one is likely to work more and thus expose oneself to attacks of migraine.

Food Intake

Certain types of food intake may also cause headaches, such as chocolates, paneer, fatty foods, alcohol, citrus food etc. Those who have Mars and Rahu together, even Mars and Ketu together in the horoscope, particularly in the 4th or the 6th houses, should be particular about the food intake. They are likely to be allergic to some types of foods.

The Effects of Hormones

Many women suffer from migraine because of the effect of chemical changes occurring during their monthly periods. The pituitary gland in the head produces hormones which influence the ovaries. It is a ductless gland and is ruled by Uranus and the sign Scorpio. Ovaries are ruled by the Moon and Venus and signs Libra and Scorpio. The planets in cardinal signs also influence the ovaries.

Techniques have been evolved for investigation of blood flow in the brain using a radioactive gas known as "Xenon". This gas is injected into the main blood vessels of the neck and is then traced as it goes throughout the brain tissues.

This technique has demonstrated that the blood in the brain is reduced over the affected side by about 20 to 25 per cent when the patient experiences visual and sensory warnings of the coming attack. The blood flow reduction is even more pronounced in the brain areas corresponding to the symptoms felt by the patient. It is then possible that the smaller blood vessels must be narrowing down to produce such marked reduction in the blood flow.

However, when the headache begins the brain blood flow increases to normal or above normal and in the scalp tissues where the headache is felt, it may be upto 50 per cent above normal. There is, therefore, evidence to prove that some major blood circulatory disturbance occurs when migraine attacks commence.

The blood is under the internal rulership of the sign Leo and the sign opposite to it, that is, Aquarius. The other arm of the fixed signs also affects the circulation of the blood as these signs are in square to those named above. Arterial blood is controlled by Jupiter. The Sun gives oxygen to the blood. These two planets, therefore, are important while examining cases of migraine. The arterial system comes under the general influence of the sign Sagittarius. Arteries in the head are thus likely to be affected when in the astrological pattern the sign Aries is involved in the affliction. Aries is ruled by Mars. It is, therefore, plain that Jupiter and Mars together or in aspect to each other and afflicted simultaneously can cause disturbance in blood circulation in the head. Good aspect between Jupiter and the Moon is absolutely necessary for the health of the arteries. Further this good aspect should not get vitiated by another severe adverse aspect from planets like Mars or Saturn or for that matter Uranus. Either Jupiter or the Moon or both placed in Aries or in Lagna and afflicted could cause disturbances in circulation. The same is possible if these planets are placed in their own houses and afflicted, for reasons already explained. Medical science is not able to answer why narrowing of arteries occurs in the first place.

However, astrologically all narrowing down of artieries is mainly due to Saturn. It is, therefore, likely that Saturn's affliction might cause entry of serotonin in the brain tissues. I have observed severe afflictions from Saturn in cases of classical migraine.

The following patterns are present in charts vulnerable to migraine:

1. The Moon and Jupiter would be invariably afflicted by Saturn and possibly by other malefics also.

2. The signs Aries, Lagna and the planets in their own houses would be involved in the afflictions from Saturn and possibly by other malefics also.

3. Fixed signs, Aries and possibly Sagittarius and Pisces would frequently be observed in the afflictions from Saturn and other malefics.

4. The areas of the head and the senses affected would be shown by signs and planets explained earlier.

Example Horoscopes

I am giving below three horoscopes of persons suffering from severe bouts of migraine. In the case of the first two the severity has been lessened after completion of the third cyrcle of Jupiter, that is after the 36th year. The third is the horoscope of a girl who has pre-menstrual migraine. The

Foreign Influences on Hindu Astrology -- II*

K. K. PATHAK, B.A.S.

DURING the British regime some western scholars no doubt accused the Hindus of borrowing fundamental ideas of Astrology from the Greeks but even they admitted the truth that after 5th century A.D., that is, from Aryabhata and onwards, the Hindus developed Astrology in an unparallelled way.

It is true that in the Vedic age the Hindus followed Sayana system, but at the same time the Hindus were also experimenting with the idea of a Nirayana system. It is also true that Sayana zodiac and Nirayana zodiac coincided with each other in 498 A.D. 'The Hindus had fully shifted to Nirayana from Sayana some 100 years before the coincidence of Nirayana zodiac with Sayana zodiac. Dr. Nemichand Sastri has proved that by the 5th century B.C. the Hindus had fully shifted to Nirayana. Sepharial also believes that the Hindus were using Nirayana system since about 1080 years prior to the time of Varahamihira which agrees with 5th century B.C.

According to Sepharial "There is every reason to believe that Ptolemy received his initial instruction in the celestial science from one of the Alexandrian teachers, and that primarily the teaching was derived from India. At all events, it is well known that Astrology had attained considerable excellence in that country many centuries prior to the time of Ptloemy". It is thus on record that forerunners of Western Astrology, that is, astrologers of Alexandria had improved upon their systems through the aid of Hindu Astrology. Iranians, Iraqis and Arabs never hid the truth that they borrowed some important ideas of Astrology from the Hindus in the 1st century B.C. from Kalkacharya and in the 8th century A.D. from Karkacharya and above all in the 11th century A.D. from Hindu astrologers who were engaged by Al Baruni at Ghazni. Al Baruni has greatly admired Hindu Astrology. He has openly acknowledged the fact that the Hindus had always been ahead of other nations in the field of Astrology, mathematics, chemistry, medicine and other useful sciences.

Even Max Mueller who was not so charitable towards the Hindu viewpoint conceded the fact that the Hindus were the first innovators of Rasis and Nakshatras and so it would be wrong to say that the Hindus were in any way indebted to other nations for their knowledge of Rasis and Nakshatras.

It is clear from the Encyclopaedia Britannica that mathematics and astronomy reached Baghdad from India in 773 A.D. and were Arabised in 9th century A.D. by Abu Jaffer Mohammed Al Kharijmi and passed on to Europe from the Arabs in the 12th century A.D. in the name of Al Goritmus.

Mr. Maria Graham has observed that there is evidence in support of the fact that Astrology existed even in very ancient India. Mr. C. V. Clark has observed that the Hindus were aware of correct and more scientific methods of making forecasts on the basis of latitude since thousands of years whereas the Europeans did not know about correct latitudes till very recently. Prof. Wilson has proved how during the time of Khalifas Harun Al Rashid and Ailmayan, Hindu astrologers were engaged to teach Astrology to the people of Baghdad. Dr. Robertson has made clear observations to the effect that knowledge of the twelve zodiacal signs first of all came to the Hindus and it was also a fact that India had made sufficient strides in Astrology in ancient times. Prof. Colebrook and Prof. Weber have observed that the Indians had first of all obtained knowledge of lunar mansions and only through the aid of

*Part I has appeared in the A.M., June 1991

*In due deference to Mr. Pathak's view, we have to emphasise that both in the Vedic Age and post Vedic Age, the Hindus always employed, for purposes of Astrology, only the Nirayana zodiac, the first point commencing from the end of Revati constellation.

Hindu Astrology both Chinese and Arab Astrology could advance. Chinese and Arabs have followed Kranti-Mandal of the Hindus. The Chinese scholar Liyang Chi Chaw has observed that India and China, the two Asian sister-nations, were solving human problems through the aid of Astrology when the so-called civilised races of today had not even seen the dawn of civilisation and were leading a wild and nomadic life.

Professors Wallace and Wilson were unanimous in their views that Indians had made innovations of Astrology and mathematics even in very ancient times. Dr. Morgan has acknowledged Indian mathematics and Indian Astrology to be more ancient, more original and more superior to their Greek counterparts. After proper investigation Dr. Thibeaut came to the conclusion that the Indians were the innovators of basic rules of geo-metry and also that they had acquired proficiency in Nakshatra-Vidya in quite ancient times.

Lokmanya Bal Gangadhar Tilak in his Orion has established the fact that the knowledge of Nakshatras came to the Hindus at least as far back as 5000 B.C. With the Mahabharata period being traced to 4000 B.C., as a result of latest research-findings in history, scholars like Dr. Nemichandra Sastri shifted the period of Vedic Jyotisha from 5000 B.C. to 8000-10000 B.C. At any cost, Hindu Astrology must have originated at about 8000 B.C. There is no proof of any Greek contact with Hindu Astrology till 2nd century B.C. Thereafter, we have had definitely contacts with Greeks for about 800 years and during this period surely there has been some Greek impact on Hindu Astrology. In Gargi Samhita we find a reference to the Yavanas who were said to be barbarians but as Nakshatra-Vidya emanated from the Yavanas they deserved to be honoured like Devatas. It is difficult for us to take Greeks only as Yavanas. Ivans of Iran have been described as Yavanas by Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao. Sythians and Parthians were also once known as Yavanas.

Paulisa and Yavanacharya have been accepted as two out of 18 founders of Jyotisha. But it looks highly incongruous that Kasyapa and Parasara knew about Paulisa and Yavanacharya who were born some three to four thousand years after them. It is obvious that a decision about the names of the founders of Astrology was taken only after 200 B.C. and the slokas were composed in the names of Narada, Kasyapa and Parasara. It was the result of foolish entries made in the name of ancient sages by subsequent writers that Kasyapa, Parasara and Narada are believed to have belonged to a period ranging from 200 B.C. to 600 A.D. How could Parasara in 4000 B.C. know about Greek astrologers to be born in 100 B.C. or 200 A.D.? For this fallacy, we alone are responsible.

Varahamihira in his Pancha Siddhantika has created somewhat similar confusion by discussing Surya Siddhanta as the 5th in order after Paulisa and Romaka Siddhantas. This has given scope to critics to say Surya Siddhanta is just an Indian version of Ptolemy's Principles of Mathematical Astrology. Pitamaha Siddhanta in my view appears to be the parental Siddhanta of two great cultures namely Vedic culture of Indo-Iranian branch of Aryans and Asura culture of Middle East. Pitamaha Siddhanta appears to have been followed upto 6000 B.C. Pitamaha has been held to be the common ancestor of both the Aryans and Asuras. Thereafter, Aryans and Asuras on account of rivalry appear to have developed their Siddhantas separately. Aryans in Treta Yuga in 6000 B.C. to 5000 B.C. appear to have improved upon Pitamaha Siddhanta by Vasishtha Siddhanta and in the same Treta Yuga the Asuras of the Middle East appear to have evolved Surya Siddhanta. Surya was not the Sun-God but an astrologer. Narada did not accept him as a founder of Astrology as the sage Surya was born much later after Narada. Sage Surya was perhaps a Saka astrologer or some outcaste Hindu sage of Western India. He first of all taught his Surya Siddhanta to Maya who was an Asura and through Maya, Surya Siddhanta came to India. Surya Siddhanta passed on from Asuras to the Hindus and became the king-pin of Hindu Astrology in Treta Yuga itself in 5000 to 6000 B.C. The Surya Dynasty was the most powerful dynasty of India during this period. Subsequently, during its journey of 5 to 6 thousand years the old Surya Siddhanta was several times improved upon by the Hindus as it appears from the contents of the treatise. Prior to Varaha, Surya Siddhanta was revised and updated in 180 B.C. which has given scope to some critics to wrongly misinterpret that Surya Siddhanta was just a Hindu version of Ptolemy's Astrology. But Mr. Verghese (or Burgess?) has ruled out any such possibility. It is well known that the Hindus never addressed Greeks as Asuras. Ancient Asuras appear to have

Viswanatha

K. R. KRISHNAMURTHI

Personal

VISWANATHA was the youngest son of Divakara (1536 A.D.) a great scholar who was regarded as an authority in Astronomy during his time. Divakara's father was Bhattacharya, who was the son of one Rama, the earliest member, so far known in the family, belonging to Bharadwaja Gotra of the Taittiriya Sakha or Yajur Veda. The family hailed from a Maharashtra Brahman family of Golagrama, then situated on the Northern bank of the river Godavari, in Devanagiri, in the latitude 20° 30'.

Rama was an astronomer. His son Bhattacharya was a Mimamsaka and was well-versed in Tarka (logic). The family history as furnished by the descendants of Divakara is uniform and free from discrepancy, and therefore proves to be dependable and authentic.

Viswanatha was a learned commentator like Bhattotpala and Prithudakaswami, a fact which we can see from the number of works he has so ably commented upon.

His Works

His commentaries appear to have been compiled between Saka years 1534 to 1556 (i.e., 1612-1634 A.D.). One characteristic feature that distinguishes the commentaries of Viswanatha from those of others in particular is the way he presents the illustrative examples in his commentaries of the different works he has written. This shows the wide scholarship of Viswanatha as a commentator.

In Gahanartha Prakasika a Teeka on Surya Siddhanta, Viswanatha says that he has elucidated the Surya Siddhanta and recommends that the commentary of Nrisimha on Surya Siddhanta be consulted. It is worth mentioning here that Nrisimha, the eldest son of his eldest brother Krishna, wrote a commentary on Surya Siddhanta called Sowrabhashya in Saka year 1533 (1611 A.D.) which contains 4300 verses. Nrisimha was 25 years old then, as he was born in Saka 1508 (1586 A.D.).

From this it becomes clear that Viswanatha wrote Udaaharana on Surya Siddhanta after this date. It contains 5000 slokas.

In his learned commentary called Samaatantra Prakasika on Tajaka Nilakanti, he writes as follows:

Chandra Baana Sara Chandra (1551) Sammite Haayane Nripathi Saalivahana |
Margasirsha Sitha Panchami Tithow Viswanatha Vidushaa Samapitham ||

This brings to light the fact that he wrote the commentary on Panchami Tithi of Sukla Paksha, in the lunar month Mrigasira, in the Saka Year 1551 (1629 A.D.). He was then 54 years old.

For purposes of illustration in his works, he has taken Saka years 1530, 1532, 1542 and 1555 as per his choice. In his commentary on Patasaarani, he has chosen Saka 1553 as the year for his example. In the commentary on Kesavi Jataka Paddhati, he has adopted Saka 1508 (1586 A.D.), the date of Nrisimha.

The distinguished commentaries he has made on different works can be summarised this way, all of which he wrote at Varanasi.

1. Siddhanta Sironmani and Karana Kutuhala of Bhaskara.
2. Graha Laghava and Patasaarani of Ganesh Daivagnya.
3. Ananthasudharasa of Ananthaa.
4. Rama Vinoda Sarini of Rama Deivagnya

FOREIGN INFLUENCES ON HINDU ASTROLOGY

been destroyed much before Greek occupation and therefore in post-Mahabharata works we do not hear anything about Asuras. The very description of Maya as an Asura rules out any Greek possibility. Surya Siddhanta in post-Varaha period has also been improved upon many times. Prior to Varaha, Aryabhata has improved it. In post-Varaha period Lalla, Brahma Gupta, Sripati, Sridhara, Bhaskarachaya, Makaranda and Kamalakara made improvements on Surya Siddhanta in a purely Hindu way.

Romaka Siddhanta and Paulisa Siddhanta discussed in Pancha Siddhantika are two Greek Siddhantas formulated at Alexandria. Some associate Ptolemy with Romaka while others associate Ptolemy with Paulisa and Romaka with Romans. Inclusion of the above two Siddhantas is a fair game on the part of Hindu astrologers to call a spade a spade.

It will appear from a perusal of the two great works on mundane Astrology, namely, Brihat Samhita of Varahamihira and Adbhuta Sagara of Ballal Sen that views of Vriddha Yavana, Yavana, Yavaneswara and Yavanacharya were also considered with reverence by the Hindus as also the views of Vriddha Garga, Garga, Kasyapa, Narada, Vasishtha, Parasara, Rishi Putra, Deva Kirti etc.

As regards Hindu Jataka works, no evidence of Greek or other foreign influences is perceptible on any pre-Varaha works such as Bhrigu Sutram, Naradiya Jyotisha, Jaimini Sutram, Lomasa Jataka, Suka Jataka, Parasara Hora etc. Some parts of Garga Hora appear to be on the lines of Brihat Yavana Jataka of Asphujit Dwaja. Definitely, Gargi Samhita is influenced by Yavanas and in Garga Hora also some views of Yavanas appear to have been incorporated by followers of Garga at a later stage. The possibility of incorporation of Garga's views in Hindu Yavanashtaka is not ruled out as Yavana Jyotisha got Indianised after reaching India.—268.89. (to be continued) birthplace of all the three natives is Bombay.

MIGRAINE -- AN ASTROLOGICAL STUDY

Patterns to be observed in this case are the "T" square in the fixed signs with Saturn as the principal afflictor from Aquarius and involvement of Mars in his own house in the same pattern. Both Mars and Saturn afflict each other and lead to affliction of the Moon in the sign Aries by Saturn.

Similar afflicting patterns in Chart 2 and Chart 1 are too obvious to need any further discussion. Even though there is less severity after the 36th year in Chart 2 he still gets bouts of migraine quite frequently, whereas in the case of Chart 1 the intensity is considerably reduced. Now he gets occasionally mild headaches but very rarely severe migraine. The difference seems to be principally due to the position of the lord of Lagna. In the first case the lord of the Lagna is really out of the major afflicting pattern involving Saturn, but in the second horoscope the basic resistance power has been considerably weakened due to placement of the Sun in the 6th house making his digestive system constributing considerably to the migraine attacks. Besides in the first horoscope Saturn and Mars afflict each other but in the second horoscope they join their forces together.

		RAHU 12-34	ASCDT. 6-16 JUPIT. 9-11
SAT.(R) 17-20	Chart 3 Rasi 29-10-1965
MOON 13-12	MERC. 1-40 VEN. 28.55 MARS 24-57 KETU 12-34	SUN 12-39

The strong affliction of Saturn is involved in the planetary pattern in fixed signs in Chart 3. The lord of the Lagna in the 6th house Scorpio along with Mars, Venus and Ketu has contributed to her getting severe migraine before and during menstrual periods.

Comparative positions of all the three horoscopes would indicate that in the first case due to severe affliction of Saturn the man suffered severe headaches as a result of frequent cold and degeneration of mucus in the sinuses. In the second case the trouble arose mainly due to digestive problems. The second horoscope denotes some other major health problems also undermining the basic vitality of the native. In the third horoscope the sign Scorpio in the 6th house decided the real cause of migraine attacks. However, the involvement of the lord of the Lagna in the pattern has created certain problems in her case, where there is an indication of undermining of the basic vitality due to some infection.—12.89.

The dastardly assassination of Mr. Rajiv Gandhi on 21-5-1991 and the death of the communist leader Mr. S. A. Dange confirm the predictions.

New Delhi. S. K. Rao.

Sir, - Your forecast in "World Trends and Tensions" in the Annual Number 1991, page 8 written on 14-11-1990 says "the death of a national figure may plunge the nation in mourning" has now proved correct with many others. The bomb-blast assassination of our former prime minister Rajiv Gandhi is a barbaric act. Knowing in advance the trends of future events preventive steps were not taken.

Nirsha (Dhanbad). P. C. Daw.

Sir, - The Assamese Kalapurush Purnanga Panjika published from Guwahati last March had predicted a threat to Rajiv Gandhi's life and body before May 23.

It attributed this to the Sani-Rahu combination in his chart. That forecast for the current year added that even if Rajiv escaped that attempt another attempt would follow. The tragic prediction proved dead accurate.

The publishers deserve appreciation for their accuracy and expertise in horoscopic study.

Sir, - Please convey my hearty congratulations to your worthy daughter Gayatri Devi Vasudev for her accurate prediction given on 16-3-1991 with regard to the violent death of a national figure, national mourning and the nearly-over Rajiv Era.

Mysore. H. S. Venkata Rao.

Sir, - If I fail to congrutulate your Associate Editor I shall be committing a big injustice to her, to your journal and Astrology as a whole. Report of her lecture on "Outlook for Prajotpatti Lunar Year" on 16-3-1991 says:

"Death of national figure would plunge the nation in mourning and an element of violence is not ruled out... The Rajiv era could be said to be nearly over."

I request you to kindly publish a special issue on Mundane Astrology highlighting the future of our country during the coming five years. There are also indications of possible border clashes with Pakistan and China in the near future. May be we are passing through that period. I pray God to give you long life to serve the cause of Astrology, Yoga, etc.

Sir, - While going through THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE of June 1991, the "Outlook for the Lunar Year Prajotpatti", a lecture delivered by Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev, was read and re-read by me again and again. I felt that there is intrinsic merit in every prediction mentioned. But even as early as of now some of the predictions have already come true, e.g.: (1) Political instability, military interference and turmoil would continue to plague Pakistan. The elected government would only be a pawn in the military's hands; (2) May-August 1991 and the first 3 months of 1992 periods to watch out on the Indo-Pak borders and (3) Bangladesh would be vulnerable to fierce winds and cyclones.

I am keenly watching for the results predicted regarding developments in the Indian subcontinent.

My hearty congratulations to Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev.

Bangalore. A. Gopal Rao.

Sir, - After analysing the birth chart of Rajiv Gandhi (A.M., June 1991) you have stated that the current Dasa and Bhukti of Rajiv Gandhi become incapable of conferring on him the Prime Minister's post.

Could this be construed as a veiled statement of things to come, as he would not be alive to become the P.M.

Again it is said the selection of P.M. will be a surprise pick. When the Congress President and his team were contesting the Lok Sabha election who else could be the P.M. other than the President? This is also a pointed prediction.

As the tragedy has struck Rajiv dead, please explain astrologically what prompted you to so precisely write these sentences.

Thayalpatti. A. Seeniappan.

Sir, - Please accept my hearty congratulations for analysing the events which are in store for "Prajotpatti" given by Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev in her address to Indian Institute of World Culture on 16th March 1991.

The era of Rajiv Gandhi has ended brutally which should be condemned by all democratic loving people.

This may be a hint to the politicians to follow and heed elderly advice.

Nellore. T. V. Narayana.

Sir, - Let me congratulate you for the masterly analysis of events to occur in India during the year 1991. The following predictions hit the target:

"Death of a national figure may plunge the nation in mourning.

"At least two southern and two northern states may have new chief ministers" -- quite possible because of the elections.

"A major change in the power echelons at the Centre is in the offing."

It should be so after the tragic death of Rajiv Gandhi.

Correct prediction is also made about the cyclone in Bangaldesh.

In the present political atmosphere it is worth referring to the article "Planets and Indian Affairs" published in A.M. August 1987.

Ans: Venus, the lord of Lagna, is associated with Mars and Mercury in the 6th house. This may bring about skin diseases like leucoderma etc. Mars brings about leprosy while Mercury brings about skin disease. These two planets conjoin with Lagna lord in the house of disease. The redeeming feature is that Rahu does not skin them. Jupiter's aspect on Lagna lord reduces the intensity of the disease. However the factors are not enough to say whether he will be cured of the disease, and, when.

Q. 2. Rasi: Capricorn - Ascendant and Venus; Aquarius - Saturn; Taurus - Rahu and Moon; Gemini - Jupiter; Scorpio - Sun, Mercury and Ketu; and Sagittarius - Mars. Navamsa: Pisces - Ascendant and Saturn; Aries - Rahu; Libra - Mercury and Venus; Scorpio - Jupiter and Mars; Capricorn - Moon and Sun; and Aquarius - Venus. The native's parents divorced in 1968-69. Mother died in March 1977. The native had struggled very hard for life. Will exalted Moon and Yogakaraka Venus give him success in IAS?

Mohammed Jameel, Jaipur.

Ans: No connection of the lords of Kendra and Trikona is found. Instead, the 9th lord is associated with the 9th lord, and connected with the 7th lord, Venus, by aspect. Jupiter is not in the Kona of Karma, the 10th lord. The only favourable point for a good job is Saturn being in the 10th from the Karma. These are not strong points for success in I.A.S. The Moon aspects Janma Lagna and its 7th house. From the aspecting planet, Moon, the 2nd P.A.S. is occupied by Jupiter while the 9th S.A.S. is occupied by Venus. In the absence of Drekkana Kundali it is not known whether the Moon becomes Yogada. The above factors indicate a lucrative job though not I.A.S.

Q. 3. Rasi: Leo - Ascendant and Saturn; Libra - Ketu and Venus; Scorpio - Sun and Mercury; Sagittarius - Jupiter and Mars; Aquarius - Moon; and Aries - Rahu. The 12th lord Moon is in the 11th with the aspect of Saturn. How will this affect results, especially that transit Saturn has begun to afflict Janma Rasi?

Shadilal, Tarun Tarun.

Ans: The transit results should have the final say only in relation to the Dasa results.

Q. 4. Rasi: Taurus - Ascendant and Mars; Gemini - Jupiter and Venus; Cancer - Saturn; Leo - Sun and Mercury; Virgo - Moon and Rahu; and Pisces - Ketu. How will Kalasarpa Yoga affect the native and to what extent?

P. S. N. Kumar, New Delhi.

Ans: Kalasarpa Yoga will have a very little effect on the native.

Q. 5. Rasi: Libra - Ascendant; Scorpio - Venus and Mercury; Sagittarius - Saturn; Virgo - Rahu; Gemini - Jupiter; Cancer - Mars; Leo - Mandi; and Pisces - Ketu. Venus is both Lagna lord and 8th lord. Mercury is 9th lord and also 12th lord. What will be the result of these two planets combining in the 2nd house?

Sub. No. 18494.

Ans: Mercury and Venus conjunct in the 2nd house give good speech, money etc. The native may be a humourist and may have good scientific knowledge.

Q. 6. Rasi: Scorpio - Ascendant; Capricorn - Jupiter (R) and Saturn (R); Aquarius - Ketu; Cancer - Moon and Venus; Leo - Sun and Rahu; and Virgo - Mars and Mercury. Navamsa: Virgo - Ascendant and Moon; Libra - Sun and Ketu; Scorpio - Venus; Capricorn - Saturn (R); Aquarius - Jupiter (R); Pisces - Mercury; Aries - Rahu; and Gemini - Mars. Will Mars-Mercury influencing the 5th house give doctoral achievements or will 5th lord Jupiter with Mars retard such success?

S. No. 12382.

Ans: Mars and Mercury influencing the 5th house cannot be the reason for doctoral achievements. The 5th lord Jupiter is not associated with Mars and hence the question of failure does not arise.

Q. 7. Rasi: Gemini - Ascendant; Leo - Sun 28-26; Mercury 24-56 and Venus 7-52; Virgo - Mars 12-27 and Rahu 11-09; Scorpio - Jupiter 3-46; Sagittarius - Saturn (R) 7-11; Aquarius - Moon 12-27; and Pisces - Ketu (R) 11-9. (a) Will Jupiter and Saturn in consecutive signs give a career in law? (b) Does 12th lord Moon in the 7th deny marriage? If not, what would be the possible effects?

M. C. Misra, Hardwar.

Ans: (a) There is nothing like a principle that Jupiter and Saturn in consecutive signs give a career in law. But career in law is indicated in the horoscope by the occupancy of Mars in the 5th of Karakamsa, while Jupiter and Mercury aspect Mars. (b) The Moon is not the 12th lord from Lagna, Gemini.

Q. 8. Rasi: Virgo - Ascendant 21-20; Sagittarius - Saturn 29-44 and Jupiter 26-10; Capricorn - Sun 5-34, Moon 17-42 and Mercury 13-10; Aquarius - Venus 22-10 and Ketu 16-40; Gemini - Mars (R) 10-38; Cancer - Mandi 17-00; and Leo - Rahu 16-40. The native is educated (graduate) and is in Government service. Despite best of efforts, she has so far not been married though her 7th lord is well positioned (Jupiter in own house). (a) What could be the reasons for her not being married so far? (b) Is she likely ever to get married and if so when? (c) Will it be happy and enduring?

P. S. Iyer, Ernakulam.

Ans: The lord of 7th house is associated with the lord of 6th house and is aspected by Mars, the lord of 8th house. Besides, Venus, the Kalatrakaraka, is placed in the 6th house aspected by the malefic 6th lord. These are the reasons for delay in marriage. (b) The period of marriage from the age of 28 is clear according to Jaimini Chara Dasa in female horoscope. (c) Lagna Pada Dara Pada are in Kendras to each other. He yes.

Q. 9. Rasi: Scorpio - Ascendant and the M Virgo - Mars; Leo - Sun, Mercury and Rahu; Ge - Venus; Aquarius - Ketu; and Capricorn - Sa and Jupiter. Navamsa: Capricorn - Sa Aquarius - Jupiter; Pisces - Mars; Taurus - Ve Sun and Rahu; Gemini - Mercury; and Scor Moon and Ketu. The 7th lord Venus is in the and 8th lord Mercury is in the 10th with 10th Sun and Rahu. What does this indicate?

D. Shyam Prasad, Gun

Ans: The 7th lord in the 8th is not good for 7th Bhava. The 8th lord in the 10th is good longevity. The Sun with Rahu is not good. Sun, the 10th lord due to his association with 8th lord, is ultimately spoiled. Of the three, Ve gives Rajayoga results and is free fr death-inflicting qualities.

Q. 10. Rasi: Gemini - Ascendant 15-42; Ca - Moon 7-40 and Rahu 22-36; Capricorn - Sa 14-40 and Ketu 22-36; Aquarius - Mars & Mercury 7-22 and Jupiter 4-30; Pisces - Sun 11 and Venus 13-23. (a) Though the Ascendant l and the 4th lord Mercury are in 9th house Jupiter, he has failed twice in degree exam tions. Why is it? (b) Or, does Lagna lord with M and 10th lord Jupiter in the 4th show success business?

Sub. No. 114

Ans: The 4th lord in conjunction with Jup is spoiled by the association of the malefic M The 5th lord, though exalted, is closely conj with the Sun and combust. The 5th house aspected by Saturn. Hence failure. However, is redeemed by the aspect of Jupiter.

Q. 11. Aries - Ascendant, Sun and Merc Taurus - Moon; Cancer - Mars and Rahu; Capric - Saturn and Ketu; and Pisces - Venus and Jup The native has appeared and failed in at least competitive exams. Is it due to Mercury being Aries or does the chart suffer from Kalasa Yoga?

R. K. Duarah, Golagh

Ans: Failures are due to the 4th occupied two malefics viz., Mars and Rahu, aspected another malefic Saturn and the 5th house rec ing no aspect of any benefic.

Q. 12. Rasi: Aquarius - Ascendant 18- Virgo - Sun 3-8; Mercury 25-53 and Ketu 24-

Q. 14. Rasi: Sun 254-55; Mars 349-52; Jupiter 159-26; Saturn 227-09; Ketu 35-05; Moon 214-08; Mercury 274-11; Venus 229-00; Rahu 215-05; and Ascendant 71-54 with balance of Saturn Dasa at birth 17 years, 10 months and 5 days. (a) In the chart given, Saturn, the Ayushkaraka and lord of the 8th house, is aspecting his own house where his friend and Ascendant lord Mercury is housed. In this case the Ascendant lord is not only aspected by Yogakaraka and friend Saturn from the 6th (special aspect) but also Maraka lord Jupiter. Is the above combination good for longevity; What is the total longevity. (b) Venus, Karaka for spouse, is situated in the 6th with Yogakaraka Saturn who in turn is associated with debilitated Moon and Rahu. Is it an indication fo problems to marital partner?

S. Thrinadha Rao, Dharwad.

Ans: (a) Mercury (though Lagna Lord) in the 8th from Lagna gives good longevity. Jupiter in the 4th (Kendra) from Lagna is also good for longevity. Ayushkaraka and the 8th lord should be in a Kendra for longevity. But Saturn in the 6th in the chart does not promote long life. Hence full middle life may be predicted in view of Saturn's aspect to Lagna Lord, Mercury. (b) Besides the association of the malefics with Venus, the 7th lord Jupiter is aspected by another malefic, Mars, while the 7th house is occupied by the Sun. These are indications for marital problems.

PLANETS AND CAREER COUNSELLING

ANURADHA

My son born on 11-5-1964 at 8.30 p.m. (IST) at 17° N, 75° E has studied upto P.U.C. only. He is working as a helping hand in a T.V.-radio concern. Will he be able to set up his own business in TV or radio servicing?

S. N. 15684

The Ascendant and the 10th lords Mars and the Sun are together in the 6th in the latter's exaltation sign. Saturn is aspecting the 10th house. The 10th lord Sun is in Sagittarius in Navamsa aspected by Mercury and Mars from Gemini. These would support T.V.-radio (media) servicing as a career. The 10th lord Sun and Lagna lord Mercury indicate self-employment would suit the boy better than service. Rahu Dasa has begun only now. Rahu in the 8th is Mercury's sign and Mercury is the 8th lord in the 6th. These would suggest the boy will prosper in this line.

Born on 20-5-1954 at 2.-6 a.m. at Delhi, I am an Executive Engineer. The post of Senior Environmental Engineer is lying vacant in my office. I am, by both experience and seniority, qualified for it. But my superiors have instead served me two charge-sheets. My writ in the High court has not given any results.

All the adverse trends in the past were due to the Dasa lord Sun being influenced by 6th lord Moon from Scorpio. This was in combination with transit Saturn's passage through the 12th, 1st and 2nd from natal Moon. Now the Dasa is of the Moon who is full and aspected by 5th and 8th lord Mercury. The Moon Dasa may improve matters slightly. The legal remedy may also be effective in giving your promotion as Dasa lord Moon is also the 6th lord and, full. Since the Moon occupies Jyeshta ruled by Mercury and is also aspected by Mercury, your book on environment will also be ready shortly.

My post-graduate son with many PG diplomas in computer science born on 17-12-1961 at 11-45 a.m. (IST) at 16 N 18, 81 E 57 has not been successful in finding any openings overseas. Will he be able to realize his ambitions?

S. N. 15446

The Ascendant lord Saturn is in the 12th house. The 9th lord, a Yogakaraka, is in the 10th house. The 10th lord Mars is in the 11th with 7th lord Sun. These are favourable for promoting career success. The beginning of Moon Dasa may take him abroad. The Moon, though the 6th lord, is in the 3rd, a moveable sign, and aspecting the 9th house. Being Vargottama, he becomes powerful and shows career success abroad.

Born on 24-7-1941 at 10 gh. 42 vgh. at Sangrur, I have been keeping a very low profile. When am I likely to break it and rise in life?

S. N. 12916

The 10th house has an affliction from 3rd and 8th lord Mars; this gives a sense of frustration and as 3rd lord, too many changes. Mercury as 10th lord and Lagna lord also comes under this influence of Mars, so that great restlessness and discontent mark the native's psyche. The Dasa now on is of Venus who, though Yogakaraka, is in the 12th. But the next Dasa being of the Sun (12th lord in the 11th), earnings may stabilize in post-retirement period through some new-found mental or creative abilities. This chart, however, does not show business success.

My son has appeared for a number of competitive engineering and medical exams, having just appeared for 12th standard exams. Which line would suit him? He was born on 4-9-1973.

The Ascendant is Taurus with the 10th house in Aquarius. The 10th lord Saturn is in Gemini with Ketu in Rasi and in Sagittarius Navamsa. The airy sign Gemini would suggest engineering. The Dasa lord is the Sun in Leo with Mercury and points to a flair for numbers. Computer or electronics or allied lines would suit the boy well.

1. MESHA (Aries)

General: The Sun in the 4th and the 5th, Mercury in the 5th and Saturn in the 10th are all unfavourable; the Sun and Mercury are under check from the 20th. Mars in the unfavourable 5th till 20th with check transits thereafter the favourable 6th with Vedha. Jupiter in the adverse 4th till 7th transits afterwards the favourable 5th with Vedha till 15th. Venus in the favourable 5th yields to Vedha. In a month of mixed results the good effects will be more in evidence. Relief from certain commitments and favourable property deals are likely. Do not resort to unorthodox methods for achieving success. Krittika is better than Aswini and Bharani.

Health and Domestic: You will have reasonably good health throughout. Chronic sufferers will find the month helpful. Your children's performance in schools and colleges will make you happy. With tact and patience you could preserve peace and harmony in the domestic sphere.

Finance and Speculation: The financial affairs will be generally satisfactory during the month. The second half shows much better promise in finance than the first. You will have gains in your recently started enterprises. Speculative transactions are not recommended during this month.

Real Property, Services, Professions, etc.: This is not an unsatisfactory month for real property matters. The second half shows promise for real estate transactions. Yield and rentals will be above average. This is generally a satisfactory month for the services, industries, professions and businesses.

Women: This is a good month for the film artistes who are likely to be offered lucrative contracts by established and leading banners in the world of celluloid. Social contacts will be of great help to you in your business career. Employed girls are likely to be transferred to places of their choice.

Students: Those who have set their eyes on commissions in country's defence forces are likely to realise their ambition. You will be successful in tests and interviews. In view of your proneness to physical injuries you are advised to go slow in sports and athletics.

(The forecasts based on Janma Rasi are general and as such those having favourable aspects according to present Dasa and Bhukti in their horoscopes will have favourable results from the indications made above while those having adverse aspects according to current directions will experience these predictions to a lesser proportion. The predictions given below are based upon a clear interpretation of movements of transits of planets. If you do not know your Janma Rasi write to Utpala C/o THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE giving your birth details and enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope. —Ed., A.M.)

Satabhisha is better than Dhanishta and Poorvabhadra.

Health and Domestic: Health troubles are likely. Chornic patients should resort to prophylactic measures to avoid an exacerbation in their ailments. Your children's performance in schools and colleges will make you happy. You may have to keep your fingers crossed in so far as peace and harmony are concerned in the domestic field.

Finance and Speculation: The silver lining in an otherwise dark cloud is your satisfactory position in the field of finance. You will be able to meet all your obligations. This month will make you realise that apart from money other factors of life such as harmony with spouse, children's affection etc. are equally important for satisfaction in life. Speculative activities should be avoided.

Real Property Services, Professions, etc.: The planetary transits do not generate any optimism in the field of real property matters. You are likely to experience diffficulties in the realisation of dues from tenants. Government servants are likely to have a trying time during the second half. You will, however, be able to secure the co-operation of influential persons to ward off any punitive action against you. Professions and businesses will have a lean period.

Women: This is a month of a lot of unnecessary expenditure and travel for you. While there will not be any trouble financially some unexplainable mental depression may worry you. Complete surrender to God is the only solution. This is a bad month for working girls.

Students: Unsatisfactory month notwithstanding the absence of pecuniary problems. You should be careful in your sports activities in view of your proneness to physical injuries. Reduce your social contacts with the opposite sex.

12. MEENA (Pisces)

General: The Sun in the unfavourable 5th till 15th with check transits thereafter the favourable 6th. Mars in the favourable 6th till 20th transits afterwards the unfavourable 7th with check. Mercury in the 6th and Saturn in the 11th are both favourable making an allowance for the yielding to Vedha by Saturn. Venus in the 6th is thoroughly unsatisfactory. Jupiter in the favourable 5th till 7th with Vedha transits afterwards the adverse 6th with check. The month will witness the accomplishments of your desires. General prosperity, accrual of power and business advancement are indicated. Poorvabhadra is better than Revati and Uttarabhadra.

Health and Domestic: You will enjoy good health throughout. Chronic sufferers should take advantage of favourable planetary vibrations and endeavour to obtain a permanent cure for their ailments. Children's health may cause mild concern during the second fortnight. Planetary transits do not indicate peace and harmony in the domestic field.

Finance and Speculation: True, the Dhanakaraka is in a bad mood for most days in the month. Even so the lord of the 2nd helps you out in the field of finance. New sources of income are likely to open up. Both short and long term investments will flourish. Moderate profits are indicated in the speculative transactions.

Real Property, Services, Professions, etc.: This is quite a satisfactory month for real property matters. Property Karaka and the lord of the 4th are both in a good mood. Acquisition of new properties is likely. Services could confidently look forward to promotion. The period will be profitable for businesses, industry and professions.

Women: You are advised to go slow in love affairs. This is a very satisfactory period for the social workers, who may be invited to shoulder greater responsibilities in recognition of their meritorious work. The month will not be unsatisfactory for the employed girls.

Students: This is an excellent month for you. Civil service candidates for Administration and foreign service in the Central Government will realise their ambition. Army commissions also are likely to be offered to them. Good month for sports and athletics.

ASTROLOGY AND WOMEN'S WORLD

Q. I am the only surviving child of my parents. After my father's death, I am living with my mother who is in poor health. But this arrangement is causing me much mental strain as I have to stay away from my husband and three children. My husband visits me twice a week. Is there any indication of my being able to live with my husband and family?

S. No. 16200

Born 3-7-1961 at 7-08 a.m. (IST).

Ans: The 7th house has Jupiter and Saturn which is not undesirable. The Ascendant lord Moon is in the 8th house indicating, by and large, onerous responsibility. Currently, transit Saturn is on natal Saturn bringing at the same time the chart under Saturn's seven-and-a-half year cycle. Additionally, Saturn Dasa is due to end in early 1993 and his retrogression in the 7th as also Jupiter's (Bhukti lord) can conduce to such circumstances as the native is passing through. With the advent of Mercury Dasa (Mercury is the 5th lord in the 5th with 7th lord Sun with reference to Chandra Lagna), the native will be able to lead a normal family life with spouse and children.

Q. My son and his wife are both Government employees. The wife is older by 6 years. The marriage is an inter-caste one. My son is addicted to alcohol and drugs. On the advice of friends my son's wife brought in a young man, a so-called godman, into the household who promised to help my son get rid of his addictions. It is nearly 4 years since this third party has come but there is no improvement in the situation. In fact, I had to come away from the place. When will this outsider leave the family and will I rejoin my son?

Son:* Born 21-8-1954 at 4-55 a.m. at 11 N, 76 E 56.

Godman* : Born 25-8-1962 at 6-53 a.m. (IST) at 26 N 28, 80 E 24.

Ans: In your son's horoscope, Rahu Dasa will end in January 1933. Rahu is in the 6th house with 5th lord Mars and is responsible for the addiction. Jupiter Dasa begins next. Jupiter as 6th and 9th lord is in the 12th which is a favourable factor making your son turning a new leaf in life.

As for the godman Saturn Dasa has begun. He is in the 6th from the Ascendant. The natal Moon is under the influence of transit Saturn. All these factors will coalesce to generate such circumstances as to bring about his ouster.

In your son's horoscope, the advent of Jupiter Dasa will set him reviewing his past. As Jupiter is the 9th lord, it indicates reunion with father also.

Q. The husband and wife are working in different places since 1986. Since 1987, the relationship has taken a nosedive and there is no cordiality between them. The husband is keen to join the wife but she is recalcitrant. The wife is due to go abroad for 2 or 3 years. Will the husband go with her and will the marriage improve?

Ans: The 7th lord Jupiter and Lagna lord Mercury are in Shashtashtaka. Venus, the Kalatrakaraka, is in the 1st with 3rd and 8th lord Mars. Venus Dasa is now running. Saturn Bhukti has begun and he is aspected by 7th lord Jupiter in his exaltation sign. But at the same time, Saturn is combust. These factors indicate great persuasion and effort may be necessary to make the marriage work. But, since Venus Dasa is on, the outlook is not too depressing. There is a possibility of accompanying the wife abroad which may help to mend the relationship.

Q. I had conceived twins in February 1990. After two-and-a-half months, after sonography was done, one of the twins was found aborted. The other twin also had to be removed, though living, on 10-4-1990. Is there any possibility of healthy issue?

Ans: The 5th house is aspected by 5th lord Jupiter from Lagna. With reference to Chandra Lagna, the 9th house is aspected by 9th lord Jupiter. Mars, Yogakaraka, also aspects the 5th from Lagna. These are favourable factors that do not rule out progeny. Mars Dasa begins in July 1991. Until then, it is better to avoid conception. After that, especially after August 1991, the period is safe to beget progeny.

Q. All my children are married, except one son whose marriage has been all along evasive. Whenever a proposal turns up, the boy is unable to see the girl because some official work or other crops up preventing his coming. This has affected my 70-year old husband who is a heart patient. Please advise whether he will at all get married.

Ans: The 7th lord Venus is in the 3rd with 10th lord Sun. The 2nd and 5th lord benefic Jupiter aspects the 7th. There is nothing to deny marriage in these planetary positions. Ketu Bhukti in Rahu Dasa will run between December 1992 and December 1993 during which marriage can take place. Jupiter's influence on the 7th house shows a harmonious marriage. The parents need not worry unduly.

MY TURN

PUTTING VASTU TO TIPS USE

VITTALAPURAM RAJAN,
MADRAS

I give below some points relating to Vastu Sastra.

It is said that 19 factors are to be considered in judging the suitability of the proposed land for constructing a building on the basis of its breadth (B) and length (L) in terms of yards.

They are:

1. Garbha Kuta: Breadth x Length ÷ 8
   If the remainder is 1, 5, 7 it is good.
2. Adhaya Kuta: (B x L) 8 ÷ 12
   If the remainder is 1, 2, 3, 4, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 It is good.
3. Vraya Kuta: (B x L) 9 ÷ 10
   If the remainder is 3, 5, 7, 8 it is good.
4. Yoni Kuta (B x L) 3 ÷ 8
   If the remainder is 1, 3, 5, 7 it is good.
5. Nakshatra Kuta: (B x L) 8 ÷ 27
   If the remainder is 1, 5, 7, 8, 12, 15, 17, 21, 22, 24, 26 it is good.
6. Varakuta (B x L) 9 ÷ 7.
   If the remainder is 2, 4, 5, 6 it is good.
7. Amsa Kuta: (B x L) 4 ÷ 9.
   If the remainder is 1, 3, 4, 5, 8, 9 it is good.
8. Varuna Kuta: (B x L) 9 ÷ 4.
   If the remainder is 2, 3, 5, 7, 10, 12, 13 it is good.
9. Tithi Kuta: (B x L) 9 ÷ 15.
   If the remainder is 2, 3, 5, 7, 10, 12, 13 it is good.
10. Aushu Kuta: (B x L) 27 ÷ 100.
    If the remainder is 45 and above it is good.
11. Susthra Kuta: (B x L) 8 ÷ 5
    If the remainder is 1, 2, 3 it is good.
12. Rasi Kuta: (B x L) 9 ÷ 12.
    If the remainder is 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11 it is good.
13. Bootha Kuta: (B x L) 8 ÷ 5.
    If the remainder is 1, 2, 4 it is good.
14. Karna Kuta: (B x L) 5 ÷ 11
    If the remainder is 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, it is good.
15. Yoga Kuta: (B x L) 4 ÷ 27
    If the remainder is 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 11, 14, 15, 16, 18, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26 it is good.
16. Dikku Kuta: (B x L) 9 ÷ 8
    If the remainder is 1, 7, 0 it is good.
17. Netra Kuta: (B x L) 9 ÷ 7
    The remainder 1 represents Sunday, 2 -- Monday, 3--Tuesday, 4--Wednesday, 5--Thursday, 6--Friday and 7--Saturnday. Count the day from Sunday to that of the day obtained in the above process and multiply that number by 3. If the product falls between 1 and 15 it is good.
18. Purva Kuta: (B x L) 4 ÷ 9
    Ascertain the remainder, Multiply the remainder arrived by 7 and divide the product so got by 5. If the remainder is 1-2-3 it is good.
19. Amrithadi Yoga (B x L) 8 ÷ 27.
    Ascertain the Yoga by combining the day arrived at under Netra Kuta with the help of any almanac. If the Yoga is Siddha or Amrita it is good.
20. Apart from the above 19 factors of suitability another 4 factors of compatibility are to be considered before arriving at a decision to build a new house.

They are:

1. Gana

The Gana of the owner of the house should have compatibility with that of the Gana of the land.

The Gana of the land may be determined on the basis of its star obtained under Nakshatra Kuta.

(The Gana pertaining to each star may be obtained from any standard almanac.)

2. Tara Bala

Count the constellation of the star of the land obtained under Nakshatra from that of the owner of the land and divide the sum by 9. If the remainder is 2, 4, 6, 8, 0 it is good.

3. Chandra Bala

Count the Rasi of the land obtained under the Rasi Kuta from the Rasi of the owner. If this remainder is 1, 3, 6, 7, 10, 11 it is good.

4. Panchakam

(a) Count the day of the land obtained under Netra Kuta from Sunday.

(b) Count the tithi of the land obtained under Tithi Kuta from prathama.

(c) Count the Nakshatra of the land from Aswini.

(d) Count the Rasi of the land obtained under Rasi Kuta from Aries.

Add the above four figures and divide the sum so obtained by 9. If the remainder is 3, 5, 7, 0 it is good.

What's in a Name?

Sir, - To the question as to why the Chengai Anna District has been in the news recently (since the fateful night of 21-5-1991) the answer or near about answer appears to be there in Ekalavya's "News and Views" (A.M., September 1989, page 674c).

The relevant portion is given here.

"..... Tamil Nadu has changed its Chingleput District into Chengai Anna which works out as ..... totalling 35. According to numerologists, this compound number sounds grave warnings for the future of the area, foreshadowing disaster by bad planning, bad association and bad advice. But who cares?...."

THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

Sir, - I sincerely thank you and the distinguished readers who are responsible for throwing light on the predictive side of Astrology and contributing their views and opinions on the question "Where is the Sanyasi" in March and April 1991 issues. It is clear that Astrology is a great science and that there are among your readers versatile scholars who are not necessarily professionals.

All praise to you and your team who have kindled such interest amongst the intellectual public qualified in various areas of science and arts.

Earthquake Prediction

Congratualations to Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev. In her speech of 16-3-1991 on "Outlook for the Year Prajotpatti" on Russia she has foretold that an earthquake will hit Russia about May 1991 (A.M., June 1991, page 535).

A severe earthquake of 7-8 intensity on the Ritcher scale has hit Georgia on 29-4-1991. She has hit the bull's eye in this prediction.

The Moon was in Visakha star with Marana Yoga opposing the Sun. Mars was aspecting Uranus, Neptune, Saturn and Rahu. Jupiter was opposing Saturn and Rahu.

The readers would like to see more such predictions in your great Magazine.

Mysore. T. S. Subbanna.

Sir, - The earthquake that shook the soutern Soviet Republic of Georgia on Monday, April 29, 1991, lends testimony to my theory of earthquake prediction based on Astronomy and Astrology.

I indicated such a catastrophe in Russia in the Diwali issue of Tarun Bharat, Belgaum, and Grahankit of Pune. The three earthquakes that hit Armenia, Kazagistan and lastly Eastern Island near Japan were anticipated by me.

The present scientists engaged in the study of earthquake either in the Government or the private institutions or as a hobby look at my theory with certain prejudice and criticise my theory on the ground that quakes cannot be predicted through Astrology or Astronomy. It should be noted here that these scientists after spending crores of rupees on research do not indicate even to the slightest accuracy earthquakes. I expect all the scientists should come together and exchange their views and make the earthquake prediction system dependable in order to avoid enormous human loss and national wealth.

I am now working on the location i.e., latitudes and longitudes of the place, and also the intensity of the quake.

After the Armenia quake, the Vice Consul of Russia stationed at Bombay paid a visit to my house and showed interest in my system and theory. But Indian scientists do not display any such interest.

A national conference on "Mani (Gems) and Mantras -- Their Utility for Human Welfare" was organised by the Bharat Nirman, an all-India organisation, at New Delhi on April 20, 1991. The Conference was inaugurated by Dr. Lokesh Chandra, former M.P.

presence of the Sun or the Moon. They either get deflected or dispersed. When they are disturbed, the electrical charge of the ionosphere opposite to the Sun or the Moon also gets disturbed or depleted. Thereby the resistance to the entry of celestial powers offered by the magnetic field and the ionosphere gets considerably reduced in a selective area in between the Sun and the Earth or the Moon and the Earth.

The Sun through Vasi or Vesi Yoga transfers other planetary powers and the Moon through Anapha or Sunapha Yogas transfers other planetary powers into the earth's atmosphere practically without loss of power through the area of ionosphere where electrical charge is depleted. Thus the full energy of the other planets gains entry into our earth with the aid of the Sun and the Moon. So, the Yogas pertaining to the Sun and the Moon become astrologically very important as the Yoga pwers are packed with action-potential.

In the case of a direct entry by a planetary power, it undergoes loss at the magnetic field and also at the ionosphere. Therefore the action-potential of a planetary power through Yoga with the Sun or the Moon is greater than the action-potential when there is direct entry. Therefore Anapha or Sunapha Yogas and Vasi or Vesi Yogas are [illegible] most important. This is the reason why the Yogas in Astrology, especially associated with the luminaries Sun and Moon are given primary consideration.—231A.90.

A preliminary knowledge of predictive Astrology and its principles is needed appreciating this volume. It is an excellent guide to understand how the fundamental principles formulated by ancient Rishis have to be modified and adapted to modern and changing social, economic and political conditions to understand the astrological personality of each chart.

Dr. Raman dissects and analyses with wonderful insight and precision the factors that go to make one a sinner, saint, philosopher, king, king-maker, scientist, business-magnet, literateur and even a maniac.

Each chart has been subject to a thorough and sicientific study by Dr. Raman. For the beginner this is a dependable text while for the research student it offers qualitative analysis of various planetary aspects and combinations, Dasas and Bhuktis and Gochara influences as leading to important events in life. Rajayogas, Daridra Yogas and others and their practical application are explained lucidly.

THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE

फलानि ग्रहचारेण सूचयन्ति मनीषिणः ।
को वक्ता तारतम्यस्य तमेकम् वेधसम् विना ॥

Those who know Astrology can only indicate in a way what will take place in future. Who else, except the Creator Brahma, can say with certainty what will definitely happen?

VOL. 80 SEPTEMBER 1991 No. 9

PRASNA AND POLITICAL PREDICTIONS

PRASNA is that branch of Astrology which is based on Question Time. And what is Question Time? It is the time at which a question is asked of an astrologer. And why should anyone ask the astrologer a question? The answer to this question holds the key to the whole edifice of Horary Astrology. A question is voiced before an astrologer when the person asking the question is deeply interested in or concerned with the outcome of the subject-matter of the question. This same question can be answered by a reference to the birth horoscope but the distinct merit of the Prasna chart lies in the clues it offers in answering a specific question covering a particular individual, position or situation. The emphasis in Prasna is on specifics — and the answer shown in this chart is confined only to the subject-matter of the question.

Prasna Astrology scores over natal Astrology, although by comparison its role is very limited, in the correctness and preciseness of the basic data of time, place and date of question. These same details at birth may or may not have been recorded accurately. Prasna or Horary Astrology depends on the "birth" of an idea which simply dramatises the fact that a coincidence of relationship becomes momentarily significant; and this point in time makes it possible to chart out the future.

The chart is cast for the time of question. That is the time, date and place of question. This is simple where the querent physically approaches the astrologer. But what would be the position where the question is transmitted through mail or a telephonic call from a different place? What would be the place of question? The place from where the querent writes or calls the astrologer? Or is it the place where the astrologer receives the mail or the telephone call? It is the place at which the question reaches the astrologer.

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

A man approaching an astrologer is bound to have his head full of thoughts — of worry, concern, fear, agitation, depression, sometimes even of great joy. Any question bearing on these thoughts should concern only one specific issue if the chart cast for that time has to offer clues to the answer. Too many questions pouring out from the querent will not give a clear indication of the outcome. This is comparable to a case of multiple births where chances of survival of all the babies born are feeble.

An astrological chart for the question time, known commonly as Prasna, cannot be cast for frivolous queries and otherwise, when the querent is not seriously interested in the outcome. Nor should charts be cast where a querent repeatedly seeks astrological guidance for the same problem.

The question must be framed in simple language and must be direct. Although as a rule only one question is allowed at a time, the contingency of more than one question is also provided for in classical works.

The Ascendant and planetary positions (at the time of query) in relation to the rising sign answer the first question.

The second question must be analysed from the position of the Moon.

The Sun and its position in the chart point to the answers to the third question.

Jupiter's position and that of the stronger of either Mercury or Venus applies to the 4th and 5th questions in that order.

But the general rule is, always limit the question to one and that related to whatever is bothering the querent and is uppermost in his mind.

Most of the significations and characteristics of planets, signs and Bhavas are the same for both natal horoscopy and Horary Astrology.

There are certain basic rules in Horary Astrology which can be applied to just about any kind of question or situation. According to Prasna Tantra:

यो यो भावाः स्वामिदृष्टो युतो वा सौम्यैर्वा स्यात्तस्यतस्यास्ति
वृद्धिः ।
पापैरेवं तस्य भावस्य हानिनिर्देष्टव्या पृच्छतो जन्मतो वा meaning, whether in horoscopy or Horary Astrology, whichever Bhavas are associated with or aspected by either their lords or benefic planets gain in strength. Malefics in or aspecting the houses deplete them of vitality.

Very simply put, the Ascendant lord and the lord of the sign ruling the subject of the query aspecting the sign show success. If otherwise, the result is defeat, loss or disappointment as the situation demands.

There are 2 basic combinations or Yogas in Horary Astrology. Other Yogas are all variations of these 2 Yogas.

Ithasala Yoga is formed when a faster-moving planet is behind a slow-moving planet. It is an applying aspect and if it involves the significators, it points to fulfilment of the objective.

Musaripha Yoga occurs when the faster-moving planet has the slower-moving planet behind it. It is a separating aspect and shows that the objective will not be realised.

Kamboola Yoga is actually an Ithasala Yoga but involving the Moon also. When two planets are in Ithasala and the Moon is also in Ithasala with them, a Kamboola Yoga is formed. Depending on the strength of the planets and the Moon, this is a highly favourable Yoga.

These Yogas hold the answer to any kind of question, to any kind of situation whether it is related to success, defeat, loss, profit, love, progeny, political office, theft, missing person or any other kind of problem.

The 11th house rules labha or gains and answers all questions pertaining to gain of office. An Ithasala between the Ascendant lord and the 11th lord usually indicates attaining the objective.

One of the most commonly encountered questions is if marriage will take place with a particular person. An example will show how this question can be answered.

Question Time: 4-11 p.m. (IST) on 27-2-1991 at Bangalore.

Will I marry a particular girl ? (Chart 1):

The Ascendant is occupied by its lord Moon and benefic Jupiter. The question relates to marriage and so, as in natal horoscopy, to the 7th house. The Ascendant lord Moon and Jupiter aspect it. The 7th house has its own ruler there and in turn, 7th lord aspects the Ascendant and its ruler, Cancer and Moon respectively, indicating the marriage will come through.

While the 7th house rules marriage, it also rules political coalitions. When V.P. Singh assumed power, he did it with the help of other parties including the B.J.P., the Telugu Desam, and a few others. The first coalition Government in India's history of 44 years after Independence, everyone was keen to know about its fate. This question came just 3 days after the swearing in.

Question Time: 4.45 p.m. on 5-12-1989 at Bangalore.

Would the coalition Government last? (Chart 2).

The Ascendant Taurus is aspected by the Sun. In Bhava. Mars influences the Ascendant. That is, no benefics aspect the Ascendant or its lord but malefic Mars aspects the Ascendant and also the 10th Bhava. The answer of course was obvious that in spite of the high hopes reposed on this new team of politicians, the Government would not survive its allotted span. The 7th lord Mars also rules the partners in the team and influencing the Ascendant as a malefic showed the partners would fall out which is exactly what happened.

In contrast, when Rajiv Gandhi assumed power after a runaway victory at the polls in 1984, the chart (Chart 3) provided an excellent illustration for the fundamental rule of Horary Astrology that a benefic aspect is a protective influence.

A Muhurta, for a political occasion, is chosen astrologically and many times, its interpretation along the lines of a birth chart has given satisfactory results. If the birth chart heralds the advent of its native into this world, the Muhurta chart marks the beginning of a venture or project in an individual life or in a national context.

In like manner, a Prasna chart can be read as a birth-chart and this is endorsed by such authoritative works as Prasna Marga.

बुध्वा शास्त्रं यथान्यायं बलाबलविधानतः ।
सयोक्तं जातके सर्वे तद्वत् प्रश्नेपि चिन्तयेत् ॥

which means "The Prasna chart should be read just as the horoscope is examined with reference to its relative merits and demerits".

Again it says,

संप्रेर्यमाणस्त्ववशः शरीरी प्रसह्य देवेन शुभाशुभेन ।
ज्योतिर्विदः सन्निधिमेति यस्मात् प्रश्नोप्यतो जन्मसमः फलेग् ॥

Or, "A person goes to an astrologer prompted by Providence to know his future. Therefore, there is a close similarity between Prasna and Jataka (natal horoscopy)".

जन्मलग्नतनया प्रश्नलग्नं संकल्प्य पण्डितः ।
जातके जयद्यदुद्दिष्टं तक्तत् प्रश्नेपि चिन्तयेत् ॥ meaning, "As Prasna Lagna is similar to Janma Lagna, all events should be read from Prasna as you would do in a horoscope".

When the green signal to read a Prasna chart as a birth chart has the sanction of the classical authorities and when experience supports the use of a Muhurta chart as a birth chart (in the context of the project for which the Muhurta is calculated), there is little reason to discourage the interpretation of a Muhurta chart as a Prasna chart. The demarcation between the two dims and a sensitive interpretation can arrive at good results. But let us bear in mind the roles of the two are not identical although each can be used in the place of the other in certain circumstances. The launching of a project, especially of political significance, is almost always accompanied by hope on one side and by apprehensions on the other of how long it will endure and how it will fare. While these questions are there alright when a Muhurta is being adhered to, that they are not directed at the astrologer is what comes in the way of qualifying a Muhurta as a full-fledged Prasna. Nevertheless, it has overtones of a Prasna and can give as much of a clue as a regular question can.

Treating the chart for the swearing-in time of Rajiv Gandhi as a Prasna the picture becomes clear.

The Ascendant is aspected by a benefic and its significator (as 10th lord) Jupiter indicating the Government would work its term out.

In India, the practice of the astrologer being one of the important counsellors of the king can be traced to very distant times. During the period of the Cholas and other monarchs, the court astrologer was a very important personage. The king had to have 5 assemblies—one each, of people, priests, astrologers, physicians and ministers — to guide him in the administration.

No expedition or war was begun without recourse to astrological guidance. Deposed kings bided their time to correspond with favourable planetary positions to set out on war to regain their lost kingdoms.

It was imperative on a king to have an astrologer to help him in his decisions.

According to Brihat Samhita,

कृत्स्नाङ्गोपाङ्गकुशलं होरागणितनैष्ठिकम् ।
यो न पूजयते राजा स नाशमुपगच्छति ॥ meaning "A king who does not honour an astrologer who is thoroughly proficient in the science, with all its parts and minute subdivisions and who is wedded to horoscopy and astronomy, will surely come to grief". An astrologer was supposed to help the king in the choice of good and bad dates for various kinds of activity as otherwise the king would be completely in the dark and fumble in the affairs of the state.

तस्माद्राज्ञाधिगन्तव्यो विद्वान् सांवत्सरोग्रणीः ।
जयं यशः श्रियं भोगाञ्श्रेयश्च समभीप्सता ॥

A king had no better guide than a good astrologer and hence " A king who aspires for fame, victory, prosperity, enjoyment and spiritual progress ought to employ the best astrologer who is well-versed in the science".

An astrologer's services were deemed invaluable and counsel from him could ensure victory against even formidable foes and armies. In fact, the role of the astrologer in running the state was so powerful.

In Prasna Tantra and other works on Horary Astrology, there is always a section devoted to questions on winning or losing kingdoms and related matters.

In questions bearing on the acquisition of a kingdom, the Lagna is said to represent the efforts of the querent, the 7th is said to rule the help and support he has, the 10th the benefits of gaining the kingdom and the 4th, help from friends. As in the natal chart, the 3rd rules colleagues and subordinates, the 2nd rules finance and the 6th, enemies and these Bhavas and the positions of their rulers show the respective influences those factors have in the mission of obtaining a kingdom. A weak Lagna or Lagna lord afflicted can mean destruction of the kingdom.

There are specific combinations on whether the reign of a king will be permanent or for some time only.

राज्यं चरं वा लग्नपगगनेशयोः सहयोः ।
एधेको मन्दः स्यात्केन्द्रे तत्स्थितमतोन्यथा वाच्यम् ॥
यदि वा स वाममार्गे भूमौ वा प्रच्युतिर्भवेत् पूर्वम् ।
कम्बूले सति लभते शीघ्रन्त्वथ मुसरिफे न पुनः ॥

meaning, if out of the lords of the Ascendant and the 10th, the slower-moving planet is in a quadrant, the rule will be permanent. If the slower-moving planet is not so placed, then the king's rule will not be permanent. Further, if the slower planet is retrograde and occupies the 4th house and there is a Kamboola Yoga, the king loses the kingdom for some time but he will regain it. If there is a Musaripha, he may not get it back.

These combinations can be adapted to interpret political fortunes in a democracy also.

Going back to the V.P. Singh chart (Chart 2), the Ascendant being Taurus, its ruler Venus is in the 9th. The 10th lord Saturn is in the 8th sign but 9th Bhava. Anyway, he is not in a Kendra. This would imply that V. P. Singh would not retain control during the entire term of 5 years.

The same rule can be applied to Chart 3 concerning Rajiv Gandhi. The Ascendant is Gemini and its ruler is Mercury. The 10th lord is Jupiter and he, the slower planet of the two, is placed in a Kendra in the 7th house. Rajiv Gandhi's rule was permanent. In today's parlance, he did complete his term of office.

The second sloka requires that the slower planet be retrograde and in the 4th house in a Kamboola Yoga in which case, the lost kingdom will be regained. This planetary combination is not present in both charts; both previous incumbents did not get a chance to return to power. The loss was final.

Another combination that can be equally applied to political predictions is from Prasna Tantra:

यत्रर्क्षे लग्नेशस्तत्पतिरशुभे गृहे तदा कार्यम् ।
न स्यादस्ते कष्टाद्दशमदृशा कटुकता कार्ये ॥

which means "There will be no success or realisation of the object if the lord of the sign occupied by the lord of the Ascendant is in unfavourable houses. Immense difficulties have to be faced if the Ascendant lord is combust. If there is a square aspect, there will be strife and quarrels".

The sloka and the combination can be suitably adapted to questions on the longevity of an elected government also. Success, in this context, can be interpreted as continuing in power during the full term of its statutory life.

The chart (Chart 4) cast for the time when Mr. Chandrasekhar was sworn in as prime minister can also be treated as a Prasna chart.

Question Time: 11 a.m. (IST) on 10-11-1990 at Delhi.

Jupiter as the Ascendant lord is in the 8th with Ketu. Its ruler Moon is in the 9th aspected by malefic Mars (R). The Ascendant is not vacant but has an occupant Saturn in it, so that we will have to consider this sign as more important than that occupied by the Ascendant lord. So we see where Saturn's sign-dispositor Jupiter is. Jupiter is in the 8th, an unfavourable house. That means there will be no success. In other words, the Government under Mr. Chandrasekhar would not complete full term.

We can analyse the same chart more simply applying the fundamental rules of Horary Astrology and arrive at the same conclusion.

The Ascendant Sagittarius has a malefic Saturn in it aspected by the retrograde Mars from the 6th house. The Ascendant lord Jupiter does not aspect the Ascendant or the 10th house. No other benefic does so. Saturn as a malefic aspects the 10th house. Thus there are only malefic influences acting on the chart which cannot let the Government work for long.

The 10th lord Mercury is in the 12th aspected by Mars (retrograde) and caught between malefics, Sun and Saturn. If ever there was a Government whose working at every single step was obstructed, Chandrasekhar's would easily qualify as the best choice for this unique discount. Not a day passed when the Congress (I) on whose support the Government hung on for dear life did not bully it and do everything possible to stifle its proper functioning. The 7th lord Mercury in the 12th (the house of loss) led to the collapse of the Government (Mercury as 10th lord) when the Congress (I) crossed all norms of democratic decency threatening to withdraw its support.

Moving on to the most interesting chart (Chart 5) of the day, let us consider the swearing-in time of Mr. P. V. Narasimha Rao as a Prasna chart, which undoubtedly it is, and see what answer emerges.

Question Time: 12.51 p.m. on 21-6-1991 at New Delhi

The Lagna is Virgo. It receives no aspects good or bad. Its ruler Mercury in the 10th is between malefics, the Sun and Ketu. Not very optimistic planetary arrangement but the clues are not clear enough either.

			SUN 7-08 MERC. 12-09 KETU 27-46
SAT.(R) 13-33	Chart 5 RASI		JUP. 20-13 VEN. 22-16 MARS 22-59
RAHU 27-46		MOON 2-11	ASCDT. 5-29

The Lagna lord Mercury is in the 10th, a Kendra, in his own sign which is good. Mercury is considered sign-dispositor of the Ascendant lord so as to bring the chart within the ambit of the combinations given above. He is afflicted in a Kendra. How do we interpret this? Since no benefic influences fall on the Ascendant or the 10th house but the 10th house itself is afflicted, we may surmise the native may not complete his 5-year term. Since the Ascendant lord also happens to be the afflictor to the 10th house the physical well-being of Mr. Narasimha Rao may come in the way of seeing him through the full term of office.

The ancient works Prasna Marga and Prasna Tantra (both translated into English by Dr. B. V. Raman) deal exhaustively with Horary Astrology and those interested in mastering this branch of Astrology which is of great practical importance will find in them much food for thought.

As It Strikes Me

AGASTYA

A Note on Transits

THE Sun, the Moon and the Lagna or the Ascendant are the tripod of life. While Lagna forms the basis of all interpretation, the other two factors viz., the Sun and the Moon are equally important. The cue is available in the aphorism Bhendu markaspada pathiganscha tatha vritya — judging the occupation reckoned from the Lagna, the Sun and the Moon. These three factors can also be employed for analysing other houses, interpreting Dasas and reading Gochara results.

The Sun is the source of all life—Jeevatma. Astrologically he expresses vitality and psychologically deep-rooted cravings. He is the significator of Ego, ambition for titles, name, fame, honour, distinction, education etc. The expression of self is largely conditioned by the sign and constellation the Sun is in and the aspect, conjunctions etc., he is subject to.

I propose to deal with the results likely to arise as a consequence of the transit of Saturn, Jupiter and Rahu on the radical Sun.

When transit Jupiter conjuns radical Sun one's prestige and importance will increase. Subject to the nature of directional influences, one's undertakings will prosper, promotion in service is granted, titles conferred, cure of diseases affected, affairs with the rulers run smooth and sometimes death (if it is a maraka period) and post-mortem honours are conferred.

In marked contrast, when Saturn transits the birth Sun, frustration dogs the native's path. His claim for promotion in service is ignored or he is superceded. If one is expecting to be conferred a government title—say Padmasri, Padmabhushan etc., his name will not be found in the honour's list. If the Dasa indications are afflicted, the native may even get dismissed from service. He may ignore his conscience and stoop to acts for which he must always regret. His self-respect may get wounded, and the birth chart warranting, he may even renounce the world and opt for a life in an Ashram.

Rahu's transit over radical Sun may lift one to heights of prosperity or hurl him down to the depths of adversity, depending upon the structure of the horoscope and the placement of Rahu. It all depends on Rahu's attendant configuration. Generally speaking Rahu's transit over the birth Sun coincides with one of the most significant periods in the native's life. It entails removal to a new position, change of place, sometimes disgrace if Rahu indicates such a result in the horoscope and one may become the butt of ridicule. He may often pass through bouts of depression and stagnation in career.

Transit results are temporary either delaying or hastening the occurrence of an event, indicated in the birth horoscope.

Unity of India

Ancient Indian history is mostly distorted in the name of progressive thinking, ignoring indigenous sources of evidence and giving undue prominence to western views. For example the river Saraswati is called mythical, just because some of the modern Indian historians are not able to locate it, forgetting the fact that during the past several thousand years, the river could have submerged under the earth.

Some people take the Ganga, the Yamuna, Saraswati, Satadru (Sutlej), the Purushni (Ravi), the Chandrabhaga (Chenab) and the Indus for the Sapta Sindhu or seven rivers, placing them in the Punjab. This is not correct. Sapta Sindhu means seven rivers. A river has a source and takes its course into the sea. It may have tributaries. A tributary cannot be classed as a regular river. Of course, Yamuna is not a tributary but it merges with Ganga.

The ancients hold that the seven rivers — Ganga, Yamuna, Godavari, Saraswati, Narmada, Sindhu and Cauvery are the Sapta Sindhus. The people of India as a whole — Punjabis, Bengalis, Oriyas, Rajasthanis, Marathas, Andhras, Kannadigas, Malayalees and Tamilians recite the names of the seven rivers when they bathe in any river, lake, sea or well:

गंगे च यमुने चैव गोदावरी सरस्वति ।
नर्मदे सिन्धु कावेरि जलेस्मिन्
सन्निधिं कुरु ॥

signing the presence of the waters of the Sapta Sindhu in it, thus recognising the cultural unity of the country despite linguistic, ethnic and denominational differences. Today most political leaders, instead of cementing this unity further, are creating divisions in the shape of linguism and casteism which is highly deplorable. The whole country from the Himalayas to Cape Comorin was what was called Sapta Sindhu Desa. It is incorrect to apply the words Sapta Sindhu only to northern India or Punjab. It may be noted that the word Sapta Sindhu is to be found in the Rig Veda Samhita.

The so-called Aryan immigration into India is a myth concocted and nurtured by self-styled authorities on Indian history. Swami Vivekananda gave a fitting reply to such theorists in one of his lectures in U.S.A. thus: "And what your European Pandits say about the Aryans swooping down from some foreign land, snatching away the land of aborigines and setting in India by exterminating them are all non-sense, foolish talk. Strange that our Indian scholars, too say amen to them; and all these monstruous lies are being taught to our boys. This is very bad indeed." The situation has not changed even today.

On "Superstitions"

Our rationalist friends aver that most Indians, by which term generally Hindus are implied, were and are superstitious people. Why I equate the word Indian with the Hindu is that the butt of attack or denigration is directed only against Hindu beliefs and practices. For instance, if a yagna is performed, it is dubbed obscurantist. But these rationalists dare not utter a single word of criticism against non-Hindu beliefs and practices. That is how their secular outlook works.

Leaving aside India it will be seen that from times immemorial, 'superstition' has prevailed in every generation and every country in the world has practised some 'superstition' or the other.

In these observations, I propose to deal with this topic so that our esteemed readers are provided with interesting information not available easily about superstitions practised in different parts of the world. We are not dealing with the practices as obtaining in India as most of the readers will be familiar with them.

Some suppose that all the gods of antiquity were Egyptian kings while others say that they were Jewish patriarchs. It has been supposed that Saturn represented Adam; Rhea Eve; Jupiter Cain; Mercury Jacob; Pluto Sem; Neptune Japheth and Venus, Rachal. Josephus gives credit to the wisest man. Solomon for inventing and transmitting to posterity certain incantations for the cure of diseases and for the expulsion of evil spirits from the bodies of those possessed with such demons. According to Josephus the expulsion was brought about by the use of a certain root sealed up in a wrapper and held under the afflicted person's nose, while the name Solomon and words prescribed by him were pronounced. Descendants of Abraham believed that their great ancestor wore round his neck a precious stone, the sight of which cured every kind of disease.

Those versed in magic could tell that the five Hebrew letters of which the devil's name was composed constituted the number 364. Religiously disposed Jews wore on their arm and forehead two pieces of parchment containing the ten commandments. These charms or emblems of sanctity guarded the wearers against the influence of evil spirits.

Every Hebrew was obliged to pare his nails on Friday beginning with the little finger of the left hand and then going to the middle finger after which he returned to the fourth finger and then to the thumb and forefinger. In regard to the right hand he began with the middle first, then proceeded to the thumb, then to the fourth finger, in the order stated.

Among the Jews there were observers of times who laid great stress on certain seasons and critical moments which they supposed depended on particular positions of the heavenly bodies. A learned Rabbi expressed the opinion that the celestial bodies rewarded persons who put confidence in them. Guesses at futurities were made from the falling of a crumb of bread out of one's mouth, or a staff from one's hand, from a person sneezing or the breaking of a shoe latchet."

Can Marriages be Performed when Jupiter is in Leo?

SATABHISHA

Simhasta Guru

JUPITER enters Leo on 7th August 1991 and will stay there till September 1992. In consequence the minds of believers are exercised over the feasibility of celebrating auspicious events like marriages, Grihapravesam etc., during this period.

With this entry of Jupiter into Leo Godavari Pushkara also begins. The river Godavari will be in spate and pilgrims who take their bath in the river, especially during the first 12 days, should be very careful.

According to some Panchangas, no auspicious events such as marriage etc. should be done during the period of Jupiter's sojourn in Simha while some other Panchangas are silent on this subject.

Even ancient authorities appear to differ from each other. According to one authority, when Jupiter is in combustion or occupies Leo, vratas (vows), yatra (pilgrimage), vivaha (marriage), vidya (education), koopavapi (digging wells and tanks) and devatanancha mandiram (construction of temples) are prohibited. Violation of this injunction leads to death.

रविना संयुते जीवे सिंहसंस्थे गुरौ तथा ।
व्रतं यात्रा विवाहं च विद्यां पार्थिव दर्शनम् ॥
कूपवापीतडागानि देवतानां च मन्दिरम् ।
सर्वदानैव कुर्यात् करणे मरणं ध्रुवं ॥

But there are authorities which clearly say that the prohibition of performing marriages etc. is to be limited only to the period of Jupiter's stay in the constellation of Makha and not in the entire sign of Leo. A sloka attributed to Jyotirnibandha says: "When Jupiter is in the Sun's Rasi Leo (in Makha) and the Sun is in Jupiter's Rasi Pisces (Revati) they destroy the effects of auspicious functions

(मघाक्षेत्रं तु पैत्रर्षं गुरुक्षेत्रं च रेवति । मिथं क्षेत्र गतौ चेत मघायेतां तु, मंगलम्)

And the line-clearance is given by the same work when it declares: "Auspicious functions can be performed when Jupiter is in Leo, when unafflicted Sun is in Aries."

(मंगळनीह कुर्यांति सिंहस्थौ वाक्पतिर्यदा । भानौ मेषगते सम्यगित्याह शौनकादयः)

These taboos were laid when girls were to be married before attaining puberty. Times have changed. Therefore it would be in order if marriages are performed when Jupiter is not in Makha and not throughout the period of his stay in Leo as is the current practice.

Some of the texts prohibit marriages during this period in areas between Ganga and Godavari. Some other texts say that this prohibition does not apply to people south of Narmada.

I am afraid these injunctions cannot be given credence to, today when within a few hours one can hop from one end of India to the other.

According to the sage Sounaka when bridegrooms are scarce, when marriages of girls could not be celebrated at the recommended ages, when there is famine etc., all auspicious functions can be done even during the period of Jupiter's stay in Leo (बरलोपाति कालाभ्यां दुर्विक्षादेश विप्लवान् ।

विवाह शुभदो नित्यं सिंहस्थेऽपि बृहस्पतौ ॥)

We can therefore, say: (a) Marriages should not be performed during the period of Jupiter's stay in the constellation of Makha only; (b) even when Jupiter is in Makha, marriages and other auspicious functions are permissible when the Sun is unafflicted in Aries; and (c) marriages are allowed when Jupiter has moved beyond five Navamsas or 16° 40' in Leo.

The Psychological Phase of Prasna

M. GOPALAKUTTY MENON, M.A

PRASNA may briefly be defined as the method of ascertaining, on any occasion, the notable events of the past or future, not very remote, in an individual's life, by studying (1) the current planetary location, (ii) the nature of the feelings of the astrolger, (iii) the moods, words, gestures and such other features of the individual, and (iv) the various sakunas that present themselves.

The term Prasna means a question, a problem, or rather, a consideration of it; and the person for whose benefit Prasna is conducted is named Prasta (an inquirer).

Jataka and Prasna

When there is a horoscope to point out all details concerning a native, Prasna is positively superfluous; such a delusion is apt to assail shallow brains. That it is a delusion, we can easily prove. The horoscope indicates which of the actions acquired in previous births are ready to shed fruits during the present birth, and at what time. But a Karma extremely powerful, done in the course of this life — an Agami Karma — can prevent an action that is Samchita from becoming Prarabdha and thus make our experiences not tally with the predictions delivered after resorting to the horoscope. To bring to light and to turn to our best advantage that Agami Karma Prasna is indispensable.

An objection may now be put forward: 'It is while passing through a Prarabdha Karma that we get the instigation to accompolish an Agami action. So Agami actions have close connection with and are discernible through Prarabdha ones; these latter are mere transformations of Samchita Karmas whose long records our horoscopes are. Hence horoscopy itself is capable of tracing an Agami Karma. Why then hanker after Prasna?'

Suppose, for the sake of argument we are able to forecast an Agami Karma, if at all it is going to happen, at an appointed hour in the future, by clinging solely to horoscope. We have to estimate first the potency of that Samchita Karma which according to the planetary situation at birth awaits fructification at the given time. Then we have to see what mightier action done after birth is in a position to make its effect felt at the moment fixed, after blocking the path of the said Samchita Karma to the Prarabdha stage. For this, it is required to count all actions, mental, verbal and corporal, occurring at each and every tiny unit of time imaginable, from birth till the desired hour and to gauge their comparative strength. These actions can never be anticipated correctly, for they entirely depend upon the native's will, and hence dupe our ancitipation. Even if the case be otherwise, they are endless, and our investigation is bound to continue for ever. Horoscopy therefore wisely leaves Agami Karmas untouched within the wide range of probability.

Prasna starts where Horoscopy halts. When Samchita Karma does not step into the Prarabdha state at the time expected by Jataka, it is certain that with vigour works Agami Karma, to search which we adopt the process of Prasna. Viewing the Agami Karma with the help of the position of heavenly bodies at birth is like observing at night a very distant object from the foot of a dim street-lamp. But judging incidents in Prasna by means of the planetary motion at an instant closely adjacent is like scrutinising a thing concealed after letting a flood of light on it from a torch taken near it.

And again, while Jataka enumerates the important matters that will come to pass, from birth until death, in general, Prasna proclaims the most important event, at a specific juncture of life in particular. Our attention which, with respect to Jataka, has to be scattered over a large number of years of a person's existence can more profitably be concentrated in Prasna, on a limited period of a few months or days.

The Psychological Facts Involved

Prasna takes into account not only the external influences, the planets, but also the internal ones, the psychic impulses which mould life. It enjoins a thorough examination of the minds of the astrologer and the inquirer. Mind is a big reservoir of all sorts of instincts. The different developments of these instincts alone form our experiences (Anubhavas). That is why in Astrology the 5th and 9th Bhavas representing mind can tell us a lot about our previous and next births.

प्रष्टारम् सुष्ठु दृष्ट्वंमतिगतिमथ तस्यारभेतानुमातुं ।
दैवज्ञः खान्तरंगस्थितिमापि गणयेत् सत्यबोधाभिलाषी ॥

The inquirer approaches the astrologer with the desire to know the Karmaphalas (the consequences of actions) and with the confidence that the astrologer can undoubtedly fulfil his desire. His thoughts and emotions impelled alike by curiosity flow in one direction, as a single stream, so to say, towards the astrologer. Now, towards this stream rushes a group of keen calculating thoughts proceeding from the astrologer and mingles with it. For the time being, the minds of the astrologer and the inquirer become, as it were, one and the same. It is to this fact that we have to attribute the significance of the following lines of Prasnamala: the feelings of the Prasta should be predicted as similar to those of the Prasnika.

वदस्य यादृशि स्विया, ज्ञेया प्रष्टुश्च तादृशा

Thus is the astrologer enabled to enter into the secret recesses of the inquirer's mind, explore the instincts therein, and infer their modifications which are identical with the inquirer's past, present and future experiences.*

A Common Blunder

Often in Prasnas pertaining to theft, one whom we suspect, though really not guilty, is pronounced to be the culprit. This is because the astrologer, in haste, mistakes the suspicion in our minds for the footprint of some valid truth. Entertaining unjust prejudices against others is sinful in two ways; it misleads investigation, and it brings shame and suffering to the innocent.

वृथा: पीडां च सतां प्रतिबध्नं चापि सत्यबोधस्य ।
या जनयति तां शंकां प्रष्टा हृदयात् त्यजेद् भूत्यै ॥

Prasna and the Past

Past incidents are most accurately declared, as a rule, in all Prasnas. They would have left, in the Prasta's mind, glaring impressions which the astrologer quickly culls. But it is rather a troublesome task to contemplate what shape our present instincts will take while converting themselves into coming experiences.

*The ideas in this paragraph are borrowed from Prasnamalika.

The Qualification Unavoidable for Astrologers

Still this task can be undertaken. But it can be successfully undertaken only by a sharp intellect. Excessive passions blunt the intellect as stones do the edge of a sword. So the Sastra says that astrologers should be as pure and simple as children.

कामक्रोधादिहीनो भवतु गणितविव बालवान्निर्मलस्य ।

When to Conduct Prasna?

The astrologer is directed to attend to Prasna in the early morning when the Sun shines unobscured by clouds, just after taking a bath. The bath cools and refreshes the brains.

दैवज्ञोप्युषति न्सावां प्रश्नकार्थं विचिन्तयेत् ।
अनावृतोंऽबुदव्रतैर्भासमाने दिवाकरे ॥

In the morning, fatigue is least, and shadow is long enough to ensure the utmost precision in measuring time to calculate 'Sphutas'.

'Antahkarana' or Inner Self

Let me elucidate the mysterious functioning of 'Antahkarana' or Inner Self in the astrologer engaged in Prasna. There is a statement in Prasnamala viz., during the Prasna with reference to a land if the astrologer's eyes suddenly fall, as if dragged with force, on the body of someone profusely perspiring the inference is that the land in question has a luxurious supply of river-water. How is this inference arrived at?

सद्यो दैवविदः पतेत्त यदि दृक् कृष्टा यथा, कस्यचित् ।
काये स्वदेयुते वदेद्वसुमतीं नद्या प्रस्कितां तदा ॥

In every individual there dwells an Antahkarana or an inner self. It can never be strictly conceived of, since its dominion stretches even beyond the highest summits whereunto our search may soar. The Vedantins call it Chidamsa, a part and parcel of the Supreme Soul. Behind our hideous ignorance it hides as a spark of the fire beneath piles of ashes. It comprehends the facts respecting not merely the individual, but all beings and things too; and Time and Space set up no barriers to its knowledge.

When inquisitiveness rampantly sweeps in the astrologer, his Antahkarana is stirred to activity, and it beholds the waters in the land. Now, a characteristic of Antahkarana is that it tries to place before the mind, if and when possible, with the aid of sense-organs, one set of particulars (which it apprehends, but which is forgotten or undiscovered by the mind) in terms of another set (which the mind is quite familiar with, and which remarkably resembles the first set). In the case in context, the Antahkarana wants to impart its knowledge about water to the mind. An opportunity is caught hold of, when a man shedding sweat appears on the scene. Hence the Antahkarana directs the mind, through the eyes, to this sweat wherefrom water may be inferred.

If the land be devoid of water, there is no need for the Antahkarana to drive the mind to a thing which is just like water, and consequently, a sweating person, though standing before the astrologer, will not at all attract the astrologer's notice. So special stress is laid on the words, 'if the eyes suddenly fall, as if dragged with force'.

An Illustration from Classical Sanskrit Literature

Kalidasa's immortal Sakuntala provides an excellent example for what I have said of the working of Antahkarana. While conversing with Vidushaka (the court jester) in the Palace, King Dushyanta, from whose heart the curse of Durvasa has wiped off all sweet memories of Sakuntala, hears Queen Hamsapadika singing melodiously in the music chambers:

अहिणवमहुळोळुब्बो भवं तह परिचुंबिअ चूदमञ्जरीम् ।
कमळवसदिमत्तणिब्बुदो मुहअर !
विह्यरिदोऽसि णं कहम् ?

"Alas! How hast thou forgotten, O Madhukara (the word is often wrongly rendered into English as 'bee') that mango-blossom which thou didst once suck, eagerly yearning for fresh honey, thou who now findest bliss in the lake of lotuses alone?" This song fills the king with an inexplicable melancholy. Why?

The condition of the Madhukara described is akin to that of the king who, deriving delight in the company of his numberless queens in the harem, remembers not Sakuntala whose love he tasted in the penance-grove. To awaken the king to his unfaithfulness to Sakuntala, the Antahkarana makes an effort, when an occasion arises, diverting the mind, with the co-operation of the organ of hearing, to the episode of the Madhukara's treachery towards the mango-flower. So, an ache shakes the king's heart; but its import remains unintelligible, due to the hold of the sage's curse.

The Symbolism in Astrology and that in Poetry

The scheme of understanding a thing through a like thing of at Prasna [and we shall here name it the Symbolism in Astrology) has its parallel in the Symbolism in Poetry (Dhvani Prasthana). In a symbolid lyric there is always an implied idea which we infer (as maintained by Mahimabhatta in his Vyaktiviveka) from the expressed sense. The former is none other than some truth cognized by the Antahkarana of the poet; and the latter denotes the thing on which the poet's mind is focussed by the Antahkarana in order to interpret the truth. Hence Symbolic Poetry initiates the readers into the knowledge released from the Poet's Antahkarana; or, in the language of Jagannatha Pandita, 'it tears the veil of the Chit (the inner self)' in the poet.

The Words of the Prasta

Revelation of a man's impending doom in his speech, even while his thoughts are not haunting the future, is not an unusual phenomenon. It is technically termed 'Dramatic Irony' in literature. So every word uttered by the Prasta whose mind greedily gropes to detect the lurking luck in the dark may most probably take the Prasnika to the track of truth.

Arudha Rasi

Among the twelve signs of the zodiac, that which contributes most to the affairs of a person at a definite period draws that person to it, regulating his movements. It thus comes to be the sign (in space) where the location of (the body of) the person is. It is spoken of as Arudha Rasi — the sign ascended (by the native). It attains, for the time being, an importance corresponding to that of Lagna (in the horoscope) for the whole duration of life.

प्रष्टा सामाश्रितं राशिं प्रश्नेलग्नं प्रकल्पयेत् ।

In short, it serves as a temporary Lagna. From it, in Prasna, are the Bhavas reckoned, as from Lagna in horoscope. R.7.52.

Counselling on Fleeting Problems of Life

H. R. SHANKAR, B.A.

THE utility of Astrology lies in its timely counselling on problems of life. It provides meaningful guidelines to plan one's life in a manner to put to best use the available conditions to make a graceful living, free from tensions and strife to a large extent. The birth horoscope provides all the essential requisite data needed to chart a blueprint of life well in advance. This is possible because the birth chart reveals all such developments that are to take place which contribute in giving shape and direction to life. We live in a complicated and uneasy world, consequent to which many extraneous situations keep confronting us from time to time. Though these are not relevant to the mainstream of life and are fleeting in nature, the problems at that moment of confrontation loom so large and in such gigantic proportion that we feel as if the "heavens are about to fall". A natural fall-out of such situations is tremendous build-up of tension and total confusion of mind. The state of indecision drives one in maddening circles. The need of the hour in such situations is wise counsel and reliable guidance in showing the line of action to be pursued. Well-wishers and friends would be as helpless and tension-ridden as the person himself to be of real help. These fleeting problems being extraneous in nature and having no relevance to the basic life pattern, to look for guidance in coping with these problems in a birth horoscope would be like searching for a needle in a haystack. Because, when projected on the canvas of life, these problems do not appear even as a "speck" on the screen, being so insignificant. The Horary branch of Astrology is specifically developed to cover this area left out under Natal horoscopy and make Predictive Astrology a whole and complete discipline.

In his foreword to the book Practical Horary Astrology by Gayatri Devi, the learned author on the subject Dr. B. V. Raman has observed: "In fact horary is more useful than natal, because it caters to important problems met with in the daily life of the average man and woman." Significantly he has left unsaid the practical skill and its implications. Horary is simple in design as a predictive tool; but it has a razor's edge and can cut the wrong way at the slightest tilt. Consequently it yields astounding results in the hands of one who uses it with skill and with dexterity. Otherwise, the answers obtained could well border on the ludicrous and farcical. In the context of practice of Horary Astrology, we would do well to heed the directives of past masters. Neelakanta Daivagnya in his work Prasna Tantra implores the knowledgeable that "successful results are possible only in the hands of men of learning, culture and humility". Horary Astrology truly provides succour to one mentally distressed and confronted with problems, as if the hand of Divine is showing the way. Abused as a gimmick and used indiscriminately, it throws up erratic answers and very often unconnected with the nature of problem.

The kinds of problems that keep cropping up in day-to-day life are as varied and colourful as life is. It could be a housewife on tenterhooks because she is not able to find her jewel. Not only she is agitated but the entire family and the routine of household is thrown out of gear. An executive is worked up and tension is driving him mad as he had to make that crucial decision to either quit the job or swallow the injustice/insult. A wrong decision could prove ruinous. The son has walked out of the home in a huff. The parents are distressed and totally confounded not knowing how to go about next. Indeed one can reel out hundreds of such situations with of course variations in the scenes and characters that keep fleeting in the life of the average man and woman. There is, however, one thing common in all such instances, it is the tension and anxiety that grips them and the indecision that keeps hanging. They need guidance in solving the problem confronting and be relieved of the tension. Horary Astrology is equipped to cater to just this need; to reveal the outcome of the situation that is presently confronting, either as its fulfilment or as its negation. Either way, it takes the tension off and ends the state of indecision. In the process, it offers counsel on the right course of action to initiate in the given conditions that would ultimately work to one's advantage.

There are different schools in Horary Astrology. This provides a choice to the practitioner to adapt the one that dovetails with his ingrained convictions and concepts in regard to natal Astrology. Of the many methods we find discussed in classical works, the one outlined in Uttarakalamrita of Kalidasa concerns with a unique system of determining Lagna in the context of casting a horary horoscope. I have adapted this method with certain modifications prompted by experience and the needs of changing times. The method is simple and involves minimal mathematical working.

1. Following the method adopted in casting natal horoscope, enter the planets in the respective zodiac signs according to the longitudes attained by them, true to the time of question on the day.

2. There is no need to work out the Lagna for the time of question. Herein an entirely different mode of working Lagna is adopted. The questioner is asked to mention a number spontaneously. The number so given by the questioner forms the fulcrum point on which the horary chart finds support. Instead of working out Lagna for the time of query, the Lagna under this system is worked out based on the number given by the querent.

The number given by the questioner is attributed with symbolic significance almost at par with the kind of significance attributed to birth time under natal Astrology. It is no more a mere numerical i.e. a mathematical unit for purposes of calculation. The logic behind this symbolic significance attributed to the number is simple and cogent. When a person is confronted with a problem that is gnawing into him, his mind is in a state of agitation. In his intense desire to find a solution to it, his mind has activated a thought process. This thought process remains in gestation till such time it emerges out in the form of a question to seek solution. The question is in effect a culmination of a thought process which was in gestation; a dormant force now released. The number he gives in the context of the question is a digital transcription of the mental thought force, much as question itself is a oral transcripti the thought process. The number is used symbolically corelate the human problem noted by the question number with the co forces depicted in the zodiac chart. A b horoscope gives a panoramic view of the entire span; whereas a horary chart gives a blow-up magnified version of a speck in the form of problem. The horary chart, accordingly, is v for only the specific problem in context of wh the number was given. For every additio question, a new chart need to be cast after obta ing a fresh number corresponding to the n question.

Lagna is the significant point in the zodiac the natal horoscope, it depicts the native and horary chart it stands for the questioner. Zod has 108 Navamsa divisions which are very sig cant. The numerals from one to one hundr eight are accordingly associated with each these 108 Navamsa divisions in the serial ord Number one denoting first Navamsa in Mes Rasi and proceeding in that order the 108 end with last Navamsa of Meena Rasi.

By simply equating the number given by questioner with its corresponding Navamsa/d sion slot in the zodiac, we are obtaining the Lag sign as well as the Lagna Navamsa sign simul neously. For instance, take number 10. This fa in the first Navamsa of Vrishabha Rasi. There Vrishabha becomes the Lagna sign. The fi Navamsa of Vrishabha falls in Makara sign. A cordingly the Navamsa Lagna will be Makara. the event of the questioner naming a numb higher than 108, all we need to do is to expun multiples of 108 from the number given and bri it down to within 108 limit. The exercise determining the Lagna of horary chart under t method is as under:

1. Request the questioner to mention a number that comes to his mind spontaneously the time of question. If the questioner is correspondent, he should mention the numb that comes to his mind at the time of writing do the question; although the horary chart will cast as far as planetary positions are concern for the time the chart is being cast.

2. Expunge multiples of 108 whenever it warranted.

3. Divide the number (given by the questio as reduced to 108) by 9. The quotient represe the number of Rasis that have elapsed fr Mesha; and the remainder represents the num

Some Notes on Prognostic Astrology

PROF. P. S. SASTRI, D. LITT.

HORARY Astrology has many ramifications. Where a natal chart is available, the chart at the time the question is put operates only within the framework of the former. There are many good texts dealing with this aspect. Of these DR. B. V. RAMAN has given us translations with notes of Prasna Tantra and Prasna Marga. The former has the Yogas appearing in Tajaka. The names of some of the Yogas in Tajaka are purely Arabic terms or they may be translations into Arabic of unknown or forgotten Sanskrit words. Prasna Marga is a product of Kerala and an important feature of this work is the Ashta-Mangala.

Shalpanchasika of Prithuyasas and Prasna Tantra of Neelakantha are nearly comprehensive treatises. The aspects followed are conjunction, opposition, square, trine and sextile. We may add some more like semi-square, quincunx and semi-sextile. The aspects have orbs which are similar to those found in Western Astrology.

The sign rising at the time of the question refers to the questioner or the person about whom the query is put. The event is indicated by the concerned house and the ruler thereof. The things signified by the various houses and planets are the same as those found in astrological texts. The success or failure is indicated also by an indirect aspect. Thus Mars at the fourth degree of Libra aspects the Sun at the ninth degree in Capricorn; and through the Sun he aspects the Moon on the twentieth degree of Capricorn.

Questions can be put seriously or in a light-hearted manner. It is here that we should follow Solomon's advice: "answer a fool according to his folly, lest he be wise in his own conceit".

One should not answer a question (i) if the Ascendant is in the first two degrees of the signs from Aquarius to Gemini; (ii) if the Ascendant falls on or after the 27th degree of a sign; (iii) if Saturn is in the last degrees of Taurus, Gemini or Capricorn; (iv) if the cusp of the 6th house is afflicted; and (v) if the lord of the 7th is retrograde.

The questioner and the astrologer should have perfect rapport. This is meant by the emphasis given in Prasna Marga on breathing, direction and the appearance of the questioner and the astrologer. It is a correlation based on sympathy. One has to select the right ruler and the proper significator of the question propounded.

Some of the items indicated by the houses may be mentioned from the Ascendant onwards: (1) health, mind, accident, voyage, success, form of the questioner; (2) lost money, gain or loss by traffic, moveable goods, speculation, law, partner; (3) brothers, neighbours, letters, short journeys; (4) father, land, houses, mother; (5) children, speculation; (6) servants, cattle, sickness, uncles, aunts; (7) marriage, partnership, love, property; law suits; (8) legacy, death; (9) profit, success, father; (10) mother, career, journeys, public relations; (11) finances, brothers, sisters, trusts; and (12) bondage, affliction, imprisonment and the like.

Time and distance are two tricky problems in answering questions. If the rising sign is a cardinal one, for each degree elapsed, give two miles; if it is a common sign, give half a mile for each elapsed degree; and if it is a fixed sign, give a quarter of a mile for such elapsed degree.

Note to which sign the query refers and also note whether it is a Kendra, Panaphara or Apoklima. Then we can give the time when the result gets fructified.

Nature of Sign	Kendra	Panaphara	Apoklima
Cardinal	days	weeks	months
Common	weeks	months	years
Fixed	months	years	unknowable

CC-0. In Public Domain. Gurukul Kangri Collection, Haridwar

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

The next problem refers to the direction where the desired object or person can be found. First we give the direction (dik) indicated by the houses from the Lagna onwards: 1 - East, 2 - North by East, 3 - North-east, 4 - North, 5 - North by West, 6 - West or North-west, 7 - West, 8 - South-west by East, 9 - South-west, 10 - South, 11 - South-east or South; and 12 - East by South-east.

The directions indicated by the signs from Aries onwards are the following:

1 - East, 2 - South by East, 3 - West by South, 4 - North, 5 - East by North, 6 - South by West, 7 - West, 8 - North by East, 9 - East by South, 10 - South, 11 - West by North, and 12 - North by West.

Some of the observations of Prithuyasas deserve to be remembered. Transfer or trouble in one's own position is determined from Lagna rising at the time of the query; success or prosperity from the 4th; absence from home from the 10th; and return from the 7th. The time will sychronise with the entrance of a planet into the 4th house. There is a favourable result only if the concerned house has a benefic association or aspect. There is success in the attempt or in the business when the Lagna or its Navamsa is owned by a benefic and when it is a Sirshodaya sign. If the Lagna or its Navamsa is owned by a malefic and if it is an Arishtodaya sign there is failure. If it is a mixed one, success comes after great effort.

Aries, Taurus, Cancer, Sagittarius and Capricorn are Prishthodaya signs. Pisces is Ubhayodaya and the rest are Sirshodaya.

There is success when the waning Moon in Lagna is aspected by Jupiter or Venus, or when a benefic is in the 11th.

If at the time of the question, a planet occupies his own Navamsa and if he aspects the houses 1, 5 or 9, the question refers to a mineral. If he occupies another's Navamsa sign the matter refers to an animal kind; and if such a planet aspects the Lagna, it refers to some root or vegetable kind. In odd signs the nine Navamsas are respectively mineral (dhatu), vegetable (mula), animal (jiva), mineral, vegetable, animal, mineral, vegetable and animal. This order is reversed in the case of the even signs.

For a favourable result the following general principles are stated by Prithuyasas: (1) Benefics in the Kendras and Konas, and malefics in 2, 3, 6, 11 and 12; (2) Benefics in 3, 5, 7 and 11 from the sign rising at the time of the query; (3) Malefics in 3, 5, 7 and 11 when the Lagna rising is Gemini, Virgo, Libra or Aquarius and if benefics are in the rising signs; (4) Benefics in 7 and 10 give employment or a position; (5) Benefics in 1, 2 or 5 bring honour and wealth; (6) Malefics in 11 and 12 not give favourable results; (7) Moon in the Pra Lagna does not give good results; but in the 1 this Moon is auspicious; (8) the Moon in 2, 3, 6 10 and 11 aspected by Jupiter brings happi and gains through a woman. (9) If malefics are 1, 3, 5, 8 and 9 they bring failure of business, of money, fear, anxiety. If benefics are in th houses, good results follow; If benefics are in 1 7 aspected by benefics, and if the Moon is in 3 10 or 11, a sick person recovers from his illne

There are many more intricacies which have be mastered. These can be had from the standa texts, two of which have been very well rende into English by Dr. B. V. Raman. The other tex are Shalpanchasika, Lampaka, Prasna Bhusha Prasna Sindhu, Prasna Chintamani, Bhuva Deepika, Jinendramala and Krishneeya.

We have offered here only a few hints wh have impressed us by their accuracy prognostication.—60.91.

Unveiling the Mystery Around Questions

R. M. BANERJEE

1.0 MATHEW ARNOLD, renowned literary critic and poet, once said that the art of an artist is to hide the art but it is the duty of a critic to find it out. If this remark applies to the realm of art and literature, it perhaps applies with greater force to the Hora Science of Astrology. Of the five branches of Astrology, viz., mathematical, personal, mundane, meteorological and horary, the last named one has excelled other branches in importance because of its high frequency of practical use. In a world where things are moving very fast and problems are assuming increasing complexity and dimension, people are being constantly riddled with challenging situations. Every day they face problems and so they rush to astrologers for specific answers to their specific questions. Money has been held up — will it be shortly released? A valuable watch has been stolen. Can it be recovered? Will I get this job? Will that matrimonial proposal mature into marriage? These are illustrative questions but not exhaustive. The list is long and countless because problems are innumerable and each of them again has its own ramifications. It is here at this critical juncture, a Prasna Vignyani or an expert in Horary Astrology enters into the arena. He does not need the consultor's horoscope. No Dasa, no Bhukti. No Ashtakavarga chart because these are dispensable provided the consultor's question and question time are available. So Horary Astrology is Instant Astrology—distinct in both character and entity.

1.1. In fact, in Horary Astrology, both question and question time are very important because answers are hidden in them. But why are question and question time so important in Horary Astrology? It is because just as the time of birth of a baby determines his Lagna and the positions of the planets in his horoscope which, in turn, moulds his destiny so the fate of a question is decided by the question time which firms up both Prasna Lagna and planetary positions in the Prasna chart. The nature of question indicates houses to be searched, status of their lords and relationships to be studied for the correct answer. Sometimes the game becomes very simple. Sometimes extremely difficult when the consultant's analytical ability and imagination both are stretched to the utmost but the basic truth remains unchanged. It is that an answer to the question lies in the question itself and the time of asking it. There is a mystery around these two important parameters in Horary Astrology and unveiling this mystery becomes the task of a Horary astrologer or a Hora scientist.

1.2. Some broad guidelines have been given for search and seizure in Horary Astrology. Firstly the Ascendant or the Prasna Lagna is very important. If that is strong and well aspected, it indicates fulfilment of desire of the consultor, satisfactory solution to the problem, acquisition, gain and expansion. Secondly, as already mentioned, the nature of query decides houses in the Prasna chart to be studied, their lords, Karakas and relationships to be examined. For instance, problems relating to missing persons are generally investigated through the 7th house and its lord. If it is a question on recovery or stolen property, the 2nd house and its lord become relevant because property represents accumulated wealth. If the question pertains to service matters, the 10th house, the 2nd house and the 11th house, their lords and the Sun, for obvious reasons, receive greater attention. If it is a question on possible victory over rivals in a legal battle, the 6th and 8th houses and their lords in the Prasna chart come to the forefront. Thirdly, in Horary Astrology it is an established rule that favourable results can be anticipated if the significator aspects its own house. Fourthly, though in Horary Astrology, mostly short-term problems are answered, questions on long-term problems like possibility of recovery from a nagging disease are also placed before the astrologer for solution. Under such circumstances, the astrologer may be required to calculate Dasa-Bhukti results of the Prasna chart. Anyway guidelines are there but these are not enough. They are not substitutes for astrologer's common sense, discretion, imagination and, of course, his analytical ability to interpret available data.

1.3. An astrologer is considered lucky if he is faced with a question chart where the answer is visibly displayed. On 15th July, 1990 at 11.30 a.m., a girl aged about 20 asked me if the negotiation going on at that time for her marriage with a really eligible party would materialise or not. She was very eager and, naturally too, for her marriage. The Prasna chart constructed on the basis of question time as mentioned above assumed the following pattern.

Chart 1: Rasi: Virgo - Ascendant, Sagittarius - Saturn (R); Capricorn - Rahu; Pisces - Moon; Aries - Mars; Gemini - Venus and Sun; and Cancer - Jupiter, Mercury and Ketu.

The chart revealed the following: (i) The Ascendant was receiving aspects both from Saturn and Rahu; (ii) but the Ascendant lord was placed in the house of gain with Jupiter, the lord of marriage; (iii) the 11th and 7th lord had exchanged their houses; (iv) the natural significator i.e., Venus though afflicted was in a Kendra. So favourable indications were here tending to outweigh the unfavourable ones. It was therefore concluded that the negotiation would be eventually fruitful after initial hurdles and setbacks.

1.4. Matters however do not become so simple always as stated in this example. One Sunday dated the 21st April, 1991, a gentleman came to me and asked me the whereabouts of his elder brother who had been missing since 30.3.1991. He asked me two specific questions: Was his elder brother — aged about 65—an eccentric, still alive? If yes, would he return soon? Answering this type of question often becomes a difficult proposition because it belongs to the category of a 'Multiple Choice Type of Problem'. Prasna charts usually throw up conflicting indications which only expert Hora scientists can competently deal with. For example, the Prasna chart prepared on the basis of recorded question time, 11-30 a.m., of the problem above was as follows:

Speciality of Prasna Lagna

IRANGANTI RANGACHARYA, B.Sc., B.Ed.

HORARY Astrology is a branch of predictive Astrology. It is rational and scientific since it has all the parameters of predictive Astrology. The significance of Horary Astrology is mostly realised in the absence of natal horoscope and is relied upon by the clients especially when the horoscopic readings and the transit results go haywire because of mutual contradictions. Much interest was taken from time to time in Horary Astrology with the result different novel methods have been introduced by our classical authors and innumerable books on Horary Astrology have been brought to light.

Before I delve into the subject of Prasna Lagna and 7th house which is the next preferential Bhava let me outline how to draw the Horary chart. Though there may be many ways of fixing Prasna Lagna, I give below two authentic methods in vogue with most of the astrologers.

Method 1

Note down the time of query and find out Lagna Sphuta and planetary longitudes with the help of any standard almanac. The Lagna so calculated is Prasna Lagna or Ascendant of query. Now draw the Horary chart.

Method 2

Ask the querent to give you any number between 1 to 108, both inclusive. Divide this number by 9, the quotient is the number of signs elapsed from Aries.

The next sign becomes Prasna Lagna. The remainder gives Navamsa Lagna. Now find out planetary positions at the time of query and draw the Horary chart.

Example: The querent gives the number 78. Divide 78 by 9 which gives the quotient 8 and remainder 6.

∴ Q=8, R=6.

Counting from Aries 8 signs have elapsed and the 9th sign is Sagittarius which becomes Prasna Lagna. Virgo becomes Navamsa Lagna, the 6th sign from Aries.

Since I shall deal with Prasna Lagna and the 7th house exclusively, I shall quote what significations these two Bhavas hold, as enunciated by Padma Prabhu Suri in Bhuvana Deepika.

रूपलक्षण वर्णानां क्लेशदोष सुखायुषाम् ।
वयः प्रमाण जातीनां तनुस्थानान्निरीक्षयेत् ॥
वाणिज्यं व्यवहारं च विवादं च समं परैः ।
गमागम कलत्राणि पश्येत्प्राज्ञः कळत्रतः ॥

The astrologer should look for figure, form, characteristics, colour or complexion, distress, blemish, happiness, longevity, age, birth or lineage etc. from Prasna Lagna which is Tanu Bhava. From the 7th house which is Kalatra Bhava, the astrologer should consider trade, business, dispute, litigation, going out and coming, wife etc.

Whichever Bhava is aspected or occupied by its own lord or by benefics, that Bhava prospers while that which is aspected or occupied by malefics, is spoiled. This is the general principle whether in Horary chart or natal horoscopy.

It is also said elsewhere.

पुठणन्ति शुभाः भावाम् तन्वादीन् घ्नन्ति संस्थिताः पापाः which means, that benefics improve generally all the Bhavas while malefics spoil them. The malefics are the weak Moon, the Sun, Mars, Rahu, Ketu, Saturn and Mercury in conjunction with malefics.

This is explained in Phala Deepika.

क्षीणेद्गर्क कुजा हि केतु रविजाः पापाः स पापश्च वित् ।

But it may be a surprise to note that Prasna Lagna or Tanubhava in a Horary chart is not ruled rigidly by this principle. Prasna Lagna occupied by malefics responds favourably in some type of queries while in other queries responds unfavourably. Similarly Prasna Lagna occupied by benefics responds favourably in some type of queries while in others, responds unfavourably. Irrespective of the nature of the query the aspect of malefics on Prasna Lagna is conducive to negative results, beyond doubt, while the aspect of benefics on Prasna Lagna conduces to positive results. These preclusions from general principles form the speciality of Prasna Lagna as discernible from some queries dealt hereunder.

Let me begin with the general result based on the nature of Prasna Lagna and the aspect of planets.

(1) If Prasna Lagna is a Seershodaya sign, favourable result of the query is expected.

(2) If Prasna Lagna is a Prishtodaya sign, unfavourable result is expected.

शीर्षोदये समभिवांछित कार्यसिद्धिः
पृष्टोदये विफलता बलविद्रवश्च ।

The above two are assured if connected with benefics and malefics respectively.

Seershodaya Signs: Kanya, Thula, Mithuna, Kumbha, Vrischika, Simha.

Prishtoday Signs: Mesha, Vrishabha, Kataka, Dhanus, Makara.

Ubhayodaya Sign: Meena.

(3) Prasna Lagna being a biped or quadruped sign, if aspected or occupied by benefics, gives favourable results. But, if aspected by malefics, it gives unfavourable result.

Biped Signs: Mithuna, Thula, Kumbha, Kanya, the first half of Dhanus.

Quadruped Signs: Mesha, Vrishabha, Simha, the first half of Makara, and the later half of Dhanus.

(4) If Prasna Lagna is a male sign, good is expected. Male signs mean the odd signs which are Mesha, Mithuna, Simha, Thula, Dhanus, Kumbha. The rest are female or even signs.

General Query

The querent wanted to know whether the whole day would be good for him. If the Moon is the occupant of Prasna Lagna or 7th house, the querent will be happy all the day.

Concerning Marriage

(1) If the Moon in the 7th house is aspected by Jupiter, marriage takes place soon. If the Moon is the occupant of Prasna Lagna and associated or aspected by a malefic, marriage does not take place.

(2) If Prasna Lagna and the 7th house occupied each by a malefic, the person dies in the 7th year of his marriage. The verse below echo the same opinion.

एको लग्नगतः पापः पापो ऽन्य सप्तराशिगः ।
आसप्तमाब्दान्मरणं पुरुषस्य न संशयः ॥

But Narada specifies the malefic as Mars in the 7th house concerning the above Yoga.

यदि लग्नगतः क्रूरः तस्मान्सप्तमगः कुजः ।
विज्ञेयं मरणं पुंसः सप्तमाब्दान्तरे यदा ॥

But Vasishta holds the opinion that death is not probable in case the malefics in Prasna Lagna and 7th house are weakly posited.

(3) If the Moon is the occupant of Prasna Lagna and Mars is the occupant of 7th house, the person dies in the 8th month of his marriage. This is the opinion of Sripati. But Siddha Narayana Dasa in his Prasna Vaishnava attributes the same fate to the wife too.

चन्द्रे विलग्ने क्षितिजे कलत्रे
मासे ऽष्टमे स्यान्मरणं वरस्त्रियोः ।

But Narada differs from the above two views

यदि लग्नगतश्चन्द्रः तस्मात्सप्तमगः कुजः ।
विवाहानन्तरं भर्तात्वष्टवर्षं न जीवति ॥

So Narada declares that the person does not survive more than 8 years after marriage.

(4) Venus, or Mercury in Prasna Lagna and Mars in the 7th house, the bride dies after marriage.

(5) The Sun in the 7th house makes the married bride bereaved of children. But according to Gnana Pradeeptka the Sun in the 7th house makes her ailing after marriage.

व्याधिग्रस्ता भवेन्नारी सप्तमस्थे रवौ यदि ।

The Sun in Prasna Lagna makes the married bride unchaste. If the Moon and Venus are in the 7th house she becomes an adultress. If Mercury and Venus are in the 7th house, she becomes a widow.

(6) The Moon in Prasna Lagna if aspected by Venus (Venus in 7th) expedites marriage. If aspected by a malefic, marriage is delayed.

The Technique and Marvels of Horary Astrology

S. R. GUPTA

ALMOST all the savants of Astrology agree that Horary Astrology is "the most important aspect of Predictive Astrology"[1] and also the most useful in daily life. It certainly works marvels. It has an edge on Natal Astrology, for the time recorded, when the query is put, is very accurate. We have an authentic horoscope for observation. Above all, an Horary chart normally deals with a single problem whose fate the querent wants to know. Naturally, it is quite easy for an astrologer to analyse a single problem with all the concentration at his disposal. The Horary parameters are also quite few and definite.

Though some practitioners of Horary Astrology do answer two or more queries at a time (coming from the same querent), I am not in favour of doing so, because two or more problems pertaining one cannot be of the same magnitude. But, two or more querents can put their queries at the same time.

Horary Astrology is based on the fact that the result of the problem faced by the querent depends on the moods of the heavenly bodies, e.g. (the Sun, Mars), as the former (the problem) is created or moulded by the latter (the heavenly bodies) if not wholly, but to a great extent. It is firmly believed that the heavenly bodies refer to our previous deeds, which constitute our 'destiny. Astrology does not reject the gains received through effort.

A query should be made only when the querent's mind is tense like a pregnant woman about to deliver a baby. Generally, the time when the problem is revealed to the astrologer is treated as the birth time of his problem, though the said problem was conceived in the past.

The technique employed in Horary Astrology is as follows: The Horary chart is erected as per the usual method, taking the time, date and place of the query made. The longitudes of all the planets are also to be calculated. The dimensions of the houses are considered on the basis of equal house division system, which takes 15° on either side of the Lagna point as forming the 1st Bhava.

The Navamsa chart is not at all necessary, though our esteemed Editor, DR. B. V. RAMAN, makes use of it in one or two examples mentioned at the end of his translation of Prasna Tantra.

The peculiarities of the signs, the nature and the significations of the planets and the things ruled by the 12 Bhavas are the same as in the natal one. The principles employed in analysing a natal chart have been abandoned in the study of a Horary chart. An altogether different approach based on the Tajaka aspects and the Tajaka Yogas between the significators — the Ascendant lord and the lord of the Bhava to which the query relates — is followed.

The Essentials and the Approach

The aspects are: Conjunction - 0° ; Semi-sextile - 30°; Sextile - 60°; Square - 90°; Trine - 120°; Opposition - 180°.

The conjunction is indeed a good aspect, and is likely to cause the favourable outcome of the query. The semi-sextile is a weak aspect and may disappoint the querent if strenuous efforts are lacking. The sextile aspect is a benefic one, and it requires a little effort on the querent's part for the fulfilment of his object. The trine aspect suggests the favourable result of the query, and no effort is demanded of him. His wishes are certainly realised. The square and the opposition denote hurdles, stress and tension, and the desired object is not gained despite continued efforts.

The Tajaka Yogas are: (a) Ishasala, (b) Easarapha, (c) Nakta, (d) Yamaya, (e) Kamboola.

In Horary Astrology we make use of at least two significators namely, the Ascendant lord — he represents the querent and the Bhava lord — he stands for the query put. We examine the aspect and the Yoga formed between these two significators.

Ithasala Yoga is formed only when a faster significator (planet) with less longitude is behind a slower one (the other significator) with more longitude. It is benefic and points to the favourable out come of the query.

Easarapha Yoga is caused when the faster significator with more longitude is ahead of the slower one with less longitude. It shows the non-realisation of the object in view. The longitudes of the significators to be considered are in the particular (their) signs and not in totality i.e., from 0° of Aries.

The aspects and the Yogas (Ithasala and Easarapha) are two different things. The aspect between the two significators may be benefic or malefic. It just points to the nature of progress in the achievement of the object in view. It does not indicate the querent's success or failure in the said event. It is the Yoga — Ithasala or Easarapha — that decides which fate the query is going to meet.

When we judge the aspect and the Yoga, we should also consider the fundamental natures of the planets serving as our significators. I have often observed that a planet never leaves his 'fundamental nature'. For instance, the Sun always hesitates to cooperate with Saturn, when they happen to be the significators simply because he is deadly opposed to the latter. When they are the significators, and the two conditions — the benefic aspect and the Ithasala Yoga — are fulfilled, they will keep the querent on tenterhooks, though he will achieve success in his venture.

The Bhavas occupied by the significators also determine their strength(s). The quadrant and trines are indeed strong places to occupy. The 2nd and the 3rd are so. The 11th is decidedly a nice place. But the 6th, 8th and 12th weaken the significators, and if they do not own them, or are exalted there, the possibility of the success desired is blurred, despite the benefic aspect and the Ithasala Yoga.

Besides considering the two significators — the Lagna lord and the Bhava lord (the Bhava of the query), we also need to notice the planets placed in and aspecting the two Bhavas concerned. Malefics or malefic aspects cause obstruction or delay. It is always useful to have the Ascendant occupied or aspected by strong benefics. The querent then feels mentally quiet and is prepared to make continued efforts to realise his object. But all these things are secondary, and may be overlooked. Our best weapons are the aspect and the Yoga.

Almost all our problems are to be sorted out through sane thinking and emotional involvement, which are the gifts of a strong Mercury and the Moon. If they aid the significators either through association(s) or aspect or through Ithasala Yoga with them, they enable the querent to plan things wisely and also expedite the occurrence of the event, being very fast planets.

It takes time for an event to take place, and the querent has to pass through a particular state of mind till it (the event) is caused. The influence of the natural malefics — Saturn, Mars and Rahu and Ketu on the Moon — particularly Mercury — through conjunction — disturbs the querent's mind greatly. becomes depressed, despond and impulsive. The influenc the natural benefics on the M keeps his mind cheerful.

If the two significators are a benefic aspect and there also the Ithasala Yoga, querent's ambition is sure to realised at the appropriate t provided the 11th or its lord related, particularly to the significator, the querent's r resentative. The 11th and lord rule gains. Their influe with the significators is indi tive of the fulfilment of his obje Here gains mean fulfilment. B if the influence of the 11th a its lord is missing, this will mean that the querent wish not be fulfilled. It will, in ca the benefic aspect and t Ithasala Yoga are present w regard to the significators.

For timing of events, there no particular Dasa in Hora Astrology. To time an event indeed a hard nut to crack, b it is certainly possible to 'cra it'.

Most of the queries pertai the immediate problems. A r mote problem is seldom put an Horary astrologer. Thus, time needed for the occurre of an event is proportionate t nature. We should not igno this fact.

We need to calculate the tim required for the event to t place only when the Ithasa Yoga is present between t significators concerned. B when there is Easarapha Y between them, the querent m be advised to put his query ag when he is slightly more p turbed by it. He may be told t things are not favourable at a He should wait for a new oppo tunity. Any effort to calcul time in such a case is going to fatile.

Horary — The Art of Precision Prediction

CHANDRAKANT S. KOTHARE, M.A.

THIS paper attempts to explain how precise predictions can be given by casting Horary horoscopes. It presumes that readers are familiar with the rules of Horary Astrology. Horary charts given in this paper have been cast by myself and by my brother for answering questions in the recent past and as such in some cases where predictions relate to the future are yet to be verified. However, the past which was predicted with reference to these horoscopes has been confirmed and that itself is sufficient evidence of the efficacy of the technique.

When we cast a birth chart it reflects the patterns destiny is going to weave for the person. In a horary chart, on the other hand, the thought in the mind of the person in the form of question is clearly depicted and then it is the skill of the astrologer and the soundness of the technique that decides the success of the astrologer. If the client's thoughts are confused then that confusion too is reflected in the horoscope. A horary chart should show clearly the kind of question asked, such as whether it relates to career, love-life, marriage, going abroad and so on. If this is not clear from the horary then he should plainly say that to the client. Neptune afflicting the Lagna or the lord of the Lagna many times denotes the confused state of the mind of the client.

Example 1: Mr. A came to us on 11-5-1991. He did not know the birth time and date. He had several questions to ask. We noted the time when he said so and cast the horoscope. It was plain that this horary was to serve the purpose of birth chart and predictions relating to various facets of life would have to be given. The time was 10-37 a.m. at Bombay (Chart 1).

Lagna is Cancer 0°, its lord Moon is in Pisces, a common sign, showing multiplicity of the question. Besides it is in the 10th house because MC is in Pisces 26°. The questioner, therefore, is interested in knowing about his status both career-wise as also from the point of domestic life. This is so because the lord of the 10th house is placed in Lagna which is Cancer and shows family and domestic ambience. The Lagna degree is in Punarvasu Nakshatra, whose lord is Jupiter who, in turn, is placed in Pushya Nakshatra, whose lord is Saturn. Saturn is placed in the 7th house in Sravana Nakshatra ruled by the Moon who, in turn, is in Revati Nakshatra which is ruled by Mercury. Mercury is in Aries in Aswini Nakshatra governed by Ketu. Ketu is in Gemini 27° and, therefore, comes within the borders of the first house, Cancer 0° being Lagna. Ketu is in Bharani Nakshatra governed by Venus. Venus is in Punarvasu Nakshatra whose ruler is Jupiter. Thus we get Jupiter connected with Saturn; Saturn connected with Moon; Moon connected with Mercury; Mercury connected with Ketu and Ketu connected with Venus; and Venus finally connected with Jupiter. The above planetary pattern, therefore, connects Lagna with the 7th house, then gets connected with the 12th and the 12th gets connected with Lagna. Interchange of lord of Lagna with that of the 10th connected with 7th clearly indicates that the person has come with the questions related to status, marriage and going abroad, because the bigger portion of Pisces is in the 9th house and Ketu which is close to Lagna degree is in the Nakshatra of Venus, who is placed in the 12th house indicating the foreign country being 9th from the 4th house.

Having made the above assessment we asked the following questions and the answers he gave us proved that our assessment was correct.

Q: Are you thinking of going abroad?

Reason for asking the question: Lord of Lagna connected to Venus eventually.

Ans: Yes, I intend to go abroad. When will I go?

Q. Do you want to get married and then go abroad?

Reasons: Lord of Lagna is placed in Saturn's Nakshatra who is placed in the 7th house.

Ans: Yes. When will I get married?

Q. Was or is your career connected with music or entertainment and were you working in ocean going ship or in an oil company? Have you acquired multiplicity of skills connected with mechanical as well as electrical gadgets used for communication such as telephone, telex, FAX or at least typewriting?

Reasons: The Lagna lord is in Pisces in which the exact MC degree falls. It is a watery sign and hence career may or might be connected with ocean of an oil company doing offshore drilling. The Moon is connected with Mercury who is in Aries, a martial sign, indicating possibly Defence service. Mars, lord of Aries, is in Gemini indicating communications and he is with Venus, indicating entertainment or art such as music. Mars is also the lord of the 5th or entertainment.

Ans: Yes, I was working as a musician in the Navy. I learned thereafter typing and short-hand. Later on I started working as a telex operator. Since last three years I am working as a Telex Operator in an Oil Corporation.

Q: Have you any time suffered from a disease affecting the liver?

Reasons: Jupiter in Lagna is afflicted by Saturn for the second time earlier being on 16th March. Jupiter is ruler of the 6th also and represents the liver.

Ans: Yes, I suffered from jaundice.

The above will give you an idea as to what extent an astrologer can read from the horoscope. The future we predicted is not of importance here because it is yet to take place and it is also very obvious from the horoscope. The intention in giving this chart was to show how questions can be precisely read and the past can be correctly traced from the horary chart.

Example 2: In this case, the clients were husband and wife. Mr. A and Mrs. B married on 29-11-1980. Their first child whose birth date was 30-9-1983 was a daughter. The pregnancy and delivery were normal. Their second male child was born in 1986 and died after two months due to some illness of the spinal cord. On 28-4-1991 when the couple came to us, B was pregnant. The question they posed was whether B was carrying a male child in her womb and if so whether the child would suffer the same fate as their second child? If B was carrying a female child was similar trouble indicated? The couple was not interested in another daughter. However, they had no intention of terminating the pregnancy medically if B was carrying a female child, but if the child was to suffer from the same trouble as their second son who had died due to it, they would like to get the pregnancy termi... square Saturn in Scorpio and Saturn was aspecting Jupiter by its 10th aspect. The results of 1990 pregnancy were guiding factors for us in answering the question.

In April 1991 when the couple came, the wife was already pregnant. Mars was stationary in Taurus from August 1990 to March 1991. It was clear evident that she remained pregnant when Mars was stationary. Further this pregnancy had taken place when Jupiter was in Kendra. It took place when Jupiter was in Cancer, on the critical Jupiter of the husband. Besides, as on the last occasion, during this time also Jupiter was under serious affliction of Saturn. Neptune was also there in Sagittarius under affliction from Mars from Taurus when she became pregnant. The above being the position it was evident that if it was a male foetus, the chances were that the story of the last time could be repeated. There was also another chain of reasoning. The first child is shown by 5th house and its lord. The Moon is in the 5th house in wife's horoscope; Jupiter in Libra, Libra lord in Leo and Leo lord in Virgo indicated female child. In the husband's horoscope too Rahu was representing Jupiter and Jupiter being lord of the 5th in Cancer was also suggesting a female child. Accordingly they had a daughter. The 7th house represented by Taurus is owned by Saturn. Saturn in even sign under severe affliction of Mars in wife's horoscope showed danger but a female foetus. Actually it was a male. In husband's horoscope lord of the 7th in Libra in odd sign indicated male child, but the child's life was in danger because of afflictions from Mars and Ketu. This proved correct because it was a male foetus. The Sun was afflicted by Mars and Ketu in Gemini and was aspected by Neptune from Virgo. The spinal cord problem was, therefore, well explained in the husband's horoscope, though it would have been very difficult to make such a prediction beforehand.

We came to the conclusion therefore that if this was, it was a male foetus, then there was danger of the past being repeated. The third child in the wife's horoscope was indicated by Mars, being the lord of the 9th in Taurus. Taurus is a female sign, and the lord of that sign was in Leo and the Sun was in Virgo. Both Mars and Venus were under severe affliction, hence danger to third pregnancy was clearly indicated, but it was not clear whether the foetus was male or female. In case of husband's horoscope, Mars, lord of the 9th, was placed in the 8th in Gemini and was under severe affliction. This indicated a male child but grave danger. The discussion so far was not helpful in deciding with certainty whether the foetus was of a male or female.

The horary chart brought out the answer very clearly. The Lagna lord Sun is in Aries and its lord is in Gemini. Mars in Gemini incidentally coincides with the radical position of Mars in the husband's horoscope. Again lord of Gemini in the 8th in Pisces whose ruler Jupiter is in Cancer coincides with the radical position of Jupiter in the 12th. Jupiter in square with the Sun and the Moon and severely afflicted by Saturn was a clear indication of death of the child. Affliction from Uranus, Neptune and Rahu to Mars convinced us that the same spinal cord trouble would be there in this case also.

Besides, the horary Lagna was in Uttaraphalguni. The lord of this Nakshatra is the Sun placed in Bharani Nakshatra, whose lord is Venus placed in Pushya Nakshatra ruled by Saturn and Saturn is in Dhanishta Nakshatra ruled by Mars and Mars too is ruled by Pushya Nakshatra ruled by Saturn. Saturn is in the 8th house from Mars and Mars is severely afflicted. We, therefore, said that the foetus was of a male child and it would suffer from the same spinal cord trouble as his son suffered and would die.

In view of this advice, the couple decided to have the foetus examined to see whether the foetus was of a male or female and if there was a chance of the child suffering from the same spinal cord trouble. In view of the decision of the couple, we advised them that the whole process of examination, including medical termination of pregnancy, if necessary, should be completed before the 12th May 1991. This advice we gave because 14th May was New Moon day, on 16th May Jupiter-Saturn opposition was taking place, followed by Full Moon on 28th May and culminating in Mars-Saturn opposition on 6th June 1991. The whole period, therefore, was very volatile and we did not want the medical termination of the pregnancy to take place in this violent period.

Mr. A phoned us on 10th May and informed us that the doctors had confirmed our prediction that the foetus was of a male child and that it was suffering from the same spinal cord trouble by which the earlier male child died, and recommended that medical termination of pregnancy would be better. On 12th May the gentleman came to us personally and informed us that the pregnancy had been terminated. - 76.91.

Ascertaining Unknown Birth Time Through Prasna

K. KRISHNAMURTI

TRACING out Nashta Jataka or casting lost horoscopes is a distinct feature of Hindu Astrology. The methods elucidated in Sastras for casting lost horoscopes are unparalleled.

Nashta Jataka is cast with reference to that particular time when the querent approaches the astrologer without having any idea of the year, month etc., of his birth.

When the query is put, the decanate rising in the ascending sign at the time of query should be noted. If the first decanate is rising, Jupiter should have been in one of the four signs, beginning from the Lagna. If the second decanate is rising, he should be in one of the four signs beginning from the 5th, if third decanate is rising in one of the four signs, from the 9th.

Suppose there is a query on a lost horoscope when 2° 52' in Gemini is rising. As this falls in the first decanate of Gemini, Jupiter should be in Gemini, Cancer, Leo or Virgo. Each decanate has 10°. When this is divided by four (each portion stands for a sign) we get 2 1/2° for a sign. As in our example 2° 52' is rising, the second sign counted from Gemini, i.e., Cancer should be the position of Jupiter at birth. Jupiter takes twelve years to travel round the zodiac once. The number of cycles completed by Jupiter is found by guessing the age of the querent (there are various ways to fix the position of Jupiter in this way. But this method can be tried successfully).

Then comes the method to fix Ayana. If the first half of the Prasna Lagna be rising (first Hota), the querent should have been born in Uttarayana. If the second half be rising, birth should have been in Dakshinayana.

After this, the Ritu (season) is to be found out (one Ritu contains 2 months). This is determined by the lord of the decanate rising at the time of query or by the planet who is occupying the Prasna Lagna. If such planet be the Sun, the Ritu will be Grishma and so also with Mars; if it is the Moon, Varsha; Mercury Sarat; Jupiter Hemanta; Venus Vasantha and Saturn Sisira. But sometimes the Ritus found by this method may not coincide with the Ayana. Then the Ritus of the Moon, Mercury and Jupiter are to be interchanged with the Ritus of Venus, Mars and Saturn respectively.

Suppose in a query, the first Hora is rising. The Ayana will be Uttarayana. If Moon occupy the rising sign. Ritu is to be determined by the Moon i.e., Varsha Ritu. Varsha Ritu has the two months Simha and Kanya. This Ritu does not fit with Uttarayana. Uttarayana commences from the month of Capricorn or Makara and ends with Mithuna. So, here the Ritus of Moon should be interchanged with the Ritus of Venus. The amended Ritu is Vasantha Ritu having two months Mesha and Vrishabha. If the first half of the decanate is rising, the birth should be in the first month of the Ritu and second half be rising it should be in the second month. The lunar day (tithi) is determined from the rising decanate by the rule of three. In our example, Gemini 2° 52' is rising. As it falls in the first Hora, Ayana is Uttarayana, Ritu is Vasantha and month Mesha. To find the tithi degrees and minutes should be converted into minutes (300 should be subtracted if the minutes exceed 300) and divided by 10. The quotient gives the lunar tithi. Here 2° 52' Gemini is rising. 2° 52' = 172'. As it does not exceed 300, we need not subtract 300. It is divided by 10. The quotient is 17 1/5. This when counted from the first tithi of the bright half gives 1/5 tithi of dark half or Tritheeya. The lunar day is equal to the number of degrees passed by the Sun. If he has passed 8° 7' in a sign, the tithi will be the 8th or Navami.

Then comes the calculation of the exact birth time. If the rising sign is a day-sign (Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Sagittarius and Capricorn are day signs and others, night signs), birth should have been in the night and vice versa. The degrees elapsed in the rising sign denotes the ghatikas after sunrise or sunset as the case may be. 2° 52' Gemini is rising. As it is a day sign, birth should be in night. The exact ghatikas will be 252/60 after sunset.

The Janma Lagna of the querent may be identical with the Navamsa rising at the time of query. It may also be calculated thus:

Count the number of decanates from the rising decanate, to the decanate occupied by Sun. If the number exceeds 12, divide it by 12. The remainder when counted from the sign occupied by Sun, gives the Lagna of the querent.

This method is from the 26th chapter of Bhrigu Jataka. This has also been explained in Dr. B. V. RAMAN's Hindu Predictive Astrology under the chapter "Unknown Birth Times". [FOR.]

The Role of Omens in Horary Charts

N. SUNDARA RAJAN, B.A., M.A.F.A. (U.S.A.)

AROODHA or Prasna is an indispensable tool in the arsenal of Hindu astrology which has immense potential and usage for persons in situations where a natal horoscope is not available, — or better still — where a natal horoscope needs corroborative or complementary astrological evidence to support its deductions. For example, a person may know the date of birth but not the time of birth or he may know neither. In another case, a querent may have a question of immediate importance and importance needing an immediate answer. In such circumstances where the astrologer and the querent do not have a birth horoscope or they have a horoscope needing further clarification, the helping hand and tool is Aroodha or Prasna.

The ancient Maharshis have bequeathed to us a number of methods of erecting a horary chart, which can be found in standard works like Prasna Marga, Prasna Deepika, Chandramala (Tamil), Uttara-Kalamrita, Naradeeyam etc. Each book or author gives a way to find the rising Lagna and erect a horary chart and then goes on to describe the methods and techniques of interpreting the charts thereof. A horary chart erected for the time of the query is as good as a birth chart and will give all the answers and guidance which an astrologer could expect from a natal chart. In addition, the Maharshis and authorities advise the astrologer to look for omens or happenings in and around the vicinity of the query and also take note of natural sounds of birds and animals, human and animal behaviour, other natural and unnatural phenomena around the astrologer and the querent, all of which may furnish helpful information.

The main aim of Aroodha or Prasna is that a particular moment in Time contains a vast canvas of prepainted destiny, which Nature confirms in subtle ways. An able and expert astrologer who is well-versed in Aroodha will be able to predict many events with uncanny accuracy and precision, with or without a natal or Horary chart. I shall relate to the readers a few instances of my own experiences in horary predictions in my astrological practice. These are given after taking out the technical data like Lagna, time of query etc., in most of the examples herein, retaining only the method and result of the prediction.

Case No. 1

The year was 1956 when I was an ardent student of Astrology, being an understudy of a few famous astrologers. One such famous astrologer was in Mylapore, Madras, whom I frequented often. One day a lady came and was about to ask the astrologer something. At that moment, the astrologer's wife came in and said, "He is in the temple". The astrologer simply nodded his head. Now the astrologer, turning to his consultant, told her, "You have come to ask about your son who is missing; Don't worry. He is in a religious place and will not return". The lady was taken aback by surprise and she put further questions to the astrologer but he said firmly, "He will not return". Later, after the departure of the lady the astrologer explained to me thus: "When that lady entered, you noticed my wife coming in and saying that he was in the temple. That was my son who had been missing since morning. It was exactly at that moment this lady wanted to put me her question and therefore I told her that the question was about her missing son and that he would be in a religious place." He continued and said, "In Aroodha, you have to take into account the omens, good or bad, around you and they are God's ways of intimating to you the answers." Then I asked him, "But how did you tell her that he would not return?" To this he replied that he had mentally calculated the horoscope when she entered the room which showed both Saturn and Moon in the 8th and therefore he had predicted that he would not return. This is an example of the judicious combination of both omens and horoscope. This technique, I learnt later on, is very reliable in Aroodha or Prasna.

Case No. 2

The year was 1962. Our troops were fighting the Chinese troops in the Himalayan borders when the situation was very bad. I was working in the customs department when one of our Superintendents, who was an expert astrologer was talking with me and my colleagues. Suddenly one of my colleagues asked him, "Sir, what will happen to this war? Will the Chinese occupy the whole of our country?" The astrologer looked at his watch and immediately told us, "There will be a cease-fire within 30 days. China will end the war." True enough the war ended exactly on the 30th day with an announcement by the Chinese of a unilateral cease-fire. Later I asked him how he had predicted this event. He told me when the person made his query, the second-hand on his watch was at the middle of the minute, indicating 30 seconds. And when he had started for office that day, he had passed a married woman with fruits and flowers coming from the opposite direction which was a very good omen. He combined both events and predicted the cease-fire within 30 days.

Case No. 3

Once a woman came to me with her daughter's horoscope and said, "The girl is now 34 years old and still not married. Just at that moment, a couple, a husband and wife, entered and gave a marriage invitation to my mother-in-law and also Akshata (sacred rice-grains) and Kumkum. Immediately I told the woman, "Your daughter will get married within a very short time, possibly in a month." The lady asked me, "But you have not even seen her horoscope?" I told her, "Not necessary; just when you were about to hand over the horoscope, these people entered and gave the marriage invitation which is itself a very good omen, indicating the marriage of your daughter soon". I am glad to say that the girl's marriage took place immediately thereafter and the woman was very pleased.

The following rules are laid down in text-books of Aroodha and Prasna for guidance and these will enable the astrologer to find out from the horoscope the required answer to the query. However, these rules, by themselves alone, will not be able to give a complete picture of the happenings related to the query and one has to combine omens, sounds and other happenings around him at the time of the query. In addition, the astrologer must do his daily prayers, meditations and concentration by way of Japa, Pooja etc. according to his own background, which will help a great deal in increasing his intuitive capacity and mental calibre.

The signs from Mesha (Aries) to Meena (Prisces) are divided into Garbha (fixed) and Dhwara (dual) and Bahir (moveable) respectively.

At the time of the query, if the Ascendant is a Bahir sign

(a) In queries relating to children one has to predict a still-born child.

(c) In queries relating to success or defeat in a venture, predict equal chances.

The above rules are ta from Naradeeyam, a stand astrological work. If the asc ing sign in the above queries Garbha Rasi then answer questions above stated, in following order respectively

Prasna in Daily Life

K. S. SRINIVASA MURTHI RAO

THE importance and use of Prasna Sastra in our daily life are really manifold. Prasha is a part and parcel of Predictive Astrology. The positions of planets at the time when the querent approaches the astrologer will elucidate facts concerning vital problems of everyday life.

Horary Astrology can be mastered by even a novice of average intelligence. Astrological science points out the way to know what the future exactly is and how we can make use of opportune moments for our welfare, while we can avoid bad results by judicious control over our passions Dhikarana Indriyas - Achara, Vichara and Ucchara viz., Action, Thought and Speech.

The uses of Prasna Sastra in daily life of an individual are numerous. It can be most usefully applied in cases of illness or disease or wealth and position of an individual. We can diagnose the pros and cons of wealth, health, profession, progeny, etc., and delineate what the ultimate or imminent result is. This branch of Predictive Astrology is really useful as it enables one to answer any vital questions arising in everyday life in moments of the profoundest anxiety about life or fortune or honour or profession or business matters at stake.

A horary astrologer is able to discern the veracity of future events at a glance. He can even diagnose the nature of disease an individual or querent is subject to and then delineate how that disease could be cured or remedial measures performed to avert evil influences of planets.

In this article, I would like to inculcate some axioms enunciated by Prithuyasas in his monumental work Prasna Sastra. He was the son of the reputed astrologer and astronomer Varahamihira. The astrologer should cast the horoscope for the time of question. He should place the planets in Rasi and Navamsa diagrams. Afterwards, he should judge the strength and weakness of the various planets. Then, the following axioms should be applied and judgement pronounced in an unbiased manner.

(1) Find out the rising sign or Lagna at the query time — whether it is fixed or moveable or common--its lord is a benefic or malefic or its lord is aspected by or in conjunction with the Moon, Mercury, Venus, Jupiter or any other planet.

If the rising sign be Leo, Virgo, Libra, Aquarius, Scorpio or Gemini and the rising lord is beneficial, then the event to happen will be fortunate. If signs other than those mentioned above are rising and the Ascendant lord is a Maraka, then the result will be unfavourable.

(2) If benefics occupy 1st, 4th, 5th, 7th, 9th, 10th houses from the rising sign and malefics do not occupy 1st, 4th, 7th, 8th, 10th houses, then success is sure to attend the querent. Otherwise failure will result.

(3) If the Ascendant lord is in the 5th or the 9th joined with or aspected by benefics and Lagna is free from bad aspects; the health will improve. If lord of Lagna is in the 6th, 8th or 12th, afflicted, then the health will not be good.

(4) Gain of money by means of legacies, gifts, bribery, crossword puzzles or betting are indicated when the lords of 2nd, 8th and 11th houses are powerfully situated and the lord of the 2nd is in conjunction with or aspected by lord of the 9th. If the 2nd house should be free from the aspect of the 6th, 8th or 12th lord, the question will be fulfilled. The nature of the rising sign and Navamsa — whether moveable, common or fixed — reveals the time of gain of money or the time of becoming rich.

(5) If a benefic (powerful) occupies the 2nd or 5th or 9th from Prasna Lagna, it indicates opulence and honour in the native.

(6) If Jupiter aspects the Moon in the 2nd, 7th, 10th, 11th, 6th and 3rd houses from Lagna, then the native will get wealth from females or gifts or legacies or through speculation.

(7) If benefics occupy the 3rd, 5th, 11th and 7th houses from the Ascendant, then gain of money is shown.

(8) If the lord of the Ascendant or the Moon be strong and placed in the 3rd or in reception with the lord of the 3rd, the journey will be safe. Otherwise,

CC-0. In Public Domain. Gurukul Kangri Collection, Haridwar

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

there will be accidents if the journey is undertaken.

(9) If the Moon occupies Lagna or aspects it or any benefic is in the Ascendant and Jupiter, Mercury or Venus is in the 11th house aspects it, then the native will get money or lost wealth.

(10) If Saturn occupies the 3rd, 5th, 7th, 9th or 11th house from the Lagna, it indicates male child to the pregnant women. Otherwise, female child if Saturn occupies the 2nd, 4th, 6th, 8th, 10th or 12th from Lagna.

(11) If the lord of the 5th be in a masculine sign and the 5th be a masculine sign then birth of a boy is indicated, otherwise a girl. If the 5th lord is associated with or aspected by a masculine planet, it will be a male child.

(12) If the Moon is aspected by the Sun or Mercury and occupy the 3rd, 5th, 7th, 6th and 11th houses from Lagna, there will be marriage. If benefics occupy Lagna, 4th, 5th, 7th, 9th and 10th, there will be marriage.

(13) If Venus and Saturn occupy the 7th house from the position of the Sun or the Moon and they occupy the 5th or 8th or 2nd or 3rd house from the Lagna, then there will be good rain throughout the year.

(14) If benefics occupy Cancer, Pisces, Capricorn or Aquarius, or during the bright half of the month (Sukla Paksha) they occupy Lagna, the 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 7th, 10th houses or the Moon happens to be in Lagna or in Cancer, Pisces, Capricorn or Aquarius, then rain is sure to fall during the month in question.

(15) When benefics are in the 3rd, 5th, 7th and 11th and when lords of the 2nd, 9th and 11th are strong and free from the effects of the 6th and 8th lords, then the querent will get a prize in lotteries or puzzles or speculation.

(16) If Saturn be in the 7th house, marriage takes place within three months from the date of question. If the Moon be in 3rd, 5th, 6th, 7th or 11th and is aspected by Jupiter, the Sun and Mercury and if Mercury occupies quadrants or trines, the marriage takes place very early. The lord of the Ascendant and the 7th must be well disposed with reference to each other.

(17) If Jupiter or Venus be in the 4th from Lagna or aspects it, it will be a profitable investment. If Saturn be there, good will not result to the purchaser or seller.

(18) When a question about sickness of a person is put, the query times should be carefully noted and horoscope therefor cast. Study the situation of the lord of the 6th house and planets in the 6th house; whether any planet aspects it or lord of the 6th house is in conjunction with a malefic. The affliction of the native should be judged from this horoscope and Lagna, Sun, Moon, lord of the 6th house and Saturn should be judged carefully. Generally, the nature of the disease partakes of the characteristics of the 6th house and Prasna Lagna.

(19) If the lords of the 1st and 6th are in conjunction, the patient is unlikely to recover. If a common sign be in the 6th house, the disease will be of average duration. If 6th house happens to be a moveable sign, the sickness will be short. If the 6th be a fixed sign, the disease will be long and hard to cure.

(20) If the lords of the Ascendant and 7th are well situated as also the lord of the 4th, selling or buying of any property will be advantageous.

(21) If malefics occupy the 1st, 7th, 8th or 5th and be aspected by the Moon, Mercury, Jupiter or Venus or if the Mo[illegible] in the 3rd, 6th, 10th or 11th [illegible] the Lagna, there is chance [illegible] recovery of the patient.

(22) If malefics occupy [illegible] 1st, 3rd, 9th, 5th, 8th ho[illegible] from the Prasna Lagna, the[illegible] indicates loss or money, [illegible] and work. When there [illegible] benefics in the above houses [illegible] indicates good results or succ[illegible] to the native concerned.

(23) If the lord of the As[illegible]dant aspects 10th house or La[illegible] or lord of the 10th house; [illegible] lord of the 10th house aspe[illegible] Lagna lord, then the result w[illegible] fruitful and beneficial to [illegible] querist. If the Prasna Lagna h[illegible]pens to be Aries, Leo and Sa[illegible]tarius, then the object w[illegible] fulfilled after some time. [illegible] happens to be either Taurus [illegible]bra and Aquarius, the end [illegible] aim of the querent will be fu[illegible] very quickly. If it happens t[illegible] Virgo or Gemini or Pisces, [illegible]cess is indicated. If it happe[illegible] be Capricorn, Scorpio or Ca[illegible] failure and loss are indicated.

(24) In which direction, is [illegible] go?

Find out the query time [illegible] Lagna. Keep it in a sealed c[illegible] and hand it over to the que[illegible] Let him open it after some t[illegible] He will be amazed at the direc[illegible] he has gone out or away.

Kala Hora and Horary Astrology

B.M. BHARADWAJ, B.E., A.M.I.E.

IN Horary Astrology, a question is determined from the Ascendant and the planets aspecting it as well as the Navamsa. Besides this method, Kala Hora also indicates the nature of Mooka Prasna (unknown question). Kala Hora means the hourly duration of a day. One full day is divided into 24 Horas or hours. The first Hora is always the same as the weekday under question. Subsequent Horas are taken in a particular serial order which is mentioned as under :

सूर्य शुक्र बुधाश्चंद्र मंदजीवकुजः क्रमान् ।
होरारो यावादिवसे तस्मादिह गणयेत् क्रमात् ॥

It means Kala Hora is reckoned in the order — Sun, Venus, Mercury, Moon, Saturn, Jupiter and Mars. The Kala Hora or Hora, as it is usually called, does not commence with sunrise but its time of commencement depends upon the duration of the day to be considered and the distance of the place from the central longitude like Ujjain in India. The distance of the place is measured in yojanas or multiples of eight miles. This figure is decreased by 25% and the resultant number represents palas by which the commencement of Hora occurs earlier if the place is in the East or later if in the West. These palas are added to 15 ghatikas if the place is West of Ujjain, and are deducted from 15 ghatikas, if it is to the East. The time, thus obtained, is called the Dhruvanka (root number) for Hora. When the commencement of Hora is desired to be calculated on any day, the Dinamana or diurnal duration on that day is halved. The half if less than the Dhruvanka is deducted from the latter. The remainder indicates the time by which Hora precedes sunrise. Similarly if the half of the Dinamana is more than the Dhruvanka, the difference shows the time by which Hora commences after sunrise.

Every Hora lasts for one only. This period is divided into three parts for the purposes of Horary Astrology — each part being 20 minutes. The Kala Hora is called "Saita" in Arabic according to the Abjid system. The Arab astrologers state that the result of a question, which is put in the Hora of Saturn, will be unfavourable always. The following paragraphs mention the question appropriate to each part of a Hora.

Sun's Hora

The first part refers to royal personages or Government officers, the second part indicates a question connected with sickness, the third part refers to business of any kind.

Moon's Hora

In its whole duration of one hour, the question usually refers to four or a person residing outside the questioner's place.

Mercury's Hora

The first indicates a question connected with examination or travelling, the second part refers to service or business, the third part shows when a person would come from an outside place.

Jupiter's Hora

In the first part, the question has fears about his success in life or happiness. In the second part, the question refers to income, and the third part indicates a question connected with loss or theft.

Venus' Hora

The first part refers to a pregnant woman about her pregnancy, the second part indicates a question about marriage, while the third part refers to a friend.

Saturn's Hora

The first part deals with theft or loss, in the second part, the questioner is anxious about his fortune. In the third part the question refers to general happiness.

Mars' Hora

The first part indicates theft: in the subsequent two parts, the question refers to a quarrel with an enemy or litigation with him.—12.48r.

Parasara and Prasna – I

S. S. GO

MUCH literature on Horary Astrology like Prasna Chandeswar, Prasnabhuvam, Shatpanchasika and Neelakantha is available. Neelakantha emphasises 16 Yogas which seem to be borrowed from Tajaka writers. These have been covered by Dr. B. V. Raman in his book Hindu Progressed Horoscope and readers may refer to it for further details. Though Dr. Raman has advocated these Yogas yet this was unpalatable to me as to how the founder of Astrology Parasara did not touch this topic although he had assigned a chapter in Brihat Parasara Hora (Chapter 85) to Prasna.

According to Varahamihira the querent should follow a certain procedure before putting questions to an astrologer. He should visit an astrologer early in the morning with flowers, fruits etc., and should sit facing the East as the astrologer is considered to be the Daivagnya or decipherer of intention of God. These lines have been borrowed from the English translation of Prasna Tantra of Dr. Raman. Based on this theory I have told all my visitors that he who will come empty-handed will go back empty-handed. In fact, I have observed those who came without offerings, their desire was not fulfilled. An astrologer can know the nature of the questions also through the type of offering the querent brings.

My article is based on the following stanza of Shatpanchasika:

यो यो भावः स्वामिदृष्टो युतो वा सैम्यैर्वा स्यात्तस्यास्ति वृद्धि
पापैरेवं तस्य भावस्य हानिर्निर्दिष्टव्या पृच्छतां जन्मतो वा ॥

According to the natal chart or Horary chart whichever Bhavas are associated with or aspected by either respective lords of benefic planets would gain vitality.

The object of the querent will be realised when one of the following combinations is present:

(a) If the Ascendant lord aspects the Ascendant and significator aspects its own house.

(b) If the significator aspects the Ascendant and the Ascendant lord aspects the significator's house.

(c) If they aspect each other.

(d) If the Ascendant lord and significator a each other's sign.

The aspect of the Moon on the Ascendant o lord or significator or its own house will fur help in realisation of the desire of the native.

Timing of Events

Timing of an event is a hard nut to crack. V little material is available on this. Bhattotpala cited the following sloka for return of a mis person:

लग्नाद्यावतिथो स्थाने बली खेटो व्यवस्थितः ।
ब्रूयात्तावत्तिथे मासे पदिकस्य तिवर्तनम् ॥ ॥ 22

We have to count from the Lagna, the occupied by the strongest planet; the trave would return in so many months. He further that if the above planet is in a movable Navam the above rule holds good. If it is in a Navamsa, the number of months should doubled, and it should be trebled in case of a Navamsa. As such the maximum period shall three years but many persons have come after years. According to another view the time return of the traveller coincides with the mencement of the retrograde motion of the lord the 7th house. But the Moon and the Sun retrograde.

We have to treat the Horary chart as the chart and analyse the result. This Horary will give remarkable results and the popularity the astrologer will increase.

We have to work out if there will be success The Horary chart which we treat as natal has to be analysed and whenever the significa and the Ascendant lord arrive at the posit mentioned in the Shatpanchasika stanza dur transit, there will be fulfilment of desire.

In this article I shall deal with a special as of Horary Astrology which has so far rema untouched.

Role of Jupiter and Ketu

Jupiter stands for religion, penance, worship, honour, fortune, performing charitable functions etc. Rahu and Ketu are Karakas for ghosts. The association of Jupiter and Ketu makes a person take keen interest in Tantra or black magic. Sometimes he becomes instrumental or he takes the help of one who deals in it. Tantra here refers to one who deals with evil spirits or black magic. Good natured spirits are worshipped as Pitru worship and bad natured ones are called ghosts. Whenever the association of Jupiter and Ketu occurs in the Lagna or the 5th house or the 9th house the person concerned may take interest in Tantra. The 5th house and 9th house are the houses of Bhakti of this and the previous life, respectively. The aspect of Jupiter and Ketu on the 9th also gives this result.

The querent wanted to know if there would be any hindrance for marriage of her son which was already fixed. She was worried as she was a widow. It was explained to her that the marriage would be held as scheduled. It was further told that the soul (Pitru) of the father (husband of the lady) regularly visited the son which was confirmed by her. If we analyse the horoscope according to Parasara, the 9th lord is in Lagna with Ketu which shows the visits of the father. The influence of Jupiter falls on the 5th, the 7th and the 9th houses which indicates the uninterrupted marriage of her son. As the 7th lord is in the 6th and Rahu is placed in the 7th it was suggested to her that the bride was suffering from some disease. All these were confirmed by her. However, she was advised to perform Pitru shanti by way of feeding the poor and giving them alms. The marriage took place as scheduled.

In another case Chart 2 a gentleman had no horoscope. On the basis of Horary chart it was explained to the native that he was being haunted by his dead father's soul and other dead relatives. His son also feels its effects and he swings his body on different occasions. His wife was free from its effect. He confirmed it. Everyone present was surprised that such Preta Dosha could also be gleaned through the Horary chart. In both the charts, the Lagna is Cancer and Jupiter and Ketu are posited in Lagna as lord of 9th house. In the 2nd chart there is a malefic aspect of Saturn on the 9th house and its lord. It suggests that the souls which hover are of a malefic nature. The 5th house contains debilitated Moon which is aspected by Jupiter thereby influencing the 5th house. As the Moon waxes and wanes it was advised that her son swings. The wife was not affected as the 7th lord Saturn protected it.

Many people who visit the author do not have the natal chart. They sometimes bring two charts with different Ascendants. This happens more with those who know Astrology. In such circumstances, the Horary chart is most useful. A lady from Sonepat visited the author in Delhi on 3-10-1990 (Chart 3A). She was told she must be having strained relations with her husband and most probably involved in litigation with him. She must also be getting some money as compensation from her husband and she must also be earning. She was also told that her children were equally affected by this and her money was being spent on Tantriks. She was asked to show the talisman which she was having with her to win the court case. She was so much impressed that she immediately placed all the talismans on the table. It was advised to her that she must throw these talismans in the river while going back and perform certain remedial measures if she wanted that her husband should withdraw the court case. It was also advised that she would go back to the family-fold in March 1991 after Holi.

Let us analyse the chart based on the Parasari system. The 7th house is hemmed in between the Sun and Ketu. Its lord Sun is placed in the 8th house. The Karaka for the 7th house Venus is afflicted in the 8th house and aspect of Saturn as Lagna lord. The 7th house is aspected by Mars. It all suggested that her married life was not smooth. The Sun, the royal planet, is afflicted by Saturn suggesting court case. The 7th lord is in the 2nd from the 7th house. There is exchange of signs between 2nd (finance) and 6th (litigation) lords. As the 2nd lord is exalted, the amount involved is also heavy. Similarly Jupiter and Ketu in the 6th (Jupiter being 2nd lord) suggest her funds are also flowing towards black magic and she was asked to produce the talisman. The 5th house is hemmed between malefics. The 5th lord is afflicted by Saturn and Sun is ill-placed. Karaka Jupiter is ill-placed and afflicted by Ketu. The 10th lord Mars aspecting the 10th house suggests her own earnings.

She revisited us on 28-10-1990. Moon-Rahu indicates that there is no development and she is mentally depressed. The 7th house is again hemmed between malefics. The Atmakaraka S is debilitated. The Lagna lord is exalted thoug the 8th house. Powerful Venus and 7th lo Mercury aspect the 5th house. The child wanted to see their mother. The husband took children and they had a chit-chat with the moth The couple did not talk to each other. She advised to continue the remedial measures.

The process of return to the husband's ho started with this Horary chart. Mars as Lag lord is retrograde suggesting that she will go ba The 7th house contains debilitated Sun and po erful Venus as lord of the 7th. The 5th lord S is debilitated. The children wrote to the fath that they could not face their classmates a would commit suicide if he and their mother d not reconcile. She was advised to continue th remedial measures. In the 3rd week of March sh informed me that she was going back to h husband's house. They had decided to withdr the court cases.

The basis of informing the client that sh would go back after Holi festival in March w based on the stanza quoted earlier. In Marc Saturn was to transit into Capricorn and the S would transit Lagna as 7th lord and aspect t 7the house. — 80.91. (To be continued)

Ascertaining the Nature of the Question

J. C. LUTHRA

IN Horary Astrology, it is possible to tell the nature of a question in the mind of the querent without his disclosing it. Some of the methods to ascertain this are detailed below.

In the majority of cases, proper co-relation and interpretation of the house occupied by the Lagna lord together with the other house owned by it and its (Lagna lord's) astrological significations will reveal the nature of query in the mind of the questioner. But if this does not help, then a similar probe of the lords of the Moon-sign and the Sun-sign will help reveal the question. The scientific basis for considering Lagna, Moon and the Sun is that the Lagna represents the questioner, the Moon, the working of his mind and the Sun, his soul. In fact, the questioner will come to the astrologer only when these three factors get related to a particular question about which he feels very concerned. The querent will accordingly be concerned deeply with only one question which might have remained in his mind for a number of days and about which he now is anxious to have an answer. If the querent asks more than one question, it is a clear indication that he is not serious about any question.

The second method to ascertain the nature of question in the querent's mind is to note down the planet/planets which form conjunction, semi-sextile, sextile, trine, square or opposition aspects with the Lagna lord and/or Moon. Proper co-relation of the houses, signified by the aspecting planets and their own astrological significations will reveal the query. Here only applying aspects are to be considered. When the applying aspects happen to be conjunction, semi-sextile, sextile and trine, the matter will come to pass favourably and without difficulty, but when the aspects are square and opposition, it will either not materialise at all or if it does so it will be after great difficulty. In the case of opposition aspect, the matter will not fructify favourably, in most of the cases. This rule is also made use of, in the practical example, given further on, in the article.

The third method is to co-relate and blend the interpretation of the houses occupied and ruled by Dasa lord and the lord of the constellation in which the Dasa lord is placed. A similar examination of the Bhukti lord is to be done. Vimshottari Dasa is as much useful in Horary Astrology as in Natal Astrology. In fact its use is universal in every sphere of astrological study and correct results are invariably obtained.

These 3 methods used together will invariably lead to the question in the mind of the querent.

Some of the groupings of houses obtained from the above methods, will reveal the 'question' as given on the next page.

Detailed significations of the 12 houses given on the next page will further help in pinpointing the nature of question in the mind of the querent.

The Rationale of Horary Astrology

R. KRISHNAMOORTHY

HORARY ASTROLOGY is one of the three main branches of Astrology. The other two branches are known as Jataka (Predictive Astrology) and Muhurta (Electional Astrology). In Predictive Astrology we prepare a horoscope for the time of birth of a native and give predictions on any aspect of life. Horary Astrology covers the art of predicting about any one aspect of life based on a specific question by preparing a horoscope for the question time. The horoscope prepared under the Horary system cannot be used to elicit an answer for any other query which is not related to the main question. This is the essential difference between the two branches.

On the analogy of answering questions pertaining to any aspect of life of a particular native by using the birth chart, the horoscope prepared for the time of question is used to answer that particular question only. Therefore, by this procedure, the Horary system recognizes a link between the question asked and the planetary configuration obtaining at that time.

The Moon is the Karaka of mind and he controls the thoughts. The Moon and other planets are constantly moving in their own orbits. The Moon is known to have the capacity to transfer its influence to a range of 60° on either side of it (Anapha and Sunapha Yoga range) and 180° ± 45° (Adhi Yoga limits) towards earth. Due to this capacity, the Moon is in a vantage position to influence human life more than any other planet. Other planets do not have the capacity to transfer celestial power except when they are in conjunction (± 10°) while the Sun has Vasi and Vesi Yoga capacity only analogous to the Moon's Anapha and Sunapha Yoga range. In as much as the Sun is not endowed with a capacity for transfer of celestial power equivalent to Adhi Yoga power of the Moon, the Moon enjoys a superior status in influencing human life more than the Sun. This is the reason why Hindu Astrology gives prominence to the Moon though the Sun is the supreme power and is the source of energy to the entire universe. Thus the Moon functions as an agent to transfer celestial power to the earth covering a large area of the zodiac.

The fast movement of the Moon and the rotation of the earth carrying man under each part of the zodiac in a period of 24 hours contribute to constant change of planetary powers influencing him. The inherent capacity of the Moon to control the mind and thereby the thoughts emanating from it serves as a motive force for the brain and its mechanism as a machine producing 'thoughts'. The constant change in the incidence of planetary powers creates a variety of thoughts in the mind. As the Moon and the planets continue their unending journey in their respective celestial orbits, the thoughts continue to flow from the brain in a never-ending chain right from birth to death. Experience shows that there is no rigidity that the thoughts should be cogent and that one thought need not have any relevance to the immediately succeeding thought. Thoughts occur at random and yet the chain of thought is never broken.

When we say that man has no control over his thoughts, the medical and scientific community has no explanation for this. The mechanism of the human brain and the body are so closely knit that the thoughts are converted into action, i.e., the planetary powers play on the mechanism of the brain and control the human actions through the brain. Rational thinking is thwarted by different kinds of behaviour under the same planetary influences. This is due to what is called 'susceptibility. For example, when Mars' power becomes high at a certain time, it is not that everyone assembled at one place will be agitated. It is only those who are 'susceptible' to Mars' power at the time of birth who will react to this power of Mars. The degree of reaction of individuals having the same type of susceptibility also depends on the strength of planetary influence in the natal chart.

The Moon which is the controller of the mind and the master transferor of powers of other planets creates thoughts in an individual according to this susceptibility. The planets are very considerate and always forewarn giving an idea that a certain event is going to occur soon. This is generally known as premonition.

The majority of incidents take place only after prior indications provided by the planets but invariably we ignore these signals. Thus a planetary configuration during Gochara has a bearing on the birth horoscope by virtue of susceptibility to a particular combination at the time of birth. This information provided by planets during Gochara may be alarming or may make the individual more anxious to know about it. It is then a man is driven to go to an astrologer and consult him. This is the rationale of Prasna or Horary Astrology.

The restriction imposed on this branch of Astrology to answer only one question at a time is also discernible without any ambiguity since only one problem can be most agitating at a time in the mind of the questioner. So it is a rule of Horary Astrology to answer only one question which is predominantly disturbing the man's mind at the time of the question. Thus there is a clear link between the question and the planetary configurations at that time.

Prasna Marga in Kerala, *Prasna Tantra of Neelakanta Daivagna and Jinendra Mala by a Jain saint are well known works of Prasna. The first two works have been translated into English by Dr. B. V. Raman.

The Prasna Tantra has incorporated in itself the quintessence of the rules of Predictive Astrology. The rules of Prasna Tantra when used aptly with meticulous care are bound to give excellent predictions.

Jinendra Mala suggests preparation of a chart for every 2 hours everyday employing 8 planets viz., Dhuma, Sukshma, Indradhwaja and Parivesha. The planetary positions are arbitrary and have no relationship to their actual astronomical positions. A variety of rules have been propounded. It may require a lot of more stu and guidance of well-versed astrologers befo the system can be mastered.

In Prasna Marga Mandi, a shadowy planet, extensively used. Mandi is astronomically work out to occupy a definite arc from the Sun diffe ently for weekdays and differently for day-birt and night-births. Mandi is known to cause on bad effects. Especially when it is associated wi a good planet, the signification of that planet shrouded in mystery, always ending on a b note. In a special chart given in Prasna Marg called "Death Circle", the association Tanukaraka Sun with Mandi indicates insta death. The use of Mandi is basically confined Kerala.

This situation should change and the effect Mandi, which appears to have a strong influence must be understood by all. In one of my observa tions in a Capricorn Lagna horoscope, Satur was exalted in the 10th house with Mandi in clos conjunction. The native, a B.E. Civil, did not g a good job for 8 years after completion of h degree. Invariably in all his temporary emplo ments, he had problems, bad reputation a ultimate removal from employment. I coul visualise the role of Mandi in his case as far as h official career was concerned.

Sustained research and study of Prasna Tantr and Tajaka Yogas can improve vastly the scope prediction of minute details pertaining to a quer We, of this generation, are thankful to Dr. B. Letters to the Editor

Yoga Therapy

Sir, - Please give my regards to Dr. B. V. Raman and Mrs. Jayeswari Raman. I have the highest respect and admiration for the Yoga Therapy as taught by Mrs. Raman. Even though I do Yogic asanas for 40 minutes every morning, Yogic cure for ailments is a special branch and I am hoping one day I would be able to join an institute for men similar to the one conducted by Mrs. Raman. Here unfortunately men are given certificates as Yoga instructors after just 3 months and they do not know head or tail about anatomy or the functioning of the body.

Please keep up the good work. My prayers are always with you.

Calicut. Dr. K. D. Ratnam.

Political Forecasts

Sir, - The prediction mentioned in the Annual Number 1991 under India, page 8, "Death of national figure may plunge the nation in mourning" was accurate and precise.

May God bless you.

R. Pararajasingam.
Negrembilan, Malaysia.

Sir, - I just completed reading The Astrological Magazine June 1991. Today at 1.15 p.m. Sri Lanka Broadcasting Corporation announced that Congress had won 207 seats and when compared with other parties it has secured the largest number of seats. Your predictions "Whether it will be in a position to form the Government independently is doubtful. The Congress may have a slight edge over the rest."

"The Congress (I) may be forced to depart from its go-it-alone policy and will no longer be the unquestioned king in Indian politics.

"The head of the Government may be a surprise pick.

"The Rajiv-era could be said to be nearly over." have all come correct.

You made the above predictions before Rajiv Gandhi died and so deserve the highest tribute.

Please accept my heartiest congratulations for your marvellous predictions and I look forward to your even greater accomplishments in the years ahead.

Colombo. M. Mathiaparanam.

Political Forecast I

Sir, - I saw from The Hindu (May 26, 1991) the predictions made in your speech in regard to the untimely end of Rajiv Gandhi. While comparing the statements of various astrologers on the eve of the general elections in India, I sincerely marvel at the accuracy of your predictions. Please accept my appreciation.

Madras. M. Rajagopal.

Political Forecast II

Sir, - The June 1991 issue was right on time. The choice of prime minister is indeed a surprising one. Congress (I) is forming the Government, the National Front supporting it on issues -- the unholy connivance manifesting itself.

The Astrological Magazine has certainly lived upto its reputation. - Congratulations.

Kanpur. Dr. P. M. Dubey.

Sir, - I am a regular reader of The Astrological Magazine for the last 5 years and I have found this magazine of immense help to both a beginner and professional.

The 1991 Annual issue forecasting the events in India are coming exactly as per the wisdom of the esteemed Editor. I record my appreciation for the same.

Bihar. P. K. Mishra, I.A.S.

Ramakrishna Hegde

Sir, - I am of the opinion that in Mr. R. K. Hegde's chart, Saturn, which is ruling now, is not particularly strong as it is situated in a hidden house, i.e. 12th. Saturn is aspected by the Lagna lord Mars. Even though the Lagna lord's aspect is good, according to Saravali by Kalyana Varma, such an aspect will make the native a renegade in war. As you have said in the case of V. P. Singh, in Hegde's case also, the Dasa lord Saturn has some deficiencies unless these are balanced by either the Bhukti or Gochara. Here the Bhukti lord Sun is not strong because in spite of its Vargottama status, Saturn's aspect to it in his Navamsa has weakened it considerably. So we have to conclude that during the Sun's sub-period of Saturn Dasa he will get only ordinary results.

If we study his Gochara it will be found that his finest periods in his political life were only during the transit of Jupiter through the 7th, 9th and 11th. So we can conclude that when Jupiter transits the 5th, i.e., in the last leg of 1992 during Moon Bhukti, he may get recognition. But he has to be very careful regarding health and other matters during Mars Bhukti as it is aspected by Saturn and also Mars in Aries is not good for Scorpio Ascendants.

Tiruvalla. T. Thomas Varghese.

Astrological Literature

Sir, - If today I have at least some knowledge of sound and precise Astrology I owe it to Dr. B. V. Raman's wonderful books in Astrology. May Almighty God bless him with many more years of service to the cause of Astrology.

Colombo. Dr. N. Gnanasampathan.

Sonia Gandhi

Sir, - Please refer to the horoscope of Sonia Gandhi (A.M., September 1989, page 722). It would be seen that Mars in Leo in the 7th house with an aspect of Rahu from Aries is responsible for her widowhood. She is now destined to enter politics. The Moon in the 9th, the Bhagya house, indicates that she will be a self-made and undisputed leader. Ketu in the 9th denotes that she would sooner or later enter the political field and gain success. The Sun, Mercury and Jupiter have conjoined in the 10th. These planets also indicate her active involvement in politics. She will be an able administrator and a successful politician.

Bhubaneswar. T. N. Saxena.

Argala Applications

Sir, - This has reference to the two letters in Argala application (A.M., February 1991). The Sutra Vipareetam Ketoh implies the aspect of Ketu and the opposite of Rajayoga. SAY assures Rajayoga and the degree of Rajayoga varies according to the degree of SAY explained in my articles. But this does not imply the absence of Rajayoga of any kind in the absence of SAY. I find Navamsa reckoning (A.M., January 1988) is valid in some nativities. However, it is advisable to adopt this reckoning in case traditional reckoning has no say in SAY etc. If A.P.1, A.P.2 etc. are not present in the chart, the only alternative is to see whether any planet is aspecting the 5th house or the 9th house of Janma Lagna and then examine Argalas. In the chart given, Mars is aspecting Virgo, the 5th house of Janma Lagna and the 9th house is aspected by seven planets, including Rahu, the spoiler of Rajayoga. But independent Rajayoga is formed by the plurality of planets (though with two benefics) in the 3rd house reckoned from Mars, the aspecting planet.

Hanamakonda. Iranganti Rangacharya.

Kumbha Lagna

Sir, - This has reference to Mr. N. K. Venugopal's views on Kumbha Lagna (A.M., May and June 1991). The article appearing in the A.M., December 1990, was a reprint from the A.M., June 1949, i.e., 42 years old.

In the past, quite often, The Astrological Magazine has published many observations on Kumbha Lagna. Mr. G.P. Misra had also written about Makara Lagna (page 910, A.M., 1972). Here also the lord of Lagna is Saturn, Karaka for all unpleasantness.

It is not correct to ass that Varahamihira agreed Satyacharya in this context. famous commentator Bhat pala was indifferent on stanz Chapter XXI of Brihat Jatak

As indicated earlier rou conditions were in evidence the last week of May. Wid spread weather rains were fore seen in June-July, significant in July damaging communica tion systems etc. in Gujara Central & Northern parts Maharashtra, Orissa, U.P. an Bihar. YOUR Technical Difficulties Solved

Q.1 Rasi: Pisces - Ascendant and Moon; Taurus - Mars; Gemini - Sun, Mercury and Venus (R); Cancer - Jupiter; Leo - Ketu; Capricorn - Saturn (R); and Aquarius - Rahu. Navamsa: Sagittarius - Ascendant and Ketu; Capricorn - Moon and Sun; Aquarius - Venus (R); Pisces - Jupiter; Aries - Mars and Saturn (R); and Gemini - Rahu and Mercury. Despite Lagna lord being exalted, exchange between Lagna lord and 5th lord constituting Maha Yoga; Rahu, being in the 12th from the Moon and Saturn occupying the 11th from Chandra lagna constituting Maha Shakti Yoga; 4th lord in own house and Vargottama; 11th lord in 11th house, the native had troubles right from the beginning. Though the 10th lord is exalted he could not reach top position and retired after serving 38 years in the railways. Why is this?

L. Srinivasan, Nellore.

Ans: Your service of 38 years in the railways, bespeaks the validity of the Yogas mentioned by you. But concerning top position, the 10th lord Jupiter exalted in a Kona does not suffice to confer such Rajayoga for the following reasons:

1. The 10th lord, Jupiter, is connected with the 11th lord, Saturn, by aspect who is debilitated in Navamsa. The 10th lord connected with 11th lord by aspect or association is a negative point. Saturn's debilitation in Rasi is preferred to Saturn's debilitation in Navamsa. Saturn's exaltation in Navamsa is a much favourable point and is preferred to his exaltation in Rasi. 2. No Kendra lord, is connected by aspect or conjunction with Kona and 3. A well-placed benefic in the 10th from Lagna or the Moon for Rajayoga is absent here. 4. A Kendra lord should not be connected with another Kendra lord here — Jupiter, the 10th lord is in Kendra ruled by Mercury, the lord of the 4th and 7th houses. And Mercury, in turn, is in Punarvasu ruled by Jupiter. Thus the two Kendra lords, Jupiter and Mercury, are intimately connected. ○

Q.2. Rasi: Cancer - Ascendant 26-26, Sun 3-12 and Mercury 11-06; Leo - Moon 7-53 and Saturn 24-06; Virgo - Ketu 9-55 and Mars 24-52; Aquarius - Jupiter (R) 15-02; Pisces - Rahu 9-55; and Gemini - Venus 2-44. Navamsa: Aquarius - Ascendant and Jupiter (R); Pisces - Ketu; Gemini - Moon; Cancer - Sun; Leo - Mars; Virgo - Rahu; Libra - Mercury and Venus; and Scorpio - Saturn. Dasamsa: Scorpio - Ascendant; Capricorn - Mars; Aquarius - Rahu; Aries - Sun and Saturn; Gemini - Venus and Mercury; - Cancer - Jupiter; Leo - Ketu; and Libra - Moon. The 3rd house indicates writing or authorship. In the above chart 10th lord Mars is placed in the 3rd house. In Dasamsa Mars is exalted in the 3rd house. Mercury and Venus are placed in the 3rd house from Karakamsa. The native is working with financial institution earning good salary but without rise in position. (a) Why have the planets not given him a career in writing? (b) Is change of career possible during the present Dasa of Mars (since May 1989)?

A. Sankaran, Thane.

Ans: (a) The placement of Mercury and Venus in the 3rd of Karakamsa is not a pointer for writing and authorship. The combination should be thus — Moon and Jupiter; Moon and Venus, Jupiter and Venus, Jupiter and Mercury, Moon and Mercury. However, Jupiter's aspect on Mercury and Venus may give some relief. This is removed by Rahu's intervention between Karakamsa and 3rd house, the place of authorship occupied by Mercury and Venus, the planets of secondary importance for authorship. (b) Mars is the lord of the 5th and 10th houses and is in his own constellation, and exalted in Dasamsa. Hence Mars is likely to put you in better position. ○

Q.3 Rasi: Leo - Ascendant 18-00 and Ketu 28-20; Virgo - Jupiter 9-14; Scorpio - Mars 12-15; Aquarius - Rahu 28-20; Pisces - Moon 10-32; Aries - Saturn 15-12; Gemini - Venus 5-18; and Cancer - Sun 16-13 and Mercury 27-21. (a) Does the presence of Jupiter in the 2nd house in the chart of a Brahmin make him financially poor? (b) Which career is indicated by 10th lord Venus in the 11th?

Surinder Mohan, Kapurtala.

Ans: (a) It is seen that the natives with Jupiter in the 2nd house come from families with low financial resources. But Jupiter in the 2nd house does not make anyone irrespective of caste, financially poor. On the other hand, Jupiter is a pointer to slow and gradual growth of wealth. (b) The 10th lord Venus is in the Navamsa of Mars, who is again placed in his own house, the 4th from Janma Lagna. Hence a career in service in the police department, due to Mars or a fancy-shop business due to 11th Venus is probable. ○

Q.4. (a) Here is a chart in which two debilitated planets, Jupiter and Mars, are aspecting each other. Does it cause any Rajayoga? The 12th lord in the 8th and 8th and 6th lords are together in the 5th also confirms Vipareeta Rajayoga. The Moon's major period is running and Saturn Bhukti is running now. The native has Gajakesari and Bhadra Yogas. The native is on the teaching staff of a management school, cannot hope for improvement in life. When and how will the Yogas bear results? (b) The 8th lord in Chara Rasi, Ascendant lord and 8th significator, Jupiter and Saturn being retrograde in the 2nd, a Chara Rasi, dispositor of the 8th and 1st lords dispositor also in Chara Rasi: does it confirm long life? (c) Does Mars Dasa show any danger to life, Mars having exchanged signs with Moon, the 8th lord? Born on 9-6-1961 at 8-40 p.m. Rasi: Sagittarius — Ascendant; Capricorn - Saturn (R), Jupiter (R) and Mandi; Aquarius; Aries - Moon and Venus; Taurus - Sun; Gemini - Mercury; Cancer - Mars; and Leo - Rahu.

Sub. No. 17249.

Ans: Neechabhanga Rajayoga arises from the two debilitated planets, Mars and Jupiter. The 12th lord in the 8th or 8th and 6th lords together in the 5th cannot produce Vipareeta Rajayoga. The 12th lord in the 8th while the 8th lord in the 12th, or the 6th and 8th lords together in the 12th will bestow Vipareeta Rajayoga. Mercury Bhukti in Jupiter Dasa may give you promotion since Mercury is placed in own house, the 10th from Chandra Lagna. ○

Q.9. Rasi: Libra - Ascendant; Scorpio - Jupiter and Moon: Sagittarius - Saturn; Pisces - Ketu; Leo - Sun, Mercury and Venus; and Virgo - Mars and Rahu. Navamsa: Scorpio - Ascendant and Sun; Aquarius - Moon; Pisces - Mars; Aries - Rahu; Gemini - Venus and Saturn; Cancer - Jupiter; Leo - Mercury; and Libra —Ketu. Will the 4th lord Saturn in the 3rd deprive the native of house or prevent him from owning one?

P. Chinnadurai, Erode.

Ans: Saturn, the 4th lord in the 3rd, is no doubt an unfavorable point for owning the house. But Saturn the 4th lord is aspected by Mars, the Kshetrakaraka. The 4th from Navamsa Lagna is occupied by the Moon who is debilitated in Rasi chart. These factors hint that the native, though he possesses land, is facing hurdles for house construction. Hence the native is not totally denied owning a house, but delay is probable. ○

Q. 10. To find out whether a Dasa is important among other considerations, constellation position of the planet is also important. Suppose the Ascendant is Leo, Rahu is in he 6th house, Capricorn in Uttarashadha. Here Rahu is in the enemy's star, however in the Lagna lord's constellation. How would you evaluate Rahu Dasa in this case ?

M. Venkatasubramaniyan, Madurai.

Ans: The Sun should not be afflicted by Rahu by association or by Rahu's constellation. Here in your chart, Rahu is controlled by being in the constellation of the Sun who is the lord of Lagna. But he is in the 6th from Lagna. Hence, Rahu Dasa may give mixed results. For service matters, money etc. it may be good, but it creates quarrels, diseases, parental fatality etc. However since he is in the constellation of Lagna lord, he cannot humiliate the native, by Avayogas. ○

Q. 11. When and what sort of a career does the chart show? Rasi: Scorpio - Ascendant and Mandi: Capricorn - Sun and Mercury; Aquarius - Venus; Pisces - Saturn; Aries - Rahu; Cancer - Moon and Jupiter (R); and Libra - Mars and Ketu. Navamsa: Capricorn - Ascendant and Moon; Aquarius - Mandi; Aries - Ketu; Taurus - Sun; Cancer - Mercury; Leo - Jupiter and Saturn; and Libra - Mars, Venus and Rahu.

Ans: It is not known whether the Moon or Mercury becomes Atmakaraka due to lack of proper data. Either way Jupiter, Moon and Mercury are connected in both Rasi and Navamsa charts. In Rasi chart the 2nd of Atmakaraka Mercury is occupied by Venus receiving the aspect of the Moon and Jupiter. If the Moon is Atmakaraka, he is conjunct Jupiter aspected by Venus. In Navamsa also, the 2nd of Atmakaraka Mercury is occupied by Jupiter and aspected by Venus and Moon. In view of the above pointers for educational career, the chart indicates teaching profession in college or in university level. ○

D. S. Shetty, Bangalore.

Ans: Actually four planets are deemed to have conjoined in a house, since Rahu/Ketu do not possess any special role in the planetary group. By the conjunction of the Sun, Mercury, Venus, Saturn, the native is an eloquent speaker or talkative, wealthy, scholarly, happy, friendly and of a helping nature. Since the conjunction is in the 9th house the native is not only wealthy but also much reputed and truthful. ○ these Yogas operate in Jupiter Dasa fully or if not fully, to what extent will they operate? Rasi: Sagittarius - Ascendant 19-57; Virgo - Moon 21-34 and Mercury 4-52; Leo - Sun 29-38 and Venus 5-44; Cancer - Mars 20-22 and Jupiter 4-49; Pisces - Saturn 3-17 (R); Aries - Rahu 25-34; and Libra - Ketu 25-34 and Gulika 4-38.

S. Hariharan, Madras.

Ans: Guru Mangala Yoga does not form Rajayoga in the 8th house. The conjunction of the lords of 4th and 5th houses in the 8th may give a feeble Rajayoga. Jupiter Dasa gives good results in matters of profession, service etc. by the simple principle of exaltation in 9th sthana of Lagna lord. ○

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mrs. Gayatri Devi has lucidly illustrated the Chandra Gupti Chakra. I would like to point out the analogy to the so-called modern technique of "Map-Dowsing" in which a neutral dowsing is carried out on a map or photograph of a plot with the help of a pendulum. Unbelievable and surprising as it may seem, it, in experience, works miracles and gives very tangible results. As a map or photo has the same wavelength as an object or a plot, the dowsing effect on the map corresponds to that on the plot. This technique also dispenses with the need to travel and visit the site personally.

Astrologers have a far more comprehensive view of the science than the so-called 'modern scientists' with a limited range of hypothetical theories.

"The Sun-Moon Limitations"

Sir, - The above article (A.M., April 1991) though it reiterates the Brihat Jataka sloka misses conspicuously the right approach in prediction. We require elucidation on the real intentions of the author (of Brihat Jataka) in presenting this sloka, based on empirical studies and on the notes of other eminent authors.

There are text-books which give the qualities, appearance etc. attributable to each planet, Lagna, etc., but if one is to totally depend on them and venture predictions, I am afraid, astrological predictions would have lost meaning long ago. Any observations of our great authors should be weighed meticulously in the context of varying, complex and sometimes bewildering formulations of planets, before one ventures to reason why a certain peculiar event has occurred and so on.

In Chart I given in the article, the Sun and Mercury are in the same degree, and that must be the prime reason for the malady and not the opposition of the luminaries. In Chart II the affliction should be traced to the malefic planets in Virgo, where also, the Sun and Mercury (R) are not far apart to avoid the catastrophe. In Chart III also the Sun and Mercury are so close that the functional faculties (of Mercury who governs the nervous system also) cannot but be affected adversely. In Chart IV, Mercury (R) is the mischief maker. In Chart V the accident occurred during the Dasa of Jupiter, lord of 3 and 12, posited in 2, a Marakasthana, aspected by lord of 6 (and 9). In addition, the Sun, lord of 8 and Rahu are in Marakasthana, in the same degree. When such strong reasons are seen in the chart, why blame the Sun and the Moon alone for the ostensible reason that the Brihat Jataka sloka points out the adverse effects of the Sun and the Moon in square or in conjunction.

On the other hand, certain authentic texts assert that the Lagna lord, the Sun and the Moon, when posited in square, and when any one of them is exalted or occupies his own house, the native acquires exemplary virtues.

I would like to add that insanity is a very grave illness having no parallel and such affliction is seen, broadly speaking, where the Sun, the Moon, Mercury, Lagna lord and 5th lord are severely afflicted (in the case of congenital maladies) while in other cases, the ruling Dasa lord and sub-lords are such malefic planets as to cause this kind of affliction, in lieu of causing death, because insanity is legal death.

Will the A.M. help its readers in understanding the real significance of the Brihat Jataka sloka in question ?

Madras. G. Chandrasekar.

Sir, - Your magazine is definitely the "King" of bonafide Astrology. Vedic Astrology is slowly and surely taking a foothold here in America, like Ayurveda. And I want to push your magazine. It is important to make public that such an important organisation exists.

11. KUMBHA (Aquarius)

General: The Sun in the 7th and the 8th, Mars in the 8th, Venus in the 7th and the 6th and Saturn in the 12th are all thoroughly unsatisfactory but the redeeming feature is that all of them do not have a penchant to indulge in their evil proclivities and are under check; the Sun, Mars and Saturn throughout and Venus from 6th to 21st. The silver lining in the otherwise dark cloud is the favourable disposition of the Dhanakaraka, Jupiter, during his favourable transit of the 7th in this month. That Mercury alone is not sufficient to ensure peace of mind and consequent happy life will become obvious when the bad influences have the upper hand. While prosperity will be there general happiness will be lacking. Poorvabhadra is better than Satabhisha and Dhanishta.

Health and Domestic: Glaucoma in the left eye may develop and cause considerable annoyance to you. Prompt medical attention is necessary and you may have to be prepared for prolonged treatment. Chronic sufferers may find the period trying. You may have to keep your fingers crossed in so far as peace and harmony in the domestic sphere are concerned.

Real Property, Services, Professions, etc.: It is advisable to postpone all activities in the field of real property matters. Agricultural crops may be damaged by pests. Services may find the period helpful. Professions and businesses may not find the period unsatisfactory.

Women: It is advisable to curtail your social activities considerably. While you have enough financial resources to satisfy your instinct and impulse for luxurious articles it will be worthwhile for you to regulate such impulses and channellize them into proper directions by rescuing your will from conscious slavery to impulse. Employed girls will have to be extremely careful.

SPECIALITY OF PRASNA LAGNA » 700

...cerning Disputes, Litigation, Fights

1. A malefic in Prasna Lagna gives success to ...querent. But if the malefic in Prasna Lagna is ...tated or combust, the querent gets defeated.

2. If both Prasna Lagna and 7th house are ...pied by the malefics, the dispute continues for ...g period. Success is probable to the querent ...a malefic in Prasna Lagna is stronger than the ...fic in the 7th house. Success is probable to ...opponent if the malefic in 7th house is stron... than the malefic in Prasna Lagna.

According to Prasna Bhushana,

...दीनो विजय प्रश्ने लग्ने क्रूरे तदा जयः ।
...दे स्यात्स प्त मे क्रूरे विजयः प्रतिवादिनः ॥

Success goes to the querent by a malefic in ...na Lagna. But success goes to the opponent ...a malefic in the 7th house. This is the same as ...g that a benefic in Prasna Lagna brings about ...t to the querent and a benefic in the 7th house ...g about defeat to the opponent. Aspect of a ...fic is beneficial to either of the two. And de... a inevitable to the querent by the aspect of a ...fic on Prasna Lagna, while a malefic in Prasna ...a brings success or victory to the querent. Padma Prabhu Suri confirms this in his ...na Deepika:

...रे शत्रुहनने रणे संकरके तथा ।
...र्तौ जयो ज्ञेयः क्रूरदृष्टया पराजयः ॥

...Illness and Death

(1) A malefic in the 7th house and the Moon in ...na Lagna, the patient dies.

(2) The Sun in Prasna Lagna and the Moon in ...7th house, death of the patient is probable.

(3) One strong benefic in Prasna Lagna saves ...patient.

...ग्रहो बली लग्ने त्रायते रोगपीडितम् ।

(4) The Moon in Prasna Lagna and the Sun in ...7th, death of the patient is probable.

...ने लग्ने स्मरे भानौ रोगी याति यमालयम् ।

(5) If the Full Moon is the occupant of Prasna Lagna and is aspected by Jupiter, the person will be cured of his disease soon. The Moon is said to be full from the 11th lunar day of the bright fortnight till the 5th lunar day of the dark fortnight.

(6) If the Moon or Mercury occupies Prasna Lagna and is aspected by a malefic, the illness is nearly incurable.

Traveller—Safe or Dead

(1) A strong malefic in Prasna Lagna indicates that he is neither dead nor imprisoned, but safe.

(2) A malefic in the 7th house or malefics in both Prasna Lagna and 7th house indicate that he is either dead or imprisoned.

(3) If Prasna Lagna being a Prishtodaya sign is aspected by a malefic, imprisonment or death may happen. But if it is aspected by a benefic, he is quite safe.

(4) If Durdhara Yoga is formed by benefics in respect of the 7th house, the person is delayed from returning owing to the compulsion of his friends and superiors. But if it is formed by malefics, he is prevented from his return by his enemies, illness or thieves.

Return of Traveller

Find out the strongest planet, count the number of signs from Prasna Lagna to the sign occupied by the strongest planet. The number of signs will be the number of months in which he will return. If the strongest planet is in a movable Navamsa sign, the above periods hold good. If he is in a fixed Navamsa sign, the number should be doubled. If he is in a dual Navamsa sign, the number should be trebled.

Theft, Stolen Articles, Their Recovery

(1) If Prasna Lagna is occupied by a malefic, the thief will be successful in his attempt of theft. But if it is aspected by a malefic, he would be in trouble. If Prasna Lagna is occupied by a benefic, he would be safe but unsuccessful in stealing.

(2) If Prasna Lagna is a Seershodaya sign and is occupied by the Full Moon or any benefic planet, the lost article will be recovered soon.

(3) If both Prasna Lagna and 7th house are occupied by any of the benefics, namely, Jupiter, Venus, Mercury, Full Moon, the lost article will be recovered soon.

(4) If Prasna Lagna is connected with malefics by aspect or occupancy, the lost article cannot be recovered.

(5) If Prasna Lagna is a fixed sign and is in Vargottamamsa, the article must have been stolen by a relative of the querent. If it is a cardinal sign, the thief is an outsider. If it is a fixed sign, the article has not gone outside.

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

(6) If the 1st Drekkana of Prasna Lagna is rising, the lost article is in the vicinity of the main gate. If it is the 2nd Drekkana, it is inside the house. If it is 3rd Drekkana, it is in the backyard of the house.

आदिमध्यवसानेषु द्रेक्काणेषु विलग्नतः ।
द्वारदेशे तथा मध्ये गृहान्ते च वदेद्धनम् ।

(7) To know which direction the article or money is taken away, judge the direction of the planet strongly placed in Kendra or consider the direction assigned to the sign of Prasna Lagna.

Sun=East, Moon=North-west, Mars=South, Mercury=North, Venus=South-east, Jupiter= North-east, Saturn=West, Rahu= South-west.

Mesha=East, Simha, Dhanus=South-east, Vrishabha=South, Kanya, Makara=South-west, Thula, Kumbha= North-west, Mithuna=West, Karkataka= North, Vrischika, Meena=North-east.

Employment and Promotion

(1) Prasna Lagna occupied by its own lord indicates gain of position like job, promotion etc.

(2) If Prasna Lagna is a fixed sign and is occupied or aspected by any benefic, the querent gets his desired object of securing a job.

(3) If Prasna Lagna is a Seershodaya sign and occupied by a benefic, he is sure to secure job.

(4) If Venus is the occupant of the 7th house, the querent gets a job. If Venus conjoins any other benefic in the 7th house, he is sure to get his desired post with pleasure. If associated with a malefic, he gets the post with difficulty after keen contest.

Timing Events

(1) The number of signs between Prasna Lagna and the Moon will be the number of days for fulfilment.

(2) Find out the number of Navamsa of Prasna Lagna and the lord of Navamsa. The number would be number of days, months etc., according to the planetary periods as follows:-

The Sun—Ayana (six months); Moon—minutes; Mars—days; Mercury—seasons; Jupiter—months; Venus—Paksha (fortnight); and Saturn—years.

Example: The Prasna Lagna is Mesha, the 2nd Navamsa Taurus. The Navamsa lord Venus. Hence two Pakshas i.e. one month is period of fulfilment. So the querent has to wa a month for fulfilment of his desire.

Degree of Success

(1) Prasna Lagna if aspected by one benef 25%.

(2) Prasna Lagna if aspected by its own lord 50%.

(3) Prasna Lagna if aspected by its lord a benefic—75%.

(4) Prasna Lagna if aspected by its lord and benefics—85%.

(5) Prasna Lagna if aspected by its lord a Jupiter, Venus, Mercury, Moon—100%.

If the query is concerned with examinat the above range may be graded from pass to highest distinction. Last but not least, th remains one more item left unanswered: It is what should an astrologer do if he has to atten two or more queries or querents ?

Chandeswara answers thus:

आदिमं लग्नतो ज्ञानं चन्द्रस्थानात् द्वितीयकम् ।
सूर्यस्थानात् तृतीयं स्यात् तुर्यं जीवगृहाद्भवेत् ॥
बुधभृग्वोर्बलीयान् स्यात् तद्गृहात् पंचमं पुनः ।

The astrologer should base the 1st query Prasna Lagna, the 2nd query on the sign occup by the Moon, the 3rd query on the sign occup by the Sun, the 4th query on the sign occupie Jupiter, 5th by the stronger of Mercury a Venus. But Padma Prabha Suri in Bhuva Deepika holds the opinion that the 5th query dependent on the stronger of Mercury, Ven Mars and the 6th query on Saturn. But Jup cannot stand for Prasna Lagna if he is debilit or combust. If Saturn is weakly placed, stronger of Mercury, Venus and Mars comes the rescue of Prasna Lagna. —71..93.

Strive continuously to overcome moods; for as soon as you feel moody you are cultivating seeds of error in the soil of your soul.

Once we have guaged the question, we proceed to find out whether the result will be favourable or not. For this purpose, we apply all those rules of interpretation to Horary chart, which are applicable to the natal chart. In other words, if the Lagna and the house of query have predominantly beneficial influences, the result will be favourable and if the influences are predominantly malefic, the result will be negative. Besides Lagna and the house of query, the Moon, the Sun and the 10th house should also be analysed for benefic or malefic influences.

More than one condition, from amongst the following present in the Horary chart, will indicate positive results:

1. The Lagna lord aspects the Lagna and the lord of the house concerning the query aspects its own house.
2. The Lagna lord aspects the house pertaining to query and the lord of the house pertaining to query aspects Lagna.
3. Lords of Lagna and the house concerning the query aspect each other.
4. The Moon aspects the Lagna lord or the lord of the house pertaining to query.
5. The lord of the house pertaining to query is situated in Lagna and aspects the Lagna lord or Moon from there.
6. The lord of the house pertaining to query aspects the Lagna from any sign.
7. The lord of the house pertaining to query aspects either Lagna or Lagna lord or the Moon.

8. Both the Lagna lord and the lord of the house pertaining to query are situated either in Lagna or in the house concerning query.
9. Jupiter, Venus or Mercury being the lord of the house pertaining to query, is situated in the house concerning the query or aspects it.
10. If malefics do not occupy 1, 4, 7, 8, 10 and 12 and if Lagna lord or its friend is situated in 1, 4, 7 or 10.
11. If a benefic like Jupiter, Venus or Mercury is situated in 5 or 9 and a malefic Saturn, Mars or Sun is placed in 3, 6 or 11.
12. When lords of Lagna and house pertaining to query are benefic by nature and occupy good houses aspecting each other.
13. When Lagna is occupied by a benefic and Navamsa Lagna belongs to a benefic and also if Lagna or Navamsa Lagna falls in Sirshodaya sign.
14. Benefics in Kendra and Konas with no malefic in 8th house indicate success. If Jupiter and Venus are also situated together in the 2nd or the 3rd house, the gain is immediate.

The following are some combinations pointing to positive or negative results;

1. If Lagna is occupied by a malefic or if Navamsa Lagna belongs to a malefic or if Lagna or Navamsa Lagna are in Prishtodaya signs, one will not be successful in his object.
2. If Lagna falls in a moveable sign occupied by a benefic planet, success is assured. If malefics occupy such a Lagna, failure is indicated. If, however, Lagna falls in a fixed sign with malefics present there, result is advantageous.
3. If benefics occupy 7th and the 10th, then success or improvement in status is indicated. If benefics occupy 1, 2 or 5, one can aspect gains, authority and prestige. The Moon in the 10th house is an additional aid in getting the above things. Evil planets in 11th or 12th house cannot reduce the good results promised above.
4. Presence of benefics in 3, 5, 7 and 11 indicate success while malefics in that situation bring about failure.
5. If Lagna lord is situated in a Kendra or Kona, there will be success even if the sign occupied by the aforesaid houses happens to be an inimical sign. If Lagna lord is placed in the 6th, 8th or 12th, failure is the result generally.

Practical Example

I shall illustrate the aforesaid rules with the help of a practical case taken from my file.

On 12-11-1978 at about 2.45 p.m. at Delhi (Chart 1), I was approached by a person who did not mention the question.

To find the nature of question, we will use of all the 3 aforesaid rules.

Applying the first rule, we find that Pisces and the Lagna lord Jupiter stands exalted 5th house. It aspects Lagna by its 9th aspe also aspects Moon situated in Lagna. Jupiter Moon exchange places. The other house by Jupiter is the 10th house. We thus ha group of houses and 10, which is lar to the group tioned at under S 20 in the Table po ing to some po ambition of querent, since th house is related politics, the 10th the ruler, the 1st the self and Ju standing for the ruler or minister. The very that Jupiter, the Lagna lord, and the Moon 5th lord, have exchanged places and the ho involved are - 1, 5 and 10 and Jupiter, fro exaltation position aspects Moon, is a st testimony that the querent will achieve her p cal objective. Examining the position of the we see that it is placed in the 8th house, being of the 6th. This again is a positive factor in of the querent.

Applying the 2nd rule, we see that the La lord Jupiter is applying to Saturn with a sextile aspect. Saturn is the lord of the house, of 'fulfilment of wishes' and is a po planet. We also notice that Mars appli Jupiter with a trine aspect. Mars is situated own sign in the 9th house which stand kingdom. The group of houses formed is 1, 5 10, 11, which is again similar to the one tioned in the earlier and not only reveal question, but also guarantees the fulfilment querent's ambition.

Applying the 3rd rule, we notice that current Dasa in the Horary chart is that of cury, which is placed in its own constellatio the 9th house denoting kingdom. It is aspec Jupiter, the Lagna lord. The group 1, 5, houses which again is similar to the group referred obtains. Thus all the 3 rules lead same question and the same positive resul suggested the use of numerology in answering questions. Suppose a man is under suspension and he comes to you with this question — shall I get back my job? Here in this example we can try his method. The sentence consists of 6 words and each of the 6 words contain successively 5, 1, 3, 4, 2 and 3 letters. So the Kabala starts with 6513423. The next step consists in adding the 1st number to the 2nd, the 2nd with the 3rd and so on. If the added figure exceeds 9, the remainder is used by dividing the figure by 9. In this way the 2nd line is worked out. Repeating the process at successive stages the completed Kabalá in our illustration will assume the structure of Inverted Pascal's Triangle.

2 6 4 7 6 5
8 1 2 4 2
9 3 6 6

Here the resultant figure is 6 which is the number of Venus and in reference to the question it means that there will be a peaceful and satisfactory solution resulting in pleasure. Varying significance of different remainders are: 8 - delay and probable disappointment; 3 - increase, acquisition, expansion and good fortune i.e., reinstatement with full benefits; 5 - travelling, activity, worry, anxiety and restlessness. 2- changes, uncertainty and vacillation implying thereby that the suspended man may change his heart and try for another job; 7 - delay and uncertainty due to influence of woman etc.; 1 - a big man's help and 9 - head on collision with the authority. Here I have not followed Sepharial in toto. Through trial and error I have tried to modify interpretation of different remainders in the context of the nature of question posed. Readers can try methods suggested by both Dr. Raman and Sepharial. They might click but these two examples suffice to show how numerology can interact with Hindu Horary Astrology though the latter grew as an independent discipline in India. The crux of the question is, can numerology be exclusively relied upon in answering a question or can it sparingly be used for cross-verification of results as was done by Dr. Raman? Dr. Raman himself adm[illegible] that he often made bold statements with the [illegible] of numbers. They clicked. [My Early Experiences in Astrology, A.M., May 1986, page 398.]

1.6. Experts often extensively use tools of [illegible] sit in answering spot questions. Critical pa[illegible] lingering in hospital beds may run grave risk [illegible] further deterioration of their conditions when [illegible] siting Moon crosses over transiting Saturn. [illegible] worries and anxieties may persist so long as M[illegible] Saturn, Mars-Rahu or Saturn-Rahu throw [illegible] combined influence on our Ascendant and [illegible] Moon. Businessmen's cash flows get interru[illegible] when Mercury becomes retrograde and bec[illegible] normal as soon as that swift moving planet a[illegible] assumes its direct motion. Our desires for b[illegible] posting with increased emoluments often get [illegible] filled when Jupiter in transit applies its aspect [illegible] our natal Sun and Mars at the same time cro[illegible] over the Sun-sign in the chart. So to reiterate my viewpoint, both [illegible] and intradisciplinary approach for solving p[illegible] lems which fall within the jurisdiction of Hor[illegible] Astrology can be recommended as they can supp[illegible] ment our efforts at hitting the bull's eye thro[illegible] Prasna chart though strictly speaking such m[illegible] dimensional approach represents deviations f[illegible] Horary Astrology. COUNSELLING ON FLEETING PROBLEMS OF LIFE

Navamsa in the rising sign. If the number is 39, then it is divided by nine the quotient is four and it means the 5th sign is Lagna, as 4 signs from Mesha have elapsed. The 5th sign is Simha which is taken as Lagna. The remainder is 3. The 3rd Navamsa in Simha falls in Mithuna. Therefore the Lagna Navamsa will be Mithuna.

The first task after casting horary chart is to verify that the horoscope reflects the nature of question. As observed earlier, the number given by the questioner being the digital transcription of the thought process involved in the question, it follows that significations of Bhavas in the chart which are symbolically related to the number should reflect the nature of question. In other words, we should be able to connect the question with the signification of that Bhava:

(a) in which the Navamsa Lagna falls; or

(b) in which the Navamsa of Lagna lord falls; or

(c) in which the Moon, Karaka for mind, is placed.

Should the chart fail to respond positively for any of these above three criteria, it is possible that the sincerity of the questioner is suspect. He might have posed the question casually out of curiosity or even as a joke. However, it also happens at times that the querent is confused in his priorities in giving the number or having more than one question pressing to take precedence. Under these conditions, it is possible to suggest that the questioner approach at another time, as his question in mind is still in formation and yet to take a form. Any attempt to stretch rules and force-fit an answer could result in misguiding a person who has placed trust in us. Obviously an inquisitive or casual questioner is not likely to turn up.

A horary horoscope, when correctly cast, stands as a symbolic projection of a specific situation confronting the person at the moment reveals the kind of cosmic influences it is subjected to.

1. Lagna and Lagna lord describe the human system.

2. The Karaka planets reveal the hand of cosmic forces.

3. Mutual disposition of these factors, their relationship, strength and nature unfold to reveal the direction towards which the situation is developing and the manner in which it would resolve.

4. Fulfilment is signified by 11th house and its lord. The questioner is Lagna lord. The mutual disposition and relationship between the two would often suffice to make a snap decision in obtaining yes or no as an answer. The planets intervening between Lagna lord and 11th lord contribute in a way to either assist in achieving the objective or in impeding or negating their fulfilment.

5. Moon is the messenger that delivers the final goods. Keeping a track of transit of the Moon and the planets it meets would be a sure way in computing the duration for results to materialise.

6. In the context of Horary Astrology, the Rasi aspects i.e. 1st 3rd, 4th, 5th, 7th, 9th and 10th are effective. "Applying aspects" and "Separating Aspects" convey special significance. Nodes are left out from aspects.

Karakatwa of seven planets, characteristics of twelve Rasis and signification of twelve Bhavas are the same as applicable to natal horoscopy. These cover the ground rules in the practice of Horary Astrology in a general way.

It is seen that the working methodology is simple. The approach is direct. The answer in horary is a clear-cut yes or no. It is also equipped to cope with almost every conceivable kind of problem likely to confront a man or woman in daily life. It has its limitations. It cannot elaborate or project an issue beyond the scope of specific question asked and the cryptic answers the chart throws up. What is most important is that the entire edifice of horary rests on "sincerity": sincere desire of the questioner to seek guidance and equally sincere approach by the astrologer to solve the problem astrologically and to live up to the trust reposed in him. In spite of one's wide knowledge in the subject and in spite of adopting the most scientific approach, all will come to nought when it is divorced from sincerity and humility.

Some of the intricate and interesting aspects involved in the whole gamut of Horary Astrology can be pointed out during the course of working out few problems with reference to horary charts which otherwise could not be effectively conveyed. For instance, we would be rather on a sticky wicket while coping with a question asked on behalf of another person. Particularly so, when the questioner himself also has a question or two to ask about his own problems. At such situations, the number given by the questioner often plays tricks. The number he is intending to give and the questions that are popping up in his mind to take precedence to come out first may get interpolated. Here is a case in point. A person had lost his job. His friend and well-wisher was doing his best to fix him up in a job and was deeply concerned about his friend. He wanted to know when his friend was likely to succeed in getting a post. He was told that it would be better if his friend himself asked the question and gave a corresponding number, in order to avoid ambiguity and misinterpretation of the chart. Dropping that issue, he now wished to consult on his own problem. He is trying to add few additional assignments to his existing professional activities and how far it would be rewarding. He gave the number 3 and a horary chart was cast. The number three being in Mesha 3rd division, the Lagna was fixed as Mesha and Navamsa Lagna was Mithuna.

The checkpoints for verification of question vis-avis the horary chart are (1) Bhava in which Navamsa Lagna falls: here it is the 3rd Bhava. (2) Bhava in which Navamsa of Lagna lord falls: It is Mesha i.e. Lagna. (3) Bhava in which Moon is placed: it is 9th Bhava.

MERC 25.	SUN 18 ASCDT.	VENUS 30	MARS 22 KETU 28
	NAVAMSA		JUPITT. 11

MOON 10 RAHU 28

To go by the indications in the chart, the question should be related to significations of either the 3rd Bhava or the Ist Bhava or the 9th Bhava. Herein the emphasis is clearly on the 3rd Bhava, as Lagna lord also is placed in 3rd and the Moon is aspecting the 3rd. Whereas the question as posed by the questioner, apparently, relates to profession which is signified by 10th Bhava. Obviously, while giving the number 3, the questioner has not been able to erase the original question about his friend which was uppermost in his mind. It is also possible, that he has simply repeated the same number which he originally intended for the first question about his friend; because 3rd Bhava covers amongst other things friends and companions. Therefore, one can reasonably conclude that the second question he asked about his own profession was the outcome of afterthought. Yet the sincere desire of the questioner to seek answer to his problem was not suspect; although the intensity of the issue is not reflected in the chart. Let us examine the chart under both contexts from an academic point of view.

Let us take the apparent issue which is about acquiring few additional assignments to his existing professional activities. We shift the emphasis from significance of profession to that of acquiring additional lines. Hobby and such activities which we generally refer to as "Sideline" business co under signification of 3rd Bhava. The oth Bhava indicated in the chart is 9th Bhava occ pied by the Moon which signifies prosperity. Y may proceed with looking for an answer af surmising that the questioner is toying with th idea of some "sideline" and wishes to know th prospect. Since he has specifically brought in th profession in the question, let us examine th status of profession as revealed in the horar chart. We need to examine the 10th Bhava, lor of 10th and also Sani as Karaka for profession. this case, Sani is well placed in its own house 10th. This is a very good position as far as stat of profession is concerned. The whole set-up being aspected by Lagna lord Mars by 8th aspe The contemplated acquisition of additional a signments is not going to augment in any positiv manner the profession. Irrespective of whethe he succeeds or not in adding new lines, th condition of profession would remain status qu Tapering down the question to a single point as t whether he would succeed in getting the ne assignments, we focus on 11th lord and 11t house.

The 11th lord is Sani which is in the 10 Kendra from Lagna. However from Lagna lor Kuja, Sani is in the 8th which is a negative facto By his own efforts he is not likely to succeed. Th Moon which is the messenger to deliver the re sults is well placed in 9th Bhava and in exchang with 9th lord Guru placed in the 4th. The ex change also brings Guru and Kuja in mutu aspect which is a positive factor. The Moon is i applying aspect to Kuja and by virtue of exchang will also come into applying aspect with Sa Therefore the success comes in a round-abou way. This will materialise when the Moon co tacts Kuja in its transit in Kataka when it wou establish aspect with 11th lord Sani.

The other issue is an implied question co cerning the job prospects of friend of the que tioner. Lagna stands for the questioner. Navam Lagna reflects the nature of question; in th instance it is about his friend as reflected in th significance of 3rd Bhava. The chart confirms th question. At this point, the questioner exits as h is no more concerned. The question now becom the questioner in the context of the chart. Acco ingly the Lagna shifts from Mesha to Mithun Bhavas are recast. Lagna lord is in 10th Bha indicating the issues concerns profession. It aspected by Karaka Sani from 8th Bhava. Th chart faithfully describes the status of the que tioner who has lost his job. We find 11th lord K

The chart showed bright prospects. The person had the offer already in hand as clearly revealed by the position of the Moon in 11th. In horary, it is seen that whenever the Moon is placed in the 11th and not adversely influenced, the results materialise very quickly. I immediately tried to convey my findings and congratulate the person wishing him well, but had problems with my telephone. In the meanwhile, during discussions with a visitor about his horoscope, I was trying to explain that a particular Bhukti would prove adverse, as the Bhukti lord was in 30th degree. This is a dictum that I do not take lightly or make exceptions, with the belief it is better to be on guard. Suddenly it occurred to me that in the horary chart I had cast earlier, the all-important Lagna lord was in 30th degree. I took up the chart for further scrutiny and to my dismay I found that another important planet Kuja placed in the 7th, the house of question was in Mrityu Bhaga, being in 6th degree of Meena. Ravi placed in 16th degree of Thula also happened to be in Mrityu Bhaga. I was now looking at the chart as one looks at a fused or short-circuited "printed-circuit". A conviction grew that the proposed assignment would end up in some kind of disaster and it should not be taken up under any condition. The advice was heeded. I could visualise that he must have given it up very reluctantly. Fortunately, he had very good promotion within a short time thereafter. But it was after about a little over one year that the real import and significance of horary answer could be appreciated. The offer he had was from Kuwait and when disaster fell most of those who returned had not only suffered heavy losses but totally uprooted, unable to find suitable job on return. He missed a major upheaval overtaking him, by whiskers. The case also serves to underline the utility of Horary Astrology when there is sincerity of purpose.

Another factor that emerges from the discussion is that sensitive points like "Mrityu Bhaga", "Pushkaramsa", "Dagdha Rasi" and the like are more relevant in the context of Horary and Muhurta Astrology than in birth horoscopy. At times it is found that lopsided weightage is given to concepts originally conceived in the context of Horary while dealing with natal or Muhurta or vice versa. Of course, we cannot overlook that most astrological concepts hold valid equally for horary and natal and it is for the practitioner to apply his descretion in their usage.—81.91.

THE ROLE OF OMENS IN HORARY CHARTS

after delay; (m) no, may become a widow; (n) plenty of education; (o) success; (p) there will be illness and disease.

If the ascending sign is a Dhwara Rasi, then answer the questions above stated in the following order respectively:

(a) Full effect; (b) no disease; (c) success to enemy; (d) will be released; (e) he will get a job; (f) plenty of profit; (g) no rains. (h) early marriage; (i) it is with a man and it has fallen in water and an area full of stones; it will be recovered; (j) a relative, short person; (k) dead; (l) he is in bondage; (m) will be delayed for a long time but will get children; (n) no education; (o) there will be residence in the place where Homam or religious rite is conducted, (p) very good and auspicious.

Prasna Gnana gives the following rules: Success is indicated (1) if benefics are in Kendras or Trikonas and malefics in 3, 6 and 11. (Malefics should not be in 8.) (2) If a benefic is in Ascendant and aspects his exaltation or own house.

Failure: (1) Mars in Lagna aspected by Saturn. (2) Rahu in Lagna aspected by the Sun, Moon and Mars. (3) Full Moon in 1, 8 or 12. (4) Mercury in the Ascendant aspected by malefics and Moon. (5) All malefics in 1, 11, 12, 7 and 8 ruin everything.

If the Ascendant is fixed, moveable or dual, the following effects should be predicted:

Fixed: Acquisition of desired object, No going out (journey). No cure of disease, no loss of article, nor defeat.

Moveable: No acquisition of object or confirmation in the position, there will be travel, disease will be cured, articles will be lost, there will be defeat.

Dual: Effects same as for fixed sign for first half of dual sign and same as for movable sign for the 2nd half.

According to Shatpanchasika, the following rules are given : (1) When a Bhava is aspected or occupied by its lord or by benefics success should be predicted; If malefics occupy or aspect many Bhavas, failure and destruction of the Bhava should be predicted. (2) When a benefic occupies Lagna or the Navamsa Lagna is owned by a benefic or if both are Shirshodaya signs, success should be predicted. If otherwise failure should be predicted. If mixed, initial failure and final success. (3) If Moon is strong and is in the Lagna aspected by Jupiter or Venus or a benefic is in the 11th aspected by benefics, success should be predicted. (4) Benefics in 3, 5, 11 and 7 from the Lagna at the time of the query will ensure success; malefics in these places indicate failure. (5) Benefics in the 10th and 7th from Lagna will give an appointment or position to the querent; if they are in 2, 5 or Lagna they bestow honour and wealth. Malefics in 11 and 12 are not good.

Uttarakalamrita lays down the following rules:

(1) A querent should be asked to mention a number below 108. The number is divided by 9. The quotient represents the number of Rasis already passed from Aries and the remainder represents the number of Navamsas passed in the Lagna at the time of the query. From these should be predicted the good and bad effects through the Karakas, Bhavas and the lords of the Bhavas. (2) If a planet is exalted the object will be achieved in a few hours; if a planet is in his own house, in a few days; if in a friendly house, in a few months; if in any other position joined with or aspected by malefics failure of the object should be predicted. (3) If Sun is exalted in the Lagna success should be predicted.

There are many text-books available on Aroodha and Prasna giving innumerable rules, methods for answering queries and they can be referred to. If an astrologer is in the habit of daily looking at the Panchanga or the ephemeris, he can easily mentally calculate a chart instantly when a query is put to him and from this and using any of the methods described above, combined with omens and natural happenings at the time, any question on Aroodha or Prasna can be answered successfully.

AS IT STRIKES ME

there was nothing left of his face in his mangled remains at Sri Perumbudur. People will remember him always for the high hopes he brought on the Indian scene after Indira Gandhi's killing. But mostly because of his personal charm Vini, Vidi, Vici. But then there are so many others too in our country with looks that could surpass his, with charm more magnetic. Does that mean they are all entitled to the highest award in the country—the Bharata Ratna? But why then was this honour bestowed on our late leader? For the way he messed up the Punjab accord, or for his ham-handed solutions to the Sri Lankan strife, or was it because he let the country's economy drift to disaster while he himself trotted around the globe from Utsav to Utsav or did the power he wielded without responsibility during Chandrasekhar's tenure endow him with unusual greatness? Or worse still, did his frivolity in bringing down the Chandrasekhar Government have no parallel in recent times? Yes, all of these and the scandals that shook the Capital merited him the Bharata Ratna. If that was so, how on earth did our Iron Man and Grand Sire Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel manage to make the grade and that too, more than four decades after all that he did for the country. Standards shift truly but never on grounds as confounding as these. But irrespective of the yardstick, Rajiv certainly did not deserve the horrendous end that came on him.

TECHNIQUE AND MARVELS OF HORARY ASTROLOGY » 702

believe that the heavenly bo- motivate the querent to ach an Horary astrologer that his anxiety about his blem is reduced through the ion rendered.

In fact, the event often takes place when the significators are to form an exact aspect between them (Ithasala Yoga exist), and the distance degrees still remaining to com- plete it) indicates the days, weeks and months, depending on the nature of the signs and the Bhavas they occupy. But the research should be made to judge the time of occurrence of the event, as all the methods mentioned in the books on Horary Astrology have draw- backs. I have often observed that the transit of the Moon through the Bhava of the query or the Bhava occupied by the lord of the Bhava related to the query is helpful in getting some information in some urgent mat- ters. Truly speaking, I combine the things I have mentioned regarding the timing of events, and the results are fairly accu- rate. Experience also matters a lot because it has a method of its own.

Karakas may be examined as an additional aid. For ex- ample, when there is a query relating to mother, the Moon should be studied. Transits of planets have nothing to contrib- ute in Horary Astrology. The Moon of the Moon is an excep- tion primarily because he rep- resents the querent's mind. The Moon may be treated as substitute for the Ascendant (the querent) when there is no aspect between the Ascen- dant lord and the lord of the house related to the query. In such cases we may examine whether or not there is aspect or Ithasala Yoga between the Ascendant lord and the Bhava concerned.

A Very Important Point

Sometimes, there is no as- pect (as per the Tajaka system) between the two significators, though there may be Ithasala Yoga between them (with the orbs of influence of the significators). In such cases, the Ithasala Yoga goes inopera- tive and the querent's wish re- mains unfulfilled. So we need to direct our attention (firstly) to the aspect and (secondly) to the Yoga.

I am in complete agreement with the words of the Associate Editor, Gayatri Devi Vasudev: "The Moon in favourable Ithasala aspect to the significator emphasises, hastens, expedites the fulfilment of the querent's wishes".

If the Horary chart shows that the querent's wish is to be fulfilled, and that he is to remain worried till the occurrence of the event on account of adverse effects on the Ascendant, its lord and the Moon, some remedial measures may be told to him. I have done so in many cases, and the results have been quite positive.

As far as the marvels of Horary Astrology are concerned, I am of the view that natal or any other branch of Astrology may not answer queries as quickly and satisfactorily as it does. In fact, there is the least scope for any doubts left in the mind of the Horary astrologer regarding the observations he has made, provided he has learnt the tech- niques properly and devotes time to the study of the Horary chart.

Question Time: 27-5-1991 at 4.17 p.m. (IST) at 77°4 E, 28°37' N.

The querent wanted to know whether the business he had

	MERC. 20-54	SUN 11-56	VENUS 26-20 KETU 26-38
SAT.(R) 13-00	RASI		JUPIT. 14-33 MARS 6-50
RAHU 27-38	MOON 0-21	ASCDT. 5-26

started would fetch him gains or not. The query relates to the 10th and 11th Bhavas jointly as the 10th represents Karma (pro- fession) and the 11th, gains. Venus, the Ascendant lord, stands for the querent. The Moon and the Sun, the 10th and 11th lords, are in opposition, and there is also an Ithasala Yoga between them. Things are not favourable as far as the desired gains are concerned. Both the significators are also weak. The opposition aspect indicates that the querent will not gain conve- niently and that the size of the gains will be very small. He will remain worried. Most of his efforts will go waste.

He will also not taste the gains as the Ascendant lord, Venus, and the 11th lord, the Sun, have constituted Easarapha Yoga. Venus, the Ascendant lord, is sandwiched between two malefics, and is also in close conjunction with Ketu, the planet of spiritual light. Retrograde Saturn aspects the 10th and the Ascendant. The Moon, the rep- resentative of the querent's mind, is debilitated, indicating the fact that the mind of the querent will be perturbed. He will face vari- ous hurdles and obstructions. This query does not need timing as there is an opposition aspect and the Easarapha Yoga. The chart shows that the querent may wind up the said business. In July 1991 first week, the querent decided to close down the business as his gains were quite meagre. — 121.91.

Those who know Astrology can only indicate in a way what will take place in future. Who else, except the Creator Brahma, can say with certainty what will definitely happen?

VOL. 80 OCTOBER 1991 No. 10

OUTLOOK FOR INDIAN AFFAIRS

ONE of the most change-filled years on the Indian political stage, 1990 and 1991 were also the most challenging ones. Equations at the Centre shifted with such rapid speed and in such totally unusual manner, political observers were caught unawares. Poll-analysts and psephologists succeeded as never before in hogging the limelight but only until the election results were out. And then they had to lick the dust.

The much paraded and pampered science of psephology was proved totally unreliable by the voters. In spite of all that, a noted psephologist did not stop from defending this science(?) saying "... forecasting is science as well as an art... you can have different interpretations".

All the seven opinion-polls conducted just before elections by well-known agencies for different publications were widely off the mark. These surveys, however, managed to explode certain myths, viz., psephologists can no longer claim infallibility, not even a fair degree of accuracy and that opinion-polls can be manipulated. In fact, rumours were rife many of the poll-survey figures (pre as well as exit) were orchestrated by interested parties.

One of the leading psephologists of the country whose face dominated television during the entire period of the voting of counts was unable to even make a correct assessment of the sympathy wave following Rajiv's death. He could not decide if it was going to help the Congress (I) or not. Yet, no one raised even a whimper of protest against these fanciful exercises on the national TV network which could have been instead put to better use. Of course, Doordarshan programmes have always been no better than indifferent. But that is besides the point.

While excitement ran high and the results kept swinging sharply, students of Astrology were perhaps the only ones to have watched the whole show with cool confidence and poise. The message in the planetary movements had been clear, well in advance. The degree of clarity was not precise; no science that deals with the complexities of human life can make this claim. But the trends had been clearly foreseen and anticipated by astrological savants.

As early as in November 1988, we had said in THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, January 1989:

"....Added to this, Jupiter's transit is focussed in Taurus and Gemini. The planetary pattern poses a question mark on the longevity of the Government. Obviously the country appears to be in for a significant and even unexpected transformation in the political scene in Delhi. Jupiter and Saturn were in opposition in November 1970 involving Aries and Libra. The Parliament was dissolved in December. The year's Jupiter-Saturn opposition occurs on 10-9-1989, the signs involved being Gemini and Sagittarius. This may have a very disturbing effect on the natural as well as political weather especially in India as the 4th and 10th houses from India's ruling sign are involved." Sure enough, exactly a year later, V. P. Singh came as prime-minister of the country leading a Government hinging delicately on the support of such widely diverging parties as the Bharatiya Janata Party, the Communist Parties, Telugu Desam and others. For the second time in the post-Independence days, the Congress was thrown out of power.

Even before V. P. Singh assumed office on 2-12-1989, we wrote in November 1989, in the 1990 Annual Number of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, "The conjunction of the 10th lord with the 9th lord Sun constitutes a good Yoga. But both the 10th and Lagna lords are in dwiswabhava signs. Consequently, the stability of the Government may be maintained by appeasing factional groups.... However, the seeds of disaster are present in the form of Saturn's aspect on the 10th lord and the situation of Ketu in the 8th house. Within a year of the prediction, V. P. Singh lost the vote of confidence in Parliament on 7-11-1990 and resigned his prime-ministership.

Again in the editorial (written 14-11-1990) appearing in the 1991 Annual Number of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, our anticipations that "...The Government will be in serious trouble off and on, its survival being threatened. Death of a national figure may plunge the nation in mourning.... Squabbles and confusion in the Government may necessitate mid-term polls. A major change in the power echelons at the Centre is in the offing" were all borne out by developments relating to Chandrasekhar's government, its feeble beginnings and termination followed by the mid-term polls being announced.

Rajiv Gandhi was killed tragically in the middle of the elections proving the veracity of the astrological inference "Rajiv's era could be said to be nearly over". And the Congress (I), the bastion of the Nehru family, did begin its new chapter with Narasimha Rao heading the Government. What we are trying to emphasise is, the correctness and importance of the astrological methods in gauging future trends. These methods are based on the Vedic science of Astrology. Astrology is a science because of its methods. And Astrology is the most useful of all sciences because it is the only one that gives fairly accurate results, which can be made use of to plan not only individual future but more significantly the future of a nation. Anyone who is sincerely interested in the well-being and prosperity of one's country will not fail to evaluate and appreciate the immense constructive potential of Astrology in this regard.

In the Indian Independence Chart (Chart 1), the Sun Bhukti of Venus Dasa began in December 1990 and will last till December 1991. Consistent with the results that the Bhukti of the Atmakaraka generally gives, the Sun as the natural significator of power brought about many changes on the Indian political scene. A Government came down, elections were held, a national mourning broke out and a new Government took over. The Sun rules the President or Head of State. The excessive zeal on the part of the President in exercising direct access to the Chief Election Commissioner and Secretaries of Department well beyond the spirit of the Constitution set an unhealthy precedent. This politicizing of the highest office in the land can only be attributed to the Sun's role as Atmakaraka and occupation of the last degree of the sign.

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

The Sun also rules the country's treasury, money, gold. Perhaps for the first time in recent years, gold was sold in huge quantities to meet the exigencies of foreign debt payments. The selling of gold traditionally is avoided and is usually the last resort, a desperate one at that, in Indian homes. That such a solution became inevitable can only be traced to the role of the Sun, the royal planet, in Chart 1. As 2nd lord from the Ascendant, he is in the 12th therefrom in Aslesha, ruled by the 3rd and 12th lord Mercury. The economic crunch the country is passing through is all very clear astrologically. But given the Dasa of the Ascendant lord, it is not something to be unduly concerned about and can be handled realistically.

Now that the new Government has started functioning with an experienced man at the helm, how far will he go is naturally a question most people would like to ask.

The prime-minister was sworn in on 21-6-1991 at 12.51 p.m. IST, at New Delhi (Chart 2).

Virgo rising on the Ascendant signifies the Government and its representative, the prime-minister, who is indicated by this sign as "observant and reserved in mien and manner". It shows one as "...somebody noticing trifles and.... somewhat solitary by reason of his critical nature. Under all circumstances, even towards intimates a certain 'distance' is kept and never abandoned....gives a particular propensity to discover little things that escape others' notice and nevertheless may sometime prove of real consequence. In business, especially, this may of course come in useful. Orderliness, love of regularity, systematic organisation of activities and accurate administration tend to success along that line...". Virgo rising however cautions that one "...should take care that in his concern for details, he should not overlook or become neglectful of matters of great importance".

The 2nd house has the 11th lord Moon in Chitta aspected by 5th and 6th lord retrograde Saturn and malefic Mars. While an economic crisis is all too obvious from these malefic influences, the 2nd lord Venus in the 11th house in an exchange of signs with the 11th lord Vargottama Moon augurs well.

The 3rd house rules neighbours and the 3rd lord Mars is in the 11th with Venus and Jupiter. Saturn aspects the 3 planets while Jupiter aspects the 3rd house. Transit Mars in Capricorn and Aquarius may stimulate some firing on the borders. Rahu is in the 3rd from the Moon-sign and Pakistan's intention of harming India will become evident. War-clouds may darken the Indo-Pak horizon especially around June 1992 when India would do well to be militarily braced for any eventuality. China, another neighbour, may also be tempted to indulge in border skirmishes with India.

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

The 4th house has malefic influences on it, although the 4th lord Jupiter, in spite of Mars-Saturn influencing him, is exalted and with Venus. Punjab and Kashmir will continue to spew blood but the strong influences of the benefics show a decreased intensity in militancy and the State being able to handle these areas more firmly than it has done so far.

The 9th house rules religion. In Chart 2, it is Taurus, the same sign as that rising in Chart 1 at the time of Independence. The 9th house is free from afflictions while the 9th lord Venus is well placed in the 11th with exalted Jupiter. The 3rd and 8th lord Mars (in debility) and retrograde 5th and 6th lord Saturn influence Venus as malefics. The Ayodhya temple issue will continue to be in the limelight and some progress in the matter is shown. The closeness of Mars to Venus indicates outbursts of violence but nowhere near the scale on which it took place in 1990.

The 10th, the most important house in our discussion, is occupied by the Sun and Lagna lord Mercury. Ketu also there is an affliction and in common parlance is an eclipsing factor which does not bode well for the future of the Narasimha Rao ministry. Since Mercury is both the Ascendant lord and the 10th lord, the affliction becomes intensified. At this stage Narasimha Rao's birth chart is worth considering.

Narasimha Rao, according to fairly reliable sources, is said to have been born on 28-6-1921 at 1.00 p.m. at 18 N, 79 E 35 (Chart 3). We cannot, however, vouch for the correctness of these details.

In Chart 3 the Ascendant is Virgo with its ruler Mercury in the 10th in his own sign in Vargottama. This planetary disposition gives one a keen intellect and sharp intelligence. Such natives are usually fond of abstractions and have versatile mental skills. Mercury, the Ascendant lord, powerful in an airy sign with Mars and the Sun gives a flair for ganita or mathematics.

The native is now having the Dasa of Mars, ruler of the 3rd and 8th, placed in the 10th with 12th lord Sun and 10th lord Mercury. Narasimha Rao who had planned to retire from politics was forced to stay on because Mars as Dasa lord and in the 10th house cannot give one a life of retirement. Whether one likes it or not, activity will be thrust on one. And this is precisely what happened when in the aftermath of Rajiv's assassination, India's premier party was desperately in need of a leader and Narasimha Rao had no choice but to take over. Mars is the 8th lord and the 8th house rules legacies, bequests and inheritance. Mars as 8th lord in the 10th, as we have several times emphasised in these columns, leads to acquisition of office as a matter of legacy or, in other words, following a death. Mars is further helped by the Lagna lord Mercury (Vargottama and retrograde) to acquire a position of great authority and importance.

With reference to Chandra Lagna viz., Pisces, Mercury as 4th and 7th lord aspects the 10th, as also the 6th lord Sun, 2nd and 9th lord Mars as well as 10th lord Jupiter. Mercury, therefore, is exceptionally well placed barring two drawbacks. One, he is in a cuspal degree or Rasi Sandhi. And second, he is the Atmakaraka and so capable of mischief in his Bhukti.

The sub-period of Mercury in Mars Dasa runs between September 1991 and September

As It Strikes Me

AGASTYA

The Sanskrit Invasion

SANSKRIT is all set to capture the software market. Scientists in India are working on developing a language for computers based on Sanskrit. Sanskrit has a regular structure and is an efficient vehicle to convey ideas unlike western languages such as English originating from Greek and Latin. In the Upanishads there is an expression Apraapya manasa saha meaning the Supreme is beyond the ken of the mind. Similarly, the Divine is said to be beyond sight (physical) and in Sanskrit this idea is beautifully conveyed as "Him the eye cannot see" and so on. When these ideas were fed into the computer for a translation, what was the consternation of the scientists when the expression "invisible idiot" flashed on the display screen. Imagine the Supreme being a demented entity! A contradiction par excellence! While the western languages struggle to convey ideas, Sanskrit does with amazing lucidity.

Idiot Claims

Akshara Keralam began with great fanfare and ended with more when this Rs. 32 crore programme culminated in Kerala being formally declared as total literate in March 1991. Another work went into the hoot and whew, with what results! Here is a sample.

Kariappa of Kasargod was asked to write his name which he did beautifully. He speaks Tulu but cannot identify the language or the alphabets in what he was written. And he is one of the neo-literate products of Akshara Keralam.

About 2 decades ago, the same state claimed 100 percent rural electrification. It seems this was achieved by planting one electric pole in each Panchayat, but even now 90 percent of rural Kerala is said to have no electricity in the houses.

Statistics doled out by governmental bodies are seldom supported by fact. Investigations by independent agencies showed that in many of these literary camps participants were taught only to write their names. And absolutely nothing else.

These Know All's

On being questioned by a reporter on how the Chief Minister of Karnataka had gone in for expansion of his cabinet in the lunar month of Ashadha (July-August), the politician is reported to have said 'Individual power over-rules planetary power'. Very true indeed, but where on earth did the reporter get the idea Ashadha is taboo for cabinet expansions.

The Chief Minister, whose days seem drastically numbered, further defended his action saying he had added thirteen members to his team in spite of this figure being considered unlucky. While it is true that Ashadha is not auspicious in toto, that 13 is an unlucky number is an inheritance we have received from Britain's stock of superstitions.

Devil Quotes the Scriptures

Some journals, bordering on yellow, draw sustenance from spicy juicy gossip stories (made-up?) of cocky filmstars. No one really takes note of these journals but sometimes their gaffes are intolerable.

Their contents are a hotch-potch. Profuse legal advice is tendered to confused housewives and immature young brides on how to break up the marital home, all in the name of awareness and legal rights — Replace love by hate, understanding by suspicion, fidelity by licentiousness and tact by confrontation or be damned as the Bharat nari in the Sita mould. A psychological counselling column also doles out ill-conceived suggestions to solve personal relationship problems. That apart, since the interests of the editorial staff and its equally inane readership are severely restricted to petty trivia, fashion, hogging and how to, serious subjects leave them confused no end.

Recently, a journal of this category in its July (second) 1991 issue, decided Astrology was fun and its dumb readership could do with some stimulation. So, they got together, a whole lot of forecasts, true and not true, threw in a para or two of pontificatory indignation at all astrologers and Astrology, reproduced predictions torn out of context and got someone to lend his name as author to the article. The highlight of this exercise was a quote from a Bangalore pedagogue's article, which was equally distant from fact when it was written and still is. And this man who cries out against Astrology, please note, sells horoscopes* for money. A case of the devil quoting the scriptures !

Communism and Superstition

Talking of superstition, Commnism in China has made no inroads on the nation's faith in the power of witch-doctors, evil spirits and faith-healers. In fact, so fierce is this loyalty to traditional beliefs and practices that when the abortion rate showed an increase this year, even officials put it down to the Year of the Sheep and not the Government's one-child policy. Children born in the Year of the Sheep are believed to be jinxed attracting bad luck all through life, and couples therefore avoid children during this period.

These practices dating back to 4 millennia are not always so simple and positive. There are angles to supersititions that blend with crime. The practice of selling slave-brides led to police rescuing 10,000 abducted women, may be as reports go, only 10 percent of the total kidnapped, sold to peasant husbands this year. Police rescue squads were beaten up by irate villagers who felt the practice was a positive service to society supplying men with wives. Feminists in India who protest against exploitation of the woman in our country would do well to be told these barbaric practices are still raging in the world's largest communist country.

Feminists in India who trace all forms of female exploitation in the country to these sources can learn a lesson two from these facts. Modism, communism and all other isms with political ideology behind them are what generate passions leading to exploitation of man by man, woman by woman and woman by man and vice versa. The Hindu Sanatana Dharma preaches love for all — man, woman, beast, bird, even insects based on the principle of Oneness of all Creation. From the Ascendant the 5th ...se is occupied by malefic ...s aspected by malefic Mars ...the 10th house. The 5th ...Venus occupies the 11th ...se with malefic Ketu ...ting his own 5th house ...ing issuelessness.

"From the Chandra Lagna, the 5th house is occupied by Jupiter. The malefic aspect of Mars from the 11th house and the 5th lord Mercury in Chandra Lagna has deprived the native of issues.

"The malefic aspect of Mars from the 10th and 11th houses on the Ascendant and on the 5th from Chandra Lagna has resulted in perverted intelligence with unsteady mind and a Yoga for childlessness. Additionally, Mars has led to unsatisfactory education. The atmosphere at home is not peaceful leading to quarrels with mother. This has affected the native's education and career. Positioned in the 10th house there is no job satisfaction, bad relations with higher officials, arrogant in subordination, frequent transfers etc.

"His aspect on the 7th lord Jupiter causes extra-marital relations and gives quarrelsome wife.

"Malefic Mars is also aspecting 3rd lord Sun in addition to malefic Saturn's aspect on the 3rd house which causes friction between native and his brothers and sisters.

"My observations may not be fully correct, but the one planet Mars directly or indirectly is dominating 6 Bhavas."

Mars has a very strong bearing on any horoscope especially in conjunction with the Dasa of a planet he influences. But reader Satyanarayana has focussed attention only on the minus points. There surely must be some favourable effects caused by Mars. Readers who would like to do this exercise can send in their assessment before 30-9-1991.

What of the Future (A.M., June 1991)

"Venus, the 2nd lord, is in Jupiter's star. Jupiter is the lord of the 12th (house of loss).

"Saturn in the 7th Bhava is not good for business. The Dasa till 2004 is that of Venus and Venus has already been judged as above. From 25-1-2004 to 25-1-2010, the Sun Dasa runs. The Sun is in the star of Ketu who is in the 1st (12th from 2nd). Ketu being in Taurus represents Venus which is already judged.

"Lord of 8th (Mars) is in star of Jupiter, who is lord of 12th

In this feature, unusual and interesting events that occur in day-to-day life will be discussed astrologically. They may be about anything - birth, marriage, accident, sport, career, art, farming, weather, animals and the list is endless - so long as it is different from the monotony of life. Readers are invited to send in details of such instances plus relevant astrological charts, dates and the Ayanamsa to Astrological Miscellany, THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, Bangalore 560 020.)

(house of loss to self) and occupant of the 5th (Labha to opponent or competitor). It is found the lord of 8th influencing 5th and 7th give difficulties. The lords of the 2nd and 11th being afflicted and the Dasas operating till his 64th year are not good for finance", writes reader Purushottam Lal Tiwari of Vidisha.

Conducive to Wealth

"The Lagna lord situated in the 11th and Venus the 2nd lord who is aspecting the 9th, would be happy financially. Also Jupiter, the Karaka for money, is stationed in the Sun's house aspecting his own house and Jupiter's sub-periods also should prove well financially well. Further, Mercury in the 6th in exaltation in his sub-periods would help financially. The Lagna lord is Mars in 11th and aspected by Jupiter. This is also a plus point. The sub-periods of Venus, Mars and Jupiter are all conducive to wealth. This native will have no failure" writes reader K. Krishnamurthy of Kakinada.

A Question of Time

Reader K.K. Chakraborty of P.O. Bally (Howrah) believes the chart shows financial success.

"From Lagna, of course, the 10th and 11th lord Saturn's position in the 8th with Rahu and Ketu in the 2nd do not show any bright picture for income; though Mars, even retrograde, in the 11th is not bad. Dhanakaraka Jupiter is combust but Vargottama. Mars (R) has relations with Jupiter; hence its bad effects as 8th lord would be minimised.

"But the position is quite different from Chandra Lagna. The native's high academic career can be judged from Chandra Lagna. And this is because of benefic Venus in the 4th and Mercury, 4th lord, is in exaltation. As such from Chandra, 11th lord and 2nd and 9th lord have a first class relationship which is a Dhana Yoga. The 10th and 11th houses are aspected by their own lords, 10th house is aspected by a benefic Venus. These will increase the income potentiality.

"Then why is the native's income so poor? Here I want to mention Sloka 256, Chapter 14 of Parasari according to which if 11th lord with malefic is posited in the 6th or 8th or 12th, there will be no gain even though the native puts in much efforts. This has become a fact and is due to Rahu Bhukti in Venus Dasa which the native is running now and will continue upto 37 or 38 years. In accordance with Uttarakalamrita Rahu in the 8th with a malefic planet and Kendradhipati would give very bad results in its Dasa or Bhukti. And this is so because Venus and Rahu are in 6/8 position. Hence there is no surprise about the present condition of the native. The next Dasa and Bhukti Venus and Jupiter respectively who are in 3/11 positions would give the native better income.

A Faint Ray of Hope

"No doubt the chart suffers from inherent lacunae as none of the Kendras contains any planet. However, there is a faint ray of hope as his 5th house, house of Purvapunya, has its ruler Sun and 9th lord Jupiter. This confirms the solvent position of Karmas earned by him in previous birth and it is certain that he will reap their benefit during this birth.

"Presently the doctor is undergoing Venus major period. Barring Jupiter's sub-period from 29-9-1994 to 29-12-1966, rest of the sub-periods are not congenial due to malplacement of the concerned planets. However, with the advent of the Sun Dasa which starts from 2-2-2004, he may expect favourable results.

"One common phenomenon I have observed in all such cases is that afflicted Sun (either by Saturn or Rahu) has played a vital role. In this case too, the Sun has been afflicted with 10th aspect of Saturn. This configuration has not allowed any favourable results to manifest. The Sun is the soul of the nativity and reflects the personality. Whenever he is spoiled, he poses problems in all walks of life.

"Gayatri Mantra is a panacea to ward off evils due to afflicted Sun, which will boost his self-confidence and enhance the personality of the native and help him to overcome all the hurdles faced by him," concludes reader R.A. Parmar of Nadiad.

All in the Mind

Reader T. S. Raghavan of Bangalore puts the blame on the native's attitudes. "In Sarvashtakavarga, the youth gets 119 bindus, middle age 101 which improves to 117 in old age. The subject is in middle age in which there is a significant drop of 18 bindus which factor will account for the present circumstances. It may be seen from the Sarvashtakavarga that over 30 bindus are present in the 2nd, 10th and 11th houses (financial aspects) from Lagna besides 3rd and 4th houses. Thus there is no reason why there should be a deplorable state of affairs. The 12th house has lesser bindus than the 2nd house. So he is cautious in financial matters. The only explanation is in the 7th house having 17 bindus and the 3rd house having 35 bindus with unaspected Venus, lord of the 2nd and 7th, the effect of this being felt since 1984—Venus Dasa.

Management of Wayward Tendencies

H. R. SHANKAR, B.A.

Drug Addiction

HUMAN behaviour is a distinctive feature of personality. Every individual functions in a particular way. It has to be, however, cultivated to conform to socially acceptable patterns because man must relate to the world and interact with the world to live his life. When, for any reason, an individual's behaviour tendency shows an unhealthy abnormal trait, then leads to problems; problem to the individual; problem to his family and to the community. Addiction is one such instance of a wayward tendency developing into a serious problem to the individual and affects society too. When addiction is to narcotic drugs, the consequences are ruinous.

Of course one obvious way to keep a person free from drug addiction is to take steps to ensure that they remain out of his reach. But that is not a lasting solution to the basic problem, as addiction happens to be only symptomatic. For instance, it could be something similar to treating an inflamed ulcer or boil with external ointments. It would certainly heal for the time being, only to surface at some other place at the earliest opportunity. This is because the boil is only symptomatic of some deep-rooted malady—like impure blood or an acute diabetic condition. The person would be free from the problem only when the deep-rooted cause with external treatment of the ulcer. Similarly, veering the person away from addiction by blocking his access to the drugs is the first step; a lasting solution will emerge only when we understand his behaviour pattern and identify the wayward tendency that is the root cause of his problem. A clear insight into the problem is in itself the solution too.

One's behaviour pattern is inherent. When a baby is born, his or her behaviour tendencies are already predetermined. Scientists believe that instructions are encoded in 'genome'. In order to decipher the code a multi-billion dollar project has been launched, so that they can ultimately read and understand these instructions for making human beings. Presently there is no scientific discipline oriented to the task of understanding and the management of human behaviour. The prejudice of men of science which has no factual or logical justification has kept at bay an extremely useful area of knowledge in the context of understanding human behaviour. A comprehensive knowledge covering all processes involved in creation of human being was well within the ken of the ancient sages in as early as the Vedic times. In fact their probe brought out truths on how instructions got encoded in chromosomes and the research extended to cover processes that continue beyond death. They needed a wide-sweep of knowledge covering a series of cycles plane in the management of "evolution of soul". Wisdom gained from knowledge on the life processes between conception and death was put to use on the lower plane, that of Dharma, in establishing an ideal Way of Life. The ultimate goal of Dharma was to spread the sense of happiness amongst all human beings. Towards this end, a way of living was enviasaged that incorporated built-in systems to manage human behaviour at the individual level, at the family level and at the community level in a way that each contributed towards the good of all. Astrological wisdom was woven into the fabric of the Way of Living. Presently we are using the knowledge of Astrology at its base level for commercial purposes as a fortune-telling device. This of course does not take away its intrinsic worth by any means. Astrology has immense poten-tiality for application in understanding and management of human behaviour. Properly adapted, it could serve to cater to the needs of remedying social evils like drug addiction, sex crimes, alcoholism, vandalism and such other wayward tendencies. Astrological knowledge combined with para-medical facilities could bring succour to the hapless victims of addiction and put them back on the path of happiness.

An astrological approach to the problem of addiction will have to be two-fold: One concerned with the obvious problem of intake of narcotics and the other force that has driven the person to addiction. The obvious exercise is to look for planets that govern fermented liquids and intoxicating chemicals and for Bhavas governing intake of food and drinks and check afflictions to these factors in the horoscope of the individual concerned. Second Bhava, for instance, reveals all about food and drink habits, among other things. Rahu and the Moon in combination denote fermented liquids. Venus stands for the elite, the pick or best part of intoxicants. The Sun gives a taste for the pungent, that which is biting, irritant and piercing while consuming. Any of the permutations and combinations of these factors in a horoscope can be equated to a marked taste for intoxicants. Environmental conditions dictate the choice.

It can be seen that these astrological combinations are so common and elastic that like a knit-wear they fit a wide cross-section of horoscopes. Technically a simple combination of the Sun and Venus in the 2nd house or Rahu and the Moon in the 2nd is a clue indicating a taste for liquor. The one with the Sun and Venus combination is likely to prefer elitist drinks like 'scotch' while Rahu and the Moon combination may give a desire for fermented drinks like beer or country-brew.

Everyone who sips wine is not a drunkard; nor every horoscope with combinations for tendency to liquor consumption a potential addict. In the belief that a person succumbs to temptations and gradually slides down to become an addict, there is a school which introduces the factor of a weak mind and clouded thinking. Accordingly, emphasis is laid on the Moon as Karaka for the mind and the 5th house as the seat of intelligence in astrological considerations. The premises is apparently suspect, as in actual cases, it is found that some of the worst addicts happen to be intellectuals of top calibre, be it in arts, science or literature. If they turned addicts, it is clearly for reasons other than intellectual deficiency or a weak mind. As regards any special emphasis on the Moon, let us not forget that no astrological discussion on human behaviour is feasible without due consideration of the Moon. Because, the basic inherent tendencies cannot work on their own and they work through the mind. The Moon is the conduit through which the impulses are transmitted and corresponding thought processes set in motion. What needs to be considered in this context is not so much the strength of the Moon but the strength of the basic instincts that are working on the Moon.

Let us take for instance a horoscope with the Moon in Pisces in the 5th house powerfully aspected by an exalted Jupiter from Cancer. The Sun being placed in Virgo, the Moon is in full splendour and being aspected by its dispositor gets further reinforcement. To give further boost to the set-up, the Moon and Jupiter are placed in auspicious houses, namely, the 5th and the 9th and are in mutual exchange. The Moon is free from any other aspect or interference. Technically one cannot ask for a better placement for the Moon and for the 5th house and its lord. The mind and intelligence are well fortified. True to astrological indications, the person is highly educated, cultured and belongs to a rich family. He is successful in the professional field with good earnings. Yet, he has turned into an addict to narcotics to an extent warranting medical interference and supervision. Therefore a mere superficial interpretation of clues in the horoscope cannot reveal an addict from a social elite. One needs to ask Outstanding approach and get into the serious business of in-depth analysis of inherent tendencies in order to identify the wayward one at the root of the problem.

Behaviour is dictated by basic instincts. These inherent tendencies are predetermined. Astrology has held this belief along; and scientific research now confirms so. Like a gardener shapes the plant by periodic pruning and constant tending, an individual also cultivates cultured behaviour through reining the basic instincts. Such of the impulses which are in tune with Nature like creativity, nurturing or fostering etc. generate positive thinking and fill the mind with feeling of joy and happiness. This is the sense of happiness that keeps the mind buoyant. The negative instincts such as anger, jealousy, greed etc. act as catalysts to a reactive process breaking the chemistry of feeling of happiness. They infuse a sense of "wanting" and dissatisfaction which feeling keeps fermenting and expanding and when left unchecked becomes an obsession. The built-in regulator mechanism checks upto point the negative impulses over taking the positive ones. At this stage one can experience the inner conflict. In the absence of proper counsel in coming to grips with the situation, the individual attempts to suppress the conflict by sweeping it under the carpet and pretend that it does not exist. Intoxicants create congenial conditions for this self deception - a process to forget he is having an inner conflict in the mind which he is helpless to resolve.

Under astrological discipline the inherent tendencies can be easily identified, since the basic human instincts are equated with planetary symbols. Astrology holds that ebb and surge of these basic impulses in an individual keep to a predetermined time schedule. Hence an astrological time-table could be drawn up to reveal when these impulses

Similarly, ... and the Moon receiving ... aspect is also very good ...ychic balance and mental ...

The Sun and the Moon, however, in mutual square aspect give direct evidence of severe mental strain and a lack of harmony, not only in the immediate environment, but deep down, in the innermost parts of the soul, provided the constellations involved are those of Mars or Rahu.

There is also evidence of a basal conflict in the human soul when the Sun and the Moon are in adjacent signs, and again in the 6th and 8th from each other.

The basic principle behind this is that when the Ascendant, and the Sun and the Moon, are in signs of malefic planets and constellations, there is a conflict not only at the mental level, but reflected also, in material events and circumstances. But this internal conflict need not always be considered to be in any way severe. It merely indicates, that the tendency is there. For more specific signs of mental imbalance and derangement, we must look for further corroboration, from what are called Arishta Yogas, or certain groupings, involving the affliction of Mercury from Saturn, Mars and Rahu.

The 4th and 9th house factors represent the influence of heredity. The Sun represents the father and paternal ancestors, and the Moon, the mother and maternal ancestors. The harmonious aspect, or otherwise, between them, shows whether the parents are physically and psychologically suited to one another.

Each planet in the horoscope stands for some particular complex. The Sun and the Moon represent these complexes, surrounding our parents, and are basic and far-reaching. They determine our psychological type and fundamental bias and attitude towards life.

The planet Mars represents all those complexes in which hate and anger are uppermost. It represents the most sensitive spot in our psychic make-up and that complex, in which there is the greatest degree of tension, just as physically, it indicates, that organ of our body which is most liable to inflammation and irritation.

Saturn represents our fear complexes, and those experiences which give rise to anxiety, neurosis and nervous depletion. He represents primarily our fear of death, of loss of mental autonomy and independence.

He is the censor who might injure or restrict the concept of Self which we build up in our conscious mind concerning ourselves. He is the Ego-consciousness, or complex, the ahankara of the Sankhya doctrine.

The Yoga system anticipated thousands of years ago the doctrine of psycho-analysis are likely to rise and overflow and when they would remain dormant, through time-tested methods of Dasa-Bhukti and transits. For instance, the astrological symbol Sun is equated with such instincts as Ego, self-assertion, personality-projection, arrogance or overbearing tendency etc. among other attributes. The symbol Jupiter depicts sense of respect to elders, submission to righteousness, creativity and nurturing tendency. Let us go back to the horoscope of the addict cited earlier. A Full Moon denoting a strong mind is very much under the influence of two strong instincts, symbolically depicted by Jupiter and the Sun. Focussing our study only on the impact on behaviour pattern, we can clearly see in this planetary set-up a source of inner conflict. As a positive influence, Jupiter is exerting the person to respect elders, remain obedient and carry out the wishes of his father dutifully. On the other side, the Sun is egging on the person to assert his personality, the Sun in Virgo sliding down to its debilitation sign. Jupiter, on the other hand, is firmly entrenched in its strongest seat of exaltation sign. Between the two conflicting influences, the one of Jupiter is clearly dominating. Consequently the person has not been able to assert himself in a way he would very much like to, as it would amount to defying his father and this the influence of Jupiter would not permit. As a result the negative feeling that he lacks recognition on his own and that he is merely an appendage to his father's status is simmering within and fermenting over a period. The helplessness of the situation and the blind alley he has found himself in happens to be at the root of his problem. Once the environment is made congenial for development of his ego and personality, he could be easily veered away from drug addiction. Jupiter and Moon in exchange of houses as lords of 5th and 9th underline the role of this relationship in the conflict of personality. What is needed is to make the victim and his family see the problem in its proper perspective and take measures to create suitable environment.

According to guidelines of Vimshottari Dasa system, the problem is scheduled to surface during the operative period of the Sun. Presently the native is in the midst of Sun Dasa and it can safely be surmised that with the end of this Dasa, the problem will get resolved permanently. The present transit of Saturn in Capricorn involving apsects on both 9th Bhava and 9th lord is likely to affect the father of the native and act as a precursor to bring him back to the road of recovery. In instances like this, a co-ordinated approach to the problem by Astrology and medical science would prove more rewarding. Because, the discipline of Astrology alone has the requisite technique to identify the nature of inner conflict which is the real culprit. Even the victim himself is unaware of the nature of conflict and mental stress he is under, except the pangs of that gnawing feeling which he is trying to numb by resorting to narcotic drugs. Medical science while equipped to attend to the impact of drug effect on the physical body and neural system is in no position to resolve the mental conflict, which is a pre-requisite for total restoration of normal conditions.

It would be wishful thinking to claim that a study of the birth horoscope, divorced from intimate knowledge of environmental conditions, would reveal drug addiction with pointed clarity. At its best, an analysis of the horoscope can bring out in considerable detail the general behaviour pattern; identify the specific tendency which is growing wayward consequent to impediments to its normal development; and also time the corresponding periods during which such impulses are likely to peak and be turbulent enough to disturb the rhythm of life. This is because these are the outcome of forces of destiny at work, i.e., results of inherent instincts which are predetermined. In other words, Astrology can predict in a way that is already predetermined. No prediction is feasible when the happening or event is an outcome of variable factors and not determined. The inner conflict in mind to which man is subjected to is clearly consequent to the working of inherent tendencies which are predetermined and therefore within the scope of prediction. But whether the person decides to silently undergo the mental agony, or seek solace through prayers, or resort to numb the pangs through artificial physical means of intoxicants and such other devices are all variable factors entirely depending upon environmental situations and subject to exercise of will-power. Hence the course of action the person takes under stress cannot be predicted; it could only be an intelligent guess.

There is considerable misconception about the scope and limitations of Astrology. In a Nadi reading, for instance, a prediction was made not only of the name of the disease the native would suffer from but it also spelled out the name of the doctor who would be treating, the name of the medicine and the name of the manufacturers of the medicine that would give relief. By no stretch of imagination can this be brought under astrological prediction. But we have come to expect similar performance from Astrology. Meaning of "Astrology is a Divine Science" is not that it can perform miracles; it implies that it can guide man to find God within him which is the objective of the Vedangas.—96.91.

On Yogamarakas

BUELL D. HUGGINS

A YOGAMARAKA is a planet that first gives Yoga (elevation to high office, fame and popularity in acting, winner of the Nobel Prize, etc.) and then death — often in the same Dasa and Bhukti.

Sometimes the Yogamaraka planet is also the Badhaka and frequently the Yogamaraka planet will be debilitated in the natal or Navamsa chart or will be in an unfavourable asterism.

Lal Bahadur Sastri[1] the late Prime Minister of India had a Sagittarius Lagna with Mercury, lord of the 7th and 10th, exalted in the 10th. In the Navamsa, however, Mercury becomes debilitated in Pisces.

On June 9, 1964, Sastri became Prime Minister in Mercury Dasa, Mercury Bhukti. From his Virgo Chandra Lagna, Mercury as lord of the 2nd and in the 10th from Lagna, gave Raja Yoga; but as lord of the 7th from Lagna was a Badhaka, a Maraka (death-inflicting planet). So Mercury elevated him to the high office of Prime Minister of his country and then brought death by heart attack on January 11, 1966 while on a trip to the Soviet Union, also in Mercury Dasa, Mercury Bhukti. Mercury was a Yogamaraka.

One author has said that if one has Venus in Virgo, the least said about it the better; but another said that Venus in Virgo will give Yoga, but it will be of short duration.

Emperor Frederick III of Germany[2] (father and predecessor of Emperor William II (called "Kaiser Wilhelm"), had a Scorpio Lagna and Aquarius Chandra Lagna.

From Chandra Lagna, Venus as lord of the 9th and 4th was Yogakaraka. The Sun as lord of the 8th from Lagna could give Yoga although it was debilitated in the 12th house and in the Navamsa it was in the 2nd house in Scorpio and the 7th from the Moon. Venus in Virgo was in the 11th from Lagna but 8th from Chandra Lagna, but being retrograde attained exaltation strength. In the Navamsa Venus was again conjunction Mercury, but in Gemini in the 9th and lord of the Lagna.

Frederick had Cancer of the throat and a throat operation had left him a voiceless invalid two months before he ascended the throne on March 9, 1988 and he died 99 days later on June 15 in the same Venus Dasa, the Sun Bhukti that had elevated him.

James A. Garfield[3], United States President, had Venus in Virgo in Lagna and an Aries Chandra Lagna. Venus, lord of the 9th from Lagna, could give Yoga, but as lord of the 2nd could kill and thus become a Yogamaraka.

Jupiter, lord of the 7th, a Maraka house from Lagna, was debilitated in Capricorn in the 5th and aspected debilitated Venus in the 1st. From the Moon, Jupiter is in the 10th, giving Gajakesari Yoga (good for political success) and aspecting Venus in the 6th, lord of the 2nd and 7th, a Maraka from Chandra Lagna.

Garfield was elected President on November 2, 1880 in Jupiter Dasa, Venus Bhukti; but he was shot in the back on July 2, 1881 in a Washington D.C. train station by a religious fanatic who said he had been ordered by God to kill him.

The President lived more than two months after he was shot and showed some signs of improvement, but then developed blood poisoning and died September 19, in the same Jupiter Dasa, Venus Bhukti that saw him elected and inaugurated.

One of the almost forgotten Presidents because of his brief tenure, Garfield was one of the brightest. He was both right and left-handed and could write Latin with one hand and Greek with the other at the same time. He had taught ancient languages, literature, history, philosophy and higher mathematics. The October 1964 issue of the Scientific American Magazine credits him with proving algebraically the famous theorem of Pythagoras (in any right angled triangle the square of the hypotenuse is equal to the sum of the other two sides).

Warrent M. Harding[4] had an Aquarius Lagna and Aries Chandra Lagna. He was elected President of the United States on November 2, 1920 in Rahu Dasa, Venus Bhukti.

Rahu and Venus are both in Virgo in the 8th from Lagna and 6th from Chandra Lagna. Rahu is strengthened by being Vargottama. As ruler of the 9th and 4th houses from Lagna, Venus is Yogakaraka, but as lord of the 2nd and 7th from Chandra Lagna is a Maraka. Combined they became a Yogamaraka, and he died suddenly on August 2, 1923 in San Francisco, California, while returning from a journey to Alaska. His elevation to the highest office and then death in the midst of his term were in the same Rahu Dasa, Venus Bhukti. As Kalidasa said in his classical work, Uttara Kalamrita, Khanda VI, Sloka 18, if Rahu or Ketu is in conjunction with a planet ruling a Kendra or Trikona and is posited in a Dusthana (8th, 12th or 6th house), it first gives Yoga and then death.

Humbert (Umberto) II[5], the last King of Italy, had a Gemini Lagna and Scorpio Chandra Lagna. During Mussolini's Fascist rule Humbert's father, King Victor Emanuel III, ruled only nominally and on May 9, 1946 he abdicated in favour of his son Humbert and went into exile in Egypt, where he died on December 28, 1947.

With Mussolini gone, the people voted in favour of a Republic on June 2, 1946 and on June 10, 1946 the Italian Court of Cassation at Rome proclaimed the Republic at 6.00 p.m. With the monarchy thus ended, King Humbert II went to Barcelona, Spain, on June 13 and the next day into exile at Cascais, Portugal.

He had been king for only 32 days in the Sun Dasa, Venus Bhukti. The royal planet, the Sun, lord of the 3rd, was in the 4th in Virgo. Venus, 19 degrees away, was also in Virgo. As lord of the 5th for his Gemini Lagna, Venus is a good planet, capable of conferring Yoga, but being debilitated gave only brief Raja Yoga and turned out to be a Yogamaraka.

In spite of a debilitated Moon, plus Sakata and Kemadruma Yoga, the exiled Humbert lived much like a king, was called "Your Majesty" by his numerous visitors and admirers and strict court protocol was observed at his "Villa Italia". He died in Geneva, Switzerland, on March 18, 1983 in Jupiter Dasa, Jupiter Bhukti. Jupiter was lord of the 7th from Lagna and 2nd from Chandra Lagna — a double Maraka.

Jean Harlow[6], daughter of a dentist and a very popular Hollywood movie star during the 1930's, had a Virgo Lagna and Aries Chandra Lagna. Exalted Venus in the 7th, exchanging houses with Jupiter in the 2nd, conferred a Maha (great) Yoga professionally in a distant city from her birth- place. She rose to fame in late 1930 in Venus Dasa, Jupiter Bhukti.

Her popularity and salary increased during the next six years, until she became ill with kidney trouble and died suddenly at age 26 of uremic poisoning on June 7, 1937 in Venus Dasa, Ketu Bhukti. Ketu in the 2nd in Libra (with Jupiter) gave the results not only of Jupiter but also of Venus in the 7th, both Maraka houses. Ketu and Jupiter are also in the 7th from Chandra Lagna. Mars in the 5th is lord of the 8th and 3rd and aspects the 8th house and the Moon therein, indicating a short life and sudden death.

From Chandra Lagna, Jupiter in the 7th exchanges house with Venus in the 12th (a Dainya Yoga), which gave interruptions in marital felicity. Her three marriages were said to be failures because of incompatible, impotent and sadistic husbands, one of whom beat her with a cane, which may have hastened her back and kidney problems.

Her Venus, though exalted, was badly placed in the 7th from Lagna and 12th from Chandra Lagna and turned out to be a Yogamaraka.

William Laud[7] had a Virgo Lagna and Aquarius Chandra Lagna. From Chandra Lagna, Venus as ruler of the 9th and 4th houses is a Yogakaraka, but as ruler of the 2nd and 9th from Lagna is a potential Yogamaraka. Venus in Libra in the 2nd from Lagna is in a Maraka house, but in the 9th from Chandra Lagna is very auspicious.

In 1633 in Venus Bhukti of Ketu Dasa he was appointed by King Charles I of England to the highest position in the Anglican Church — Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of England. Ketu in Sagittarius in the 4th gave the results of Jupiter in the 9th and he had Gajakesari Yoga with Jupiter in a Kendra from the Moon.

Laud's troubles began with the "Long Parliament", which opened in November 1640, determined to make the King more subject to the will of Parliament. Archbishop Laud had become an object of contempt not only in England but in America for his arbitrary and dictatorial manner and acting more like a Roman Catholic than an Anglican.

On December 28 (NS), 1640 Laud was impeached by Parliament in Venus Dasa, Venus Bhukti. On March 11 (NS), 1641, in the same

Bhukti he was imprisoned in the Tower. In the Moon Bhukti he was placed on trial by the House of Lords on March 22 (NS), 1644, was found guilty of high treason and beheaded in Tower Hill on January 20 (NS), 1645, also in the Moon Bhukti. The Moon was in the asterism posited in the 10th. Venus in its own sign Libra protected Laud for a few years. With the power to cause both Yoga and death, Venus gave him Yoga in its own Bhukti of Ketu Dasa with his elevation to Archibishop, but later brought trouble and death after Venus Dasa began to run. (See page 193 of Uttara Kalamrita Khanda VI, Sloka 25, where it says that the Dasa lord has power to cause both Yoga and death, he will give the effect of the Yoga lord first in his own Bhukti.)

Finally, let us look at the "two horoscopes" of James Dean[8] the brilliant young actor who showed great promise, but because of his love of speed and car racing met with sudden death at age 24 on a California highway on September 30, 1955. The man riding with Dean suffered a broken leg and head injuries and the man in the car he collided with sustained only minor injuries, but Dean was killed instantly.

Neptune, planet of sorrow, transited 23 Virgo (tropical) when Dean's mother died on July 14, 1940. He was only nine and his maternal uncle took him in for a while. After graduation from High School he moved to California, where his father was then living and studied drama. In 1951 he moved to New York and in 1954 was in a Broadway play. Shortly thereafter he moved to Hollywood. He was in only three movies, but had remarkable talent and was extremely popular.

At first a horoscope was published showing he was born about 9.00 a.m. CST, with a tropical Lagna of 8 Libra. Later (probably to confuse the astrologers) there was a story that he and the actress Elizabeth Taylor said they were both born at 2.00 a.m. However, the doctor failed to note the time on his birth certificate.

From mid-1952 to mid-1955 the transits of Jupiter had blessed his Moon, but in 1955 Saturn began transiting opposite his Moon. On September 16, 1955 a New Moon in 23 Virgo (tropical) transited the same degree that Neptune transited when his mother died, and on September 30 (the day he was killed) Mars transited the degree of the New Moon of September 16. The writer believes this was his true Lagna, and that his correct birth time was about 8.13 p.m. L.M.T.

With a sidereal Virgo Lagna and Libra Chandra Lagna he had Saturn with Venus in Sagittarius the 4th from Lagna and 3rd from Chandra Lagna and was running Saturn Dasa, Venus Bhukti when he died. Venus Bhukti had begun in 1953 as his acting career got well under way and he finished his last film the day before he got killed in the car wreck. Saturn is Yogakaraka for his Libra Chandra Lagna, and Venus as ruler of the 9th from Lagna gave Yoga but as ruler of the 2nd became a Maraka.

With the 2.00 a.m. birth time, he had a Scorpio Lagna and Libra Chandra Lagna, with Jupiter in the 8th from Lagna and 9th from Chandra Lagna and died in Jupiter Dasa, the Moon Bhukti. His acting career commenced in Venus Bhukti of Jupiter Dasa. Venus occupies the 2nd with Saturn, while Jupiter is in the 8th. The writer believes this horoscope is the wrong one for James Dean, and that like Jean Harlow and others given above, he was the victim of a Yogamaraka. For Jupiter and the Moon are not Marakas for Scorpio and Libra, according to Kalidasa (Uttara Kalamrita, Khanda II, Slokas 93-94), with which Dr. B. V. Raman agrees (Hindu Predictive Astrology, 8th ed., 1963, page 136).

which prescribes methods of unearthing the re-pressed unconscious complexes and tackling them.

But Yoga differs fundamentally from psycho-analysis. Yoga advocates rationalism. Yoga re-gards all emotions as intellectual disorders, or effects of false knowledge (Avidya). Psycho analy-sis regards all judgements as coloured by uncon-scious wishes.

The Yoga ethic is not egoistic, because, it is not indifferent to the welfare of mankind. Goodwill or friendship (Maitri) for all happy creatures, com-passion (Karuna) for the suffering, cheerfulness (Mudita) for all good persons, and indifference (Upeksha) for all vicious persons are described as the means of stability of the mind.

According to Hindu notions, the six internal enemies of man which constantly associate with the mind, and come in the way of peace and spiritual evolution are Kama (Desire), Krodha (Anger), Lobha (Miserliness), Moha (Attachment), Mada (Egoism) and Matsarya (Jealousy).

One or more of these enemies may invade the mind in a given case. To identify the enemy, the situation of the Moon in certain constellations and signs has to be considered.

Take an instance where the Moon is in Aries in the constellation of Aswini ruled by Ketu. It indicates Matsarya to get over which one has to strive by recourse to certain Yogic techniques.

If it is in Krittika (Sun) it is Mada.

If the Ascendant and the Moon are all in the same constellation ruled by the same planet, e.g. Swati ruled by Rahu in the sign of Libra, due to the powerful Vasanas of previous Karma, the mind dwells excessively on the sensual things, forces the body to physically enjoy the object, and the spiritual progress is thwarted or retarded.

In such a case, the mind, dominated by sen-sonal urges, makes the body sensitive to certain types of diseases.

Knowing in advance from the horoscope, these trends, due precautions could be taken for physi-cal, mental and spiritual well-being.

By practising certain Yogic techniques, and also Pranayama, Pratyahara and Dhyana regu-larly, one can bring, under one's control, the play of emotions, and can release, from the human system, certain energies, which can counteract or at least minimise, the afflictions in the horoscope.

Combustion as a Source of Strength

AGASTYA*

THE heading of this article may look strange, but it is deliberately chosen. Combustion or asta has been interpreted by various authors in various ways. What the standard astrological writers have to say in the matter, nobody seems to have investigated. While no doubt it is a healthy sign that intelligent readers are coming forward with various theories as to the scope and importance of certain moot but significant, astrological principles, it is equally to be deplored that almost all such observations are marked by either complete absence of practical experience, or dogmatic assertions based on too much of theoretical study. Astrology is an ocean in itself and it is not enough if one is merely equipped with the theoretical data as to the depth of the ocean one is crossing. He must have the means and sufficient experience of having crossed the ocean before. Generalised statements based upon vague, insufficient and uncorroborative evidence should never be accepted. In a science like Astrology where we have to primarily deal with psychological tendencies, often manifesting themselves as complexes and inhibitions, we have to be over-careful. In India, astrological investigation is still in an infant stage as most exponents are only recent additions and much time must elapse before their views or conclusions often challenging or doubting the validity of certain astrological configurations can be accepted as authoritative pronouncements. For instance, in an article published in a recent issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, the author, whilst showing a good grasp of the subject, questions the soundness of certain principles adumbrated in Jatakachandrika because they would not apply to the instances he had in view. As every rule has an exception, and the fact that an exception exists should not blind us to the validity or soundness of the rule, unless very extensive investigations are made and thousands of horoscopes are studied, one will not be able to appreciate the pros and cons of the various combinations, how they can be applied, how they would manifest, and under what circumstances they could be treated as an exception. Such an extensive study can be claimed by only a limited few such as late Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao, who have devoted their entire time to the study of Astrology and their conclusions cannot be easily ignored. Firstly, we have the standard astrological works whose opinions should alone be construed as authoritative in points of doubt and secondly we have the experience of the 'fortunate few' whose investigations have yielded valuable truths. It would, therefore, be the height of folly to argue a certain thing merely on the basis of theory divorced from experience.

This reminds us of Chart No. 11* dicussed in March 1945 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE in which the Editor has invested 'Mercury' with power to produce highly benefic results in the matter of conferring Raja Yoga upon the native. This has been controverted by quite a number of intelligent readers and I propose to sum up the whole case, which incidentally, hinges on the 'combustion' of Mercury, lord of Lagna. Mr. K. P. P. Nair has advanced the argument (vide his letter on page 207 of May 1945 issue) that Mercury has been spoiled by virtue of (a) Parivraja having obtained in Lagna and (b) by being associated with the Sun lord of the 12th and hence subject to combustion, Mars lord of the 3rd and 8th, and Jupiter, owner of the 4th and 7th with the result "one wonders whether such a powerless Mercury in association with other powerful malefics can confer all the Raja Yogas mentioned in the analysis". Mr. Nair goes on to say that the horoscope in question is "excellent for renunciation".

Let me at the outset suggest that the strength and weakness of a planet is to be determined by taking into consideration the sum-total of the influences to which it is subjected. As the great Kalyana Varman[1] observes, as Raja Yogas, Neecha Yogas etc., have been described in large numbers, a clever astrologer should assess the value or worth of a particular combination taking into account the various shades of strength and weakness. In other words, we should not rush into conclusions on superficial evidence. In the horoscope in question, Mercury is lord of Lagna. He is exalted in Lagna. He occupies a friendly Amsa. He has caused Bhadra Yoga, one of the Pancha Maha Purusha Yogas. In the Navamsa, he is lord of the 2nd and 5th and occupies the 10th with the Sun and the Moon. The disposition in the Navamsa appears to be equally significant inasmuch as it constitutes one of the important bases for determining the sthanabala of a planet. A group of planets in a particular sign, ignoring for the time being their ownership, etc., is supposed to produce collective influences in regard to a particular Bhava or in regard to a particular Yoga. The fact that some of the planets constituting the group have evil ownership does not negative the results due to the Yoga, but on the other hand, the Yoga results must be restricted, or they may not be allowed full play. If 'association' has any meaning at all, then one has to concede that the results of association are 'mutual'. In other words, if Jupiter and the Sun are together in association; with say Mercury, the effects of the Yoga, generated by Jupiter and the Sun, are delegated or transferred to Mercury also. One who goes through standard astrological works can have ample testimony in support of this statement. In Chart No. 13, for instance, four planets have conjoined—the Sun and Mercury practically in the same degree, Jupiter nearer Mercury and Mars considerably removed. The Sun-Jupiter conjunction in Lagna[2] suggests that the native is a man of character, a minister, possessing, learning, wealth and enjoyment. Jupiter no doubt owns a Kendra, but the evil due to this ownership would be more applicable in considering the Maraka rather than the Raja Yoga. Firstly, Jupiter is inherently bene and this inherent beneficence acts as a protec shield. Moreover, the Sun's Karaka influence is Raja Karaka) is transferred to Jupiter becau as lord of the 12th the Sun is more or less neutral and not capable of giving rise to indepe dent results. A planet has three main funct to perform apart from the subsidiary ones. T main functions are (a) due to ownership, (b) d to Karakatva and (c) due to generation of Yoga The subsidiary functions are given rise to virtue of association, aspect etc. Therefore, Sun's innate function of Karakatva, blended the main functions of Jupiter-Sun combinat plus Jupiter's innate function of Karakatv should render the combination taken as a wh quite effective. The association of Mars an Jupiter should also be interpreted as I have do the Sun-Jupiter combination. Jupiter and Ma together constitutes a Guru Mangala Yoga an since the combination has occurred in Lagna indicates, the native would become a Minister President of Legislature, etc. Here as the comb nation has occurred in Lagna where Mercury exalted as Lagnadhipati, and hence a Yogakara the evil due to the 3rd and 8th lordship minimised, and even Mars[4] should also produ favourable results.

Mr. Nair further contends that Venus bei situated in the 12th suggests Parivrajya. Ven in the 12th in this particular case in the sign of th Sun, and aspected by Saturn, does not indica any Pravrajya as Venus in the 12th suggests th the native must be a good sexologist, liking ro mance and taking deep interest in affairs ind cated by Venus, viz., music, fine arts, etc. Venu being posited in Leo[5] and aspected by Satur suggests accession to wealth through wome liked by relatives and enjoying varied pleasur and miseries, a King or a King's representati famous, possessing territory and conveyances fair appearance and suffering sorrow.[6] All results cannot happen in this particular on account of other evil influences, but the must have a restricted play. If the native horoscope cannot command territory and become a King, he must become at least a representative.

We shall now come to the four-planet combi- If there are in one house four or more planets, the person becomes an ascetic stent with the order assigned to the stron- planet. In this case, four planets no doubt Lagna, but Mercury is the strongest. This sts that the native should become a Jeevika— mears a Vishnu form of worship. More- a Jeevika is described as a 'gluttonous ant'. As the Pravrajya causing planet is in bustion with the Sun, the native cannot be- a Sanyasi but will have reverence for the tic order. Therefore the Yoga is completely fied here. The native may entertain con- d reverence for holy persons and the combi- n is not strong enough to deprive the Raja

Now I shall come to the last and the most portant point raised by Mr. Nair, regarding the bustion of Mercury.

Almost all astrological works agree that the Mercury combination is auspicious. The wing are some of the results ascribed by ferent writers:-

"Fluctuating wealth, polite speech, famous, pected, liked by the King, a great man, fair king, wealthy and strong."[7]

"The person will have learning, beauty and ength but fickle-minded."[8]

"The person will be clever, intelligent, famous and happy."[9]

It will therefore be seen that nowhere is this combination condemned. A combination is called ga and Yoga means conjunction from the root or joining. This does not impose any limita- n as to the distance between the planets con- joining, though by implication, we have to assume that the extent and nature of the results depends upon the distance between the combining bodies. In so far as combustion is concerned, it seems always to have reference to the invisibility of the planet by virtue of its nearness to the Sun. Mercury is supposed to be asta or combust when he is 12 to 14 degrees from the Sun forwards or backwards. There are as usual different shades of the combustion and combustion being one of the modes of conjunction, it cannot be always treated as harmful. For the general idea of 'conjunction' various terms are indifferently employed as Samayana (coming together), Samyoga (conjunction), Yoga (junction) and Yuddha (fight). In this particular case, the Sun and Mercury are both in the same longitude but Mercury is in advance of the Sun by about 16' of arc suggesting that this is a case of pure Graha Yuddha. Since Mercury is Lagnadhipati, is exalted, occupies his own house and is north of the Sun, the Sun is vanquished in the fight with the result he is not able to sap the vitality of Mercury. If there were no Graha Yuddha, some significance could have been attached to combustion. Mercury is in war but he conquers and hence the combustion loses its signficance. Added to this, Mercury's declination being 4° S and that of the Sun practically nil, the combustion cannot be complete.

Hence we conclude that combustion becomes a source of power for the planet concerned if (a) it has entered Graha Yuddha and vanquished the Sun and (b) if its declination is more than 12°: In the first circumstance, the planet in question if it happens to be a Yogakaraka, becomes very powerful to produce the Yoga results, as it will have won battle with the Sun. It will therefore be seen that in this particular case, Mercury is rendered powerful by combustion with the Sun.

As Mercury is in Lagna and as Lagnadhipati (in this case Budha) is in a Kendra, a powerful Raja Yoga is caused. A similar Raja Yoga is also given rise to by the lord of Chandra Lagna (Mercury) and the lord of Lagna (Mercury) being disposed in Kendras. All these suggest that Mercury is powerful and that as indicated by the Editor in March 1945 issue of THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, the native of the horoscope would reach the highest position in life in Jupiter period of Mercury Dasa, that Parivrajya is nominal and that because of the association with Mercury of the 3rd, 8th and 12th lords, the opposition will be considerable.

These conclusions are further supported by Saravali, where the author says that when a planet is in exaltation or in Lagna, the native will have access to territory, wealth etc.

Lessons in JAIMINI ASTROLOGY —3*

IRANGANTI RANGACHARYA

I HAVE classified the aspecting planets into six kinds according to their potentiality in the formation of the Subhargala Yogas. They are in ascending order as follows:

(1) A planet who aspects Janma Lagna.
(2) A planet who aspects Janma Lagna and its 7th house.
(3) The lord of the sign occupied by the Moon aspecting Janma Lagna, called, Kevala.
(4) The lord of the sign occupied by the Moon aspecting both the Moon and Janma Lagna, called Yogada.
(5) A planet aspecting Janma Lagna in Rasi chart and Navamsa Lagna in Navamsa chart, called Yogada.
OR A planet aspecting Janma Lagna in Rasi chart and Drekkana Lagna in Drekkana chart.
(6) A planet aspecting Janma Lagna in Rasi chart, Navamsa Lagna in Navamsa chart, and Drekkana Lagna in Drekkana chart.

Navamsa Reckoning

The readers are aware of the method of reckoning Navamsa, according to the traditional principles in Parasari. Some commentators advocate the Jaimini principle of reckoning which is as follows:

For Aries, Leo, Sagittarius, the count should be direct from Aries.

For Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn, the count should be reverse from Capricorn.

For Gemini, Libra, Aquarius, the count should be direct from Libra.

For Cancer, Vrischika, Pisces, the count should be reverse from Cancer.

Rasi: Janma Lagna - Scorpio 8° with Saturn 12°; Sagittarius - Ketu 6°; Capricorn - Moon 3°; Pisces - Jupiter 4°; Taurus - Sun 7° and Mercury 8°; Gemini - Mars 27°, Venus 18° and Rahu 6°. See Rasi and Navamsa charts.

Use both the methods of reckoning Navamsa and accept whichever is applicable for finding out the aspecting planets etc. But for Drekkana reckoning, use Jaimini principles as authenticated by Vriddhas. This is called Parivritti Traya Drekkana. The Table given below is the ready reckoner of Drekkanas.

See the Parivritti Traya Drekkana Kundali of the given chart, with the help of the Table.

In the Rasi chart, the Moon in Capricorn asserts Navamsa Lagna, Taurus in the Navamsa chart. Hence the Moon becomes Yogada (aspecting planet-5). Thus Subhargala Yoga forms by any category of Argala signs. But Sa-turn becomes Yogada (A-P-4). The 5th sign from Saturn is occupied by Jupiter, forming Subhargala Yoga by secondary Argala sign (3rd category).

Assessment of Subhargala Potential

(1) Assess the Subhargala potential by the six orders of the aspecting planet, the 1st being the lowest, and the 6th being the highest.

(2) Assess the Subhargala potential by the merits and demerits of the aspecting planet.

Merits:

(1) Exaltation or own house positions of the aspecting planet. (2) Associaton of the Moon with the aspecting planet. (3) Aspect or association of the exalted planets with the aspecting planet.

Demerits:

(1) The Subhargala potential falls if Rahu is associated with the aspecting planet. Rahu destroys the Subhargala Yoga like a droplet of poison in a pot of milk. (2) The Subhargala potential decreases much by association of Ketu with the aspecting planet. (3) The Subhargala potential decreases if the aspecting planet is debilitated. (4) Rahu in the 5th or 9th or 8th or 12th from the aspecting planet reduces Subhargala potential.

In the next lesson, I shall deal with how Argala Rajayogas are constituted, by the formation of Subhargala Yoga connected with Yogada by the 1st and the 3rd category of Argala signs.—79.91.

Future of the Narasimha Rao Government

DR. U. S. PRASAD

THE tenth Parliamentary elections have failed to give clear verdict, as expected, to any political party. Naturally, the ministry formed will work under constraints and duress to get the reserved support of other parties. This is a hung Parliament led by the Congress (I) without any unequivocal support from the other parties.

The longevity of the Government has to be examined considering permutations and combinations of the planetary positions at the time* of swearing-in.

*Rasi: Virgo - Ascendant 18-30; Gemini - Sun 23-53, Mercury 10-51 and Ketu 25-22; Cancer - Mars 21-24, Jupiter 18-47 and Venus 20-51; Sagittarius - Rahu 25-22; and Libra - Moon 1-2.

R. SATYANARAYANA MURTY

THE Lagna lord Mercury is in his own house in the 10th. There are no planets in the Lagna which is free from aspects also. Mercury in strength occupies the best Kendra. There are no benefics in Kendras. Karaka Saturn is aspected by 8th lord which will confer long life (vide Ch. VII, St. 2, Bhavartha Ratnakara tr. by DR. B. V. RAMAN).

Chart 1: Swearing-in of Ministry: Ascendant 162-23; Sun 66-42; Moon 181-3; Mars 111-29; Mercury 70-44; Jupiter 108-46; Venus 11-51; Saturn (R) 282-09; and Rahu 265-21. Balance of Mars Dasa (proportionately reduced) 1 month and 14 days; Rahu 9 months; Jupiter 8 months; Saturn 9 months and 15 days etc. (Lahiri Ayanamsa).

K. B. CHAUGULE

ACCORDING to Muhurta Chintamani, under Rajyabhisheka, Chapters 1 to 4 (1) if the lord of the Ascendant is debilitated the ruler will not fulfil or accomplish the desired task etc.; (2) if the lord of the 4th house is debilitated, the ruler will go out from his position; (3) if the major planets are posited in moveable signs, the ruler will not continue for a long time.

In the horoscope* for oath-taking (1) all the major planets are in moveable signs; (2) the lord of the Ascendant Mercury is in the 10th

*Rasi: Virgo - Ascendant; Libra - Moon and Pluto; Sagittarius - Herschel, Neptune and Rahu; Capricorn - Saturn; Gemini - Sun, Mercury and Ketu; and Cancer - Mars, Venus and Jupiter.

DR. P. M. DUBEY

AT THE time of swearing-in Virgo was rising with the Moon in Libra, Dasami Tithi, Parigha Yoga, Gara Karana, Chitta Nakshatra. Rahukalam was avoided. The Lagna lord Mercury is in own Rasi in the 10th, the Sun too is in the 10th but both eclipsed by Ketu. There are no planets in the 8th, evil Panchaka has been avoided. We see that the time has been well chosen.

The Rasi at the time of the swearing-in is the 8th from the Janma Rasi of Rao, the Nakshatra is Naidhana from Janma Nakshatra. Mars the lord of 3rd and 8th is debilitated in Rasi (exalted in Navamsa), aspected by Saturn and joins Jupiter, a Maraka and a Badhaka for Virgo Lagna

S. B. R. MISRA

THE longevity of the Government as per Jaimini comes to Alpayu. As per standard and Dhruvank chart method the span comes to 56 and 50 respectively. Taking their average and calculating its proportionate span for 5 years, the term of the Government comes to 2.1 years only.

Rasi: Virgo - Ascendant 12-42; Libra - Moon 2-4; Sagittarius - Rahu 26-26; Capricorn - Saturn 12-15; Gemini - Sun 5-53, Mercury 11-2 and Ketu 26-26; Cancer - Mars 21-40, Venus 21-3 and Jupiter 18-54. Navamsa: Taurus - Ascendant and Ketu; Libra - Moon; Scorpio - Sun and Rahu; Sagittarius - Jupiter; Capricorn - Mars, Mercury and Venus with a balance of 2 years, 5 months of Mars Dasa.

GOPAL . S. CHATURVEDI

THE factors that strike the eye first are:

(i) No planets in the 6th, 8th, 12th.

(ii) Lords of quadrants and trines strong and well placed.

(iii) Exchange of the 2nd and 11th lords.

Rahu Dasa, Mercury Antara ensures its survival in the Parliament.

Rasi: Virgo - Ascendant; Libra - Moon; Sagittarius - Rahu; Capricorn - Saturn (R); Gemini - Sun, Mercury and Ketu; and Cancer - Mars, Venus and Jupiter. Navamsa: Aries - Ascendant and Saturn; Taurus - Ketu; Scorpio - Sun and Rahu; Sagittarius - Jupiter; Capricorn - Mars, Mercury and Venus; and Pisces - Moon, with a balance of 1 year, 6 months and 27 days of Rahu Dasa at birth.

ONKARLAL SHARMA PRMAD

AT THE time of the swearing-in the Moon was in the 2nd Pada of Chitta Nakshatra. The lord of the Ascendant Mercury in dual sign and lord of the 8th Mars in a moveable sign Cancer denote Alpayu Yoga. The Moon in the Ascendant and Rahu, Sun and Ketu in square position denote Anishtakari Yoga soon according to Astrology. Rahu in Sagittarius in Neecha sign also denotes Anishtakari Yoga. The Ascendant is Virgo unafflicted by any malefic planet. The Ascendant lord Mercury is in the 10th in his own house Gemini to give his own personality. But Mercury is aspected by Rahu from the 4th in the constellation of the Sun. Mercury is also afflicted by the Sun, lord of the 12th and Ketu. Though the Ascendant lord is strong, he has some blemishes. The Moon is Vargottama in Libra afflicted by Saturn (R) in the 5th from the Ascendant, in his own house. Saturn is a malefic for Virgo Ascendant. But here he is a Yogakaraka from the Moon-sign Libra, the lord Venus exchanging house with the Moon, disposed in a Maraka house from the Ascendant. This has made him malefic. The 12th lord Sun is in the constellation of Jupiter, the 4th and the 7th lord who is exalted in the 11th but with Maraka Mars. Jupiter is also aspected by Saturn (R). This shows that the horoscope has Madhyayu.

The ministry is passing through the major period of Mars with a balance of 2 years, 11 months and 9 days. Mars is Maraka from the Ascendant, the Moon as also the Navamsa and also the Moon in Navamsa. The Ministry was formed in the minor period of [illegible]

Mercury is combust. The royal planet Sun has directional strength. For Virgo Ascendant, the Sun in the 10th with Mercury will be good. But both of them are afflicted by the Nodes. The Lagna, as well as the 10th lord Mercury, is in Yama, a malefic Shashtiamsa. Mercury, the 8th lord from Karakamsa, is in the 8th itself conferring long life but a malefic (Ketu) placed there reduces the life span (vide Ch. 33, Sl. 49, Parasara Hora). The 8th lord Mars is in 11th Bhava with Maraka planet Jupiter and aspected by 6th lord Saturn. Mars (8th lord), Jupiter (7th lord) and Venus (2nd lord) are in grahayuddha. Planets in conjunction with lords of 2nd and 7th are the most powerful in causing death (vide Dr. B. V. Raman's How to Judge a Horoscope). All these factors do not promise full term of life.

Therefore, Prime Minister P. V. Narasimha Rao will not continue for a long time.

There will be a Sun-Mars-Pluto conjunction in Libra in October 1991; and in December the Sun, Mars, Rahu, Herschel and Neptune will conjoin in Sagittarius which will certainly cause a sudden change in Government through unexpected and unfortunate events. These malefic conjunctions are of an alarming nature to both the Prime Minister and the country.

There are only malefic planetary influences in the Moon-sign horoscope of Narasimha Rao (Born on June 28, 1921). Astrological texts advocate that Raja Yogas can be reckoned both from the Ascendant and the Moon.

Narasimha Rao has the Moon in Pisces; Venus and Ketu in Aries; Sun, Mars, Mercury and Pluto in Gemini (4th from Moon); Jupiter and Saturn in Leo (6th from Moon). Jupiter in the 6th from the Moon forms Sakata Yoga which is adverse to the ruler. These malefic conjunctions are likely to affect him indicating change in the prime ministership.

and a malefic from Chandra Lagna. Venus, 2nd and 9th lord in exchange of Rasi with Moon, the 11th lord and the Dhanakaraka exalted, indicates that the Government would try earnestly to tide over the financial crisis. Saturn's aspect on the one hand adds caution but on the other hand would make the dividends slow to come by. The 5th lord in the 5th retrograde points to caution needed in speculative matters, shares etc. Also the pointing finger is towards the cabinet minister (5th) who is recalcitrant (retrograde Saturn) and hails from a place south-west of Delhi (Capricorn - south, Saturn - west).

Treating this chart as a Prasna chart the Moon is in Asubha Ithasala with Saturn (square aspect) which is 5th lord (ministers) and 6th lord (enemies - secret, diseases). When would this event materialise? There is difference of 12 degrees between the two that gives us around 144 days. By February or March 1992 Ketu in transit would be on his natal Sun and the swearing-in Mercury.

For this chart, Scorpio Kalachakra Dasa begins after 3 months and 7 days. Scorpio has reference to the 3rd house which is 6th Bhava (6th, 6th lord Mars [illegible]

Ketu Bhukti of Mars Dasa is on upto 15-10-1991. Mars and Jupiter are Maraka to this Lagna and the oath-ceremony was performed in a Maraka period. This indicates an unstable Government. The period of Ketu Bhukti of Mars Dasa will be full of turmoil and tension within the party as well as outside the country because Mars and Ketu are in 2/12 positions. The Moon is aspected by Mars, Ketu and Saturn, three dire malefics. The period will not be smooth from many points of view especially in finance matters because of the afflicted Moon. However the Moon is Vargottama. The Government will, however, run.

Venus in Mars (15-10-1991 to 15-12-1992): Both planets are in the 11th house, the house of co-operation and in the star of Mercury who is the Lagna lord. So the Government, though the law and order situation will improve, will not get credit for it.

The period from 15-12-1992 to 21-4-1993 comes under Sun Bhukti in Mars. He is the owner of the 12th placed in the 10th and in Navamsa in the 8th with Rahu and so, weak. It will create tension among parties. The 2/12 relationship of Mars and the Sun will not allow the Government to run

But the main issue is the handling of the financial crisis. With the exchange between the 2nd and 11th lords, exalted Jupiter in the 11th and Mars in Neechabhanga the Government will be able to pull the country out of the present crisis. Loans will be readily forthcoming and revenue will go up. A policy of industrial liberalisation will continue and its returns will be positive.

The Karaka of industries, oil, coal etc. Saturn is no doubt strong, yet somewhat weak being in debilitated Navamsa. It receives both good and bad aspects. Heavy industry, shipping, railways, petroleum and coal will see expansion and profitability especially once Saturn turns direct in October 1991. Industrial relations will also improve reducing inflation and checking prices. Agriculture will be satisfactory.

The strains on the economy will relax once Jupiter enters Leo. Its transit through this sign will almost ensure good returns to all fiscal measures. More public sectors will go private though the Government policy will be left of Centre. The first crisis should come when Mars enters Libra (6-10-1991) and soon thereafter squares transiting Saturn

Saturn retrograde show opposition and tension soon in ministry.

In Navamsa retrograde Saturn aspects the Moon being situated in the 10th house. Besides, Ketu in Navamsa Lagna and Rahu in the 7th in Navamsa denote Anishtakari Yoga. The lord of Navamsa Lagna and birth Ascendant Mercury in the 8th in Navamsa chart with lord of 11th Mars indicate accidental short life.

On the basis of Vimshottari Dasas reduced to a 5-year unit, the swearing-in ceremony was held in Mars Dasa, Bhukti of Saturn for 9 days. Mars Dasa is upto 20-8-1991 and then Rahu Dasa will run for 9 months.

Thus it is shown that the ministry has Balarishta Yoga upto 21-10-1991, Yogarishta upto 21-12-1991 and Alpayu Yoga upto 21-10-1992. In Rahu Dasa, the chances of the ministry being dismissed are strong.

(due to being associated with exalted Jupiter and in a Kendra from the Moon). The 4th and 7th lord Jupiter is exalted in the 11th. Yogakaraka Venus is also there. All the 3 planets (Jupiter, Venus and Mars) are powerful as they have got own, exalted and friendly Navamsas respectively. Considered from the Moon, the chart is fortified by Parivartana between Lagna and 10th lord (Venus and Moon). The 10th house is occupied by 2nd and 7th lord Mars, 3rd and 6th lord Jupiter and Lagna lord Venus. There is also Gajakesari Yoga involving Lagna and 10th houses. Both planets involved (Moon and Jupiter) are powerful. In Navamsa, Lagna is aspected by its lord exalted Mars from 10th, 4th lord Moon and 9th lord Jupiter. Hence, the Navamsa chart is also considerably powerful.

But there are also certain minus points present in the chart. Transit Saturn will be in Capricorn influencing the 3-planet group in Cancer which includes not only Dasa lord Mars but also the 4th and 7th lord Jupiter and 2nd and 9th lord Venus and also the natal Moon (Janma Rasi) in Libra, upto February 1993. Added to this, transit Saturn in Capricorn

Mercury with a balance of one month and 9 days. Saturn is strong in Rasi but debilitated in Navamsa and aspecting the Moon in the 5th and Mars, Venus and Mercury in Capricorn. As Mercury is very powerful this period will not pull down the Government.

The minor period of Mercury will be followed by the minor period of Ketu from 7-8-1991 to 4-1-1992. Ketu in the 10th is a Yogakaraka. He is with Mercury. But Ketu is debilitated in the 12th in the Navamsa with cancellation of debilitation. The relations between Mars and Ketu is 1-12 in Rasi and 1-5 in the Navamsa. This minor period of Ketu is very critical for the survival of the ministry.

Will this ministry survive? This is a big question especially when Saturn in transit is aspecting the 10th house in the Navamsa chart, 10th from the Navamsa Moon and is trining the sub-lord Ketu afflicted by Rahu from the 6th and the Sun. However, there is no such problem in the natal chart. So it can be inferred that the ministry will survive the stress and strain of hung Parliament.

The minor period of Venus is from 4-1-1992 to 4-3-1993. Venus is strong both in the natal and the Navamsa charts. Venus and the Moon exchange signs. This period will give some appreciation to the ministry and will create a climate of confidence in the country. There is a likelihood of the improvement in the coalition government because of Jupiter's association with Venus. The crucial period comes in the minor period of Sun from 4-3-1993 to 10-7-1993. By then, Saturn would be in Aquarius aspecting the 8th, the 12th and the 3rd houses. The relationship between Mars and the Sun is 1-12 in Rasi and 1-5 in the Navamsa. The Sun is also Badhaka lord from the Moon and is placed in the 9th from it. This is likely to seal the fate of the ministry but the final collapse will come in the minor period of the Moon between 10-7-1993 and 10-5-1994. The Moon is in a Maraka house in the constellation of Maraka Mars aspected by Mars from the 11th. Mars is Maraka also from the Moon-sign in both Rasi and Navamsa. Transit Jupiter on the Moon will be unhelpful. Saturn will aspect the 8th, house of death, the 12th, the house of Moksha and the 3rd, the other house of longevity. Saturn will be in trine to the Moon in Rasi and Navamsa. Rahu will be in the 2nd from the Moon. The 12th aspect of Rahu on the Moon will see the end of the ministry during the Dasa of Mars and Bhukti of Moon.

(Received 8-7-1991)

» R. Satyanarayana Murty

Though the Parivartana of 2nd and 11th lord is exalted, the 2nd is aspected by first-rate malefic in retrogression from 5th as 6th lord. There would be innumerable hurdles in the initial stages itself to solve financial stress with little hope of tangible results.

The Opposition relates to 4th house. Rahu there shows the Opposition may also expose some secret plans of the Government. Dhanus is a fiery sign. So the chief of the Opposition would be fierce while facing the Government. For health reasons, he may not work very efficiently.

Jupiter, lord of the 4th-7th, is in Pushya Nakshatra ruled by the 6th lord Saturn. Rahu, a malefic here, does not contribute to peace to the rulers. The Opposition exposes the secret plans of the Government to topple the State Governments headed by the Opposition parties in the North, West and the South-East. Jupiter and Mars during their transit in Leo when aspected by Rahu would surprise the Government with communal riots, violence, fire etc., spreading the evil throughout the North, West and South. Internal feuds and bickerings in the ruling party may add fuel to fire.

The planetary combinations indicate a change in the leadership in the ruling party.

The birth time of Mr. P. V. N. Rao is not known. We can presume his birth in Revati 1st Pada on 29/28-6-1921 (Chart 3). The Moon occupies Pisces, a dual sign. Mercury, a Badhaka, occupies his own house of Gemini with combust Mars, 2nd and 9th lord from the Moon. Jupiter, the Moon's dispositor, is associated with 12th lord Saturn. The 6th and 12th lords from 10th Bhava from the Moon are now transiting the 8th from 10th and are also aspected by Saturn, a Maraka for 10th Bhava. Rahu in the 8th is also not good. Confused situations and issues turning into difficult problems with mental tension lead to health problems related to Leo and the planet Saturn (in the 6th). Health reasons may not permit the present P.M. to devote as much time as he wishes to tackle the problems the country is now facing.

Coming to the Indian chart (4), Venus Bhukti in own Dasa runs upto 9-1-1993. It should give evil

Rasi: Scorpio - Ascendant with Sun and Mercury; Aries - Jupiter and Saturn; Taurus - Moon; and Libra - Mars and Venus.

Raja Yoga is caused by the lords of the 9th and the 10th, the Sun in the Ascendant and Moon in the 7th aspecting each other. The 8th and 11th lord Mercury is associated with the Sun and aspects the Moon also. This causes Raja Yogabhanga. Therefore, Pawar has a second type of Raja Yoga.

Jupiter and Saturn conjunction aspected by Mars indicates downfall even if he will become Prime Minister.—118.91. (Received 5-7-1991) afflicted by Saturn and debilitated. It conjoins 5th lord Venus suffering similar afflictions as Mars which itself afflicts Venus. These 7 months and 2 days (Scorpio - Scorpio) will be very trying for the Government as the Dasamsa Lagna too being Virgo, the Chakra Dasa of Scorpio retains its significance.

In the natal chart of Narasimha Rao Kalachakra Dasa of Virgo begins from 27th July 1991. Virgo is the Jeeva Rasi, Papakartari, its lord Mercury (Dehadhipa) is afflicted by the Sun and Mars. In Vimshottari, Mars Dasa, Rahu Bhukti is operating. Mars is 3rd and 8th lord from Lagna and a Maraka from the Moon and lord of Naidhana Tara, Rahu, is in the 2nd, a Marakasthana, its dispositor Venus is in the 8th with Ketu. Transit Mars would be in Libra by 8th October 1991 on Bhukti lord Rahu. Transit Saturn in favourable 11th would be in Vedha by Rahu in the 10th. Transit Jupiter in the 6th from Moon without check would be adverse. Transit Rahu in the favourable 10th would be in Vedha by the Sun by December 1991. We can conclude that Narasimha Rao's prime ministership is only a transitory phenomenon and there is every likelihood that the present ministry would collapse by February-March 1992 in spite of a good Muhurta. amoothly. As soon as the Bhukti of the Moon in Mars starts (from 21-4-1993) the Government will be in trouble and may not survive. The 12th lord in the 10th, the Moon aspected by Saturn, Rahu, Mars and oath-taking ceremony in a Maraka Dasa indicate that it will survive nearly two years and there will be mid-term poll. The B.J.P. may help the Government during Venus Bhukti (15-10-1991 to 15-12-1992).

(7-10-1991). Since both will be in their own Navamsa when squaring and the Antara is good, it is unlikely that there will be any real threat to the Government. This planetary configuration will however split the Janata Dal and it would not be unlikely if a group breaks away to join the Government. This appears all the more likely because V. P. Singh too has Libra Rasi and will be undergoing Mercury Dasa, Moon Bhukti.

The 9th lord in the 11th strong and the Lagna lord too in the 10th as 10th lord certainly augurs well for both the quality of leadership and its function. Centre-State relations will be good as also with highlights. In Navamsa Saturn united Mars is in the 10th and forbodes good leadership.

Rahu Dasa Ketu Bhukti (20-1-1993 to 7-2-1994) should be beneficial for the Government but will plunge it into a scandal most likely pertaining to leakage of classified information and official secrets. But as Ketu is not only well placed but also in association with Mercury the period will be highly rewarding. The Prime Minister will embark upon his first foreign tour to western countries. Saturn will enter Aquarius in March 1994 and its transit through this sign should be good. Change of leadership is however not ruled out in this period.

Elections in the normal course would be held in Venus Bhukti which is a Maraka and in the 8th from Rahu, the Dasa lord. This period beginning 8-2-1994 will bring about a fall in the Government well before schedule. Elections should come by the end of 1994 or early 1995.

All in all, the Government should be able to do more than is expected of it and will give a good account of itself.—122.91.

LEARN yourself PALMISTRY -- 2

DR. T. S. VASAN, B.Sc., B.L., Ph.D., F.R.A.S. (LONDON)

Dr. T. S. Vasan, B.Sc., B.L., Ph.D., F.R.A.S. (London), Chapter Chairman, Bangalore, of the IAS, Madras, has been engaged in the study of Astrology and Palmistry for many years. Hailing from a family of scholars he has visited several countries on teaching assignments. He is the Director of Modern Astro-Studios, Bangalore.

Pitru and Pitru Parvas

IN THE Hindu system the Mounts are called as Parvas or Sthanas. The Jupiter Mount of the Western system is called Guru Parva and also as Pitru Sthana. From this Mount or beneath this Mount Pitru Rekha or the Line of the Western system starts and encircles the Mount of Venus. Pitru means father and his lineage. Therefore Pitru Sthana and Pitru Rekha deal with the father's lineage, well-being, hereditary nature and strength of the personality. Pitru Rekha is also called Gotra Rekha. Then we come to the Mount of Saturn which is called as Matri Parva which shows the mother's influences, happiness from mother and other aspects of mother's lineage. The line connected with this Mount which has to be studied is the Head Line of the Western system which is called as Matri Rekha or Matru Rekha in Hindu system. The Mount of the Mount and the Line speak much on the mother and her influence. Apart from the parental influence these two Mounts also speak of certain other details. For example, Guru Parva shows religious mind, status in society, honour, children's well-being and spiritual background. The Saturn Mount stands for deep religious outlook, balanced personality, mental attitude depending upon the lines and other attributes.

When we come to the study of the Sun Mount we have to study the educational aspect and that why this Mount is called Vidya Sthana. It is also called Surya Parva. The peculiarity of the Hindu system is that the Karakatwas that are attributed to individual planets should also be taken into consideration while dealing with the Parvas or Sthanas. Therefore in addition to Vidya (education) we have to study from this factor Governmental influence, intuitive and intellectual abilities and anything connected with the father.

Mercury Mount

The Mercury Mount is called Jaya Sthana and the Rekha is called Jaya Rekha or the Line of Mercury. Success in life depends upon the mind and the interaction of the individual with society in which he stays. When the Mount is good the person will be good at conversation, a social type and becomes a well-known figure and thereby gets the help and influence of people with whom he moves. In other words, he has the capacity to speak out his views and impress people. The other qualities are that the person becomes very successful in commercial enterprises. He can be successful as a good speaker, trader, teacher and also in any professions connected with speech. Another significant factor to be noticed is that, in addition to the Mount of Luna (Chandra Parva) the upper Mars is together called as Dharma Sthana in Hindu Palmistry. Therefore good signs and lines on the Sthanas play an important role and give the individual a special spiritual power or intuition. In the Western system also to the upper Mars is attributed moral courage. Therefore moral and Dharmic principles of life should be read with the help of these two Mounts.

The Mount of Venus or Sukra Parva deals with all the the aspects of Sukha (happiness and enjoyments) as Sukra stands for Sukha, domestic happiness and wife's influence. When we come to the lower portion of the Mount it is divided into two parts. One part stands for bandhus (brothers and sisters) and the other for putras (children).

Above the Mount of Venus i.e., below Jupiter Mount and the thumb, there is a Mount called Satru Sthana which is the lower Mars in the Western system. This stands for Satrus according to Hindu system. Mars stands for courage and therefore this Mount speaks of physical courage. Mars stands for Bhratru and Bhagini (brothers and sisters) and therefore, in certain schools of Hindu Palmistry the lines on this Mount are also connected with brothers and sisters.

The central portion of the palm is called Mangala Valaya or the plain of Mars according to the Western system. This part rules immovable properties as Mars stands for immovable properties. The important point is that the squares in the centre of the palm denote immovable properties.

Now coming to the Western system of the Mounts, their good and bad qualities depend on the elevation and depressions. They are summed up in the following table.—75.91.

Planets	Characteristics
	Good	Bad
1. Jupiter	Ambition, wisdom, leadership, religiosity, Pride, Learning.	Gloom, lack of confidence, inferiority complex.
2. Saturn	Serious study, mental and emotional balance, philosophical bent, spiritualism, intuition and money.	Melancholia, suicidal tendency, loss dishonesty, death, shocks.
3. Mercury	Intellectual, worldly success; business acumen, scientific bent, shrewdness.	Cheat, liar, Imposter etc.
4. Sun	Magnetic personality, position, success, popularity and greatness.	Disrepute, failure, hurdles.
5. Moon	Imagination concentration, poetic and artistic trend and good idealism.	Emotional, weak-minded, disturbed sleep, lunacy.
6. Venus	Affectionate, magnetic, romantic and lovable.	Sensuous, passionate, sexy and immoral, pessimistic, impractical.
7. Mars upper	Moral courage, strong convictions.	Lack of push and courage, indefiniteness
8. Mars lower	Self-willed, aggressive, strong personality, hard worker, adventurous.	Unimpressive, Weak personality, lazy, uninterested nature.

Ancient Classical Writers of Jyotisha

Mahadeva

K. R. KRISHNAMURTHI

Personal

MAHADEVA was a Gujarati Brahmana, belonging to Gautama Gotra. From the family history furnished by the author in the last 4 slokas of the work Graha Siddhi, we learn that Padmanabha was his father's name and his grandfather was named Mahadeva. Other details of Mahadeva are lacking.

History of the Work

Graha Siddhi is a Karana work adopted to Saka 1238 (1316 A.D.) as its epoch. As such it could be considered to have been compiled about this time. Graha Siddhi was originally written by an astronomer named Chakreswara. It remained incomplete until it was taken up by Mahadeva later on. This is implied by the author at the beginning of his work. And therefore, came to be known as Mahadeva Saarani. The period during which Mahadeva recast and completed the earlier work is not exactly known.

Contents of the Work

Mahadeva Saarani is a short one containing 43 slokas. These slokas describe the methods of calculating the mean and true places of planets. The epochal positions are given for the mean Mesha Sankranthi. Further, the tables for calculating mean places of planets are based on Varshagana, for the sake of simplifying calculations. The positions and motions of planets are comparable to Brahma Siddhanta after the corrections mentioned by Raja Mriganka Karana are applied.

The Commentary

Dhanaraja has written a commentary on Mahadeva Saarani. He appears to be a Jain from the account given by him. A portion of it is as follows:

Varsha Netra Navanga Boo (1692) Parimithe
Ashtanaya Pakshe Sithe
Ashtamyam Sathguna .....Padmavathi
Pathane ||
Raja Huthkira Vairi Naagadhamano Ratoda
Sirohabhava |
Soiman Sri Gajasimha Bhoopathi Varosthi Sri
Mandale Jaina Sasana etc. ||

Translation: In the town Padmavathi, on the Sukla Ashtami (8th lunar day) of the bright half, in Jyeshta month (Solar Vaisakha) in Saka 1692.....King Gajasimha of Rathod family, a Jain rules...etc.

In the commentary, he has calculated the longitude of Sirohi (a place 30 yojanas West of Ujjaini). From this he seems to be a resident of that place. The name of the commentary is Mahadeva Deeplka. It is said to contain 1500 slokas. The year 1692 mentioned above is a Samvat year of the Vikrama Saka. As such the time of the compilation of the commentary comes to Saka 1557 (1635 A.D.).

The Work

An old work named Jatakasara written in Sanskrit and Gujarati, has recommended Mahadeva Saarani in respect of calculations of the positions of planets. A copy of the commentary is kept in the Deccan College collections which it obtained from Ahmedabad. Deccan College Collections was got at Ahmedabad. The Anandasrama has a copy of the Saarani but none of the commentary.

The commentator also was a resident of a place near Gujarat and Mahadeva himself has adopted 4.5 as the Palaba (Palachaaya) for calculating the ascensional different (Chara). This goes to show that Mahadeva might have been a resident of a place near Surat in Gujarat.

The following popular sloka from Vasishta Samhita recommends the adoption of that system which will ensure concord or agreement between calculated and observed results thus:

Yasmin Deso Yatra Kale Yena Drikganitha
Ikyam |
Drisyathe Thena Pakshena Kuryath Thithyathi
Nirnayam ||

meaning that the Panchanga in vogue at a place following a certain Paksha and its calculation if they concord with observed results with that Paksha should be accepted and the decision regarding Tithis etc. should be taken as such. We have today three major Pakshas, namely, Brahma Paksha, Arya Paksha and Soura Paksha followed by Smarthas, Vaishnavas and Madhvas. 245.90.

How Jupiter's Transit in Leo Affects You — II*

U. S. PULIPPA

4. Results According to Stellar Occupational Aspect

(a) Nakshatradhipatya

WHEN a planet passes through the 1st (Janma), 3rd (Vipat), 5th (Pratyak) and the 7th (Vadha or Naidhana) from the birth star the effects will be very bad and detrimental to the native.

The passage of a planet through the 2nd (Sampat), the 4th (Kshema), the 6th (Daivanukula) the 8th (Mitra) and the 9th (Paramamitra) stars reckoned from one's birth star will give good results.

Those for whom Jupiter passes through Janma, Vipat, Pratyak and Vadha stars reckoned from their birth stars will suffer evil effects implied by the respective names themselves and the suffering will be maximum for Vadha. Table 2 shows these bad periods for Jupiter's transit in Leo.

5. Neutralisation of Bad Effects of Jupiter's Transit

The bad effects due to Jupiter's movement through 1st, 3rd, 6th, 8th, 10th and 12th houses from one's Moon-sign are said to get cancelled if any other planet or planets occupy certain houses from Janma Rasi at the same time. Such positions are called Vipareeta Vedha. This time Jupiter suffers Vipareeta Vedha as shown below when he is in each of the bad houses. The periods and planets causing the Vipareeta Vedha are also shown below:

1. Leo-born people have got to endure the bad effects of Jupiter in Janma Rasi since there is no Vipareeta Vedha in Janma.

2. When Jupiter is in the 3rd house if other planets occupy the 7th, he suffers Vipareeta Vedha. Such periods for Gemini-born people are shown below:

(a) From 14-12-1991 to 14-1-1992 due to the Sun in the 7th.

(b) From 1-12-1991 to 9-2-1992 due to Mars in the 7th.

(c) From 5-1-1992 to 25-1-1992 due to Mercury in the 7th.

(d) From 19-1-1992 to 13-7-1992 due to Venus in the 7th.

3. When Jupiter is in the 4th house if other planets occupy the 5th house at the same time he suffers Vipareeta Vedha as under for Taurus people this time:

(a) From 16-9-1991 to 16-10-1991 due to Sun in the 5th.

(b) From 24-9-1991 to 11-10-1991 due to Mercury in the 5th.

(c) From 3-11-1991 to 30-11-1991 due to Venus in the 5th.

(d) From 22-8-1991 to 7-10-1991 due to Mars in the 5th.

4. There is no Vipareeta Vedha for Jupiter in the 6th. Hence Pisces people have to endure the ill-effects of Jupiter in the 6th completely this time.

5. When Jupiter is in the 8th if other planets occupy the 11th, he suffers Vipareeta Vedha. Such periods for Capricorn people this time are shown below:

(a) From 15-11-1991 to 15-12-1991 due to Sun in Kaagi Dhi.

(b) From 20-11-1991 to 31-12-1991 due to Mars in the 11th.

(c) From 31-10-1991 to 5-1-1992 due to Mercury in the 11th.

(d) From 27-12-1991 to 19-1-1992 due to Venus in the 11th.

6. When Jupiter is in the 10th house if other planets occupy the 9th house, he suffers Vipareeta Vedha. Such periods for Scorpio-born people are shown below:

(a) From 14-7-1992 to 14-8-1992 due to Sun in the 9th.

(b) From 25-6-1992 to 25-8-1992 due to Mercury in the 9th.

(c) From 8-7-1992 to 1-8-1992 due to Venus in the 9th.

7. When Jupiter is in the 12th house if other planets occupy the 2nd house he suffers Vipareeta Vedha. Such periods for Virgo people are:

(a) From 15-10-1991 to 14-11-1991 due to Sun in the 2nd.

(b) From 11-10-1991 to 24-10-1991 due to Mercury in the 2nd.

(c) From 30-10-1991 to 18-11-1991 due to Venus in the 2nd.

(d) From 6-10-1991 to 6-11-1991 due to Mars in the 2nd.

III. Who Should Perform Remedial Measures This Time:

This time Jupiter gives bad effects to Taurus, Gemini, Leo, Virgo, Scorpio, Capricorn and Pisces born people. Among these Conventional Aspect

1. Gemini-born people for Jupiter in the 3rd house from the Moon-sign, since Jupiter is said to give maximum bad effects in the 3rd house according to Tamil classics (vide THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, January 1988, page 93). It is to be noted that Saturn in the 8th for these natives will also give very bad effects as Ashtama Sani.

2. For Capricorn people, Jupiter in the 8th and Saturn in Janma being the crucial mid 2 1/2 years period of the 7 1/2 years' Saturn much evil effects are expected. Hence these people should take great care of themselves.

3. Among others, Jupiter in the 4th for Taurus will not do much damage. Though the Leo borns may suffer Janma Guru, the Sun in the 6th giving very good results will balance the evil and hence they can manage.

4. For Virgo, Jupiter in the 12th, though bad, will not be so malefic, since this denotes Subha Vraya. Saturn in the 5th is also not very much good but as not bad as Ashtama or Ardhashtama Sani. Jupiter is also Swarnamurthy for Virgo this time. Hence they will manage.

5. For Scorpio people though Jupiter is in the 10th giving bad effects, he as a Swarnamurthy will help. In addition Saturn in the 3rd for them they will manage.

6. For Pisces people though Jupiter is in the 6th, Saturn is very good for them in the 11th at the end. Hence they will manage.

Stellar Occupational Aspect

Occupation of a planet in the 7th star from one's birth star is suppose to be very bad (Vadhatara). According to this the following people suffer Vadha-taradhipatya:

1. Rohini, Hasta and Sravana people will suffer due to occupation of Jupiter of Makha from 14-8-1991 to 15-10-1991 and again from 21-3-1992 to 2-6-1992. Among these Rohini people will suffer Ashtama Sani evil. For Sravana people the Janma Sani evil is added. Hence both these people should necessarily take recourse to remedial measures.

2. Mrigasira, Chitta and Dhanishta people suffer when Jupiter occupies the star Pubba from 16-10-1991 to 20-3-1992 and again from 3-6-1992 to 25-8-1992. Among these Chitta 3rd and 4th Pada people will not suffer much since Jupiter will be in the 11th and good for them. People born in the remaining 2 stars will have to take recourse to remedial measures, including Chitta 1st and 2nd Pada borns.

3. Aridra, Swati and Satabhisha people suffer the 7th star transit when Jupiter passes through Uttara 1st Pada but since the period is from 25-8-1992 to 11-9-1992 being only less than 15 days nothing need be worried and they will manage without any difficulties.

IV. Remedial Measures

For remedial measures readers are requested to refer to THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE (September 1988, page 9).

The following Yantra (talisman) has to be inscribed in thin gold or on copper plate of 1 1/4 inch square. This may be consecrated by chanting either of the following 2 mantras for 19000 times to be covered in 40 days. This Yantra is from Yantra Chintamani.

The mantras are:

10	5	12
11	9	7
6	13	8

1. Hreem devaanaam cha risheenaam cha gurum kanchana sannibham
Buddhi bhootam trilokesham tam namami bruhaspatim
This is from the Puranas.

2. Om Graam Greem Graum saha gurave namah.

This mantra is according to Tantra.

Jupiter is the most benefic of the planets. He will transit both inimical and friendly stars. Hence we can expect both good and bad results during his passage through Leo this time.

Puligadda V. Rao of Calcutta (July 1991, page 603) has correctly pointed out how Astrology can become a subject of study and research. I agree with him.

Underground Water

Sir, - The article on underground water by Mrs. Gayatri Devi Vasudev (A.M., July 1991) makes interesting reading. The Chakras used for locating the water underground are the Salliya Chakras of Upendra Muni, originally intended to locate the various Salliyas under the ground in a plot, where a building was to be constructed.

The 4th house (in the Prasna Chart 1) occupied by Jupiter in Cancer indicates large water canal under rock. The 10th occupied by Saturn and Rahu also indicates water under a large stone, in good quantities. The 12th occupied by Venus with Mercury indicates clear water in depth. The Rasis concerned are Cancer, Capricorn and Pisces and these bear water. The exact spot may be located by an experienced diviner.

The Salliya Chakra mentioned in this article is of 28 squares but the writer has located only 27 stars leaving out Abhijit. Thus she has arrived at Uttarashadha, Revati squares erroneously short by one square. Anyhow this Salliya Chakra denotes that since Moon was in a Kendra to the Arudha receiving the aspect of Mars and since the 4th and 10th are occupied by or aspected by malefics that a Salliya probably of goat's bones exists at the Mrigasira square occupied by Mars.

Jaimini Astrology

Sir, - Please refer A.M., July 1991, page 558. By seeing the table of Frontal and Lateral signs and the explanation under it, it seems that there is some error in it. It is said that Gemini is frontal sign of Virgo and Virgo is the frontal sign of Gemini. But the table gives Virgo-Taurus-Aquarius, Leo. There must be some defects. Please publish the corrections required.

An Unhealthy Trend

Sir, - Of late, I have noticed, to my great dismay, an unhealthy tendency among astrologers for securing exposure through media by giving starling political predictions which ...ot ...true. This belittles astrologers and gives critics a chance to denigrate the importance of this science.

Dr. B. V. Raman with his idealistic detachment is free from this media temptation.

Some astrologers go to the extreme length of justifying their gross errors in prediction. This makes them all the more ridiculous. In ancient India even kings respected astrologers because they cared little for publicity and even less for money.

The Astrological Magazine with its long tradition as a relentless fighter against onslaughts on Astrology should discourage this unhealthy trend amongst astrologers.

Definition of Day

Sir, - The day begins with the sunrise and ends with the following sunrise under the Hindu system. For the purpose of celebrating auspicious functions such as marriages etc. before the sunrise, by convention, about two hours preceding the sunrise is accepted as belonging to the following day, for Panchaka calculation purposes.

In the matter of attaining puberty and the monthly menses, ladies take 3.00 a.m. onwards, as belonging to the day following the sunrise.

Kindly elucidate on the specific rule that governs these issues and also the maximum length of period preceding the sunrise, which can be taken as belonging to the following day for practical purposes.

Madras. S. Balakrishnan.

Parameters in Prediction

Sir, - Mr. P. V. Rao, Calcutta, has raised a vital issue under My Turn (A.M., July 1991) regarding the basic factors for consideration of horoscopic analysis. I have been going through The Astrological Magazines for the last twenty years. I also find a lot of inconsistencies in the interpretation of the horoscope by the learned writers. Sometimes the interpretations and analysis are bewildering and beyond one's comprehension. It is easier to interpret the past events, but difficult to give correct prediction for the future. A science must have certain procedure of analysis. In my view a systematic analysis requires the consideration of all the parameters. The Dasasandhi, Bhavasandhi and retrogression are essential parameters.

Another intriguing parameter is the use of Ayanamsa which should be universally and uniformly acceptable to all. This is a common factor which gives status to the astrological science. Sometimes, there is a difference of 3 degrees in the position of the Moon causing differences in the major and the minor periods.

Solar Activity and Volcanic Eruptions

Sir, - This year (1991) two volcanoes Unzen in Japan and Pinatubo in the Philippines have made a series of eruptions claiming many lives. A volcano in the Barren Islands in the Andamans (fortunately uninhabited) is also active from last April.

2. In the Pacific a chain of volcanoes lies near a fault (a fracture in the rocks of the Earth's crust) that runs along the coasts of South and North America to the Aleutians, Japan, Philippines and Indonesia. Many volcanic islands were Chinese possessions once, and China was the home of great civilisations from ancien[illegible] which had made great st[illegible] astronomy and Astrolog[illegible] sides, they had devised [illegible] ingenious methods of p[illegible] tions. A close study of a[illegible] (and even insect) beha[illegible] enabled them to anticip[illegible] impending earthquake. [illegible] now China leads other [illegible] tries both in number and [illegible] cess of earthquake predi[illegible] as they continue to use th[illegible] methods along with adv[illegible] methods in seismology. V[illegible] nic eruptions are also s[illegible] phenomena, though rare a[illegible] seems they were using, inte[illegible] sunspot observations to p[illegible] this phenomenon. China, [illegible] pan and Korea have recor[illegible] large number of sun[illegible] observationst for centu[illegible] many in picturesque de[illegible] tions like "as big as hen's [illegible] "like a crow's beak" etc.

3. The Sun does not re[illegible] energy uniformly from its [illegible] face. Localised enhancem[illegible] energy emission is evident [illegible] sunspots. Further, a [illegible] regular 11-year cycle of [illegible] activity has been noticed [illegible] plots of the annual means [illegible] observed sunspots made [illegible] telescopes. There seems t[illegible] good correlation between [illegible] spot maxima and volc[illegible] eruptions in the Pacific.

BOOKS ON REVIEW

M. P. PANDIT

THE RIVER OF HEAVEN by David Frawley. (Morson Publishing, P.O.Box 21713, Salt Lake City, Utah (USA). Pp. 180, Dollars 19.95)

Frawley is an Indian in an American body. The way which he enters into the spirit of the Vedic tradition and renders its deeper concepts in terms of modern thought shows an unusual familiarity with this ancient wisdom. Every one of his writings testifies to this inspiration. The present book, perhaps the most relevant to the present-day world, gives an overview of the fundamentals of the Soul-Knowledge that has prevailed over the evolution of the Indian peoples; it deals with insight the lines on which this (the River) of Truth has flooded every branch of life, religion, science, art, medicine, psychology, social structure.

He points out how the concept of Gaia in the scientific circles is Greek for the Vedic the cosmic Cow which stands for the Light of knowledge guiding the evolution of Earth. The Vedic Mind is the meeting point of the cultures of the West and the East. Sanskrit is the mother-tongue of most of the major languages (P. 17). The world today is moving towards a global culture and the broad spectrum of Indian Experience has most to contribute to it.

Notable among the topics dealt with in depth are Vedic Astrology and Ayurveda - Nature's medicine. "Astrology", writes the author, "is called the science of reason or causes, 'Hetu Sastra' as through it we can discern the Karmic patterns and events. Another name is 'Jyotisha', the science of light, as it deals with the subtle astral patterns which inform and sustain our physiology and determine our destiny in life". He mentions the 'sidereal' nature of Vedic astrology as distinct from the 'tropical' nature of the Western and pleads for their combination in the interests of the development of the Science. Ayurveda, he observes, is effective in the long run and its basic principles answer to Nature, both individual and cosmic. It has eight branches: internal medicine, surgery, diseases of the head, and revitalisation (P. 36). While on the subject of rejuvenation in Ayurveda he makes a pertinent warning: "If we are not willing to die psychologically to our attachment to the past and our ego identity, these practices seldom work."

Channelling is very fashionable in the West. Drawing attention to the dangers involved in the exercise, Frauley writes: "Yoga says that we should never give our awareness to another person or entity, internally or externally...such channelling is a detriment to our own inner growth" (P 137). He also warns against the new trend of 'high-tech' Yoga which involves "special videos, listening to subliminal tapes, using equipment or machines to stimulate the brain and senses or alter the brain waves etc".

Every page of this well-planned book is informative and stimulating. This is easily one of the best surveys of the Indian Civilisation deriving its roots from the eternal Dharma perceived and lived by the Aryan race on this sacred land that is Bharat.

THE IMITATION OF SANKARA by M. N. Dvivedi (Sri Satguru Publications, 40/5, Shakti Nagar, Delhi 110 007. Pp. 230, Rs. 80.00)

Modelled on The Imitation of Christ by Thomas-a-Kempis and 'Imitation of Buddha' by Bowdon, this anthology seeks to cover the Advaita System. It draws from the writings of Acharya Sankara for sure, but it also has quotes from works on Sankara. Reprinted now nearly a century after the first publication, the treatise is a typical example of old-world scholarship in its meticulous attention to detail and accuracy. Drawing from over fifty classics, the quotations are arranged under broad heads: Brahman, Self-Identity, The Means (reasoning, learning, aspirant, teacher, experience, Karma, Upasana, Free-will, Jnana, Sadhana, Yoga), Liberation, — Jivanmukti, Videhamukti. These passages — nearly six hundred of them — are translated into English and given along with the originals in Sanskrit. The last one reads: "Wonderful, supremely wonderful — this Philosophy ! More

A thousand wonders surround the depth of Gnosis taught ! The bliss of Knowledge is the Silence of indescribable wonder!" (Panchadasi).

An alphabetical index of the quotations and another index of the main themes dealt with, are a valuable feature of this mini-encyclopadic work on Advaita. Research scholars will love to own this elegant book.

THE YOGA SUTRAS OF PATANJALI Translated by Alistair Shearer, Photographs by Richard Lannoy. (Motilal Banarsidass, Delhi 7. Pp. 127, Rs. 195.00.)

The author of this deluxe edition is a disciple of Mahesh Yogi. His translation is a paraphrased one and while it reads well, one cannot help noting the dilution of the meaning of the original text. For instance, the initial aphorism yogah chitta vritti nirodhah has been rendered as "Yoga is the settling of the mind into silence". In the course of his exhaustive survey of the background of Yoga, he points out that the sutras are not the work of one author; Patanjali is not the discoverer of Yoga, he has gathered together the different strands of the tradition and presented them as a coherent whole. The various constituents of this discipline are not sequential, they are practices that go on side by side.

The author's explanation of Brahmacharya is questionable. He writes: "True yoga is a natural process, and has no place for repression, whether of the ego, sex, or anything else. Such an attitude of control is anti-life and can only result in strain and tension incurred in the name of some supposedly 'higher' idea;...Brahmacharya does not mean 'self-control' as normally understood" (P. 34). Actually there is no escape from the fact that Brahmacharya simply means conservation of sex-energy. There is no question of suppression; it is a process of sublimation—of retas into ojas.

The book is replete with full-page plates of photographs of sculptures and engravings in rocks which we are told have an 'evocatory' value in the study of the sutras. Inclusion of the text in the original or in transliteration would have helped the reader to follow the presentation better.

YOUR Technical Difficulties Solved

MIHIRA

Q. 1. Rasi: Aries - Ascendant and Saturn; Taurus - Moon; Leo - Sun, Ketu and Mars; Virgo - Mercury and Venus; Libra - Jupiter; Aquarius - Saturn and Pisces - Mandi. Navamsa: Libra - Ascendant; Sagittarius - Jupiter, Saturn, Rahu and Mandi; Aquarius - Mercury; Aries - Mars; Taurus - Sun, Moon and Ketu; and Leo - Venus. The chart indicate higher education and good job. Ketu Bhukti in Rahu Dasa starts from February 1992. Does Ketu indicate a job in its Bhukti if it is placed in a Trikona with the Trikona lord or Lagna lord Mars? If not, kindly advise when it will start?

G. Rajalakshmi, Chittur.

Ans: The chart indicates bright prospects of a job for two reasons: 1. Two Neechabhanga Yogas are present. 2. The conjunction of Lagna and 5th house lord is in a trine. Saturn becomes Atmakaraka in the chart. The 5th of Karakaraka is occupied by the Sun and Mars. The 5th of Karakamsa is occupied by Mars. This is a probable indication for the study of law. Getting a good job in judiciary is found indicated in the chart. Ketu Bhukti in Rahu Dasa would not be much help for the job. Career is likely to get started in Venus Bhukti.

Does the Lord Mars with the Moon in a Jupiterean sign give a career in the administrative services?*

V. Padmini, Madras.

Ans: The 10th lord associated with the 6th lord is not a pointer to administrative service. But Mercury conjunct Jupiter in the 10th house of Chandra Lagna and in the 11th house of Janma Lagna indicates good job prospects and sound finances.

Q. 3. What are the combinations for eczema in the leg? What are the astrological remedies to cure it?

D. P. Das, Bhubaneswar.

Ans: Mercury denotes skin disease. If Mercury is afflicted with malefics like Saturn and Rahu/Ketu and connected with the 12th house from Lagna by aspect or occupancy, eczema is probable. If Gemini becomes Karakamsa and is aspected by malefiics, eczema is probable. If Aries becomes Drekkana Lagna (Parivritti Traya) and is aspected by Ketu, skin disease, like eczema is likely.

Q. 4. Will conception occurring during the sub-period of Mars give birth to a person whose life-span is short, and will conception taking place during the sub-period of Rahu give birth to a person whose life-span is long?

Rajendra Kumar Khanna, Bijnor.

Ans: It is not possible to determine longevity of the unborn child based on sub-period in which conception takes place, without the basis of Adhana Lagna and the planetary Dasas etc.

Q. 5. Rasi: Aries - Ascendant and Ketu; Virgo - Jupiter and Moon; Libra - Rahu and Mars; Scorpio - Saturn, Mercury and Sun; and Sagittarius - Venus. Navamsa: Virgo - Ascendant, Jupiter, Venus and Ketu; Sagittarius - Mercury; Capricorn - Mars;

Pisces - Rahu; Gemini - Moon; and Cancer - Sun. What kind of business does 10th lord Saturn in the 8th with Mercury and the Sun indicate?

Sub. No. 16001.

Ans: The Navamsa position of Saturn is not given. The 9th and 4th lords are conjunct in the 6th house, the house of service and the 9th house is occupied by Venus. The Moon and Venus have mutual Jaimini aspects in Rasi and Navamsa charts. Thus Vahana Yoga by Jaimini and Bhagyavahana Yoga by Parasari are present. From Yogada Mercury, the 2nd is occupied by Venus, the 11th is occupied by Jupiter and Moon forming Subhargala Yoga. Hence the native is likely to become a big business magnate.

Q. 6. Rasi: Libra - Ascendant; Capricorn - Jupiter and Saturn; Aquarius - Ketu; Pisces - Venus; Aries - Sun and Mercury; Cancer - Moon and Mars; and Leo - Rahu. Navamsa: Capricorn - Ascendant, Ketu and Venus; Aquarius - Saturn; Pisces - Moon; Aries - Jupiter; and Cancer - Mars, Sun and Rahu. (a) Why has Venus not given marriage in its Dasa, although well-placed? (b) Is it a case of delay or denial? (c) Will Sun Dasa give good finances?

Sadasiva Sarma, Gudivada.

Ans: The position of Mercury in Navamsa is not given. The exalted position of Venus does not conduce to Raja Yoga results in his Dasa. Venus Dasa is good if placed in the 8th or the 12th house irrespective of Lagna. The next Dasa is Sun Dasa. The Sun is well placed, though in the 7th house, in association with Mercury, and 12th lord. Hence marriage may take place in the Dasa of the Sun giving better financial position.

O

Q. 7. Rasi: Cancer - Ascendant and Mandi: Leo - Sun, Mercury, Venus and Rahu; Virgo - Moon; Sagittarius - Jupiter and Saturn; Aquarius - Ketu; and Taurus - Mars. Navamsa: Capricorn - Ascendant; Aries - Moon and Jupiter; Taurus - Mercury and Ketu; Gemini - Sun; Cancer - Mars; Libra - Saturn; Scorpio - Rahu; and Sagittarius - Venus and Mandi. Rahu Dasa upto 21-8-1995. (a) Does the chart show a second marriage as the 7th lord Saturn is in the 6th? (b) The first marriage ended in divorce on 21-10-1991. Will the second wife cooperate in the native's wish to lead a pious and religious life?

Sub. No. 17615.

Ans: The lord of 7th house is associated with the 6th lord in the 6th house. The 7th lord from Chandra Lagna is associated with the 6th lord of 6th from Chandra Lagna receiving the aspect of Mars. The 7th of Navamsa Lagna is occupied debilitated Mars. The 7th of Karakamsa (Dha is occupied by the Sun. These factors ind unhappy marital life leading to divorce. Acco ing to Jaimini, Lagna Pada and Dara Pada fa the same sign (Scorpio) and receive no aspe malefics. Hence the cooperation of 2nd wife probable.

Q. 8. Rasi: Gemini - Ascendant and Ke Cancer - Moon; Leo - Sun, Mercury and Ve Libra - Mars and Jupiter; Sagittarius - Rahu; Aquarius - Saturn. Navamsa: Aquarius - Asc dant and Saturn; Aries - Jupiter; Taurus - M Gemini - Sun and Ketu; Scorpio - Moon and M cury; and Sagittarius - Venus and Rahu. Du October 1990, the son of the native died by dr ing. Is it due to Moon Dasa, Saturn Bhukti w had just started? Will similar mishaps contin this Dasa?

S. S. Iyer, Madra

Ans: The Moon is in Pushyami, the const tion of Saturn. The lord of the 5th house associated with two malefics, the Sun and M cury receiving the aspect of Saturn. The house is occupied by Putrakaraka Jupiter and associated with the lord of 6th and 11th hous Saturn is in the 8th of the Moon, and is conne with the lord of 5th house and the afflic Putrakaraka by aspect. Hence in Moon Dasa Saturn Bhukti, grief due to the death of the son drowning happened. Similar mishaps are probable due to the absence of such sim pointers.

Q. 9. Rasi: Libra - Ascendant; Capricorn - S Venus and Mercury; Pisces - Saturn; Aries - M and Rahu; Cancer - Jupiter (R); and Virgo - M Navamsa: *Taurus - Ascendant and Moon; Ca - Venus and Saturn; Leo - Jupiter; Virgo - Mars Rahu; Aquarius - Mercury and Sun; and Pisc Ketu. R. M. Singh, Meer

Ans: Saturn is not the 10th lord and is no the 3rd with Venus, since Libra is the b Ascendant.

Q. 10. ...ncer - Mars. The 6th lord Moon is in the 7th. ...lord Sun and Lagna lord Saturn are in ...shashtaka. Venus is in inimical sign. Do ...doctors deny marriage?

N. T. Ramanujam, Madras.

...ns: Denial of marriage should not be men... for the simple reason, that the 7th lord, ...and Lagna lord, Saturn, are shashtashtaka. ...is not in an inimical sign, but is in the ...nd sign.

Ever since Saturn moved into ...the native has been having acute prob... ...asses, denial of credit and generally, all ...of problems. Why is this since Saturn's ...of 6th from Moon should actually prove ...ficial?

R. C. Jain, Raipur.

...ns: The problems, ever since Saturn tran... into Capricorn, may be due to the evil ...ary Dasa and Bhukti operating.

And Mercury ...ated in the 9th, in association with the ...of 2nd house and the lord of 5th and 10th ...es. Mercury is in his own constellation. ...Mercury Bhukti may be favourable in the ...te.

Q. 13. Rasi: Gemini - Ascendant and Jupiter; ...Sun; Scorpio - Mars, Ketu and Mercury; ...Venus; Aquarius - Moon and Saturn; ...Taurus - Rahu. (a) What kind of job or ...profession does Jupiter, as 10th lord, in Lagna indicate? (b) The native is bald. Will any kind of treatment help; especially does Jupiter in the Ascendant favour any particular line of treatment?

Ashok Kumar Aggarwal, Ambala.

Ans: The 10th lord is Jupiter who is a natural benefic. He is aspected by Venus, another natural benefic. Hence the native may choose a job or profession which confers him the privilege of giving commands and good reputation. So says the following verse —

Aajnasthaanaadhipe saumye subha yukte kshite pi va
Sobhanamsagate vapi jaatastwaajnaadharo bhavet.

Q. 14. Rasi: Sagittarius - Ascendant; Capricorn - Venus; Aquarius - Sun and Rahu; Pisces - Mercury and Jupiter; Cancer - Moon; Leo - Ketu; Virgo - Saturn; and Libra - Mars. What does Venus in the 2nd from Lagna, Rahu in the 2nd from Venus and Mercury in the 2nd from Rahu show?

Srinivasa Murthy, Gundlupet.

Ans: Venus in the 2nd house from Lagna indicates good financial status, luxury, eloquence of the native. The Sun in the 3rd from Lagna indicates bravery, inimical tendency with relations, and wit and wisdom. Rahu in the 3rd indicates hostility with brothers, pride. Mercury in the 4th indicates good learning etc. Thus various results are mentioned in our classics with reference to the planetary positions from Lagna but not your Yaksha queries. It is for you to guess, the results presuming Capricorn as Kutumba Bhava and Aquarius, as Bhratru Bhava, by the placement of Rahu and Mercury in the 2nd houses of the above Bhavas respectively.

Q. 15. Capricorn - Ascendant and Jupiter (R); Aries - Mars; Gemini - Ketu and Saturn; Cancer - Sun and Mercury; Leo - Venus; Scorpio - Moon; and Sagittarius - Rahu. Will Ketu Dasa promote or hinder higher studies as he occupies the 6th?

K. S. Shekhar, Ranchi.

Ans: Ketu being a weak planet, placed in the 6th house, does not promote higher studies. Since he is associated with Lagna lord, Saturn, a Karaka for service, in the 6th house, the native may enter service.

IT IS NICE TO BE IMPORTANT

FUTURE OF THE NARASIMHA RAO GOVERNMENT

will also aspect the 5-planet group in Cancer (Indian Independence chart) which includes not only Dasa and Bhukti lord Venus but also the Sun lord Sun and natal Moon (Janma Rasi) plus the 9th and 10th lord Saturn. Hence this period will prove critical for the new Government. Moreover the chart also comes under Chaturtha Sani (Transit Saturn in the 4th from Janma Rasi Libra). This is a clear case of Balarishta. The Government will have to face some challenging and burning problems. The 7th house represents the Opposition. Taking Pisces to be Lagna of the Opposition we find that 4th is occupied by Mercury, Sun and Ketu and 5th house by exalted Lagna and lord Jupiter, 2nd and 10th lord Yogakaraka Mars and Venus. The 8th is occupied by Vargottama Moon and 11th by own house Saturn which powerful being retrograde. Hence, it is clear that the Government will have to face a powerful and united Opposition. The Opposition will become more and more powerful upto February 1993. Transit Saturn, being 11th from 7th (for the Opposition), will provide more and more strength and political benefits to the Opposition in future.

Finally, considering the permutations and combinations of planets in the swearing-in chart and the transit of Saturn, we find that in case the Narasimha Rao Government lasts upto February 1993, it will complete its 5-year term successfully.

PLANETS AND Career COUNSELLING

ANURADHA

My son born on 19-12-1969 at 8-20 p.m. near Jammu ...ase to soon decide on his further career. Kindly advise.

S.N. 15764.

The Ascendant lord is strongly placed ...in the 10th house joined by malefic 7th ...and 8th lord Saturn, both being aspected ...by 9th lord Jupiter. The Moon is quite ...strong with his dispositor in the 11th from ...Lagna. Since Jupiter aspects the Moon ...those Dasa is now on, your son can go in ...for teaching and accordingly acquire ...suitable qualification for it.

After 6 years of practice as lawyer, I joined an ...Insurance Company. Due placement and promotions ...have been denied during the last 3 years. Is there hope of ...proper categorisation and consequent promotion before ...retirement? Born on 23-11-1933 at 9h. 56m. 30 s.

G.D.R.

The 10th lord Mars, though Yogakara ...also, is placed in the 6th hemmed on ...either side by Sun and Saturn. Therefore, ...an element of frustration in career matters ...is quite consistent with these planetary ...conditions. However, the Dasa lord Saturn ...is with Lagna lord Moon aspected by 9th ...lord Jupiter and can improve matters in ...Sun Bhukti which has just begun.

As the 2nd lord the Sun is in the 5th house and in the 11th from Dasa lord Saturn which can give a slight financial increment. However, Saturn also being caught between malefics would call for a stoic attitude.

My son wants to start a business in gold and silver ornaments. He was born on 20/21-4-1959 at 2.28 a.m. (IST) at 25 N 18, 73 E 15. Is the time opportune to set up business in this line ?

S.N. 11920.

The 2nd, the 11th and 9th houses must be viewed to see if venturing on business would be safe and profitable. The 2nd lord Saturn (also Lagna lord, here) is in the 12th house (ruling losses) aspected by Mars, 11th lord. The 9th lord Venus is in the 5 Vargottama in his own sign but afflicted by a Papakartari Yoga caused by the Sun and Mars hemming him. Further, the aspect of 12th lord Jupiter on 5th lord Venus is hardly conducive to gain from business. The 11th lord Mars (ruling gains) is in the 6th (ruling liabilities) and therefore not supportive of business profits.

[Planets and Career Counselling deals with problems concerning career — job opportunities, ...the best line to choose for a son or daughter, dreaded transfers, penal action, suspension tribulations ...and the open ONLY TO SUBSCRIBERS. Address your problem/query to Anuradha, "Planets and Career ...Counselling", THE ASTROLOGICAL MAGAZINE, 115/1, Seshadripuram, Bangalore 560 020. The Dasa, another major factor, is of Rahu joined by the Moon and aspected by 9th lord Mercury, Lagna and 2nd lord Saturn and 11th lord Mars from houses involving malefic houses — the 3rd, the 12th and the 6th. None of the factors is conducive to business. Further, the Moon being afflicted by malefics can blur judgement leading to heavy losses. Business is not at all advisable.

My son, born on 18-10-1962 at 6-55 a.m. (IST) at 6 S 50, 39 E 17, is practising as a junior advocate. Should he continue or change over to service.

S.N. 16179.

The 10th lord Moon in the 4th has digbala and joins 3rd and 6th lord Jupiter and Yogakaraka Vargottama Saturn. Jupiter is neecha here but gets Neechabhanga due to Saturn (the sign-dispositor) occupying a kendra from Lagna. Rahu Dasa now on will end in September 1992. Jupiter Dasa thereafter will dominate quite a long period of time followed by Saturn Dasa. Both these planets are related to law and judiciary where the native will fare well. It is better he persists in this line although for another 13 or 15 months, things may not be very bright.

My son is an officer in a nationalised bank and has frequent transfers. Will he stick to his present job or will he get non-transferable job? He was born on 7-7-1960 at 3-25 a.m. (IST) at Bombay.

S.N. 17684.

The 10th house Aquarius is aspected by 10th lord Saturn from a common sign in the 8th house (a dusthana). Saturn is aspected by Lagna lord Venus from dual sign. This influence of common signs and the 8th house on the 10th house factors cannot give a non-transferable job. Further, the Dasa now being of Venus (in a common sign) and next of the Sun (also in a common sign), both planets in turn being aspected by planets in common signs would mean, whether in this job or any other, transfers would be an integral part of the native's life.

My son born on 11-5-1971 at 8.30 a.m. (IST) has failed in his Plus - Two exams. I am worried about his future.

S. N. 13271

Ans: The Ascendant Gemini has Pisces on the 10th house aspected by 10th lord Jupiter. The Lagna lord is well-placed in the 11th with 5th lord Venus aspected by exalted 11th lord Mars. The boy has a good future, therefore. In the absence of Dasa-Bhukti details, we may on the basis of Jupiter aspecting the 10th conclude, the boy may take up a teaching career and attain a reasonable degree of prosperity.

Q. My nephew, a nationalised bank employee, is under suspension since 1982 and facing criminal prosecution. Born on 1-4-1958 at 9.15 a.m. at 22 N 5, 82 E 08, when is the case likely to terminate and how?

S. N. 16123

The Ascendant lord Venus is in the 10th house aspected by 10th lord Saturn from the 8th house. The 8th house rules disgrace, humiliation, reversals and since the 10th lord occupies this dustana, the present problem in quite consistent with the planetary positions in the chart. Venus is the 6th lord and aspects Dasa lord Moon in the 4th house. Further, the 10th house comes under a Papakartari Yoga. But because Lagna lord Venus occupies the 10th, ultimately the native may be exonerated of the charges about the time of Venus Bhukti in Moon Dasa.

Chandrashtama occurs from morning of 4th to noon of 6th and again from afternoon of 31st till the end.

11. KUMBHA (Aquarius)

General: The Sun and Mars in the 8th and the 9th, Venus in the 7th and Saturn in the 12th are all unfavourable; the Sun is under check till 10th and Mars till 16th. Jupiter in the 7th is fully favourable. Mercury in the favourable 8th till 10th transits thereafter the unfavourable 9th till 30th with check till 16th. He transits the favourable 10th during the last two days. The bad side will be more in evidence although your financial position will be quite satisfactory. Satabhisha is better than Dhanishta and Poorvabhadra.

Health and Domestic: Stomach and rectal complaints involving hospitalisation are likely. Chronic sufferers are likely to find the month quite trying. Your children's performance in the schools and colleges will be a source of happiness for you. Peace and harmony will elude you throughout in the domestic life.

Finance and Speculation: In the midst of your severe problems you will not feel any pinch of money. In spite of money being available to you at any time you will experience the lack of poise and peace of mind which involves social tactics more important than money. The speculative transactions are not recommended during this month.

Real Property, Services, Professions, etc.: As may be expected from the adverse positions of both the Karaka for properties and the lord of the 4th you will have to exercise all your skills to prevent deterioration in matters pertaining to real estates. Major deals involving men and money should be postponed. The month will, however, be, more or less, satisfactory for services, businesses and professions.

Women: Avoid romance at all cost. Do not stake your whole life for satisfying your whims and fancies. Take your elders into confidence and the gloss will wear out restoring normalcy to you. The month is not likely to be very helpful for working girls.

Students: Health and domestic difficulties are likely to hinder intellectual progress. Outdoor games and competitive tests are not favoured. You should not do anything that may be construed as annoyance by your friends, relatives and teachers.

Chandrashtama occurs from noon of 6th to evening of 8th.

12. PISCES (Meena)

General: The Sun and Mars in the 7th and the 8th and Jupiter and Venus in the 6th are all unsatisfactory; the Sun is under check except between 10th and 16th, Mars till 16th and Jupiter throughout. Saturn in the 11th is fully favourable. Mercury in the unfavourable 8th till 10th with check transits thereafter the favourable 8th till 30th when he moves into the adverse 9th with check. The second fortnight of the month is likely to be better than the first half. The general trend, however, emphasises evil influences. You will do well to be guarded in your activities. You are likely to be involved in fruitless long travels. You should conserve all your resources which come your way during the exceptionally fortunate Gochara periods in the recent past. Uttarabhadra is better than Poorvabhadra and Revati.

Health and Domestic: Conditions during the first half are likely to be troublesome for health. Dysentery is indicated. Health conditions will not, however, get out of control and you may have relief as the month advances. Chornic patients will find the month trying. You may have to keep your fingers crossed in so far as peace and harmony in the domestic field are concerned.

Finance and Speculation: Not a satisfactory month for finances. Expenditure, new commitments and consequent financial stress are likely to worry you. The redeeming feature is the timely assistance from your friends to rescue you from financial embarrassment. It is advisable to refrain from speculative transactions.

Real Property, Services, Professions, etc.: Agricultural crops will be adversely affected by pests. Yield and rentals may tend to go down. Labour will be amenable to reasonable talks and settlements. Services, professions, businesses and industry are likely to find the month unsatisfactory.

Women: The period will be reflected in broken social engagements and disappointing conditions in club life. An unexpected rise in expenditure may have to be faced. Employed girls should be extremely careful in dealing with their superiors in view of the unsatisfactory planetary influences.

Students: Vidyakaraka will be of help to you for the greater part of the month and you should utilise this opportunity to concentrate on studies and make up for time lost in the past. You will, however, shine very well in the field of sports, games and athletics and the chances of your inclusion in national or state level teams are quite bright.

"What is wrong with his life (notwithstanding the financial help from his in-laws) and what is the great influence in the 3rd (friends and well-wishers)? The Lagna is hemmed in between the Moon and Ketu indicating unsettled mind.

"Sarvashtakavarga: Aries - 29; Taurus - 32; Gemini - 35; Cancer - 30; Leo - 26; Virgo - 28; Libra - 27; Scorpio - 27; Sagittarius - 23; Capricorn - 35; Aquarius - 32; and Pisces 27."

Success Before Long

"Even though the chart has so many negative features, there are also good ones" writes reader K. S. T. Suryanarayana Rao of Madhur in Kasargod District.

"There is a Bhadra Yoga from the Moon with Mercury in the 6th from the Moon. The Moon, though in the 12th, is in a watery sign, full and in good Shodvargas and has 7 bindus to its credit in his Ashtakavarga. Of course, the full significance of the Bhadra Yoga may not materialise as the Yoga-forming planets are in the 6th and 12th from Lagna.

"According to the late Mr. R. Lakshmanan, there is an aphorism in Tamil Maraindha Pudham Niraindha Kavi meaning that Mercury in a hidden house gives full education and this applies to Lagnas for which Mercury is bad by lordship and in this horoscope Mercury exalted in the 6th has given him good education.

"Here even though Jupiter is combust, his aspect to the 9th in his own house is not tainted and 5th lord in his own house has good features denoting good Purvapunya and these two natural lords in a Kendra to Lagna lord Mars are a protective feature in the chart. The 10th lord Saturn in the 8th is afflicted by Rahu. Even then Saturn is in his own star Anuradha and is in the 11th from the 10th and aspects the 10th. There is a Raja Yoga due to association between 5th, 9th and Lagna lords. Even though Mars, 8th lord, is in the 11th sign, in Bhava chart he moves to the 12th house and this is good. Except for the luminaries the rest of the planets occupy good constellations. Two natural benefics, Venus and Mercury, are in Upachaya-sthanas from Lagna.

"The running Dasa-Bhukti being of Venus and Rahu, the two are in Kendra positions to each other both in Navamsa and Dasamsa charts. Hence when Jupiter moves to Leo, this activates natal Sun, Jupiter and Mars and 9th house things may improve. The succeeding Bhuktis are also favourable. The Dasa lord Venus has two benefics—Mars and Mercury in Kendras and Saturn-Rahu in Upachaya. From Arudha Lagna Venus occupies the 7th.

"The next Dasa is of the Sun who is in his Moolatrikona, 7th from Lagna lord and 9th from Arudha Lagna. Hence the period should prove fortunate. Both the Navamsa and Dasamsa charts are quite good and in Sarvashtakavarga the 10th has 35 bindus. Thus it will not be long before the native will be able to succeed professionally and make his own living."

In Brief, Success

Reader Sushila Gopalan of Salem explains, briefly though, "that the 9th lord Jupiter Vargottama aspecting Lagna lord Mars in the 11th, benefics in Kendras from the Moon and absence of debilitated planets are all favourable factors that show success". She has obviously overlooked the debility of the nodes.

Major Break Awaits

All said and done, the doctor has the Moon in the 12th aspected by the vacillating Mercury which, to a large extent, explains the defeatist attitude of the young man which reader Raghavan of Bangalore so succinctly points out. Otherwise, the chart itself has nothing much to grumble about.

Mars, the Ascendant lord, is retrograde in the 11th aspected by 9th lord Vargottama Jupiter. The 10th lord Saturn in the 8th can give a delayed start but being in Scorpio with Rahu does not spoil prospects. In fact, he shows the medical background of the native.

The native is soon to start Rahu Bhukti of Venus Dasa. Rahu in the 8th is neecha (debilitated) with cancellation of debility caused by Venus (the ruler of the sign where Rahu gets exalted) being in a Kendra from the Moon. The Dasa and Bhukti lords are in Shashtashtaka but if one takes a second look at the planets we see Venus and Saturn (Rahu being akin to Saturn) are the planets involved. The doctor is about to get a major break in life. Possibly with Jupiter stepping into Leo, Dame Luck will begin to beam on him.

NOTE: The unit value of the cumulative good effects of the 4 planets is taken as one (Unit Value - 1). Quantum of good effects of each planet is evenly distributed as 0.250 for its occupation in good houses from Natal Moon and the cumulative effects of these 4 planets is shown in the last column. The house these planets occupy with reference to Janma Rasi are in numerals. It can be seen that Rasis Aries, Cancer, Leo, Libra and Aquarius fare the best getting 50% good effects. Next the Rasis Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricorn and Pisces which get 25% good effects and the remaining Rasis Taurus.

OUTLOOK FOR INDIAN AFFAIRS

1992. As the Ascendant lord in the 10th in a Kendra from the Dasa lord Mars, he will provide opportunities to the prime-minister to prove his mettle. Primarily the planet of trade Mercury's favourable influence augmented by Mars will be felt in the form of bold and liberalised steps to improve India's commerce and industry.

But Mercury's weak cuspal position may not help Narasimha Rao to consolidate his position. Mercury is in Punarvasu ruled by Jupiter who, in turn, is in the 12th with the 6th lord Saturn aspecting the 6th house or Rogasthana. The Dasa is of the 8th lord Mars, the 8th being occupied by Venus and Ketu. The health of Narasimha Rao may cause much concern, coming in the way of the discharge of the duties of his office.

Going back to Chart 1, Mars-Saturn conjunction in early March 1992 takes place in Capricorn adversely influencing Cancer and the multi-planetary group here. The Moon Bhukti runs from December 1991 to August 1993. The Moon, though in his own sign, is weak in another sense moving towards a conjunction with the Sun. The Mars-Saturn conjunction occurs almost exactly opposite radical Saturn, the planet of democracy, and also ruler of the 10th house. Mars, then, moves on to progressive oppositions with Dasa lord Venus (also the Lagna lord) Mercury and also the royal planet Sun. These planetary influences vis-a-vis the political scene will be accompanied by unexpected developments. This period from March to July 1992 may continue to be a high voltage period. The President (shown by the Sun) may be required to perform one of the most challenging duties of his office. Political parties may find major realignments being forced on them.

Saturn as the 10th lord in the Indian Independence chart will be strongly influenced by the Mars-Saturn conjunction in the opposite sign and may lead to confused conditions and wild speculation on the future of the Government. The health of the prime-minister and the party-squabbles in the Congress (I) may create fear and anxiety in people's minds on what next!

The Bhukti lord Moon is too feeble to bring about changes via elections. More simply put, Narasimha Rao's vacating his chair may not be followed by elections. The Mars-Saturn conjunction hitting Saturn, then Venus and the Sun (in Chart 1) may create in that order jumbled conditions, realignment of political party equations and the President having to resolve the crisis through some constitutional solution. Crucial decisions by the President and a display of unusual maturity by many political stalwarts from different camps may stave off elections and put the reins of the country in a motley of hands.

A brief reference to the annual chart* for the 45th year of Independence starting on 15-8-1991 shows the 10th lord Venus is well placed in the Ascendant. But the Ascendant lord Sun is himself in the 12th house aspected by the 6th lord Saturn, retrograde in the 6th. This indicates the likelihood of the office of prime-minister falling vacant due to reasons of ill-health.

The Congress (I) chart now becomes relevant. As discussed many times before in these pages, the Dasa is of the 8th lord Moon (aspected by Mars, Jupiter and Venus) conjoined by a debilitated Saturn. The association of Saturn with the 8th lord cum Dasa lord Moon, both being influenced by Mars shows a fierce rat-race for leadership as Mars Bhukti progresses (February 1992 to September 1992). The quality of leadership will show no improvement. The same culture of aggrandisement and utter disregard for ethical values will persist. The party will face weather and continue to experience handling fortunes. The Dasa of the Ascendant lord Venus occupying the 3rd in Chart I now current rules out any person of non-Indian origin taking over the prime-minister's office, in Venus Dasa as fervently hoped for by some Congressmen. These men would benefit more by working for a strong government than expending their energies wastefully on personal loyalties with an eye on promoting their own fortunes.

The Janata Dal will see further erosion of credibility and strength. In its horoscope Rahu Dasa begins in early 1992. Rahu in the 2nd is aspected by 2nd lord Saturn and Yogakaraka Venus, Vargottama and placed in his own Nakshatra. A wind of revival will begin to blow improving the fortunes of some of its big brass.

The Bharatiya Janata Party will be in the last phase of Venus Bhukti in Venus Dasa in 1992. Transit Jupiter will be powerfully influencing Leo, the 10th house from the Moon. A shift from the Opposition benches is in the offing for this party.

Summing up: (1) The Narasimha Rao Government may acquit itself fairly creditably. (2) Narasimha Rao may have to vacate office due to reasons of health. (3) This is unlikely to be followed by elections. (4) The President may invite parties to come together to form some sort of a National or Coalition Government; or some kind of similar arrangements to avoid elections. (5) Sonia Gandhi may not have an active role in the current political scenario.

MY TURN

CYCLONIC STORMS

T. R. NATARAJAN, PUNE

THE author in "Planetary Transits and Cyclones" (A.M., May 1991) has rightly chosen for astrological study a weather phenomenon that is a major source of natural disaster in the coastal regions of India. Whether need for long-range forecasts of cyclones may arise is a moot point, because weather satellites that continuously monitor the intensity and movement of a cyclonic storm lying hundreds of kilometres from the coast have made forecasts for storm-warning purposes almost redundant.

In the statistical study of the type taken up by the author ten storms in a twenty-year period that affected a very long coastal belt is a small 'population'. Hence, planetary data for the dates of all the remaining cyclonic storms (dates taken from published Weather Reports of the India Meteorological Department) that hit the coasts of Andhra Pradesh and Orissa (between latitudes 14° N to 21° N) during the period 1970-1989 were examined and the results (total number and percentage mean) are given below. (Planetary data for each date are not given to save printing space.)

A. Dates of 21 Cyclonic Storms

Andhra Pradesh: 10.9.72; 23.11.72; 17.11.76; 27.11.76; 31.10.77; 25.11.79; 18.10.80; 16.10.82; 18.10.82; 11.10.85; 16.10.87; 13.11.87.

Orissa: 5.7.72; 22.10.72; 9.11.73; 15.8.74; 28.10.74; 26.9.81; 14.10.84; 2.9.85; 16.10.85.

The overall picture in the table also shows that more number of planets were in the Chanda and Vayu Nadis (indicators of heavy rain and strong winds) than in the other Nadis. The higher figures were largely augmented by the Sun who was in these two Nadis on nearly 75% of the occasions.

B. Total number of planets (and percentage) in each Nadi (for 21 storms)

	Chanda	Vayu	Saumya	Dahana	Neera	Jala	Amrita
Number	28	29	22	23	16	15	14
Percentage	19.1	19.7	15.1	15.5	10.9	10.2	9.5
Percentage for all the 31 storms	21.2	21.2	16.2	12.0	9.2	10.6	9.6

Jupiter was ahead of Venus on 66% of the occasions. There appears to be no significance in comparing the positions of these two planets. In the case of cyclones that hit the coasts of West Bengal and adjoining Bangladesh Venus was found to be ahead of Jupiter on greater number of occasions.

The Saptanadi Chakra seems to be a concept of the Vedic period as it is composed of 28 Nakshatras (including Abhijit). In this period the Vernal Equinox was with the Sun in the last quarter of Bharani (vide Bharatiya Jyotisha Sastra—Part I, by S. B. Dikshit). Transit Sun in Aswini and the major part of Bharani Nakshatra were in the southern hemisphere. Available records do not show cyclonic activities in the Indian seas before the Vernal Equinox (March 22). Atmospheric circulation favourable for a cyclone to move to the Indian coast gets developed only by April. And this suggests that the circulation and seasonal weather in our region was different in this distant past from what it is now.

For a better understanding of the above features the author would like to clarify an apparently contradicting statement. for transit Sun at the Chanda and Vayu Nadis a Nakshatra is taken as 13°20' of arc, a unit for a zodiac of 27 Nakshatras. How does this fit in a Saptanadi Chakra ?

ASTROLOGY AND WOMEN'S WORLD

Q. My friend's daughter was married to a well-to-do boy in February 1989. The husband is a medical and after about 3 months, the girl, unable to bear his perverted ways, has come back to her parents, refusing to return to the husband. Kindly examine her chart.

V.G.P.

Girl: Born 10-5-1971 at 5.10 a.m.
Boy: Born 7-6-1967 at 1.50 a.m.

Ans: The girl is running Saturn Dasa. Saturn is in the 10th in debility and with cancellation of debility. He is the 7th lord joined by 3rd and 12th lord Mercury and aspected by Moon. Rahu-Ketu also afflicts the 7th house. But Karaka Venus is too badly placed and is in the 9th aspected by retrograde Jupiter who is also the 9th lord. Therefore, it does not seem the marriage will come up all that easily. However, the affliction to the 7th house by Rahu does not indicate much badness in marital life. Therefore, it is better she pursues her education.

From Chandra Lagna, Saturn is the 5th lord Vidyakaraka and can help her studies.

In the boy's chart, the 4th house or Sukhasthana is influenced by two malefics, Mars and Saturn. Rahu is in the 11th house and his Dasa is on. Rahu is in a martian sign and hemmed between malefics, Saturn and Sun. Therefore, during Rahu Dasa not much can be expected of marital harmony. Further, the boy's Moon is new and in the 12th house indicating his perverse urges and nature.

Although legally, some delay and protraction is indicated in obtaining a divorce, indications are good for the girl to work at her studies and career.

Q. I was married on 18-10-1982. My husband has a daughter from his now dead first wife. But I would also like to have a child of my own but have been unable to conceive. Kindly advise.

Wife:* Born 25/26-7-1955 at 1.25 a.m. at Cannanore.

S. No. 17306

Ans: The wife has the Moon in the 5th house, neither aspected nor conjoining any planet. The 5th lord Mercury is in his own sign Vargottama joining Vargottama Lagna lord Venus. Ketu also there is some affliction. Saturn Dasa is due to start shortly and Saturn is an excellent Yogakaraka placed in the 6th aspected by Mars. From Chandra Lagna, Saturn is also the 5th lord. Therefore, progeny cannot be ruled out. Conception is possible when transit Jupiter moves across Virgo over natal Moon in 1992-1993.

Husband:* Born 11/12-6-1952 at 2.50 a.m. (IST) at Madras.

In the husband's chart, Jupiter Dasa is on. Jupiter is in the Ascendant aspecting the 5th and 9th houses. So, issue is possible in Jupiter Dasa, particularly when Jupiter crosses Virgo. However, the aspect of Mars on the Dasa lord of both husband and wife would caution against threatened abortion calling for great care during pregnancy and possibly surgical intervention.

Q. I am not able to find a suitable match for my sister who did her Master's in 1983. Is this a case of remaining single throughout life ?

P.L.K.N.

Born 10-12-1957 at 6h. 29m. (IST).

Ans: The 7th lord Venus is in the 3rd in a friendly sign aspected by sign-dispositor Saturn and Lagna lord Mars. This indicates marriage after a delay. Combust Saturn further protracts the delay. Rahu Bhukti of Mercury Dasa may give marriage especially when Jupiter (in transit) is in Leo. From here, he will be influencing the 7th house from the Moon-sign. He will be in the 7th from Navamsa Lagna. Rahu joins Jupiter, the 7th lord from Chandra Lagna and becomes empowered to give marriage.

Q. My daughter has been unsuccessful in the Intermediate examinations. I am trying to get her married. Is my decision right ?

Born 11-7-1967. S.N.17

Ans: The 7th and houses have serious flictions. The 8th Mars joining Ketu Rahu in the 8th must be viewed caution and prepa tions made to meet adverse trends show.

The Ascendant Mercury in the 10th is good and shows the girl be trained in some craft or trade so that begins to generate her own income. Rahu in 8th shows early demise of partner unless care matching of charts is resorted to before final any match. Therefore, it is better efforts are to make her self-sufficient and give her skills.

Q. My son in USA is married to an Ameri girl. They have no children and do not wish adopt one. Will they get a child?

S. N. 130

Son:* Born 20-1-1948 at 14h. 56m. (IST) 18 N, 74E.

Son's Wife:* Born 6-9-1948 at 11 a.m. 42 N, 92 W.

Ans: The 5th house in the husband's chart between malefics while 5th lord Mercury is in 9th aspected by 9th lord Saturn. This may progeny unduly.

From the Moon, the 5th house has Moon-sign lord Mars(R) while the 5th lord is in the 10th aspected by Saturn. While these may delay issue, they may not deny the native progeny.

In the wife's chart, the 5th lord Saturn is in the 11th with the Sun aspecting the 5th. The same picture repeats from the Moon-sign. The Sun Bhukti of Saturn Dasa which will cover the greater part of 1993 may mark the advent of the babe.

Those who know Astrology can only indicate in a way what will take place in future. Who else, except the Creator Brahma, can say with certainty what will definitely happen?

ASTROLOGY AS AN AID TO MEDICAL SCIENCE

NATURE seems to play heads and tails with our physical and mental qualities. Western astronomers competed with one another in proclaiming that this universe was beyond any scale of man's. How could it ever be imagined that the puny insignificant man comprising of scraps of flesh and blood stuck to our tiny globe due to gravity, be influenced by the celestial bodies? On the other side, geneticists claimed to have discovered a strange incredible world in the gene and they thought that they had found an answer to the question of our fate, viz., heredity. They said that Nature decides, at the moment of conception, our physical and mental qualities. All the information encoded on the genetic code can be deciphered which means we can also decipher our future. It is all there — our physical strength, weaknesses, character pre-disposition and intelligence — even to the moment when this mysterious machine, viz., our body becomes disordered and break down finally.

According to Dr. Kallman of the Psychiatric Institute of New York "every being has inside him a clock set at the moment of his birth which predetermines particularly illnesses and accidents". Whether the hands on the clock can be read correctly is of course a different matter.

The gap between astronomers — those who wanted to know what the Universe was made of, and geneticists — those who wanted to know what man was made of, became a yawning gulf. The sky of the astronomers was not concerned with man's future and man as revealed by the biologists had no need of the sky to know his destiny. This was the confusion in the thinking of the western scientists.

But the thinking of our Sages was on a different level. Their approach to man and the Universe was holistic. Man and the Universe cannot be separated from each other. Therefore they were the first to bridge the gulf between astronomy and biology with the great discipline of Astrology.

In ancient India Astrology and medicine were intimately connected. An Ayurvedic or medical doctor was required to be an astrologer too. But with the introduction of Allopathy into India, largely backed by the missionaries, the importance of Astrology, as a diagnostic test, was reduced for a time.

But now a reaction appears to have already set in largely due to the fact that a handful of leading medical men in Europe and America and in India also have been experimenting with medical Astrology.

Doctors are becoming intensely interested in the correspondence between solar activity and the number of heart strokes, hypertension cases, nerve diseases and even the harmless appendix trouble.

An experienced astrologer could indicate the predisposition of a person towards heart trouble, high blood pressure, cancer etc., with considerable accuracy.

Many of you no doubt will be familiar with the astrological terminology. At least you will be knowing there are 12 signs of the zodiac, 27 stars and 9 so-called planets. It is on the permutation and combination of the influences shed by these various bodies that the entire structure of medical Astrology has been built.

The zodiacal signs are related to various parts of the human body. For instance, Aries or Mesha concerns the head and face; Taurus - the gullet; Gemini - lungs; Cancer - chest and heart; Leo - the stomach, the spine etc.; Libra - the areas below the naval and above the sex - organs; Scorpio - sex - organs; Sagittarius - the thighs; Capricorn - knees; Aquarius - hips; and Pisces - feet.

There are also sub-divisions of signs which are linked to different parts of the organs concerned. The planets are also given the governance of diseases:- the Sun, general vitality and constitutional strength, the head and back; Mercury, the nervous and respiratory system; epilepsy and nervous excitability come under Mercury; complaints commonly arising from rich living, gout, diabetes etc. come under Jupiter. Bone diseases arising from poor living, exposure, hardships, rheumatism, malancholia come under Saturn. Rahu is said to govern paralysis and extreme physical sensitiveness, morbid fears and delusions. Psychic conditions can be gleaned from Ketu's disposition. The effect of the Moon on the mentally disturbed and on menstruation are of course well known.

Then there are special combinations going under the name of Arishta Yogas — diseases like mental aberration, hysteria, menstrual disorders, hydrocele, ascitis, blindness, leprosy, cancer, rheumatism, gastric and neural diseases have all been dealt with exhaustively in the astrological literature. The diagnosis is based on combinations duly tested by our ancient sages thousands of years ago.

The interactions between the functions of the body and the mind were duly considered and astrological rules formulated. They said diseases are of two types viz., Nija (natural) and aganthuka (acquired).

The Nija or natural can again be divided into Sarirotha (physical) and Chittotha (mental).

Physical illnesses arise from the three humours — vata, pitta and kapha, individually and collectively, and mental illness arises from the excessive emotions of anger, fear, sorrow and desires. The fundamental purpose of medical Astrology is to define planetary nations which indicate the various ses. The duration of such diseases and ther or not they would prove fatal can all gleaned.

herent tendencies to diseases are shown the afflictions in the birth horoscope. se tendencies may remain latent for long ods and then appear when the directions Dasas and Bhuktis of evil planets are in gress. On the other hand, the active ses may make their appearance with y unfavourable transit or Gochara if the na is weak and afflicted.

t is not clear whether all diseases were ble by drugs. Ayurveda had recognised physical disease was interdependent n the mind and insisted that mental mony was the sine-qua-non of health and -being.

Sir Walter Langdon Brown, Regius Profes- of Physical Sciences in the University of mbridge, is reported to have observed that ugs are not the whole of medicine. The alism of mind and body has broken down der the assaults of psychologically-minded ysicians. The doctors of the future will e to come doubly armed with material aid physical troubles and psychotherapy for tresses of the spirit".

Ancient writers on Astrology have always ld that health depends on harmony and sease upon discord between the body and nd. That is why great stress was laid on the ength of the Moon.

The strongest planet in the horoscope termines the predominance of the physi- , mental and spiritual peculiarities of the rson. Thus, if the Sun is the strongest anet, the native enjoys well-balanced alth, looks only at the bright side of things. e weak point is the eyesight. He is likely to ffer from accidents due to fire. However, if e Sun is predominantly weak, one may ecome blind, the heart will be in a poor ndition. He will be frequently troubled with paliptations and aneurism. He may be a victim of sunstroke. When Mars is very strong in the horosocope, the sanguine temperament is represented. The blood is rich. Apoplexy, skin disease, inflammation of the inner organs are the likely complaints. He runs a great risk of wounds in quarrels. When Mars is highly afflicted, the native may commit acts which may lead him to the scaffold. The Mercury-man is endowed with a bilious temperament. His weak points are the nervous system, liver and digestive organs. He is sometimes childishly superstitious and has a tendency to go in for quack remedies.

When Jupiter is strong, the temperament is both phlegmatic and sanguine. If afflicted one may suffer from excessive indulgence in eating and drinking. The Venus-person is strong, healthy and happy, sensual, fond of the good things of life. The disposition is cheerful. If Venus is afflicted, he may suffer from disappointments in love, derangements of the generative organs. At worst, he will suffer from the consequences of his excesses and has to pay for them dearly. Sex troubles, blood-poisoning etc., are not outside possibilities.

When Saturn is the strongest planet, one may often suffer from varicose veins. He worries a great deal and suffers from chronic melancholia that may sometimes grow into insanity. Unclean in habits, uncouth in appearance with rough hair all over the body, lean and tall, inactive, one is apt to make oneself an undesirable visitor. The spinal column requires special care.

Health being an integrating factor in life comprising both the body and the mind, the astrological charts should be well disposed.

The great Swiss psychiatrist, Carl Jung with whom I was in contact, has been a great influence among psychologists and psychiatrists in Europe and U.S.A. to use astrological science in medicine and psychology. They have found it illuminating in diagnosing the predispositions of their patients towards certain types of diseases, mental and physical.

According to Astrology, the Moon rules the mind, the Sun rules soul or self and Mercury rules the nervous system. Disorders arising from psychosis and neurosis and certain mental abnormalities — exaggeration of certain traits recognisable nearly in all people — are respectively caused by a combination of factors involving the Moon and Mercury.

In actual practice, such a combination is present mostly in the horoscopes of persons suffering from obsessional neuroses, delusions and false beliefs.

Medical science, with its improved instruments, X-ray, blood tests, cardiograms etc., has no doubt made great strides towards better methods of diagnosis. But we have to note that medical knowledge should go beyond the science of the diseases. The physician must clearly distinguish the sick human being described in books from the concrete patient whom he has to treat. The physician's role is to discover the characteristics of the sick man's individuality, his resistance to pathogenic factors, his sensibility to pain, the value of his organic activities, his past and his future."

The outcome of an illness in a given individual has to be predicted not by a calculation of the probabilities but by a precise analysis of the organic, humoral and psychological personality of this individual. Astrological wisdom sees illness as a disorder of the whole person, involving not only the patient's body but his mind; and his relation to the cosmos.

The astrological approach to health and disease takes due cognisance of the body-mind relationship. It is interesting to note that even the great Pasteur suggested that mental states affect resistance to infection, a theory probably still suspect amongst a certain section of the medical establishment.

By studying the horoscope, the physician will know the character of the patient, whether his will is weak and whether he is negative or emotional. "Symptoms" give indications of diseases which are in the process of materialising. But the horoscope can show the latent tendencies to diseases. When the planetary aspects have been stirred into action the Dasa and Bhukti dispositions give the diagnostician the key to it.

Electro-cardiographs, electro-encephalographs and measuring the metabolic rate are useful but sometimes may not be revealing enough. There are not merely two main types of metabolism but in reality 12 different types, to which the only clue is Astrology. Thus the Sun in Taurus aspected by Saturn is tumour-forming and points to the need for a special way of living which is quite different from an individual who has the Sun in Virgo and squared by Mars, for the latter does not proliferate the cells as does the former, but breaks them down which readily ulcerate.

Or when Saturn is in Aquarius and afflicts the Sun or the Moon one is unaccountably nervous and jittery, has undue persipration. Mars in Virgo in bad aspect to the Sun and Moon gives hyperinsulism. They have the opposite of diabetes.

There are also indications probably not recognised in medicine, which nonthelessly markedly interfere with health. Those who have the Sun and the Moon in fiery signs are subject to a condition, which while not a disease, can have detrimental results if not corrected. They tend to become dehydrated and if they live in a dry, warm sunny climate way develop a nervous state almost impossible to diagnose.

Medical Astrology can afford the doctor an insight into the nature of the whole of his patient. The insight he can obtain in differential diagnosis will save him time. For Cancer people are ...d of food and are hearty eaters. Conse-...ently they are often afflicted with diseases ...ch originate in wrong diet.

As a sample, I shall deal with one or two ...eases. The digestive system is a compli-...ed chemical laboratory, which does the ...ordinary job of mixing everything that is ...sumed and the repairing and mainte-...nce of the body.

Practically everyone suffers from a diges-...e upset or disorder at sometime or the other. For one it may be an occasional distress, for another a persistent symptom. Astrologically the digestive organs are collectively governed by the 5th house and by Leo. After a series of studies, astrological savants have allotted Virgo to the upper intestinal tract and Scorpio (the 8th) to the lower tract and the eliminative system. Whether these systems function well or ill depends upon the malefic effects on them.

If Saturn is in the 8th, the ability to eliminate waste products is reduced.

Mars in the 6th for instance may bring in ulcerated conditions. When the three first-rate malefics — Saturn, Rahu and Mars - influence these two places, the danger of serious trouble is intensified. One may have to go in for surgery more than once, especially in later years unless precaution in diet and living are taken from early years.

In the realms of digestive troubles and heart diseases, thousands of horoscopes have been studied by researchers and the fundamental astrological ingredients of these diseases have been identified and defined. Rahu and Mars prominent in respect of the 6th house reveal one's susceptibility to digestive trouble and it will manifest under the directional influences of the afflicted planets. Because of this advance knowledge, one should adopt a plan of operation to counteract these influences.

Similarly with regard to heart diseases: Tchijevsky, found that a remarkable coincidence exists between the incidence of cardio-vascular disease and outbreaks of solar - activity. In Hindu Astrology, the Sun is associated with the heart and heart diseases are read by the disposition of the Sun and affliction to it.

As there are many forms of heart-diseases, the indicators vary. An affliction to the Sun vis-a-vis the 4th house, is a sine-quo-non of heart trouble. When other planetary aspects enter this basic picture, further complications may appear. An affliction by Ketu reveals a heart weakened by poison from some malfunctioning organ or from another disease or infection. For coronary thrombosis, the affliction must take place in certain sensitive areas.

While the physical and medical aspects of heart-trouble are extremely involved and no two doctors, like two astrologers, completely agree in their diagnosis, the astrological influences are not difficult to trace.

Closely allied with heart-difficulties in popular thinking are hypertension, high-blood pressure. While hypertension may occur without accompanying difficulties it is said that most often it is associated with obesity, arterio-sclerosis, gall-bladder troubles and kidney infections, though it may choose any malady as its partner in crime. The basic horoscopical indicators of hypertension are a prominent angular Sun plus an afflicted Saturn or Mars. But the mind plays a crucial part and hence the Moon's position is to be carefully studied.

The planet from which the malefic (Saturn or Mars) draws its chief affliction (e.g. square Mercury) will determine the nature of the accompanying difficulty, if there is to be one. An affliction from Jupiter predisposes to vascular constriction by arterial deposits, from Rahu encourages high tension in daily life and will cause an increase in adrenalin secretions. If the sign involved is Libra, it indicates accompanying kidney trouble caused by toxins from the upper alimentary tract.

Similarly all other diseases can be judged fairly accurately. The signs Aries to Pisces rule the different organs of the human body from head to foot and disease of the organs concerned can be ascertained by studying the afflictions.

A word about cancer. Though it is an alarming word, doctors say it is curable provided adequate treatment is begun in time. So the time factor is important. According to Dr. John J. Schifferes, cancer is said to be a group of diseases characterised by what they call uncontrolled "lawless" growth of body cells.

When American experts came out with their report linking cigarette-smoking and cancer, many heavy puffers, it is said, stopped reading the report! The German experts say that polluted air is at the bottom of this disease.

Now cancer is being linked with a good head of hair. After examining the hair patterns of 186 lung cancer patients in a hospital, two New Orleans physicians have come to the hair-raising conclusion that baldness and carcinoma do not go hand in hand. Lung-cancer, they say, strikes three or four times as often in men with bountiful hair as in men with bald spots. This kind of hair-splitting logic can only lead to side-splitting laughter.

All this confusion opens up vairous other hilarious possibilities. More people in the west are getting taller, says a report; and more are also getting lung-cancer; height and cancer are linked. People prone to bite their finger-nails or chew lead pencils or twist clips into surrealistic shapes are positively protected from cancer.

Whatever might be the opinion of experts, horoscopes of 200 cancer patients studied furnish material for certain broad conclusions. A certain geometrical position of Saturn with reference to Mars and the Moon vis-a-vis the Ascendant or the 6th house or 8th house can predispose one to cancer. This can be ascertained by any experienced astrologer.

A few words about when the malady would set in and how it will be cured. The onset of the malady should be expected during the Dasa and Bhukti of the disease-causing planets. When the minor periods of favourable planets set in, the cure is activated by recourse medical and other types of treatment.

Research-work would eventually tend to borate what the ancient astrologers have tten regarding the relationships existing ween the motions of the heavenly bodies man's health and sickness.

The fundamental purpose of medical – rology is to aid a physician in discovering t diseases would be indicated under dif- nt planetary dispositions and the dura- n of such diseases. When properly plied, Astrology can determine the seat of ease.

When medical Astrology has so much to er in the matter of disease diagnosis, why it being ignored by the medical profession? nservatism and prejudice may be partly sponsible and ignorance of the subject, ly responsible.

Scientific orthodoxy could be as harmful religious orthodoxy. However, it is an couraging sign that the number of medical en who seem to be open-minded enough to ke investigations which transcend the ins of accepted medical methods is creasing.

It is interesting to note that while not uch is being done in India, the United tes Department of Health, Education and lfare has announced that there is enough dence for expert research into health indi- tions in a person's palm and finger-prints. Rosner says that scientists have been are for sometime past that certain abnor- l finger and palmar patterns occur in ost 70% cases of mongolism. Of course, emistry and Astrology are interlinked.

The remedial aspect of Astrology is also ry important. For certain afflictions or shta Yogas in the horoscope, i.e., inhar- mous dispositions of planets which may press themselves as mental or physical ctions, remedial measures recommended e not only medicines but also the Mantras etc. Medicines based on the Mantrasastra. The Arishta Yogas merely indicate the deficiency of the requisite or normal energy-quanta and this can be compensated by Mantras which are nothing but packets or bundles of regulated forms of sound vibrations. Recent research carried on sound waves have clearly shown their therapeutical value.

In prescribing different types of Mantras for different types of mental and physical afflictions, our ancient medical men like Dhanvantari and Susruta seem to have been alive to the tremendous potentiality of sound vibrations.

It may be that some of the astrological principles are not amenable to laboratory tests and techniques. In the very nature of things they cannot be. It may be that Astrology is based on empirical rules. An empirical rule which is found true in practice cannot be discarded simply because no analytical explanation is forthcoming. Even if the astrologers failed to give a satisfactory explanation of the laws of Astrology it cannot be treated as a pseudo-science as long as its predictions correspond with our actual experience. After all we have accepted the law of gravitation without being able to explain the fact of gravitation.

I wish to say a few words about the need for research in medical Astrology. A true scientist must be prepared to probe new fields and not keep moving in stereotyped grooves. We have set up innumerable national laboratories and millions of rupees are spent upon them annually. Every subject from cosmic rays to solar cookers come within the purview of these laboratories. Are all the facts discovered by them commercially useful? Why then make an exception in the case of medical Astrology?

It must be remembered that behind each single success of science there lies a whole series of failures hidden from public gaze. Why should we then display indecent impatience in the case of astrological facts?

Our medical men have ample opportunity to put to test the precepts of medical Astrology. The late Dr. Guruswamy Mudaliar of Madras had suggested that along with case-sheets, hospitals should also maintain horoscopes of patients. And I am sure you will also endorse his views in due course.

In the opinion of Dr. Carl Jung, "Western civilization by ignoring Astrology gains little and may be losing much by the contemptible treatment and defamation of an ancient art which defied a reasonable explanation and after 200 years of intensive progress, we can risk testing them in the light of modern truths".

"While other branches of knowledge when acquired are useful extraneously for pleasure or amusement, the sciences of medicine, astrology and Tantra register their usefulness at every stage in our life".

The ideal physician is described thus:

"The ideal medico should have learnt the science of medicine in all its ramifications at the feet of the Guru (i.e., colleges a unviersities) should hold the pot of nectar the hands (of course ready for healing; deft with the scalpet; be free from greed; courageous; kind and considerate; and pure and comman respect."

Probably in those days also there w quack practitioners and exploiters ab whom he says scathingly: meaning: Vaidyaraja, Prostration unto thee. Thou indeed Yamaraja's brother. With this dif ence that while Yama snatches life alone, y take away both life and money".

And finally, a doctor is treated as a Go

Your Excellency, Dr. Reddy and friends thank Dr. Reddy once again for having giv me the opportunity of placing before such distinguished gathering my humble views a subject I consider of great significance a relevance to mankind.

As It Strikes Me

AGASTYA

Denigrating Astrology DD Style

MANDI House mandarins and some of our science-programme writers are honeymooning and like all cooing couples are somewhere in a world of their own, totally divorced from fact and reality. On 9-1991, a new programme Turning Point was aired by Doordarshan to provide enlightenment to the viewer on science. Science, scientist, scientific temper are the in-things today for those of us who do not keep track of the Government's priorities. It has left no stone unturned to push this current fashion on the common man even if it means, no time or resources to handle his hunger-pangs. Bless our Government for it!

Going back to the programme, there was an exciting commentary and visuals on trains that could fly. Not now, in the next twenty years! But for the time being we may as well settle for stinking toilets and maddening confusion in our railways and reservations. How can anyone with any sense of decorum expect our Government and its scientists to devote any time or attention to such ugly, trivial needs of the commuters who, thankfully, are hardened to everything in life, including the stupid fare the DD doles out. Its programmes have never been taken seriously by its viewers and the Ramayana and the Mahabharata were the lone exceptions. Most people tend to dismiss DD fare as vacuous.

The finale took the form of an empty-headed oracular utterance by some staff of the Nehru Planatorium, Delhi, that Astrology had failed the test of science! As if Astrology has ever been tested. Not to be outdone on the details, the bloke who conceived and scripted this piece had the nerve to say the precession of the equinoxes had shifted the zodiacal signs of which no astrologer took note.

There is a limit to the lies and the kind, one can utter. Not all the mumbo-jumbo of the 'scientist' and his collaborator DD can dislodge Astrology from its truly scientific foundations. Luckily, our viewers are insured to every kind of nonsense on TV Turning Point included!

Insights into Astrology

Mr. V. L. Narasimhan, Chairman of the Hyderabad Chapter of Indian Council of Astrological Sciences, in an interview with Newstime (8-9-1991) in refreshing contrast to the dogmatic views of some so-called scientists (appears later). comes out with a cogent appreciation of the science of Astrology. Below are some extracts from it:

As a Science

"On the other hand, there are eminent scientists, among whom is Lyall Watson who in his classic book Supernature states 'to me as a scientist, they provide impressive evidence that the astrological tradition is not just a meaningless jumble of superstitions, but a real, instrument that can be used to extract more information from a simple map of the heavens than any other tool at our disposal'. Eugene Jonas is the Czech psychiatrist whose interest in human rhythms led to the discovery of a successful natural method of birth control. In following up his work, he has hit on a new human correlation that makes it possible to predict the sex of a child with great accuracy! The method is based on the planetary positions in the sky at the time of conception. In classical Astrology, each of the zodiac zones has a polarity. Michael Ganquelin of the Psycho-physiological Laboratory at Strasbourg found after close examination of thousands of horoscopes that doctors and scientists were born as Mars was coming over the horizon, soldiers and politicians were born more frequently under the influence of a rising Jupiter. Michael Ganquelin himself seems reluctant to admit it, but suggests that by the study of the position of the planets at birth it seems possible to develop a forecast of the individual's future temperament and social behaviour.

"Being a skeptic myself in the beginning, I could not accept astrological predictions as scientific but later on when I experimented on the predictive value of Astrology I found to my amazement that a number of predictions came true. I feel that if an astrologer is sincere, not lured by commercial considerations to exploit the gullibility and credulity of people, he can use Astrology as an important tool to help people."

On Destiny

"The best answer is provided by Prof. B. Suryanarain Rao, MRAS, etc. (illustrious grand father of Dr. B. V. Raman) in his book Astrological Mirror: 'There is no fatality in Astrology. It is a most fatal error in its critics to fasten fatalism on astrology and then begin to argue the question with their legs fastened on their heads. The evil effects of past and present Karma are indicated by the planetary conjunction at the time of birth. There is nothing in these decrees to bind you to suffer the evil consequences, indicated by the planets, but there is the science of Astrology to hold its lamp to show you the dangerous pitfalls which you should avoid and when you should avoid and which you should try your best to steer clear'.

"Again the eminent astrologer Mr. Llewellyn George, in his book A to Z Horoscope Maker & Delineator affirms that, 'Astrology is not a doctrine of fatalism. It provides us with an inventory of the working materials with which we were endowed at birth in the form of tendencies, mental capacity, physical endowments and abilities, but how we use or neglect to use the tools remains within our own jurisdiction. Wisdom puts an end to pain.

"Destiny properly means whatever is possible unto us, and 'fate' means the external circumstances which appear in our pathway to be manipulated and eventually overcome through effort and understanding."

Preventive Measure

"The Archibishop of Canterbury, denounced the famous scientist optician who invented lenses to correct objects in vision and dubbed him as satan as he has interfered with God's will to punish people with partial blindness as an atonement of their sins. We can as well find fault with meteorologists forecasting cyclonic storm and tidal waves, which took a very heavy toll of human lives in 1972 and later as experience is gained took preventive measures to minimise the disastrous effects.

"Astrology is one such method that can positively help people from impending personal calamities by responding properly and adjusting to the threatening challenges."

Newspaper Forecasts

"I fully agree with Lyall Weston that we can discard the popular newspaper version of astrololgy altogether. Glib, all embracing predictions, in which everyone under one Rasi will have a good day for making new plans, while another twelfth of the world population will be busy meeting attractive strangers, have nothing to do with Astrology. They are held in well-deserved contempt by genuine astrologers and by their critics."

Uncanny Predictions

"One was made in 1923 by German astrologer, Elsberth Ebertin who wrote 'A man of action, born on April 20, 1889, with the Sun in the 29th degree of Aries, may expose himself to danger by his overly violent acts. He is destined for the role of Fuhrer. Gunfire battles'. The prediction seems impres... since April 20, 1889 was the birth date of Adolf Hitler.

"Many such uncanny predictions were made by emin... astrologers including the violent death of Mujibur Rahman, especially by the doyen of Astrology Dr. B. V. Raman. One should remember that P. V. Narasimha Rao was not in the flock of birds flying in the air at the time of elections nor was he reckoned as a possible leader, he neither contested the elections nor was he in active politics."

A Fresh Dose of "Scientific Temper"

We have a fresh dose of 'scientific temper' from B. C. Siddharth of the Birla Planatorium, Hyderabad, as reported in a tabloid Newstime of 18-9-1991 where he says "There is no scientific basis to the belief that planetary motions affect a human life...". Never mind the belief, Mr. Scientist, for beliefs after all, are subjective. What about the fact of the clear correlation between graha and human activity? Does it or does it not exist? And if as you say, it does not, let me ask you some simple questions which can be answered only by the scientists by men with respect for truth and with men endowed with the spirit of truth.

1. Have you scientifically tested correlations between movements of grahas and terrestrial events?

2. If yes, what are the correlations you have tested?

3. In how many cases have you found the correlations as defined in authentic astrological tests failing? Say in 10,000 or 1,00,000 cases?

4. Where did you conduct these tests?

5. Where have the findings of these tests been published?

6. Have the correlations tested been accepted by a panel of astrologers as being truly astrological or were they a...

Saturn, Sun and Politics

THE mutual 7th house positions of Saturn and Sun from 16-7-1991 to 16-8-1991 (involving Capricorn and Cancer) were responsible for many recent events in our country.

The Cauvery River water dispute started about 26-7-1991 between the Tamil Nadu and Karnataka Governments. The problem assumed threatening proportions but after some days there were heavy rains in Karnataka and the Cauvery overflowed. The water had to be released to Tamil Nadu and the problem was resolved peacefully.

"We can see that the Cauvery water dispute arose due to the presence of Saturn and the Sun in watery Rasis (Capricorn and Cancer) but due to Jupiter in Cancer influencing both planets the crisis was resolved peacefully.

"Manure is used by farmers (represented by Saturn). Making the manure prices dearer in the budget shows the authority of the Sun over the farmers. The price hike has led to a crisis in our country and it has become inevitable for the Government to reduce the prices by 10% and make the old stocks available at the old prices. The manure crisis was also resolved peacefully again due to the presence of Jupiter (benefic) in Cancer influencing the Saturn and Sun opposition.

Correct Ayanamsa

"In Tsundur village (Guntur District) nearly 20 Harijans were murdered on 7-8-1991 by the landlords as reported in the newspapers. The incident was discussed in the Lok Sabha also. This event was considered as one of the worst incidents of the year and no immediate solution was found. If Jupiter had been in Cancer on 7-8-1991 this kind of violence would not have occurred. This also confirms Jupiter's transit into Leo on 7-8-1991 and not on 14-8-1991 as given in many Panchangas."

Reader Chakka Satyanarayana of Guntur succeeds in establishing a clear link between these political problems and the Sun-Saturn opposition. Further, his reference to Tsunduru violence and Jupiter's helplessness before it, is a handy argument in support of Raman Ayanamsa.

Where Did I Go Wrong?

"I carefully worked out the time for submitting my daughter's application form for admission to a good school in the city according to the guidelines under Aksharabhyasa in the book Electional Astrology. But what was my consternation when I found she could not get admission!" writes reader Thrinadha Rao of Dharwad.

1. Date and Time: 19-4-1991 at 11.30 a.m. first time.

Resubmitted at 11.50 a.m. after corrections.

2. Lunar Day: Panchami - 5th lunar day.

3. Ruling Constellation: Mrigasira - 5th constellation (also birth constellation)

4. Weekday: Friday - 6th day of the week.

5. Rasi - Taurus - 2nd signs.

"Adding these (5 + 5 + 6 + 2 = 18), the panchaka comes to 0 which means auspiciousness and good will follow. Why has this happened?" he asks.

Double Checking

Let us start with casting the horoscope for the time when it

In this feature, unusual and interesting events that occur in day-to-day life will be discussed astrologically. They may be about anything - birth, marriage, accident, sport, career, art, farming, weather, animals and the list is endless - so long as it is different from the monotony of life. Readers are invited to send in details of such instances (plus relevant astrological charts, dates and the Ayanamsa to Astrological Miscellany, The Astrological Magazine, Bangalore 560 020.)

was first submitted because that determines the point when action was initiated to submit the form.

Rasi: Gemini - Moon and Ascendant; Cancer - Jupiter and Ketu; Capricorn - Rahu and Saturn (R); Pisces - Mercury; Aries - Sun; and Taurus - Venus.

With this before us, let us see what Mahadoshas, if any, are present.

Mars is in the Lagna. The presence of a strong malefic in the Udaya Lagna or rising sign is not at all a favourable factor. Next, the Moon is with Mars, a malefic bringing the chart under Sagraha Chandra Dosha. That apart, let us just verify reader Thrinadha Rao's working. The Tithi is Panchami (5), the weekday is Friday (6) and the Nakshatra is Mrigasira (5). But what about the sign? It is Gemini (3), not Taurus. The total works out to 5 + 6 + 5 + 3 = 19. Dividing this by 9, the remainder is 1 or Mrityu Panchaka and highly negative in results. Where our reader has gone wrong is, instead of taking the rising sign for the time fixed, he has taken some other sign, totally unconnected with the chart.

So, the Panchaka is not at all good. More important is the influences at work in the girl's natal chart of which we have no details. Whatsoever, except that the birth constellation is Mrigasira.

Career Quandry

The boy stood first in his University (Hons.) examination. He then appeared for IAS where he failed. Now, he is utterly frustrated. What explains the contrast in his academic success and his utter failure in competition, asks reader Mrs. Saroja Shrivastava from Gumla in Bihar.

Born 18-1-1962 at 11.02 p.m. at Patna. Rasi: Virgo - Ascendant; Sagittarius - Mars; Capricorn - Saturn, Ketu, Venus, Mercury, Jupiter and Sun; Gemini - Moon; and Cancer - Rahu. Navamsa: Cancer - Ascendant, Jupiter and Mercury; Leo - Ketu; Scorpio - Mars; Capricorn - Venus and the Moon; Aquarius - Sun and Rahu; and Pisces - Saturn.

The chart has an unusual concentration of planetary forces on the 5th house ruling vidya or education. The 5th lord Saturn joins Vargottama Yogakaraka Venus and other planets there. On the other hand, the 10th house with the Moon in it is aspected by Mars, a malefic, being the 3rd and 8th lord.

Transit Saturn moved into Capricorn about the time of the boy's appearing for the competitive tests causing Ashtama Sani to the chart with particular emphasis on the 10th house which has the Moon in it. The 5th house also rules competition and now is under strong affliction from transit Saturn with the result the boy has been disappointed in the competitive exams.

Saturn, Dasa lord, is quite well placed in a trine with benefic Venus and other planets, notably Lagna lord Mercury. Therefore once Mercury Bhukti begins, the boy will get good opportunities for pursuing his career. Saturn as 5th lord in close association with 9th lord Venus can also give intuitive abilities but with the Moon being aspected by 8th lord Mars does not show any indication of dispassion or renunciation. The strong Moon in the 10th indicates a life of success and involvement in public affairs and matters.

Viable Vocation

Reader D. P. Naidu of Chittoor has been idling away his time eversince he was discharged volunatrily from the Air Force on 31-5-1987. He had (and still has) many ambitions to work or even try his hand at business but nothing has emerged so far.

Born 13/14-2/1952 at 4.0[illegible] a.m. (IST) at Chittoor.

Rasi: Ascendant 261-23; Sun 300-60; Moon 153-32; Mars 197-03; Mercury 294-49; Jupiter 349-36; Venus 267-56; Saturn 172-00; Rahu 306-24; and Ketu 126-24 with a balance of [illegible] years, 10 months and 28 days of Sun Dasa at birth.

Reader Naidu was discharged from the Air Force in the Sun Bhukti of Rahu Dasa. The next Bhukti was of the Moon, the 8th lord, and in the 8th from Dasa lord Sun. As 8th lord and waning and joining the 2nd lord Saturn, he must have given the native a lumpsum in settlement of discharge dues. The next Bhukti was of Mars, marking Dasa-chidra, and with transit Saturn in the 4th from natal Moon nothing worked out during this period.

The Dasa of Jupiter has begun and as the Ascendant lord he is in the 4th in Sukhasthana in his own sign. He is aspected by the 8th lord Moon and 2nd and 3rd lord Saturn from the 10th house. Saturn in the 10th has exchanged signs with 10th lord Mercury who is in the 2nd. With such a planetary arrangement, reader Naidu's career is all set for taking off again. The Moon and Saturn in the 10th in Virgo influencing Dasa lord Jupiter indicate trade in essential commodities such as a provision store would be a viable vocation. Since the Dasa lord is also the Lagna lord aspected by 2nd lord Saturn, our reader can rest assured he will soon be generating income again.

Phrenology or Mind Science

A CORRESPONDENT

Darwin's Theory Exploded

PHRENOLOGY as a science, lends little support to the Darwinian theory of human evolution from lower orders of animals, but it takes cognisance of all the brain variations, and the various nervous systems throughout the whole animal kingdom, and extracts therefrom all that is useful from illustrative purposes in the elucidation of Phrenological science; and, I venture to say, that the more expansive the researches in the domain of animal physiology, the greater will be the misgivings regarding the Darwinian hypothesis. The late Professor Max Muller, in his preface to his splendid book, Science of Thought, puts this in a nutshell, and admits all that can be scientifically admitted in that direction, without compromising himself or deprecating the conclusions of others. His words are: "I am not a Darwinian, not because I am afraid to follow Darwin, but because I go far beyond Darwin. I believe that I am correct in stating that at present all the most competent judges consider the descent of man from any other kind of animal NOT PROVEN. But while Darwin would have been satisfied with having established the descent of man from some kind of animal, I have never doubted, nor do I doubt that man has been, is and always will be, an animal, i.e., a living being, only not a dumb animal, but an animal with a proprium of language, and all that is implied by langauge". This, then, is the matured conclusion not only of Max Muller, but, upon his authority, of "the most competent judges" also, and his veracity cannot be impeached. Darwin was undoubtedly a great naturalist, an earnest and honest man and a deep and profound thinker, but all his conclusions were materialistic and purely natural, therefore he did not take cognisance of the spiritual attributes, and could not account for the origin of intellectuality of the human mind—the great distinctive features by which man is, and even has been, so far removed from the brute creation. I do not even think he is right when he says,—"there can hardly be a doubt that we are descended from barbarians." That weight of evidence is, I believe rather that mankind have during the history of the world, in many instances, DEGENERATED into barbarians, and I therefore object to his general declaration that "they are our ancestors", though he modifies his views with the comforting thought, that "He who has been a savage in his native land will not feel much shame if forced to acknowledge that the blood of some more humble creature flows in his veins", or that, "Man still bears in his bodily frame the indelible stamp of his lowly origin". This is purely conjectural. I think Professor Max Muller further voices the opinion of the best and most advanced thinkers when he says,—"The difference between man and all the lower animals is so wide it cannot be measured—an enormous gulf, a divergence immeasurable and practically infinite. Man alone enjoys articulate language; he alone comprehends himself; he alone has the power of abstraction; and he alone believes in God." And these differences may be almost indefinitely multiplied when we contemplate the wonderful complexity of the human mind—that mysterious force or entity which inheres the intelligent personality of man, and manifests itself by logical deduction, sequence of ideas, intuition and perception, and all that THOUGHT implies or EXPRESSION predicates. When Sir Charles Bell, in his book The Anatomy of Expression, showed that even in the particular matter of facial expression there was nothing in common between man and the brute, Darwin, upon Bell's statement—"that man is endowed with certain muscles solely for the purpose of expressing his emotion," had to confess that this view was obviously opposed to the belief that man is descended from some other form.

The Mind is the distinguishing feature of man, which gives him absolute pre-eminence above the brute creation; is that which indicates his higher destiny; intimates to him the sublime objects for which he is created and the goal to which he travels. No trace of such aspirations and anticipations can be found in the brute creation, but throughout the human family, whether barbarian or civilized, we find the religious sentiment universally diffused, even as Pope expresses it,—

"Father of all; in every age,
In every clime adored;
By saint, by savage, and by sage,
Jehova, Jove, or Lord."

Dr. William Kent of the United States in Substantial Christian Philosophy, p. 137, says, "The brute lacks the portion of brain that is necessary to the very existence of the moral faculty, and therefore can have no moral powers, no moral sense of right or wrong, no ability to discern spiritual and eternal things, no conception of the Divine Being, or His character and government, no conception and no knowledge of, or longings for, a future life of conscious acitvity all of which are realized by the human mind, even in a very superior degree." Now to my thinking, the highest order of ape or monkey has not so much ability as the ant or the bee for construction, the canary, or the thrust for music, the parrot or magpie for imitation of speech, or the dog and horse for faithful service, therefore; as far as the ability is concerned, there is more in favour of insects, birds, and other animals than monkeys and apes, and I would rather claim relationship with them, on account of their superior ability, than be committed to the speculative theory of hereditary and ancestral descent from brute beasts, however their bodily organization may resemble "the human form divine". Dr. Henry Calderwood, in Mind and Brain, p. 447, says— "Mind cannot be explained under conditions applicable to matter.

The immateriality of the rational nature is clearly implied in the forms of activity which are peculiar to it. It is the unmaterial rational life of man which constitutes his greatness. It is the intellectual power of man which detects the rational element in nature, and elaborates a system of the universe. He does more. Contemplating his own nature, and cherishing rational expectation as to a great futurity, he anticipates the continuance of his life, as he distinguishes between a perishable and an imperishable existence; he holds in his own being a twofold continuity. For what, I would ask, are such beings called into existence, such high capabilities bestowed upon them, such divine aspirations implanted within them. To be exhausted on brute existence; to be wasted in a brief animal life; to be devoted to folly, death and corruption; a spectacle of fallen and perverted grandeur; to afford the universe a spectacle of majestic desolation? Or to fulfil a high immortal destiny, and, by the cultivation of the wonderful faculties and endowments, and directing the mysterious forces and abilities of the Mind, so to prepare for the glorious future to which the Supreme Mind has predestinated the human family.

The distinctive human faculties of causation and imagination will fail to harmonize the possession by man of such magnificent endowments with a mere animal existence which in this life cannot anticipate a continued progression and advancement in a future state. Talk about a "missing link" being required to complete the chain of evolution from monkey to man! It requires an infinite number of links to establish a reasonable connection, and then, what? Hypothesis—Theory! The very powers of devotion, reason, perception and imagination which encompass the ideal, sublime and infinite, are therefore such distinguishable characteristics of the human species, that their possession alone should form an insuperable barrier for ever to the acceptance of the Darwinian supposition, while the hypothesis of "spontaneous generation" at the back of it, so carefully elaborated by Herbert Spencer and others must equally fail to satisfy the demands of the Scientific Phrenologist. I may conclude this portion of my subject by quoting Dr. Barrow (Barrow Works, Vol. 2, p.104)— "To think a gross body may be ground and pounded into rationality, a rough body may be turned into a faculty of discerning things; that a cluster of atoms only, as DEMOCRITUS for sooth conceited, that a well mixed combination of elements, as EMPIDOCLES fancied, that a harmonious contemporation of humours, as GALEN dreaming upon his drugs, would persuade us, should without more to do become the subject of so rare capacities and endowments, the author of works so wonderful; capable of wisdom and virtue, of knowledge so vast and desires so wonderful: apt to contemplate truth; able to recollect things past and foresee things future; to search into deep caverns and disclose the mysteries of nature; to invent so many arts and sciences; to contrive such projects of policy and achieve such feats of prowess; briefly, should become capable to design, undertake and perform all those admirable effects of human art and invention, wit and industry;

Yama Graha Aroodha

S. VAIDYANATHAN

YAMA means the portion of a day of 1 1/2 hours' duration. There are 8 yamas for day and 8 yamas for night or a total of 16 (16 x 1 1/2 = 24 hours).

In Yama Graha there are only 8 planets. They occupy the 12 signs of the zodiac in a particular order. Their position may change in Yamas. But their order remains the same. This is an important point to remember.

The order of the planets is as follows: Sun, Mars, Jupiter, Mercury, Venus, Saturn, Moon and Rahu. On any day, depending upon the weekday, the Yama Grahas occupy the Rasi Mandala in this order.

For counting the Yamas, always start from Meena Rasi omitting the fixed signs in an anti-clockwise direction. From Meena jump to Makara, then to Dhanus and then to Thula omitting Kumbha and Vrischika respectively.

Why are the fixed signs omitted? Except the Moon, no other planet is exalted in fixed signs in the zodiac. And the Moon's strength depends upon its position from the Sun when it either waxes or wanes.

In Geography and Aroodha, there are 8 diks or directions. These are known as ashtadik in Sanskrit.

The whole zodiac consists of 12 signs. Each sign is divided into 4 divisions or 12 x 4 = 48.

The 48 divisions are distributed as follows: Each fixed sign contributes 2 parts each to the moveable and dual signs adjacent to it as per the chart below.

That is why fixed signs are omitted.

East

4 divisions in Mesha
+ 2 divisions in Vrishabha
6 South

South-East

2 divisions in Vrishabha
+ 4 divisions in Gemini
6 South-West

Example: Say today is Sunday. The 1st Yama starts from 6.00 a.m. and will last upto 7.30 a.m. How will the planets occupy the Rasi zodiac?

What will be the Yama Graha position for 10.57 a.m. on Sunday (2-6-1991)

Fig. 1

10.57 a.m. falls in 4th Yama as indicated in Figure 2 in Thula Rasi. So the position of planets will be as indicated in Figure 3. The digits in Figure 2 such as 1, 2, 3 etc. indicate the Yamas of the day and night.

Fig. 3

If you notice carefully, all the fixed signs are omitted in Figure 2. In Figures 1 and 3 from 0 degree or end of Meena Rasi the planets take their position in a particular order as mentioned in an anti-clockwise direction. Moreover, as the Yama period is the same for day and night, the time indicated can be 7.30 a.m. or 7.30 p.m. depending upon the time of question.

Suppose the time is 10.00 p.m. Sunday. The planetary positions will be the same as in Figure 3.

For other weekdays the first Yama Graha positions only are given and with the help of Figure 2 the position of the Yama Graha for any day any time can be plotted.

This is the very strong foundation of the Aroodha system. I want the Yama Grahas to be placed on the outer side of the zodiac so that the utility and meaning behind this practice can be understood easily. Figure 4 gives 6 charts for the 6 days from Monday to Saturday.

Fig. 4-2

Fig. 4-3

Fig. 4-4

Fig. 4-5

Fig. 4-6

How can we ascertain if the Yama Graha position is correct for a particular time and day? The rule is as follows:

The Sun-Venus, Mars-Saturn, Jupiter-Moon, Mercury-Rahu — the planets in each pair will oppose each other and will be in the opposite signs. Refer to Figure 3.

What is Aroodha? Aroodha means the position shown in the zodiac and is determined by the querent and his standing or sitting in a particular Rasi. In other words, the direction or dik from where the querent comes and asks the question determines Aroodha.

Astrologers generally have a consulting room with chairs or stools and may find it difficult to determine the correct Aroodha position.

However, some intelligent imagination will solve the problem easily. Chairs or stools can be placed in a circular fashion as shown in Figure 5 in front of the astrologer or his table. 3 chairs or stools to the right and 3 to the left of the astrologer's table (total 6) will do. In practice I have seen people

...sit on the stools provided. They shift it ...ding to their convenience. That final posi... will determine the Aroodha or Rasi position. Sometimes, two or three persons will come for ...g questions. Only one of them will start the ...or ask questions. Note in which Rasi he is ...ing and take it as Aroodha.

Another person may ask a different question. ...his sitting position and determine the Aroodha. Suppose the same first person asks one or ...e questions, then Aroodha Rasi does not ...ge.

In some cases the querent will sit in one Rasi ...after a few minutes for better hearing or ...ate talks he will change his position. In that ...e the original sitting position will be the ...odha. In a few cases when the querist wants ...a question he will drag the chair or stool and ...e close in front of the astrologer's table. In ...case, the right side of the astrologer will be ...a and the left will be Vrischika. This way Aroodha is determined.

ASTROLOGER
Fig. 5

In Yama Graha Aroodha, Aroodha plays an important and crucial role. If Aroodha goes wrong, everything goes wrong. Hence it is very important to ascertain the Aroodha correctly.

There are three more ...portant items in this system:

(1) Udaya Lagna, (2) Surya Veedhi and (3) ...ttra Rasi.

Udaya Lagna: This is the rising sign at the ...e of query.

Surya Veedhi or Sun's passage: This is important to find the Chattra Rasi. In the solar months ...Vrishabha, Mithuna, Kataka and Simha, the ...ya Veedhi will be Mesha. In the months of ...chika, Dhanus, Makara and Kumbha, the ...ya Veedhi will be Mithuna. In Meena, Mesha, ...ya and Thula, the Surya Veedhi will be ...shabha.

In other words, Uttarayana, Dakshinayana, ...ayana are represented by the above 3 signs.

Chattra Rasi: In Sanskrit Chattra means ...brella. Under the umbrella many things are ...ered. Similarly from Chattra many hidden ...s can be brought out easily.

Technically it is the most important co...ating point linking Udaya Lagna and Aroodha. In Tamil, it is known as Kavippu which literally ...ns 'enclose and pull out one by one'. A ...ular V-shaped inverted basket with a small passage in the centre to pass the hands through is used for fishing. The fisherman places the basket and encloses some water in it and pulls out the fishes one by one with his hand. Similarly from Chattra or kavippu many facts can be pulled out.

How it is calculated and found out?

From Aroodha sign, count upto Surya Veedhi (both inclusive) and note the number. From Udaya for the same figure count the Rasis (both inclusive) and that will be the Chattra. The count is clockwise.

For 12.50 p.m. on Monday, 3rd June 1991 at Tiruchi, the Udaya Lagna will be Simha. The solar month is Vrishabha. The Surya Veedhi is Mesha. If the Aroodha Rasi of the querent is Cancer or Kataka, what will be the Chattra Rasi? See fig. 6.

Fig. 6

From Aroodha to Surya Veedhi is 10 (both inclusive). From Udaya count 10 Rasis. That will be Chattra. Here it is Vrishabha.

So far we have seen Yama, Yama Graha, Aroodha, Udaya Lagna, Surya Veedhi and Chattra Rasi.

Using all the above we shall venture to solve a problem.

1. Find the Aroodha for the time of query and note it carefully.
2. Place the Yama Grahas on the outer side of the Rasi Mandala.
3. Find out the Udaya Lagna and Surya Veedhi.
4. Determine the Chattra Rasi.
5. Place the day's planetary positions in the zodiacal signs.
6. Note the Aroodha, Udaya and Chattra in the zodiacal chart.
7. Then predictions can be given easily.

Problem: What is my family deity or Kula Daiva?

Place: Triuchi. Time 10.52 a.m. Friday. Date 10-5-1991. Aroodha sign: Kumbha Rasi.

Udaya Lagna is Kataka. Surya Veedhi is in Vrishabha. Chattra is Thula. See Figure 7.

is 4 signs. From Udaya the 4th sign is Thula. That is Chattra.

The prediction is as follows:

Family deity is Vishnu Amsa, female deity; can be Durga Devi. In the banks of River Cauvery. Roughly 30 km. eastern direction, the place would have been praised and sung by saints and had royal patronage also.

How did I arrive at this conclusion?

The 2nd house is for family, 2nd lord Sun is exalted in 10th house (in Rasi chart as well as in Yama chart). He is Vishnu Amsa, Suryanarayana. The Aroodha is the 8th house from Udaya and it is Saturn's house. Something is forgotten. Moreover Saturn is aspecting Moon of that day and Yama Graha Moon also.

Chattra is aspected by Saturn. His exaltation sign ruler Venus is in Chattra in own house. Hence a female deity. Why Durga? Saturn is a planet of destruction, because of Saturn's aspect. Moreover Venus stands for Lakshmi. She only took the form of Durga. Why the river bank Cauvery? Thula Rasi represents Cauvery river. Why 20 kilometres? The rays of the Sun are 5. He is exalted. So 3 times this (5 x 3) is 15. For Aries the ray is 7. So, 15 plus 7=22. I gave roughly 20 kilometres. East direction, why? The Sun stands for eastern direction. Why would the place be praised by saints and sung about? The Lagna lord Moon is aspected by Jupiter who is exalted. Yama Moon is in Cancer only. Jupiter aspects 5th house and 9th house also. The Moon is in Meena, Jupiter's house, in trine to Udaya. Jupiter represents saints also. The Sun is exalted in the 10th house. So the place or deity must have been praised by saints and sung about and must have been famous also. The Sun stands for royalty and kings etc. His aspect on Chattra confirms the place of the deity and royal patronage.

An old man who came with the querent immediately confirmed to me that what all I said was 100% correct. He added that there was a famous Durga Devi temple which had been patronised by the Chola kings and sung about by saints 20 kilometres east of their place. It was their Kula Daivam.

This is Yama Graha Aroodha. The time taken to give the prediction was less than 10 minutes. I use symbols only for planets with the chart to save time.—92.91.

PHRENOLOGY OR MIND SCIENCE

» 846

how can we, without great indignation and regret, entertain such suppositions?" Here is food for serious reflection and substantial imagination which, to adequately conceive, would almost make us realize the words of the poet, BEN JONSON,—

"My brain, methinks, is like an hour glass,
Wherein my imaginations run like sands,
Filling up; but then are turned and turned
So that I know not what to stay upon."

What I have written above explodes once for all Darwin's theory and renders and conceived public to accept the rationale of the science of Phrenology. Dull faces, normal and abnormal developments of heads, and many peculiarities of facial expressions, are noted by all persons. Mind is invisible to the ordinary developed senses but by superior mental developments we can read the minds of others through their gross physical appearances. Mental science is therefore of paramount importance in every age and clime, and I shall recur to the exposition of this absorbing and useful subject on a subsequent occasion.

Transit Rahu and Prediction of Events

R. M. BANERJEE

RAHU, in reality, is not a planet but the ascending node of the Moon but it is treated as one in Hindu Astrology because of its empirically tested effects on human destiny. Like other planets, results given by Rahu originate from its location, its relationship with other planets in a horoscope which manifest themselves during its Dasa and Bhukti and also in the course of its movement through different signs of the zodiac, the last named known as transit effects.

1.1 Classical Theory: The classical theory on the transit of Rahu essentially consists of the following components. (a) Rahu in transit has a backward motion. It takes roughly 1.5 years to cross a sign and so, 18 years for a complete revolution around the zodiac. (b) When in motion it aspects the 5th, 7th, 9th and 12th houses. Such aspects of Rahu however, because of its retrograde motion, are to be counted anti-clockwise. While this changed procedure of counting in the reverse direction does not make any material difference with regard to trinal and opposition aspects, in the case of the 12th house effects however they actually fall on the 2nd house from the position of Rahu in a natal chart instead of on the 12th house as would have been the case in the event of conventional forward aspects like other planets. (c) Rahu is a natural malefic and so like all natural malefics it produces good results when it transits through the 3rd, 6th, 10th and 11th houses from the natal Moon. This basic principle can be however extended to cover two other important co-ordinates of the birth chart. In fact it has been observed that Rahu also produces good results when, in motion, it comes to the 3rd, 6th, 10th and 11th houses from the Ascendant and the Sun sign in a horoscope. (d) Rahu in transit is considered to be very bad when it crosses over the Moon-sign or comes to the 2nd, 4th, 5th, 7th, 8th and 12th houses from the Rasi.

*This paper is dedicated to the memory of the late Dr. V. A. K. Ayer.

Such evil effects postulated in classical theory offer a varied spectrum. These are loss of money, failures in enterprise, illness of self and near and dear ones, abortive and infructuous journey, unpleasant posting, fear from death, enemy, fire etc.

1.2 Needless to say that the classical theory on planetary transit, not to speak of Rahu alone, is essentially Moon-centric and being of a highly generalized type is incapable of answering specific needs of prediction. But a structure containing basic and essential elements is also there which may be enriched with empirical material and type-study results for enhancing our own level of understanding of the whole dynamic process of shifting planets and its impact on us. In this connection it may be mentioned that the most outstanding work in this area was done by B. Surya Prakash. Readers may profitably read his paper "Timing Events — Transits and Directional Influences" - (A.M., August and October 1989). The present paper is also an attempt in this direction.

1.2.1 Firstly Rahu molests a luminary. When it attacks a luminary in transit in a horoscope, its owner may be anticipated to face all sorts of conceivable trouble depending upon the Karakatwa and lordship of the luminary so attacked. Such adverse effects will be more pronounced if the basic chart is already riddled with Rahu-Sun or Rahu-Moon conjunction. So when Rahu attacks the Moon in transit especially when it conjoins it, the mental equilibrium of the native gets disturbed. The native's mother may fall sick. His domestic life may be anything but peaceful. If the luminary afflicted through transiting Rahu is the Sun, the native may incur the displeasure of his superior officer. His father may fall sick. The native may be transferred to an undesirable place. Here also the Sun-Rahu conjunction in the original chart will help aggravating the transit effect of Rahu.

1.2.2 Secondly, trinal aspects of transiting Rahu have been observed to be good and enable one to consolidate one's position' and the lord to which Rahu is applying its trinal aspects. [Ref. B. Surya Prakash "Timing Events — Transits and Directional Influences" —A.M., October 1989, pg. 778). This proposition advanced by the writer has been tried and tested to be a generally valid one excepting transiting Rahu's trinal aspects on a luminary where transiting Saturn is already stationed.

When transit Rahu trinally aspects the radical Mars, the native gets energised. When it trinally aspects Venus, the native's love life may blossom but when transit Saturn conjoins a luminary and transiting Rahu's trinal aspect falls on that contact point, the native's trouble instead of subsiding gets invariably accentuated. Such troubles on an enhanced scale will continue till Saturn's transit contact ceases to operate or Rahu's transit aspect is disconnected due to its shift to the next sign by backward motion.
